

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. TO THE REVISED EDITION.

NOTE TO THE REVISED GRAMMAR.

Future editions of the author's Latin Reader and other text-books will be published with references to the new Grammar. With the help of the table on page 427, however, the corresponding references to either edition of the Grammar may be found without inconvenience.

~~THE FOLLOWING ARE THE REASONS FOR THE PRESENT REVISION~~
pared in view of these facts. It is the result of a thorough and complete revision of the author's Latin Grammar published in 1864. To a large extent, indeed, it is a new and independent work; yet the paradigms, rules of construction, and in general all parts intended for recitation, have been only slightly changed. The aim of the work in its present form is threefold.

1. It is designed to present a clear, simple, and convenient outline of Latin grammar for the beginner. It accordingly contains, in large type, a systematic arrangement of the leading facts and laws of the language, exhibiting not only grammatical forms and constructions, but also those vital principles which underlie, control, and explain them. The laws of construction are put in the form of definite rules, and illustrated by carefully selected examples. To secure convenience of reference, and to give completeness and vividness to the general outline, these rules, after having been separately discussed, are collected in a body at the close of the Syntax. Topics which require the fullest illustration are first presented in their completeness in general outline, before the separate points are explained in detail. Thus a single page often foreshadows the leading features of an extended discussion, imparting, it is believed, a completeness and vividness to the impression of the learner impossible under any other treatment.

2. It is intended to be an adequate and trustworthy grammar for the advanced student. By brevity and conciseness of phraseology, and by compactness in the arrangement of forms and topics, an ample collection of the most important grammatical facts, intended for reference, has been compressed within the limits of a convenient manual. Care has been taken to explain and illustrate, with the requisite fullness, all difficult and intricate subjects. The Subjunctive Mood and the Indirect Discourse have received special attention.

3. In a series of foot-notes it aims to bring within the reach of the student some of the more important results of recent linguistic research. Brief explanations are given of the working of phonetic laws, of the nature of inflection, of the origin of special idioms, and of various facts in the growth of language. But the distinguishing feature of this part of the work consists in the abundant references which are made to some of the latest and best authorities upon the numerous linguistic questions naturally suggested by the study of Latin grammar.¹

An attempt has been made to indicate, as far as practicable, the natural quantity of vowels before two consonants or a double consonant.²

With this brief statement of its design and plan, this volume is now respectfully committed to the hands of classical teachers.

In conclusion, the author is happy to express his grateful acknowledgments to the numerous friends who have favored him with valuable suggestions.

LATIN GRAMMAR.

1. LATIN GRAMMAR treats of the principles of the Latin language. It comprises four parts :

I. ORTHOGRAPHY, which treats of the letters and sounds of the language.

II. ETYMOLOGY, which treats of the classification, inflection, and derivation of words.

III. SYNTAX, which treats of the construction of sentences.

IV. PROSODY, which treats of quantity and versification.

PART FIRST.

ORTHOGRAPHY.

ALPHABET.

2. The Latin alphabet is the same as the English with the omission of w.¹

¹ The Romans derived their alphabet from the Greek colony at Cumae. In its original form it contained twenty-one letters: A, B, C, D, E, F, H, I, K, L, M, N, O, P, Q, R, S, T, U, X, Z. C was a modification of the Greek gamma, and F of the digamma. Q was the Greek koppa, which early disappeared from the Greek alphabet. C had the sound afterward denoted by g; K, the sound afterward denoted by c. Z early disappeared from the Latin alphabet, but was subsequently restored, though only in foreign words. Throughout the classical period only capital letters were used. On the Alphabet, see Whitney, pp. 59-70; Papillon, pp. 28-48; Wordsworth, pp. 5-10; Roby, I., pp. 21-63; Sievers, pp. 94-103; Corssen, I., pp. 1-346; Kühner, I., pp. 85-49.

1. Ů in the fourth century a. c. supplied the place both of Ů and of G.
2. G, introduced in the third century a. c., was formed from Ů by simply changing the lower part of that letter.
3. Even in the classical period the original form Ů was retained in abbreviations of proper names beginning with G. Thus C. stands for Gaius, Cn. for Gnaeus. See §49.
4. J, j, modifications of I, i, introduced in the seventeenth century of our era to distinguish the consonant I, i from the vowel I, i, are rejected by many recent editors, but retained by others.¹
5. The letters u and v, originally designated by the character V,² are now used in the best editions, the former as a vowel, the latter as a consonant.
6. In classical Latin, k is seldom used, and y and s occur only in foreign words, chiefly in those derived from the Greek.

3. Letters are divided according to the position of the vocal organs at the time of utterance into two general classes, vowels and consonants,³ and these classes are again divided into various subdivisions, as seen in the following

CLASSIFICATION OF LETTERS.

I. VOWELS.

1. OPEN VOWEL ⁴	.	.	.	.	.	.	a
2. MEDIAL VOWELS	.	.	.	.	.	.	•	•	o
3. CLOSE VOWELS ⁵	.	.	.	.	.	.	i	y	u

¹ Throughout the classical period, I, i used both as a vowel and as a consonant, supplied the place of I, i and J, j. As practical convenience has, however, already sanctioned the use of i, u, and v, characters unknown to the ancient Romans, may it not also justify the use of J, j in educational works, especially as the Romans themselves attempted to find a suitable modification of I to designate this consonant?

⁵ E is a medial vowel between the open a and the close i, o a medial vowel between the open a and the close u; i is a palatal vowel, u a labial; y was introduced from the Greek. The vowel scale, here presented in the form of a triangle, may be represented as a line, with a in the middle, with i at the palatal extreme, and with u at the labial extreme:

i e a o u

II. CONSONANTS.

	GUTTURALS.	DENTALS.	LABIALS.
1. SEMIVOWELS, sonant	i or j = y		v = w
2. NASALS, sonant	n ¹	n	m
3. ASPIRATE, surd	h
4. FRICATIVES, comprising
1. Liquids, sonant		l, r
2. Spirants, surd		s	f
5. MUTES, comprising
1. Sonant Mutes	g	d	b
2. Surd Mutes	c, k, q	t	p

NOTE 1.—Observe that the consonants are divided,

I. According to the ORGANS chiefly employed in their production, into

1. Gutturals—throat letters, also called Palatals;
2. Dentals—teeth letters, also called Linguals;
3. Labials—lip letters.

II. According to the MANNER in which they are uttered, into

1. Sonants, or voiced letters;
2. Surds, or voiceless letters.²

NOTE 2.—X = cs,³ and s = ds, are double consonants, formed by the union of a mute with the spirant s.

4. DIPHTHONGS are formed by the union of two vowels in one syllable.

NOTE.—The most common diphthongs are ae, oe, au, and eu. Ei, oi, and ui are rare.⁴

ROMAN METHOD OF PRONUNCIATION.*

5. VOWELS.—The vowel sounds are the following:

¹ With the sound of n in concord, finger. It occurs before gutturals: congrissus, meeting.

² The distinction between a sonant and a surd will be appreciated by observing the difference between the sonant b and its corresponding surd p in such words as bad, pad. B is vocalized, p is not.

⁴ Proper diphthongs were formed originally by the union of an open or medial vowel, a, e, or o, with a close vowel, i or u, as ai, ei, oi, au, eu, ou. An improper diphthong was also formed by the union of the two close vowels, as ui. For the weakening of these original diphthongs, see 23, note.

* In this country three distinct methods are recognized in the pronunciation of Latin. They are generally known as the Roman, the English, and the Continental Methods. The researches of Corssen and others have revealed laws of phonetic change of great value in tracing the history of Latin words. Accordingly, whatever method of pronunciation may be adopted for actual use in the class-room, the pupil should later be made familiar with the leading features of the Roman Method, with an approximation to the ancient pronunciation of the language.

j like y in yet: jū-stum (yoo-stum), ja-ec.

s " s " son: sa'-cer, so'-ror, Δ'-si-a.

t " t " time: tī'-mor, tō'-tus, Δ'-ti-ō.

v " w " we: va'-dum, vi'-ci, vi'-ti-um.¹

Norm.—Before s and t, b has the sound of p: urbs, sub'-ter, pronounced urpe, sup'-ter.² Ch has the sound of k: cho'-rus (ko'-rus).

8. SYLLABLES.—In dividing words into syllables,

1. Make as many syllables as there are vowels and diphthongs: mō'-re, per-suā'-dō, mēn'-sae.

2. Join to each vowel as many of the consonants which precede it—one or more—as can be conveniently pronounced at the beginning of a word or syllable:³ pa'-ter, pa'-trēs, ge'-nē-rī, dō'-mī-nus, nō'-scit, si'-etis, clav'-stra, mēn'-sa, bel'-lūm, tem'-plum, imp'-tus. But—

3. Compound words must be separated into their component parts, if the first of these parts ends in a consonant: ab'-es, ob'-i'-re.

ENGLISH METHOD OF PRONUNCIATION.⁴

9. VOWELS.—Vowels generally have their long or short English sounds.⁵

—10. LONG SOUNDS.—Vowels have their long English sounds—a as in fate, e in mete, i in pine, o in note, u in tube, y in type—in the following situations:

1. In final syllables ending in a vowel:

Se, si, ser'-vi, ser'-vo, cor'-nu, mī'-sy.

2. In all syllables, before a vowel or diphthong:

Dē'-us, de-o'-rum, dē'-ae, dī'-e'-i, nī'-hi-lum.⁶

² On Assimilation in Sound in this and similar cases, see p. 17, foot-note 1.

3. In penultimate¹ syllables before a single consonant, or before a mute followed by a liquid :

Pa'ter, pa'tres, ho-no'-ris, A'thos, O'thrys.

4. In unaccented syllables, not final, before a single consonant, or before a mute followed by a liquid :

Do-lo'-ris, cor'-po-ri, con'-su-lis, a-gri'-ola.

1) A unaccented has the sound of a final in America: men'-sa, a-cu'-tus, a-ma'-mus.²

2) I and y unaccented, in any syllable except the first and last, generally have the short sound: nob'-i-lis (nob'-e-lis), Am'-y-cus (Am'-e-cus).

3) I preceded by an accented a, e, o, or y, and followed by another vowel, is a semivowel³ with the sound of y in yet: A-cha'-ia (A-ka'-ya), Pom-pe'-ius (Pom-pe'-yus), La-to'-ia (La-to'-ya), Har-py'-ia (Har-py'-ya).

4) U has the short sound before bl, and the other vowels before gl and il: Pub-lic'-ola, Ag-la'-o-phon, Al'-laa.

5) U⁴ in qu, and generally in gu and su before a vowel, has the sound of u: qui (kwi), qua; lin'-gua (lin'-gwa), lin'-guis; sua'-de-o (swa'-de-o).

6) COMPOUND WORDS.—When the first part of a compound is entire and ends in a consonant, any vowel before such consonant has generally the short sound: a in ab'-es, e in red'-it, i in in'-it, o in ob'-it, prod'-et. But those final syllables which, as exceptions, have the long sound before a consonant (11, 1), retain that sound in compounds: post'-quam, hos'-es. E'-ti-am and quo'-ni-am are generally pronounced as simple words.⁵

11. SHORT SOUNDS.—Vowels have their short English sounds—a as in fat, e in met, i in pin, o in not, u in tub, y in myth—in the following situations :

1. In final syllables ending in a consonant :

A'-mat, a'-met, rex'-it, sol, con'-sul, Te'-thys; except post, es final, and oe final in plural cases: res, di'-es, hos, a'gros.

2. In all syllables before x, or any two consonants except a mute followed by a liquid (10, 3 and 4) :

Rex'-it, bel'-lum, rex'-e-runt, bel'-lo'-rum.

¹ Penultimate, the last syllable but one.

² Some give the same sound to a final in monosyllables: da, qua; while others give it the long sound according to 10, 1.

³ Sometimes written j.

⁵ Eti-am is compounded of et and jam; quoniam, of quom = quum, cum, and jam.

3. In all accented syllables, not penultimate, before one or more consonants :

Dom'-i-nus, pat'-ri-bus. But—

1) A, e, or o before a single consonant (or a mute and a liquid), followed by e, i, or y before another vowel, has the long sound: a'-ci-as, a'-cri-a, me'-re-o, do'-ce-o.

2) U, in any syllable not final, before a single consonant or a mute and a liquid, except bl, has the long sound: Pu'-ni-cus, sa-lu'-bri-tas.

3) Compounds; see 10, 6).

12. DIPHTHONGS.—Diphthongs are pronounced as follows :

Ae like e: *Cae'-sar, Daed'-a-lus.*¹ | Au as in author: au'-rum.

Oe like e: *Oe'-ta, Oed'-i-pus.*¹ | Eu as in neuter: neu'-ter.

1. Ei and oi are seldom diphthongs, but when so used they are pronounced as in height, coin: hei, proin; see Synaeresis, § 83, III.

2. Ui, as a diphthong with the long sound of i, occurs in cui, lui, luic.

13. CONSONANTS.—The consonants are pronounced in general as in English. Thus—

I. C and G are soft (like s and j) before e, i, y, ae, and oe, and hard in other situations: ce'-do (se'-do), ci'-vis, Cy'-rus, cae'-do, cae'-pi, a'-ge (a'-je), a'-gi; ca'-do (ka'-do), co'-go, cum, Ga'-des. But

1. C has the sound of sh—

1) Before i preceded by an accented syllable and followed by a vowel: wo'-ci-us (so'-she-us);

2) Before eu and yo preceded by an accented syllable: ca-du'-ce-us (ca-du'-she-us), Sic'-y-on (Sish'-y-on).

2. Ch is hard like k: cho'-rus (ko'-rus), Chi'-os (Ki'-os).

3. G has the soft sound before g soft: ag'-ger.

II. S, T, and X are generally pronounced as in the English words son, time, expect: sa'-cer, ti'-mor, rex'-i (rek'-si). But—

1. S, T, and X are aspirated before i preceded by an accented syllable and followed by a vowel—s and t taking the sound of sh, and x that of k: Al'-ti-um (Al'-she-um), ar'-ti-um (ar'-she-um), anx'-i-us (ank'-she-us). But

1) T loses the aspirate—(1) after s, t, or w: Os'-ti-a, At'-ti-us, mis'-ti-o; (2) in old infinitives in ter: flec'-ti-er; (3) generally in proper names in tion (tyon): Phi'-li-um, Am-phi'-ty-on.

¹ The diphthong has the long sound in Cae'-sar and Oe'-ta, according to 1st the short sound in Daed'-a-lus (Ded'-a-lus) and Oed'-i-pus (Ed'-i-pus), acco-11, 3, as e would be thus pronounced in the same situations.

8 CONTINENTAL METHOD OF PRONUNCIATION.

2. S is pronounced like s—

1) At the end of a word, after a, ae, ou, b, m, n, r: spes, prae, laus, urbs, M'-ems, mons, pars;

2) In a few words after the analogy of the corresponding English words: Caes'-sar, Caesar; cau'-sa, cause; mu'-sa, muse; mi'-ser, miser, miserable, etc.

3. X at the beginning of a word has the sound of s: Xan'-thus.

14. SYLLABLES.—In dividing words into syllables—

1. Make as many syllables as there are vowels and diphthongs: mo'-re, per-sua'-de, men'-sae.

2. Distribute the consonants so as to give the proper sound to each vowel and diphthong, as determined by previous rules (10-12): pa'-ter, pa'-tres, a-gro'-rum, au-di'-vi; gen'-e-ri, dom'-i-nus; bel'-lum, pat'-ri-bus; emp'-tus, tem'-plum; rex'-i, anz'-i-us; post'-quam, hos'-ce.¹

CONTINENTAL METHOD OF PRONUNCIATION.*

15. For the Continental Method, as adopted in this country, take—

1. The Roman pronunciation of the vowels and diphthongs; see 5 and 6.
2. The English pronunciation of the consonants;² see 13.
3. The Roman division of words into syllables; see 8.

QUANTITY.

16. Syllables are in quantity or length either long, short, or common.⁴

I. LONG.—A syllable is long in quantity—

1. If it contains a diphthong or a long vowel: haec, rēs.⁵

¹ Observe that compound words are separated into their component parts, if the first of these parts ends in a consonant (10, 4, 6), as post'-quam; that in other cases, after a vowel with a long sound, consonants are joined to the following syllable, as in the first four examples, pa'-ter, etc., and that, after a vowel with a short sound, a single consonant is joined to such vowel, as in gen'-e-ri and dom'-i-nus; that two consonants are separated, as in bel'-lum, etc.; that of three or four consonants, the last, or, if a mute and a liquid, the last two, are joined to the following syllable, as in emp'-tus, etc., but that the double consonant ae is joined to the preceding vowel, as in rex'-i, anz'-i-us.

³ Though the pronunciation of the consonants varies somewhat in different institutions.

⁴ Common—i. e., sometimes long and sometimes short. For rules of quantity see Prosody. Two or three leading facts are here given for the convenience of the learner.

⁵ See note 3 below.

—2. If its vowel is followed by j, x, or z, or any two consonants, except a mute and a liquid :¹ dux, rēx, sunt.²

—II. SHORT.—A syllable is short, if its vowel is followed by another vowel, by a diphthong, or by the aspirate h: dī'-ēs, vi'-ae, nī'-hil.

—III. COMMON.—A syllable is common, if its vowel, naturally short, is followed by a mute and a liquid : a'-grī.

NOTE 1.—Vowels are also in quantity either long, short, or common; but the quantity of the vowel does not always coincide with the quantity of the syllable.³

NOTE 2.—Vowels are long before ns and nf, generally also before gn and j: cōn'-sul, in'-fē'-lix, rēg'-num, hū'-jus.⁴

NOTE 3.—The signs [˘], ^ˉ are used to mark the quantity of vowels, the first denoting that the vowel over which it is placed is long, the second that it is common, i. e., sometimes long and sometimes short: a-mā'-bē. All vowels not marked are to be treated as short.⁵

NOTE 4.—Diphthongs are always long.

ACCENTUATION.*

—17. Words of two syllables are always accented on the first : mēn'-sa.

NOTE.—Monosyllables are also accented.

—18. Words of more than two syllables are accented on ¹ That is, in the order here given, with the mute before the liquid; if the liquid precedes, the syllable is long.

² Observe that the vowel in such syllables may be either long or short. Thus it is long in rēx, but short in dux and sunt.

⁴ See Schmitz, pp. 3-33, also p. 56; Kühner, I., p. 187; also H. A. J. Munro's pamphlet on the Pronunciation of Latin, pp. 24-26.

⁵ See p. 4, foot-note 4. In many words short vowels are marked with the sign [˘]: rēgia.

* With the ancient Romana accent probably related not to force or stress of voice, as with us, but to musical pitch. It was also distinguished as acute or circumflex. Thus all monosyllables and all words in which the vowel of the penult is long and the syllable short were said to have the circumflex accent, while all other accented were said to have the acute. The distinction is of no practical value in pronunciation. On the general subject of Accent, see Ellis, pp. 8-10; Roby, I., pp. 98-100; Kū p. 148; Corssen, II., pp. 806-808.

the Penult,¹ if that is long in quantity,² otherwise on the Antepenult:³ ho-nō'-ris, cōn'-su-lis.

1. Certain words which have lost a syllable retain the accent of the full form. Thus—

1) Genitives in i for is and vocatives in i for is: in-ge'-ni for in-ge'-ni-i, Mer-cu'-ri for Mer-cu'-ri-e.

2) Certain words which have lost a final e: il-lī'e for il-lī'-ce, il-lā'e for il-lā'-ce, is-lī'e for is-lī'-ce, etc.; bo-nān' for bo-nā'-ne, il-lān' for il-lā'-ne, tan-tōn' for tan-tō'-ne, au-dīn' for au-dī'-ne, z-dū'e for z-dū'-ce.⁴

NOTE 1.—Prepositions standing before their cases are treated as Proclitics—i. e., are so closely united in pronunciation with the following word as to have no accent of their own: sub yā'-dī-ca in-ter rē'-gia.

NOTE 2.—Penults common in quantity take the accent when used as long.

2. Compounds are accented like simple words; but—

1) The enclitics, que, ve, ne, ce, met, etc., throw back their accents upon the last syllable of the word to which they are appended: ho'-mi-nē'-que,⁵ mīn-sa'-que,⁶ e-go'-met.

2) Facit, compounded with other words than prepositions, retains its own accent: ca-le-fa'-cit.⁷

3. A secondary or subordinate accent is placed on the second or third syllable before the primary accent—on the second, if that is the first syllable of the word, or is long in quantity, otherwise on the third: mo'-nu-ū'-runt, mo'-nu-e-rū'-mus,⁸ in-stau'-rā-vē'-runt.

NOTE.—A few long words admit two secondary or subordinate accents: ho'-nō-rīf'-lō-en-tī'e-sī-mus.⁹

PHONETIC CHANGES.

19. Latin words have undergone important changes in accordance with phonetic laws.¹

¹ The penult is the last syllable but one; the antepenult, the last but two.

² Thus the quantity of the syllable, not of the vowel, determines the place of the accent: re-gēn'-tis, accented on the penult, because that syllable is long, though its vowel is short; see 16, I, 2.

⁴ By the English method, hōm'-i-nē'-que, ca'-e-fa'-cit.

⁵ A word accented upon the penult thus loses its own accent before an enclitic: mīn'-sa, mīn-sa'-que.

⁶ By the English method, mōn'-u-ū'-runt, mōn'-u-e-rū'-mus, hōn'-ū-rīf'-lō-en-tī'e-sī-mus.

⁷ In the history of the ancient languages of the Indo-European family, to which the Latin, Greek, and English alike belong, the general direction of phonetic change has been from the extremes of the alphabetic scale—i. e., from the open a at one extreme and

I. CHANGES IN VOWELS.

20. Vowels are often lengthened:

1. In compensation for the dropping of consonants:

Servoms,¹ servōs, slaves; rēgoms, rēgōs, kings; posnō, pōnō, I place; magior,¹ māior or māior, greater.

2. In the inflection of verbs:

Legō, lēgō,² I read, I have read; edō, ēdō, I eat, I have eaten; fugīō, fēgō, I flee, I have fled.

NOTE 1.—Sometimes vowels are changed, as well as lengthened: agō, ēgō, I drive, I have driven; faciō, fēcō, I make, I have made; see 255, II.

NOTE 2.—Different forms from the same stem or root sometimes show a variable vowel: ducō, dūcō, of a leader, you lead; regō, rēgō, you rule, of a king; tegō, toga, I cover, a covering, the toga.³ See also 22, 1.

21. Vowels are often shortened:⁴

1. Regularly in final syllables before m and t:

Erām, eram,⁵ I was; monēm, monem, let me advise; audiām, audiam, let me hear; erāt, erat, he was; amāt, amat, he loves; monēt, monet, he advises; sit, sit, may he be; audīt, audit, he hears.

2. Often in other final syllables. Thus—

1) Final *ā*⁶ is shortened (1) in the Plural of Neuter nouns and adjectives,⁶ and (2) in the Nominative and Vocative Singular of Feminine⁷ nouns and adjectives of the first declension:

from the close mutes at the other—toward the middle of the scale, where the vowels and consonants meet; see 3. Accordingly, in Latin words we shall not unfrequently find e or o, or even i or u, occupying the place of a primitive a; and we shall sometimes find a liquid or a fricative occupying the place of a primitive mute. See Whitney, p. 68; Papillon, p. 49; Peile, pp. 199 and 312.

² The short vowel of the present tense is here lengthened in the perfect; see 255, II.

³ In ducō, dūcō, and in regō, rēgō, the variation is simply in the quantity of the vowel, but in tegō, toga, the vowel itself is changed, appearing as e in tegō and o in toga. Sometimes a single vowel appears in one form while a diphthong appears in another: fidēs, faith, foedūs, treaty.

⁴ See Corssen, II., p. 436 seq.

⁶ Corssen regards numerals in -gintā, as tri-gintā, quadragintā, etc., as Plural Neuters, and ā as the original ending. He recognizes also the Neuter Plural of the pronoun with ā in ant-ā, post-ā, inter-ā, præter-ā, ante-hā-a, præter-hā-a. See Corssen, II., p. 455. For a different explanation, see 304, IV., N. 2.

⁷ In masculine nouns of the first declension a final was short in the Nominative even in early Latin: scriba, a scribe. But most stems in a weakened a to o, and thus passed into the second declension.

2. Vowels are often weakened without any such special cause:¹

Puerum, puerum, a boy; filios, filius, son; sunt, sunt, they are; regunt, regunt, they rule; decimus, decimus, tenth; maximus, maximus, greatest; legitimus, legitimus, lawful; aedumō, aestimō, I estimate.

23. Two successive vowels are sometimes contracted:

1. Into a DIPHTHONG: mēnsā-i, mēnsai, mēnsae, tables; see 4.

2. More frequently into a LONG VOWEL. In this case the second vowel generally disappears. Thus e and i often disappear after a, e, and o:

Amāverat, amaerat, amārat, he had loved; amāvissē, amāissē, amāssē, to have loved; flēverunt, flēerunt, flērunt, they have wept; advīssē, noīssē, nōssē, to know; servot, servō, for the slave.

NOTE.—The proper diphthongs of early Latin were changed or weakened as follows:

- ai*² generally into ae; sometimes into ē or i.
- oi* generally into oe; sometimes into ū or i.
- ei* generally into i; sometimes unchanged.
- au* sometimes into ō or ū; generally unchanged.
- eu* generally into ū; rarely unchanged.
- ou* regularly into ū.

Aedilis, aedilis, an aedile; Rōmai, Rōmae, at Rome; amāimus, amēmus, let us love; in-caedit, in-cidit, he cuts into; mēnsais, mēneis, with tables; foidus, foedus, treaty; coira, coera, cūra, care; loidos, loedus, lūds,³ play; puerois, pueris, for the boys; ceivis, civis, citizen; lautus, lūtus,⁴ elegant; ex-claudō, ex-clūdō, I shut out; doucit, dūcit, he leads; jous, jās,⁵ right.

24. Vowels are sometimes changed through the influence of the consonants which follow them. Thus—

¹ That is, by the ordinary process of phonetic decay, a process which in many words has changed an original a of the parent language to e or o in Latin, and in some words to i or u. Corssen cites upward of four hundred Latin words in which he supposes a primitive a to have been weakened to e, a, or i. Even the long vowels are sometimes weakened. Compare the following forms, in which the Sanskrit retains the vowel of the parent language.

SANSKRIT.	LATIN.	ENGLISH.	SANSKRIT.	LATIN.	ENGLISH.
saṭa,	septem,	seven.	paḍas,	pedēs,	feet.
naṇa,	novem,	nēna.	navas,	novus,	new.
daṭa,	decem,	ten.	vāḱ,	vōx,	voice.
mātā,	māter,	mother.	vācas,	vōcis,	of a voice.
sada,	sēdēs,	seat.	vācam,	vōcem,	voice.

² The forms ai, oi, ei, au, eu, and ou are all found in early Latin, as in inscriptions; but in the classical period ai had been already changed to ae, oi to oe, and ou to ū.

³ Loidos, the earliest form, became loedus by weakening oi to oe, and o to u (§2, 2); then loedus became lūds by weakening oe to ū.

⁴ Lautus, the earlier, is also the more approved form.

⁵ As eu and ou were both weakened to ū, it is not easy to give trustworthy examples of the weakening of eu to ū.

1. E is the favorite vowel before r, z, or two or more consonants:

*Cineris, cineris*¹ (31), of ashes; jūdex, jūdex, judge; mīlīs, milēs, miles,² of a soldier, a soldier.

NOTE.—E final is also a favorite vowel: servo, serve, O slave; monēris, monēri, monēre,³ you are advised; marī, mare, sea.

2. I is the favorite vowel before n, s, and t:

Hominis, hominis, of a man; pulver or pulvis,⁴ dust; salūtes, salūtu, of safety; vērītās, veritās, truth; genitor, genitor, father.

3. U is the favorite vowel before l and m, especially when followed by another consonant:

Epistola, epistula, letter; vult, vult, he wishes; facilitās, facilitās (27), facultās, faculty; monūmentum, monumentum, monument; colonna, columna, column.

25. ASSIMILATION.—A vowel is often assimilated by a following vowel. Thus—

1. A vowel before another vowel is often partially⁵ assimilated. I is thus changed to e before a, o, or u: īa, ea, this; īd, ed, I go; iunt, eunt, they go; iadem, eadem, same; dīvus, dīvus (36, 4), deus, god.

NOTE.—When the first vowel is thus adapted to the second, the assimilation is said to be regressive, but sometimes the second vowel is adapted to the first, and then the assimilation is progressive. Thus the ending īd (31, 2), instead of becoming ea as above, may become īd: lūcurīd (perhaps for lūcurīde), lūcurīde, luxury; māterīd, māterīde,⁶ material.

2. A vowel may be completely assimilated by the vowel of the following syllable from which it is separated by a consonant. Thus—

- 1) E is assimilated to i: mehī, mihī, for me; tebī, tibī, for you; sehbī, sibī, for himself; nehil, nihil, nothing.

2) U is assimilated to i: consulīum, consiliūm, counsel; exsulīum, exsilīum, exile.

3) Other vowels are sometimes assimilated; o to e: bonē, benē, bene (31, 2), well; e to u: tegurīum, tugurīum, hut; stō, stō: stōre, stōre, stupid.

26. DISSIMILATION.—A vowel is often changed by dissimilation,

¹ Cinēis, from cīnis, becomes cīneris by changing e to r between two vowels, making cīneris (31, 1), and by then changing i to e before r.

² Observe that the vowel which appears as i in mīlītis before t, takes the form of e in mīlēt before te, as also in mīlēs for mīlēt.

³ Monēris becomes monēre by dropping s (36, 5), and changing final i to e.

⁴ Observe that the form in r has e, while that in s has i.

⁵ That is, it is made like it, adapted to it, but does not become identical with it. Thus i before a may be changed to e, but not to a.

⁶ Thus from nouns in īd of the first declension were developed nearly all nouns in īde of the fifth.

i. e., by being made unlike the following vowel : ai, ei, these ; ia, ie, for these.¹

NOTE.—The combination ii is sometimes avoided by the use of e in place of the second i : pietie instead of piitia, piety ; societie, society ; varietie, variety.

27. Vowels are often dropped in the middle or at the end of words, sometimes even at the beginning :

Tempulum, templum, temple ; vinculum, vinclum, band ; benigenus, benignus,² benignant ; amab, amb, I love ; temploa, templa, temples ; animale, animal,³ an animal ; si-ne, ein, if not ; dice, dic, say ; esum, sum, I am ; esumus, sumus, we are.

NOTE.—After a word ending in a vowel or in m, est, he is, often drops the initial e, and becomes attached to the preceding word : res optuma est, res optumast, the thing is best ; optimum est, optimumast, it is best ; domi est, domiast, he is at home. In the same way es, thou art, is sometimes attached to the preceding word, when that word ends in a vowel : homō es, homōe, you are a man. For the loss of a final e from the preceding word, see 36, § 1), note.

II. INTERCHANGE OF VOWELS AND CONSONANTS.

28. The vowel i and the consonant i—also written j—are sometimes interchanged :

Altior,⁴ higher ; magior, māior or mājor, greater ; ipetus, of himself ; ius or jus, of him.

29. The vowel u and the consonant u—generally written v—are often interchanged :

Col-ut,⁵ I have cultivated ; vocd-vi,⁶ I have called ; nāvita, nāvta, nauta, sailor ; volvut, volvut, rolled ; lavtus, lautus or lōtus,⁷ washed ; mōvut, mōvut, mōtus,⁸ moved.

NOTE.—The Liquids and Nasals are sometimes so fully vocalized as to develop vowels

¹ The combination uu was also avoided in early Latin either by retaining the second vowel in the form of o, instead of weakening it to u, or by changing qu to o : equos, afterward equus, a horse ; quom, or oum, afterward, though not properly in classical times, quum, when. Observe that when o becomes u, a preceding qu becomes c : quom, oum ; loquūtā, locūtus, having spoken. See Brambach, p. 5.

² See 16, note 2.

³ Observe that after e is dropped, d is shortened in the final syllable : animā, animal ; see 21, 2.

⁵ The ending which appears as ut in col-ut becomes et in vocd-et. U becomes v between two vowels.

⁶ If a vowel precedes the v thus changed to u, a contraction takes place—a-u becoming au, rarely ō, o-u becoming ō, and u-u becoming ū : lavtus, lautus, lōtus, washed ; mōvut, mōvut, mōtus, moved ; jurtus, jurtus, jūtus, assisted.

before them.¹ Thus agr (for agrus) becomes ager,² field; der (for deris), deer,³ sharp; regm, regem, king; sm (for sem), sum, I am; ent (for entis), enti, they are.

III. CHANGES IN CONSONANTS.

30. A Guttural—o, g,² q (qu), or *h*⁴—before s generally unites with it and forms x:

Dux, dux, leader; pax, pax, peace; rex, rex,⁵ rēx, king; lex, lex, lax, law; coqui, coxi,⁶ coxi, I have cooked; trahere, traxi, traxi, I have drawn.

NOTE 1.—V for qu in vivo, I live, is treated as a guttural: vixi, vixi, vixi, I have lived.

NOTE 2.—For the Dropping of the Guttural before s, see 36, 3.

31. s is often changed to r:

1. Generally so when it stands between two vowels: flōs, flōis, flowers; jūsa, jūra, rights; mēnsūm, mēnsūm, of tables; agrōm, agrōm, of fields; eram, eram, I was; erāmus, erāmus, we were; fuerunt, fuerunt, they have been; fuertit, fuertit, he will have been; amaret, amaret, he would love; regis, regeris,⁷ you are ruled.

2. Often at the end of words: hōns, honor, honor; rōbus, rōbus, rōbur, strength; puerus, puerus, puer,⁷ boy; regitue, regiture, regitur,⁷ he is ruled.⁸

3. Sometimes before m, n, or v: casmen, carmen, song; vetenus, veternus, old; hodienu, hodiernus, of this day; Minerva, Minerva, the goddess Minerva.

32. d is sometimes changed to l:

Dacrima, lacrima, tear; lingua, lingua, language; odere, olere, to emit an odor.

NOTE 1.—d final sometimes stands in the place of an original t: id,⁹ this; istud, that; illud, that; quod, quid, what, which?

NOTE 2.—de at the beginning of a word (1) sometimes becomes d: bellum, bellum, war; deis, dis, twice; (2) sometimes drops d: deignit, vignit, twenty; and (3) sometimes drops v: deis, dis, inseparable particle (308), in two, asunder.

33. PARTIAL ASSIMILATION.—A consonant is often partially¹⁰ assimilated by a following consonant. Thus—

² The ending us or is is dropped (36, 5, 2), note), and r final vocalized to er; m becomes em in regem, and um in sum; n becomes ne in sum.

³ Sometimes qu: extingui, extingui, extingui, I have extinguished.

⁴ For an original gh.

⁵ The process seems to be that the guttural before s first becomes c, and then unites with s and forms x: thus in coqui, qu becomes c.

⁶ Observe that t before s becomes s before r; see 24.

⁷ Here s was probably changed to r before the final vowel was dropped.

⁸ Literally, he rules himself.

⁹ For id, istud, etc. d stands for t also in the old Ablative in d: praedid for praedit, afterward praedit, with booty; magistratid for magistratit, magistratit, from the magistracy.

¹⁰ That is, it is adapted or accommodated to it, but does not become the same letter.

1. Before the surd s or t, a sonant b or g is generally changed to its corresponding surd, *p*¹ or c:

Scribet, scripsi, I have written; scribitus, scriptus, written; regit, récti, réxi (30), I have ruled; regtus, réctus, ruled. See also 35, 2, note.

NOTE.—Qu, h for gh, and v for gv are also changed to c before s and t: coquit, cocti, he has cooked; coctus, coctus, cooked; trahit, traxi, traxi, he has drawn; trahus, tractus, drawn; vivit, vixit, vixit, he has lived; victurus, victurus, about to live.

2. Before a sonant l, m, n, or r, a surd c, p, or t is generally changed to its corresponding sonant, g, b, or d:

Negleđ, negleđ, I neglect; sec-mentum, segmentum, a cutting; populicus, pūpicus, publicus,² public; quatra, quadra, a square; quadriginā, quadrāginā, forty.

3. Before a Labial p or b, n is generally changed to m:³

Imperđ, imperđ, I command; inperātor, imperātor, commander; imbellis, unwarlike.

NOTE.—Before n, a Labial p or b is changed to m in a few words: sopnus, somnus, sleep; Sabinum, Samnium, the country of the Samnites.

4. M is changed to n—

1) Regularly before a Dental Mute:

Eundem, eundem, the same; eōrundem, eōrundem, of the same; quemdam, quendam, a certain one; tantus, tantus, so great; quantus, quantus, how great, as great.

2) Often before a Guttural Mute:

Hum-ce, hunc, this; num-ce, nunc,⁴ now; prim-ceps, princeps, first; nūmquam or nūquam,⁵ never; quamquam or quāquam, although.

¹ But b is generally retained (1) before s in nouns in de: urbs, not urps, city, and in aba, from; and (2) before s and t in ob, on account of, and sub, under, in compounds and derivatives: ob-servans, observant; ob-tusus, obtuse; sub-scribō, I subscribe; sub-ter, under. In these cases, however, b takes the sound of p, so that assimilation takes place in pronunciation, though not in writing. It is probable also that in some other consonants assimilation was observed even when omitted in writing: imprimis and imprimis, both pronounced imprimis. See Roby, I, p. lvii.; Munro, p. 10.

² Qu, also written gv, is not a syllable; nor is u or v in this combination either a vowel or a consonant, but simply a parasitic sound developed by g, which is never found without it.

³ For trahet; h is dropped, and g assimilated to c.

⁴ For gvigviti; the first g and the second v are dropped: vigiti, vixiti, vixiti.

⁵ From populus, the people.

⁶ P is changed to b, and c is weakened to s; see 22.

⁷ From quattuor, four.

⁸ That is, the dental n becomes the labial m.

⁹ "Or" placed between two forms denotes that both are in good use: nūquam or nūquam. In other cases the last is the only approved form: nunc, princeps.

NOTE 1.—Before the ending -que, m is generally retained: ¹ quiscumque, whoever; quemque, every one; namque, for indeed.

NOTE 2.—Quom-iam or quom-fam becomes quoniam, since.

34. A consonant is often completely assimilated by a following consonant. Thus—

1. T or d is often assimilated before n or s:

Penna, penna, feather; mercennarius, mercennarius, mercenary; concussit, concussit, he has shaken.

NOTE.—M before s is sometimes assimilated, and sometimes develops p: premit, premit, he has pressed; sumpsit, sumpsit, he has taken.

2. D, n, or r is often assimilated before l:

Sedula, sedla (27), sella, seat; anulus, anlus (27), allus, any; puerula, puerla, puella, girl.

3. B, g, or n is often assimilated before m:

Sub-moveo or sum-moveo, I remove; supmus, summus, highest; flagma, flamma, flame; innötus or innötus, unmoved.

NOTE.—For ASSIMILATION in Prepositions in Composition, see 344, 5.

35. DISSIMILATION.—The meeting of consonants too closely related and the recurrence of the same consonant in successive syllables are sometimes avoided by changing one of the consonants. Thus—

1. Caeluleus becomes caeruleus, azure; medi-dies, meridies, midday.

2. Certain suffixes of derivation have two forms, one with r to be used after l, and one with l to be used after r: ² aris, alis; burum, brum, ³ bulum; ⁴ curum, crum, culum:

Populäris, ⁴ popular; regälis, ⁴ kingly; deläbrum, shrine; tribulum, threshing-sledge; sepulcrum, sepulchre; periculum, peril.

3. A Dental Mute—d or t—may unite with a following t in two ways:

1) Dt or tt may become st: ⁵

Edt, est, he eats; rodtum, rostrum, a beak; equdtis, equestis, equestrian.

2) Dt or tt may become ss or s: ⁶

Fodtus, fössus, dug; vidtus, visus, seen; plaudtus, plausus, praised; metus, meesus, reaped; verttus, veresus, turned.

² This distinction is, however, not always observed. The form with l, probably weakened from that with r, became the favorite form, and was generally used if l did not precede.

³ From burum are formed (1) brum by dropping u, and (2) bulum by weakening r into l. In the same way crum and culum are formed from curum.

⁵ Here d or t is changed to s by Dissimilation.

⁶ In regard to the exact process by which dt or tt becomes ss or s, there is a diversity of opinion among philologists. See Papillon, p. 75; Roby, p. 62; Corssen, I., p. 208.

NOTE.—Lgt may become ls; ¹ rgt, rs; ² ll, ls; ³ and rrt, rs.⁴ mulgtus, mulsus, milked; spargtus, sparsus, scattered; falltus, fallsus, false; verrtus, versus, swept.

36. OMISSION.—Consonants are sometimes dropped. Thus—

1. Some words which originally began with two consonants have dropped the first:

Clāmentum,⁵ lāmentum, lamentation; gnātus, nātus, born; gnōtus,⁶ nōtus, known; dviginti, viginti, twenty; qfallit, fallit, he deceives.

2. A Dental Mute—d or t—before s is generally dropped:⁷

Lapids, lapis, stone; actās, adda, age; miletis, miles, soldier; claudsi, clausi, I have closed.

NOTE.—D is occasionally dropped before other consonants: lod-ca, lōcā, lōo, this; quod-circā, quōdircā,⁸ for which reason: ad-gnōcā, agnōcā, I recognize.

3. A Guttural Mute—c, g, or q (qu)—is generally dropped—

1) Between a Liquid and s:

Mulcrit, mulsi, he has appeased; fulguit, fulsi, it has lightened.

2) Between a Liquid and t:

Fulotus, fultus, propped; sartus, sartus, repaired.

3) Between a Liquid and m:

Fulgmen, fulmen, lightning; torquementum, tormentum, engine for hurling missiles.

NOTE 1.—A Guttural Mute is occasionally dropped in other situations.⁹ Thus—

1. C before m or n: lācmen, lāmen, light; lācna, lāna, moon.

2. C between n and d or t: quinctus, quintus, fifth; quindēcim, quindēcim, fifteen.

3. G before m or v:¹⁰ exagmen, exāmen (30, 1), a swarm; jūgmentum, jūmentum, beast of burden; magvult, māvult, he prefers; bregeis, brevis, short.

NOTE 2.—X is sometimes dropped: sexdecim, sēdecim (30, 1), sixteen; sext, sēxt, six each; tecula, tēcla, a web; avula, avla, āla, wing.

NOTE 3.—N,¹¹ r, and s are sometimes dropped: in-gnōtus, ignōtus, unknown; formōneus, formōneus, beautiful; quotiēns,¹² quotiēns, how often; decīēns, decīēns,¹³ ten ¹ T is changed to s, and g is dropped.

² T is changed to s, and one l is dropped in ll, and one r in rrt.

³ Compare clāmā, I cry out.

⁴ Seen in ignōtus, ignōtus, unknown.

⁵ Probably first assimilated and then dropped: lapids, lapis, lapis. But the dental is sometimes assimilated and retained: cādet, cāst, I have yielded; concutit, concutit, he has shaken.

⁶ O lengthened in compensation; see 30, 1.

⁷ Sextus becomes Sstus, a proper name; sexcenti, sēcenti, six hundred; and mixtus, mixtus, mixed, by dropping the mute contained in the double consonant x.

⁸ G has also been dropped in ātō for agītō, I say; māior for magior, greater, etc.

⁹ In numerals nt is sometimes dropped: ducentnt, ducenti, two hundred each; vigēnt-sinus or vicēnt-sinus, vigēnt-sinus or vicēnt-sinus, twentieth.

¹⁰ So in all numeral adverbs in lēns, lēns. The approved ending in most numer-times; muller-bris, mullebris, womanly; prorsa, prœsa, prose; ledem, idem, same; jūda, jūdex, judge; audire, audire, audia, do you hear? etia, etia, etia, do you wish?

4. A Semivowel—j or v, also written i or u—is often dropped:

Bi-jugae, biugas, bigae, chariot with two horses; quadri-jugae, quadrigae, chariot with four horses; con-junctus, cō-junctus, cūnctus, the whole; abiciō or abiciō,¹ I throw away; divitiō, divitiō, divitiō, richer; nevolō, nevolō, nevolō, I am unwilling; amāverat, amāverat, amāverat, he had loved.²

NOTE.—Separate words are sometimes united after the loss of v: et etia, etia, etia, I. you wish; et vultis, vultis, vultis, if you wish.

5. Final consonants are often dropped. Thus—

1) Final s is often dropped:³

Monēris, monēris (24, 1, note), you are advised; illu, illu, ille, that; istū, istū, iste, that of yours; ipse, ipse, ipse, self, he; parricidat,⁴ parricida, parricide; magis or mage, more; sive, sive, whether, lit., if you wish.

NOTE.—In the early poets es, thou art, and est, he is, after having dropped the initial e, sometimes become attached to the preceding word, which has lost its final s: veritus es, veritu's, you feared; tempus est, tempust, it is time; virtus est, virtutē, it is virtue. See 27, note.

2) A final d or t is often dropped:

Cord, cor, heart; praedat, praedat,⁵ with booty; intrat, intrat, within; facilundat,⁶ facillimē, most easily; venerunt,⁷ veneru, veneru, they have come; rexerunt, rexere, they have ruled.

NOTE.—Sometimes both a vowel and a consonant disappear at the end of a word: puerue, puer, boy (31, 2, 4)); deinde or dein, thereupon; nihilum or nihil, nothing.

3) A final *n*⁸ is generally dropped in the Nominative Singular from stems in on:

Leōn, leō, lion; praedōn, praedō, robber; hōmōn, hōmō, man.

adverbs is itē, but in those formed from indefinite numerals, as tot, quot, it is itēne: totiēne, quotiēne.

² Several adverbial forms were produced by the loss of e with the attendant changes: recorsus, recorsus, reversus, back; subversus, subversus, subversus, from below, on high.

³ In early inscriptions proper names in os, afterward us, occur without the e as often as with it: Rōcios, Rōcio; Gabinos, Gabinio.

⁴ This form actually occurs in early Latin.

⁵ The Ablative singular ended anciently in d, originally t. Many prepositions and adverbs in d and t are ablatives in origin, and accordingly ended in d.

⁶ Written with one i, afterward with two.

⁷ Here final t was first dropped, then n, having become final, also disappeared, and at last final u was weakened to e; see 24, 1, note.

⁸ In early inscriptions final n is often dropped.

PART SECOND.

ETYMOLOGY.

37. ETYMOLOGY treats of the classification, inflection, and derivation of words.

38. The Parts of Speech are—Nouns, Adjectives, Pronouns, Verbs, Adverbs, Prepositions, Conjunctions, and Interjections.

CHAPTER I.

NOUNS.

39. A Noun or Substantive is a name, as of a person, place, or thing: Cicerō, Cicero; Rōma, Rome; domus, house.

1. A PROPER NOUN is a proper name, as of a person or place: Cicerō, Rōma.

2. A COMMON NOUN is a name common to all the members of a class of objects: vir, man; equus, horse. Common nouns include—

1) Collective Nouns, designating a collection of objects: populus, people; exercitus, army.

2) Abstract Nouns, designating properties or qualities: virtus, virtue; justitia, justice.

3) Material Nouns, designating materials as such: aurum, gold; ignis, fire; lignum, wood; aqua, water.

40. Nouns have Gender, Number, Person, and Case.

I. GENDER.

41. There are three genders¹—Masculine, Feminine, and Neuter.

NOTE.—In some nouns gender is determined by signification; in others, by endings.

¹ In English, Gender denotes sex. Accordingly, masculine nouns denote males; feminine nouns, females; and neuter nouns, objects which are neither male nor female. In Latin, however, this natural distinction of gender is applied only to the names of males and females; while, in all other nouns, gender depends upon an artificial distinction according to grammatical rules.

42. GENERAL RULES FOR GENDER.

I. MASCULINES.

1. Names of Males: Cicerō; vir, man; rēx, king.
2. Names of Rivers, Winds, and Months: Rhēnus, Rhine; Notus, south wind; Mārtius, March.

II. FEMININES.

1. Names of Females: mulier, woman; leaena, lioness.
2. Names of Countries, Towns, Islands, and Trees: Graecia, Greece; Rōma, Rome; Dēlos, Delos; pirus, pear-tree.

NOTE.—Indeclinable nouns,¹ infinitives, and all clauses used as nouns are neuter: alpha, the letter α.² See also 532.

43. REMARKS ON GENDER.

1. EXCEPTIONS.—The endings³ of nouns sometimes give them a gender at variance with these rules. Thus, some names of *river*s, *country*s, *town*s, *island*s, *tree*s, and *animal*s take the gender of their endings; see 53, 1.

2. MASCULINE OR FEMININE.—A few personal appellatives applicable to both sexes and a few names of animals are sometimes masculine and sometimes feminine, but when used without distinct reference to sex they are generally masculine: civis, citizen (man or woman); bōs, ox, cow.

3. EPICENE NOUNS apply only to the inferior animals. They are used for both sexes, but have only one gender, and that is usually determined by their endings: anser, goose, masculine; aquila, eagle, feminine.

II. PERSON AND NUMBER.

44. The Latin, like the English, has three persons and two numbers. The first person denotes the speaker; the second, the person spoken to; the third, the person spoken of. The singular number denotes one, the plural more than one.

III. CASES.⁴

45. The Latin has six cases:

² See 128, 1.

³ Gender as determined by the endings of nouns will be noticed in connection with the several declensions.

NAMES.	ENGLISH EQUIVALENTS.
Nominative,	Nominative.
Genitive,	Possessive, or Objective with of .
Dative,	Objective with to or for .
Accusative,	Objective.
Vocative,	Nominative Independent.
Ablative,	Objective with from , with , by , in .

1. OBLIQUE CASES.—The Genitive, Dative, Accusative, and Ablative are called the Oblique Cases.

2. LOCATIVE.—The Latin has also a few remnants of another case, called the Locative, denoting the place in which.

DECLENSION.

46. STEM AND SUFFIXES.—The process by which the several cases of a word are formed is called Declension. It consists in the addition of certain suffixes to one common base called the stem.

1. MEANING.—Accordingly, each case-form contains two distinct elements—the stem,¹ which gives the general meaning of the word, and the case-suffix, which shows the relation of that meaning to some other word. Thus, in rēg-is, of a king, the general idea, king, is denoted by the stem rēg; the relation of of, by the suffix is.

2. CASES ALIKE.—But certain cases are not distinguished in form.

1) The Nominative, Accusative, and Vocative in Neuters are alike, and in the plural end in a.

2) The Nominative and Vocative are alike, except in the singular of nouns in us of the second declension (51).²

3) The Dative and Ablative Plural are alike.

3. CHARACTERISTIC.—The last letter of the stem is called the STEM-CHARACTERISTIC, or the STEM-ENDING.

47. FIVE DECLENSIONS.—In Latin there are five declensions, distinguished from each other by the stem-characteristics or by the endings of the Genitive Singular, as follows:

² And in some nouns of Greek origin.

	CHARACTERISTICS.	GENITIVE ENDINGS.
DEC. I.	ā	ae
II.	o	i
III.	i or a consonant	is
IV.	u	us
V.	ē	ei

NOTE 1.—The five declensions are only five varieties of one general system of inflection, as the case-suffixes are nearly identical in all nouns.

NOTE 2.—But these case-suffixes appear distinct and unchanged only in nouns with consonant-stems, while in all others they are seen only in combination with the characteristic, i. e., with the final vowel of the stem.

NOTE 3.—The ending produced by the union of the case-suffix with the characteristic vowel may for convenience be called a CASE-ENDING.

FIRST DECLENSION: A NOUNS.

48. Nouns of the first declension end in a and ē—feminine; ās and ēs—masculine.¹

Nouns in a are declined as follows:

EXAMPLE.	SINGULAR.	MEANING.	CASE-ENDING.
Nom. mēnsa,		a table, ²	a ³
Gen. mēnsae,		of a table,	ae
Dat. mēnsae,		to, for a table,	ae
Acc. mēnsam,		a table,	am
Voc. mēnsa,		O table,	a
Abl. mēnsā,		from, with, by a table, ⁴	ā
PLURAL.
Nom. mēnsae,		tables,	ae
Gen. mēnsārum,		of tables,	ārum
Dat. mēnsis,		to, for tables,	is
Acc. mēnsās,		tables,	ās
Voc. mēnsae,		O tables,	ae
Abl. mēnsis,		from, with, by tables, ⁴	is

¹ That is, nouns of this declension in a and ē are feminine, and those in ās and ēs are masculine.

² The Nom. mēnsa may be translated a table, table, or the table; see 48, 6.

³ These case-endings will serve as a practical guide to the learner in distinguishing the different cases. The two elements which originally composed them have undergone various changes, and in certain cases the one or the other has nearly or quite disappeared. Thus the suffix has disappeared in the Nominative and Vocative Singular, and appears only as e in four other case-forms, while the characteristic a has disappeared in the ending is, contracted from a-is, in the Dative and Ablative Plural; see 23, 2, note.

⁴ Still other prepositions, as in, on, at, are sometimes used in translating the Ablative.

1. STEM.—In nouns of the first declension, the stem ends in ā.
2. In the PARADIGM, observe that the stem is mēnsā, and that the several cases are distinguished from each other by their case-endings.
3. EXAMPLES FOR PRACTICE.—Like mēnsa decline:
Ala, wing; aqua, water; causa, cause; fortūna, fortune.
4. LOCATIVE.—Names of towns and a very few other words have a Locative Singular¹ in ae, denoting the place in which (45, 2), and are declined in the singular² number as follows:

Nom. Rōmā,	Rome,	militia,	war, ³
Gen. Rōmāe,	of Rome,	militiae,	of war,
Dat. Rōmāe,	for Rome, ³	militiae,	for war,
Acc. Rōmāam,	Rome,	militiam,	war,
Voc. Rōmā,	O Rome,	militia,	O war,
Abl. Rōmā,	from Rome, ³	militiā,	from war,
Loc. Rōmāe,	at Rome.	militiae,	in war.

5. EXCEPTIONS IN GENDER.—1. A few nouns in a are masculine by signification: agricola, husbandman; see 42, I.—2. Hadria, Adriatic Sea, is masculine; sometimes also dāmma, deer, and talpa, mole.

6. ARTICLE.—The Latin has no article: corōna, crown, a crown, the crown; ala, wing, a wing, the wing.

49. IRREGULAR CASE-ENDINGS.—The following occur:⁴

1. ās in the Genitive of familia, in composition with pater, māter, filius, and filia: paterfamilias, father of a family.
2. āl, an old form for the Genitive ending ae, in the poets:⁵ aulā, afterward aulae, of a hall.
3. *ūm*⁶ in the Genitive Plural: Dardanidūm for Dardanidārum, of the descendants of Dardanus.
4. abus in the Dative and Ablative Plural, especially in dea, goddess, and filia, daughter, to distinguish them from the same cases of deus, god, and filius, son: deabus for deis, to goddesses.

¹ In the Plural of all nouns the Locative meaning is denoted by the Ablative: Athēnsis, at Athens. Whether, however, the form Athēnsis is in origin a Locative, an Ablative, or neither, is a disputed question. See Bopp, I, pp. 484 seq.; Schleicher, pp. 586, 587; Penka, p. 194; Delbrück, p. 27; Merguet, pp. 116, 117; Wordsworth, p. 59. In most nouns the Locative meaning is denoted by the Ablative in both numbers.

² The Plural when used is like the Plural of mēnsa.

³ For the other prepositions which may be used in translating the Dative and the Ablative, see 45. Militia, war, warfare, military service.

⁴ To these must be added for early Latin ā in the Nom. and Voc. Sing. and ād in the Abl. Sing.; see 21, 2, 1), and 36, 5, 2).

⁵ Also in inscriptions as the ending of the Genitive, Dative, and Locative.

⁶ Contracted from a-um like the Greek á-ωρ, á-ω.

NOTE.—Nouns in ta sometimes have is for is in the Dative and Ablative Plural: grātis for grātis, from grātia, favor, kindness.

50. GREEK NOUNS.—Nouns of this declension in ēs, ās, and ōs are of Greek origin, and are declined as follows:

Epitomē, epitomē.	Aenēās, Aeneas.	Pyrītēs, pyrites.
SINGULAR.
Nom. epitomēs	Aenēās	pyrītēs
Gen. epitomēs	Aenēae	pyritae
Dat. epitomae	Aenēae	pyritae
Acc. epitomēm	Aenēam, ām	pyritēm
Voc. epitomēs	Aenēā	pyritē, a
Abl. epitomē	Aenēā	pyritē, ā
PLURAL.
Nom. epitomae		pyritae
Gen. epitomārum		pyritārum
Dat. epitomīs		pyritīs
Acc. epitomās		pyritās
Voc. epitomae		pyritae
Abl. epitomīs		pyritīs

NOTE 1.—In the Plural and in the Dative Singular, Greek nouns are declined like mīnea.

NOTE 2.—In nouns in ēs and ās, the stem-ending ē is changed to i in certain cases.

NOTE 3.—Many Greek nouns assume the Latin ending a, and are declined like mīnea. Many in ēs have also a form in a: epitomē, epitoma, epitoma.

SECOND DECLENSION: O NOUNS.

51. Nouns of the second declension end in er, ir, us, and os¹—masculine; um, and on—neuter.
 Nouns in er, ir, us, and um are declined as follows:

Servus,² slave. Puer, boy. Ager, field. Templum, temple

SINGULAR.
Nom. servus ³	puer	ager	templum
Gen. servī	puerī	agrī	templī
Dat. servō	puerō	agrō	templō
Acc. servum	puerum	agrum	templum
Voc. servē	puer	ager	templum
Abl. servō	puerō	agrō	templō

² Sometimes written servus; see 52, 1.

³ In the Roman and in the Continental pronunciation, quantity furnishes a safe guide

PLURAL.

Nom. servi	pueri	agri	templā
Gen. servōrum	puerōrum	agrōrum	templōrum
Dat. servis	pueris	agris	templis
Acc. servos	pueros	agros	templā
Voc. servi	pueri	agri	templā
Abl. servis	pueris	agris	templis

1. STEM.—In nouns of the second declension, the stem ends in o.

2. In the PARADIGMS, observe—

1) That the stems are servo, puero, agro, and templo.

2) That the characteristic o becomes u in the endings us and um, and e in servē,¹ that it disappears by contraction in the endings a,² i, and is (for o-a, o-i, and o-is),³ and is dropped in the forms puer and ager.

3) That the case-endings, including the characteristic o (47, N. 2), are as follows:

SINGULAR.		PLURAL.
MASC.	NEUT.	MASC.	NEUT.
Nom. us ⁴	um	Nom. i	a
Gen. i	i	Gen. ōrum	ōrum
Dat. ō	ō	Dat. is	is
Acc. um	um	Acc. os	a
Voc. e ⁵	um	Voc. i	a
Abl. ō	ō	Abl. is	is

4) That puer and ager differ in declension from servus in dropping the endings us and e in the Nominative and Vocative: Nom. puer for puerus, Voc. puer for puere.

5) That e in ager is developed by the final r.⁶

6) That templum, as a neuter noun, has the Nominative, Accusative, and Vocative alike, ending in the plural in a; see 46, 2, 1).

3. EXAMPLES FOR PRACTICE.—Like SERVUS: dominus, master. Like PUER: gener, son-in-law. Like AGER: magister, master. Like TEMPLUM: bellum, war.

to the sounds of the vowels; see 5. In the English method, on the contrary, the quantity of the vowels is entirely disregarded, except as it affects the accent of the word. Thus, a in ager is short in quantity, but long in sound (10, 3), while i in servis, pueris, agris, and templis is long in quantity but short in sound (11, 1). Accordingly, in this method, the sounds of the vowels must be determined by the rules given in 9, 10, and 11. Moreover, the learner must not forget that when the quantity of the vowel is known, the quantity of the syllable, as used in poetry, is readily determined by article 16

² Shortened from a; see 21, 2, 1).

³ See 23, note, and 27.

⁴ The endings of the Nom. and Voc. Sing. are wanting in nouns in er.

⁵ See 29, note.

4. NOUNS IN er AND ir.—Most nouns in er are declined like ager, but the following in er and ir are declined like puer:

- 1) Nouns in ir: vir, virī, man.
- 2) Compounds in fer and ger: armiger, armigerī, armor-bearer; signifer, signiferī, standard-bearer.
- 3) Adulter, adulterer; Celtiber,¹ Celtiberian; gener, son-in-law; Iber,¹ Spaniard; Liber, Bacchus; liberi, children; Mulciber,¹ Vulcan; presbyter, elder; socer, father-in-law; vesper, evening.

5. Nouns in ius generally contract ii in the Genitive Singular and ie in the Vocative Singular into i without change of accent: Claudī for Claudii, of Claudius, filii for filii, of a son; Mercuri for Mercurie, Mercury, filii for filie, son.² In the Genitive Singular of nouns in ium the same contraction takes place: ingeni for ingenii, of talent; see 18, 1.

6. DEUS is thus declined: Sing. deus, dei, deō, deum, deus, deō: Plur. N. and V. dei, diī, dī,³ G. deōrum, deūm; D. and A. deis, diis, dīs,³ Acc. deōs.

7. NEUTERS IN us.—The three neuter nouns in us,⁴ pelagus, sea, vīrus, poison, and vulgus, the common people, are declined in the singular as follows:

Nom., Acc., Voc.	pelagus	vīrus	vulgus ⁵
Gen.	pelagi	virī	vulgi
Dat., Abl.	pelagō	virō	vulgō

NOTE.—Pelagus is a Greek noun (54, N. 2), and in general is used only in the singular, though pelagō occurs as an Acc. Plur. Vīrus and vulgus are used only in the singular. Vulgus has a masculine Acc., vulgum, in addition to the neuter form vulgus.

8. LOCATIVE.—Names of towns and a few other words have a Locative Singular⁶ in i, denoting the place in which (45, 2), and are declined in the singular⁷ number as follows:

Nom.	Ephesus , Ephesus ,	bellūna ,	war,
Gen.	Ephesi , of Ephesus ,	belli ,	of war ,
Dat.	Ephesi , for Ephesus ,	bellō ,	for war ,
Acc.	Ephesūna , Ephesus ,	bellūna ,	war,
Voc.	Ephese , O Ephesus ,	bellūna ,	O war ,
Abl.	Ephesi , from Ephesus ,	bellō ,	from, by war ,
Loc.	Ephesi , at Ephesus .	belli ,	in war .

² Nouns in ius sometimes contract ie in the Voc. Sing. into i; Pompēi or Pompēi, Pompey.

³ Di and dīs are the approved forms, but dei, dīi and deis, dīs also occur.

⁴ Originally e-stems which by the loss of e in the oblique cases have become o-stems; see 62, I., 1, foot-note.

⁵ Also written vulgus.

⁶ In the Plural the Locative meaning is denoted by the Ablative: Gabīis, at Gabii; see 48, 4, foot-note.

⁷ The Plural, when used, is like the Plural of servus, puer, etc.

52. IRREGULAR CASE-ENDINGS.—The following occur:¹

1. os and om, old endings for us and um, sometimes used after v and u:² servos for servus, servom for servum; mortuos for mortuus, dead.

2. us for e in the Vocative of deus, god; rare in other words.

3. tum in the Genitive Plural, especially common in a few words denoting money, weight, and measure: talentum for talentorum, of talents; also in a few other words: denum for denorum; libram for liberorum; Argivum for Argivorum.

NOTE.—The ending tum occurs also in the Genitive Plural of many other words, especially in poetry.

53. GENDER.—Nouns in er, ir, us, and os are masculine, those in um and on are neuter; except—

1. The Feminines:—(1) See 42, II., but observe that many names of countries, towns, islands, and trees follow the gender of their endings. (2) Most names of gems and ships are feminine: also alvus, belly; carbasus, sail; colus, distaff; humus, ground; vannus, sieve. (3) A few Greek feminines.

2. The Neuters:—pelagus, sea; virus, poison; vulgus, common people. For declension, see 51, 7.

54. GREEK NOUNS.—Nouns of this declension in os, ōs, and on are of Greek origin, and are declined in the singular as follows:

	Dēlos, r. , ³ Delos .	Androgeōs, Androgeos .	Ilion, Ilium .
Nom.	Dēlos	Androgeōs	Ilion
Gen.	Dēli	Androgeō, i	Ilis
Dat.	Dēlō	Androgeō	Ilid
Acc.	Dēlon	Androgeōm, ō	Ilion
Voc.	Dēle	Androgeōs	Ilion
Abl.	Dēlō	Androgeō	Ilid

NOTE 1.—The Plural of nouns in os and on is generally regular, but certain Greek endings occur, as os in the Nominative Plural, and ōn in the Genitive.

NOTE 2.—Most Greek nouns generally assume the Latin forms in us and um, and are declined like servus and templum. Many in os or on have also a form in us or um.

NOTE 3.—For Greek nouns in eus, see 63 and 68, 1.

NOTE 4.—Panthūs has Voc. Panthū. For pelagus, see 51, 7, note.

¹ To these must be added for early Latin: 1) ōd in Abl. Sing., and ō in Nom., Acc., and Voc. of the Neut. Plur.; see 36, 5, 2), and 21, 2, 1); 2) os in Gen. Sing.; os, ē, ēs, eis, and is in Nom. Plur.: poplos=populi; plourumē=plurimi; virīs=viri; leideris=liberi.

² Some recent editors have adopted vos, vos, vom and wom, for vus, vus, vum and wum, but the wisdom of such a course is at least questionable. See Brambach, p. 8.

³ M. stands for masculine, F. for feminine, and N. for neuter.

THIRD DECLENSION: CONSONANT AND I NOUNS.

55. Nouns of the third declension end in a, e, i, ō, y, o, l, n, r, s, t, and x.

56. Nouns of this declension may be divided into two classes:

I. Nouns whose stem ends in a Consonant.II. Nouns whose stem ends in ī.¹

CLASS I.—CONSONANT STEMS.

57. STEMS ENDING IN A LABIAL: B OR P.

Princeps, m.,² a leader, chief.

Abl. principibus,	from, with, by leaders.	ibus

1. STEM AND CASE-SUFFIXES.—In this Paradigm observe—

1) That the stem is princep, modified before an additional syllable to princip; see 22, 1, and 57, 2.2) That the case-suffixes appear distinct and separate from the stem; ³ see 46, 1, and 47, note 2.2. VARIABLE VOWEL.—In the final syllable of dissyllabic consonant stems, short e or i generally takes the form of ē in the Nominative and Vocative Singular and that of ī in all the other cases. Thus princeps,¹ For Gender, see 99-115.² See foot-note 3, p. 29.³ Thus, princeps, princip-is, etc. In the first and second declensions, on the contrary, the suffix can not be separated from the final vowel of the stem in such forms as mēsis, pueri, agris, etc.

principis,¹ and jūdex, jūdicis (59), alike have e in the Nominative and Vocative Singular and i in all the other cases, though in princeps the original form of the radical vowel is e, and in jūdex, i. For a similar change in the vowel of the stem, see miles, militis (58), and carmen, *carminis*² (60). See also opus, operis (61).

3. In monosyllables in te the stem ends in i; see urbs, 64.
4. For the LOCATIVE IN THE THIRD DECLENSION, see 66, 4.
5. For SYNOPSIS OF DECLENSION, see 87, 89.

1. STEMS AND CASE-SUFFIXES.—In these Paradigms observe—

- 1) That the stems are lapid, actāt, milit, nepōt, virtūt, and caput.
- 2) That miles has the variable vowel, e, i, and caput, u, i; see 57, 2.
- 3) That the dental d or t is dropped before s: lapis for lapids, actūs for actūs, miles for mīlets, virtūs for virtūts; see 36, 2.
- 4) That the case-suffixes, except in the neuter, caput (46, 2), are the same as those given above; see 57.

5) That the neuter, caput, has no case-suffix in the Nominative, Accusative, and Vocative Singular, a in the Nominative, Accusative, and Vocative Plural, and the suffixes of masculine and feminine nouns in the other cases.

2. NEUTER STEMS IN at drop t in the Nominative Singular and end in a: Nom., poēma, Gen., poēmatīs; Stem, poēmat. These nouns sometimes have is for ibus in the Dative and Ablative Plural: poēmatīs for poēmatibus.

1. STEMS AND CASE-SUFFIXES.—In the Paradigms observe—

1) That the stems are sōl, cōnsul, passer, patr,¹ pāstōr, leōn, virgōn, and carmen.

² That is, the stem is patr when followed by a vowel; but when r becomes final, it develops e before it, and patr becomes pater; see 29, note.

- 3) That virgō (virgin) has the variable vowel, o, i, and carmen, e, i.
 4) That in the Nominative and Vocative Singular s, the usual case-suffix for masculine and feminine nouns, is omitted, and that in those cases the stem pātor shortens o, while lōn and virgōn drop n; see 31, 2, 2), and 36, 5, 3).
 2. HĒMA, the only stem in m, takes e in the Nominative and Vocative singular. Also sanguis (for sanguine), blood, and Salamis (for Salaminis), Salamis, which drop n before s; see 36, 3, note 3.
 3. PASSER, PATER.—Most nouns in er are declined like passer, but those in ter, and a few others, are declined like pater; see 77, 2.
 4. LEŌ, VIRŌ.—Most nouns in o are declined like leŏ, but those in dō and gō, with a few others, are declined like virgō; see 72, with exceptions.

1. STEMS AND CASE-SUFFIXES.—In the Paradigms observe—
 1) That the stems are flōs, jūs, opus,¹ and corpos.
 2) That opus has the variable vowel, e, u, and corpus, o, u.
 3) That s of the stem becomes r between two vowels: flōs, flōris (for flōis); see 31, 1.
 4) That the Nom. and Voc. Sing. omit the case-suffix; see 60, 1, 3).
 2. For SYNOPSIS OF DECLENSION, see 72, 80, 82-84.

¹ Opus occurs in early Latin. In oe, from the Primary Suffix as (320), o was weakened to u in the Nom., Acc., and Voc. Sing. of opus and corpus, while in all the other case forms it was weakened to e in opus, but retained unchanged in corpus; see 32.

Voc.	tussēs	turrēs	ignēs	hostēs	nūbēs
Abl.	tussibus	turribus	ignibus	hostibus	nūbibus

I. PARADIGMS.—Observe—

1. That the stems are tussi, turri, igni, hosti, and nūbi.²
2. That the case-endings, including the characteristic i, which disappears in certain cases, are as follows:

	SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
Nom.	is, es	ēs
Gen.	is	ium
Dat.	i	ibus
Acc.	im, em	ēs, is
Voc.	is	ēs
Abl.	i, e	ibus

¹ That is, having as many syllables in the Nom. Sing. as in the Gen. Sing.

³ Nouns in ēs, Gen. ēs, are best treated as i-stems, although some of them were originally e-stems (61). Thus, originally the stem of nūbēs was itself nūbēs, but e was finally treated as the Nom. suffix, and the word was accordingly declined like the large class of i-nouns mentioned under 62, V. The origin of i-stems is obscure. A few correspond to i-stems in the cognate tongues, as ignis, oris, turris; a few are weakened from a-stems or o-stems, as foris, a door, Gr. θύρα, timber=timbris, rain-storm, Gr. θύεστος; some are formed from e-stems, as nūbēs, just mentioned. Upon the general subject of i-stems, see Roby, pp. 136-149; Schleicher, pp. 384, 482, 458; Corssen, I. 261, 571, 788 seq.; II. 237; Meignot, pp. 86-90, 51, 67, 95, etc.

II. Like russis—Acc. im, Abl. i—are declined—

1. Baris, plough-tail; rdvis, hoarseness; sitis, thirst.

2. In the Singular: (1) Names of ivers and places in is not increasing in the Genitive: Tiberis, Hispalis; see 582. (2) Greek nouns in is, Gen. is, and some others.

III. Like turris—Acc. im, em, Abl. i, e—are declined—

Oldvis, key; febris, fever; messis, harvest; navis, ship; puppis, stern; restis, rope; securis, axe; sementis, sowing; strigilis, strigil.

1. Araris, or Arar (for Araris),¹ the Saône, and Liger (for Ligeris),² the Loire, have Acc. im, em, Abl. i, e.

IV. Like ignis—Acc. em, Abl. i, e—are declined—

Amnis, river; anguis, serpent; avis, bird; bilis, bile; civis, citizen; clavis, fleet; collis, hill; finis, end; orbis, circle; postis, post; unguis, nail, and a few others.

NOTE 1.—Adjectives in er (for ris) and those in is have the Ablative in i (153, 154). Accordingly, when such adjectives are used substantively, the i is generally retained: September, Septembri, September; ³ familiaris, familiari, friend. But adjectives used as proper names have e: Juvenalis, Juvenali, Juvenal.

NOTE 2.—Imber (for imbri), storm; vesper (for esperis), evening, and a few others, sometimes have the Ablative in i.

V. Like hostis—Acc. em, Abl. e—are declined all nouns in is, Gen. is, not provided for under II., III., and IV.⁴

VI. Like nūbēs are declined all nouns in ēs, Gen. is.⁴

63. STEMS ENDING IN i.—Neuters in e, al, and ar.

¹ The shortening of Araris to Arar and of Ligeris to Liger is similar to the shortening of puerus to puer; see 51, 2, 4; 36, 5, 2, note.

² Names of months are adjectives used substantively. Originally mēnse, month, was understood.

⁴ Except struts and edīs, which generally have um in Gen. Pl., and edīs, which has um or um. Comptis, Gen. edīs, has also um.

Abl.	clīentibus	urb̄ibus	arcibus	mūribus

² The vowel e is here short before st, but long before ns; see 16, note 2. Indeed, it seems probable that st and nd shorten a preceding vowel, as ns lengthens it. See Müller, p. 27; Ritschl, Rhein. Museum, xxxi., p. 488.

³ x in arx=cs, c belonging to the stem, and s being the Nom. suffix.

⁴ Mūris is for mūsis; s changed to r between two vowels, see 31, 1.

are neuter:¹ poëma, poem; mare, sea; lāc, milk; animal, animal; carmen, song; caput, head; corpus, body.

NOTE.—A few Greek nouns in æ are also neuter: cacoëtææ, desire, passion.

112. Nouns in L, ĀR, and AR are neuter, except the Masculines, viz.: Mūgil, mullet; sal,¹ salt; söl, sun; lār, hearth; salar, trout.

113. Nouns in N are neuter, except—

1. The Masculines:—pecten, comb; rēn, kidney; liēn, spleen; and Greek masculines in ān, ōn, in, ōn: pacān, pacan; canōn, rule.
2. The Feminines:—asōn, nightingale; alcyōn (halcyōn), kingfisher; icōn, image; sindōn, muslin.

114. Nouns in UR are neuter, except the Masculines, viz.:

Furfur, bran; turtur, turtle-dove; vultur, vulture.

115. Nouns in ŪS and US are neuter, except—

1. The Masculines:—lepus, hare; mūs, mouse; and Greek nouns in pūs.
2. The Feminines:—tellūs, earth; fraus, fraud; laus, praise; and nouns in ūs, Gen. ūtis or ūdis: virtūs, virtue; palūs, marsh.

FOURTH DECLENSION: U NOUNS.

116. Nouns of the fourth declension end in us—masculine; ū—neuter.

They are declined as follows:

Fructus, fruit. Cornū, horn.

		SINGULAR.	CASE-ENDINGS.
Nom. fructus	cornū	us	ū
Gen. fructūs	cornūs	ūs	ūs
Dat. fructui, ū ¹	cornū	ui, ū ¹	ū
Acc. fructum	cornū	um	ū
Voc. fructus	cornū	us	ū
Abl. fructū	cornū	ū	ū
		PLURAL.
Nom. fructūs	cornuū	ūs	uū
Gen. fructuū	cornuū	uum	uum
Dat. fructibus	cornibus	ibus (ubus)	ibus (ubus)
Acc. fructūs	cornuū	ūs	uū
Voc. fructūs	cornuū	ūs	uū
Abl. fructibus	cornibus	ibus (ubus)	ibus (ubus)

1. The STEM in nouns of the fourth declension ends in u: fructu, cornu.
2. The CASE-ENDINGS here given contain the characteristic u, weakened to i in ibus, but retained in ubus; see 22.

117. The following IRREGULAR CASE-ENDINGS occur:²

1. UBUS for ibus in the Dative and Ablative Plural—
 - 1) Regularly in acus, needle; arcus, bow; and tribus, tribe.
 - 2) Often in artus,³ joint; lacus, lake; partus, birth; portus, harbor; specus, cave; and verū, spit.
 - 3) Occasionally in a few other words, as genū, knee; tonitrus, thunder, etc.
2. UIS, the uncontracted form for ūs, in the Genitive: fructuis for fructūs.⁴
3. UOS, an old form⁵ of the Genitive ending: senatus,⁶ of the senate.

118. Nouns in us are masculine, those in ū are neuter, but the following in us are—

² To these should be added the rare endings ūd for ū in the Abl. Sing., uue for ūs in the Gen. Sing., and uūe for ūs in the Nom., Acc., and Voc. Pl. See Wordsworth, pp. 60-62.

³ Generally plural, limba.

⁴ It has been already mentioned (47, note 1) that the five declensions are only five varieties of one general system of inflection. The close relationship between the third declension and the fourth will be seen by comparing the declension of fructus, a u-noun of the fourth, with that of grūs (66, 2), a u-noun of the third. In fact, if the old Genitive ending uis had not been contracted into ūs, there would have been no fourth declension whatever. All u-nouns would have belonged to the third declension.

⁵ Compare the Greek Genitive in us: ἰχθύς, ἰχθύος, ἡλέ.

⁶ This was first weakened to senātuis (22), and then contracted to senātūs (22, 2), the classical form.

FEMININE BY EXCEPTION:—(1) acus, needle; colus, distaff; domus, house; manus, hand; porticus, portico; tribus, tribe;—(2) Idus, Ides; Quinquidtrius, feast of Minerva; generally penus, store, when of this declension; rarely specus, den;—(3) see 42, II.

NOTE.—The only neuter nouns in common use are cornū, genū, and terā.¹

119. SECOND AND FOURTH DECLENSIONS.—Some nouns are partly of the fourth declension and partly of the second.

1. Domus, r., house, has a Locative form domi, at home, and is otherwise declined as follows:²

SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
Nom. domus	domūs
Gen. domūs	domuum, domōrum
Dat. domui (domō)	domibus
Acc. domum	domōs, domūs
Voc. domus	domūs
Abl. domō (domū)	domibus

2. Certain names of trees in us, as cupressus, figus, laurus, pinus, though generally of Decl. II., sometimes take those cases of the fourth which end in ūs, us, and ē: N. laurus, G. laurūs, D. laurō, A. laurum, V. laurus, A. laurū, etc. So also colus, distaff.

3. A few nouns, especially senātus, senate, and tumultus, tumult, though regularly of Decl. IV., sometimes take the Genitive ending i of the second; senātī, tumultī.

4. Quercus, oak, regularly of Decl. IV., has quercōrum in the Gen. Plur.

FIFTH DECLENSION: Ō NOUNS.

✓ 120. Nouns of the fifth declension end in ŏ—feminine, and are declined as follows:

	Diēs , day.	Rēs , thing.
	SINGULAR.		CASE-ENDINGS.
Nom.	diēs	rēs	ēs
Gen.	diēī or diē	rēī or rē	ēī, ē
Dat.	diēī or diē	rēī or rē	ēī, ē
Acc.	diem	rem	em
Voc.	diēs	rēs	ēs
Abl.	diē	rē	ē

² Combining forms of the second declension with those of the fourth.

	PLURAL.	CASE-ENDINGS.
Nom. diēs	rēs	ēs
Gen. diērum	rērum	ērum
Dat. diēbus	rēbus	ēbus
Acc. diēs	rēs	ēs
Voc. diēs	rēs	ēs
Ab. diēbus	rēbus	ēbus

1. The STEM of nouns of the fifth declension ends in ē: diē, rē.¹

2. The CASE-ENDINGS here given contain the characteristic ē, which appears in all the cases. It is shortened (1) generally in the ending ēt, when preceded by a consonant, and (2) regularly in the ending em.

NOTE.—Traces of a Locative in ē are preserved in certain phrases found in early Latin, as diē septimē, on the seventh day; diē ordiat, on the morrow; diē proximē, on the next day. Cotidē, hodiē, pridē, and the like are doubtless Locatives in origin.

121. IRREGULAR CASE-ENDINGS.—The following occur:

1. Ī or ēi for ēt in the Gen. and Dat.: acūt for acūtē, of sharpness; dītā for dītē; rā for rēt; pernicīt for pernicēt, of destruction.

2. Ēs in the Gen. in early Latin: diēs, of a day; rabēs, of madness.

122. DEFECTIVE.—Nouns of this declension want the plural, except²—

1. Diēs and rēs, complete in all their parts.

2. Acies, sharpness; effigies, image; facies, face; series, series; species, appearance; spēs,³ hope, used in the Sing., and in the Nom., Acc., and Voc. Plur.

3. Eluvies, used in the Sing. and in the Nom. Plur., and glacies in the Sing. and in the Acc. Plur.

123. GENDER.—Nouns of the fifth declension are feminine—

EXCEPT diēs, day, and meridies, midday, masculine, though diēs is sometimes feminine in the singular, especially when it means time.

124. GENERAL TABLE OF GENDER.

I. Gender independent of ending.⁴ Common to all declensions.

¹ Originally most e-stems appear to have been either a-stems or s-stems. Thus: 1) Most stems in īē are modified from īā: māteriā, māteriē, Nom. māteriē-s, material; see 25, 1, note, with foot-note 6. In this class of words the Gen. and Dat. Sing. are formed from the stem in īā, not from that in īē: māterias, not māteriēt. 2) Diēs, facies, pluvies, and epēs appear to have been s-stems, modified to ē-stems, as many e-stems in the third declension were modified to i-stems; see 62, 1, 1, foot-note.

² A few plural forms in addition to those here given are sometimes cited, but seem not to occur in writers of the classical period.

³ In early Latin spēs occurs in the Nom. and Acc. Plur., formed from epēs treated as a stem in e. Thus: epēs, epiēs, epēs (31, 1).

⁴ For exceptions, see 43.

COMPOUND NOUNS.

125. Compounds present in general no peculiarities of declension.
But—

1. If two nominatives unite, they are both declined: ² rēspūblica = rēs pūblica, republic, the public thing; jūsjūrāndum = jūs jūrāndum, oath.

2. If a nominative unites with an oblique case, only the nominative is declined: ³ paterfamilias = pater familiās (49, 1), or pater familiæ, the father of a family.

² For exceptions, see under the several declensions.

³ Words thus formed, however, are not compounds in the strict sense of the term; see 340, 1., note.

Voc. rēspūblīcae	iūrajāranda	patrēsfamiliās
Ab. rēbuspublicis		patribusfamiliās

NOTE 1.—The parts which compose these and similar words are often and perhaps more correctly written separately: rēs pūblica; pater familiās or familiās.

NOTE 2.—Paterfamiliās sometimes has familiārum in the plural: patrifamiliārum.

IRREGULAR NOUNS.

127. Irregular nouns may be divided into four classes:

I. INDECLINABLE NOUNS have but one form for all cases.

II. DEFECTIVE NOUNS want certain parts.

III. HETEROCLITES (*heteroclita*¹) are partly of one declension and partly of another.

IV. HETEROGENEOUS NOUNS (*heterogenica*²) are partly of one gender and partly of another.

I. INDECLINABLE NOUNS.

128. The Latin has but few indeclinable nouns. The following are the most important:

1. The letters of the alphabet, a, b, c, alpha, beta, etc.
2. Foreign words: Jacob, Liber; though foreign words often are declined.

II. DEFECTIVE NOUNS.

129. Nouns may be defective in Number, in Case, or in both Number and Case.

130. PLURAL WANTING.—Many nouns from the nature of their signification want the plural: Rōma, Rome; iūstitia, justice; aurum, gold; fames, hunger; sanguis, blood.

1. The principal nouns of this class are:

1) Most names of persons and places: Cicerō, Rōma.

2) Abstract Nouns: fides, faith; iūstitia, justice.

3) Names of materials: aurum, gold; ferrum, iron.

4) A few others: meridies, midday; specimen, example; supellex, furniture; ver, spring; vespera, evening, etc.

2. Proper names admit the plural to designate families, classes; names of materials, to designate pieces of the material or articles made of it; and abstract nouns, to designate instances, or kinds, of the quality: Scipiones, the Scipios; æra, vessels of copper; avarities, instances of avarice; odia, hatreds.

3. In the poets, the plural of abstracts occurs in the sense of the singular.

² From irepos, another, and gēvos, gender, i. e., of different genders.

131. SINGULAR WANTING.—Many nouns want the singular.

1. The most important of these are :

1) Certain personal appellatives applicable to classes : mājōris, forefathers ; poster, descendants ; gemin, twins ; libert, children.

2) Many names of cities : Athēnae, Athens ; Thēbae, Thebes ; Delphi, Delphi.

3) Many names of festivals : Bacchānalia, Olympia, Sāturnālia.

4) Arma, arms ; diuitiae, riches ; exequiae, funeral rites ; exuviae, spoils ; Idus, Ides ; indūtiās, truce ; insidias, ambuscade ; māns, shades of the dead ; minae, threats ; moenia, walls ; mūnia, duties ; nūptiae, nuptials ; reliquiae, remains.

2. An individual member of a class designated by these plurals may be denoted by unus ex with the plural : unus ex liberis, one of the children, or a child.

NOTE.—The plural in names of cities may have reference to the several parts of the city, especially as ancient cities were often made up of separate villages. So in the names of festivals, the plural may refer to the various games and exercises which together constituted the festival.

132. PLURAL WITH CHANGE OF MEANING.—Some nouns have one signification in the singular and another in the plural. Thus :

SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
Aedēs, temple ;	aedēs, (1) temples, (2) a house. ¹
Auxilium, help ;	auxilia, auxiliaries.
Carcer, prison, barrier ;	carceres, barriers of a race-course.
Castrum, castle, hut ;	castra, camp.
Comitium, name of a part of the Roman forum ;	comitia, the assembly held in the comitium.
Cōpia, plenty, force ;	cōpiae, (1) stores, (2) troops.
Facultās, ability ;	facultātēs, wealth, means.
Finis, end ;	finēs, borders, territory.
Fortūna, fortune ;	fortūnae, possessions, wealth.
Grātia, gratitude, favor ;	grātiae, thanks.
Hortus, garden ;	horti, (1) gardens, (2) pleasure-grounds.
Impedimentum, hindrance ;	impedimenta, (1) hindrances, (2) baggage.
Littera, letter of alphabet ;	litterae, (1) letters of alphabet, (2) epistle, writing, letters, literature.
Lūdus, play, sport ;	lūdi, (1) plays, (2) public spectacle.
Mōs, custom ;	mōrēs, manners, character.
Nātālis (diēs), birth-day ;	nātālēs, pedigree, parentage.
Opera, work, service ;	operae, workmen.
Pars, part ;	partēs, (1) parts, (2) a party.
Rōstrum, beak of ship ;	rōstra, (1) beaks, (2) the rostra or tribune in Rome (adorned with beaks).
Sāl, salt ;	salēs, witty sayings.

¹ Aedēs and some other words in this list, it will be observed, have in the plural two significations, one corresponding to that of the singular, and the other distinct from it.

133. DEFECTIVE IN CASE.—Some nouns are defective in case:

1. In the Nom., Dat., and Voc. Sing.: —, opis, —, opem, —, ope, help; —, viciis,¹ —, vicem, —, vices, change.
2. In the Nom., Gen., and Voc. Sing.: —, precis, precem, —, precis, prayer.
3. In the Nom. and Voc. Sing.: —, dapis,¹ dapi, dapem, —, dape, food; —, frugis, frugi, frugem, —, fruge, fruit.
4. In the Gen., Dat., and Abl. Plur.: Most nouns of the fifth Decl.; see 122.

NOTE.—Many neuters are also defective in the Gen., Dat., and Abl. Plur.: fūr, se, mel, pūs, rūs, tūs, etc., especially Greek neuters in os, which want these cases also in the singular: epos, melos; also a few nouns of Decl. IV.: metus, otus, etc.

5. In the Gen. Plur.: many nouns otherwise entire, especially monosyllables: nex, pdx, pix; cor, cōs, rūs; sāl, sōl, lūx.

134. NUMBER AND CASE.—Some nouns want one entire number and certain cases of the other. The following forms occur: fora, forte, chance; lūs, luem, lue, pestilence; dicionis, dicionī, dicionem, dicione, sway. Fās, right, and nefās, wrong, are used in the Nom., Acc., and Voc. Sing.; īnstar, likeness, nihil, nothing, and opus, need, in the Nom. and Acc.; secus, sex, in the Acc. only. Many verbal nouns in us and a few other words have only the Ablative Singular: jussū, by order; mandatū, by command; rogatū, by request; sponsū, by choice, etc.

III. HETEROCLITES.

135. Of DECLENSIONS II. and IV. are a few nouns in us; see 119.

136. Of DECLENSIONS II. and III. are—

1. Jūgerum, an acre; generally of the second Decl. in the Sing., and of the third in the Plur.: jūgerum, jūgerī; plural, jūgera, jūgerum, jūgeribus.
2. Vās, a vessel; of the third Decl. in the Sing. and of the second in the Plur.: vās, vāsis; plural, vāsa, vāstrum.
3. Plural names of festivals in alia: Bacchānalia, Sāturnalia; which are regularly of the third Decl., but sometimes form the Gen. Plur. in orum of the second. Ancile, a shield, and a few other words have the same peculiarity.

137. Of DECLENSIONS III. and V. are—

1. Requies, rest; which is regularly of the third Decl., but also takes the forms requiem and requis of the fifth.
2. Famēs, hunger; regularly of the third Decl., except in the Ablative, famē, of the fifth (not fame, of the third).

138. FORMS IN ia AND iēs.—Many words of four syllables have one form in ia of Decl. I., and one in iēs of Decl. V.: luxuria, luxuriēs, luxury; materia, materiēs, material.

139. FORMS IN us AND um.—Many nouns derived from verbs have one form in us of Decl. IV., and one in um of Decl. II.: cōnatūs, cōnatum, attempt; eventus, eventum, event.

¹ Defective also in the Gen. Plur.

140. Many words which have but one approved form in prose, admit another in poetry: juvētūs (ūtis), youth; poetic, juventa (ae): senectūs (ūtis), old age; poetic, senecta (ae): paupertās (ātis), poverty; poetic, pauperiis (ei).

IV. HETEROGENEOUS NOUNS.

141. MASCULINE AND NEUTER.—Some masculines take in the plural an additional form of the neuter gender:

Jocus , m., jest;	plural, joci , m., joca , n.
Locus , m., place;	plural, loci , m., loca , n., placea .

142. FEMININE AND NEUTER.—Some feminines take in the plural an additional form of the neuter gender:

Carbasus , f., linen;	plural, carbasi , f., carbasa , n.
Margarita , f., pearl;	plural, margaritae , f., margarita , n.
Ostrea , f., oyster;	plural, ostreae , f., ostrea , n.

143. NEUTER AND MASCULINE OR FEMININE.—Some neuters take in the plural a different gender. Thus:

1. Some neuters become masculines in the plural:

Caelum , n., heaven;	plural, caeli , m.
-----------------------------	---------------------------

2. Some neuters generally become masculines in the plural, but sometimes remain neuter:

Frēnum , n., bridle;	plural, frēni , m., frēna , n.
Rāstrum , n., rake;	plural, rāstri , m., rāstra , n.

3. Some neuters become feminines in the plural:

Epulum , n., feast;	plural, epulae , f.
----------------------------	----------------------------

144. FORMS IN US AND UM.—Some nouns of the second declension have one form in us masculine, and one in um neuter: clipeus, clipeum, shield; commentārius, commentārium, commentary.

145. HETEROGENEOUS HETEROCLITES.—Some heteroclites are also heterogeneous: cōndtus (ūs), cōndtum (i), effort; menda (ae), mendum (i), fault.

CHAPTER II.

ADJECTIVES.

146. THE adjective is the part of speech which is used to qualify nouns: bonus, good; māgnus, great.

NOTE.—The form of the adjective in Latin depends in part upon the gender of the noun which it qualifies: bonus puer, a good boy; bona puella, a good girl; donum templum, a good temple. Thus, in the Nom. Sing., bonus is the form of the adjective when used with masculine nouns, bona with feminine, and donum with neuter.

147. Some adjectives are partly of the first declension and partly of the second, while all the rest are entirely of the third declension.

² Liber is declined in the Masc. like puer (51), and in the Fem. and Neut. like bonus.

1) Asper, rough ; lacer, torn ; miser, wretched ; prosper, prosperous ; tender, tender ; but asper sometimes drops the e, and dexter, right, sometimes retains it : dexter, dextera, or dextra.

2) Satur, sated ; satur, satura, saturum.

3) Compounds in fer and ger : mortifer, deadly ; aliger, winged.

151. IRREGULARITIES. — Nine adjectives have in the singular *ius*² in the Genitive and i in the Dative, and are declined as follows :

Alius, another.			Solus, alone.
SINGULAR.
	MASC.	FEM.	NEUT.	MASC.	FEM.	NEUT.
Nom.	alius ³	alia	aliud ³	solus	sola	solum

Voc.				sole	sola	solum

¹ Aeger is declined in the masculine like ager (51), and in the feminine and neuter like bonus.

² i in ius is often shortened by the poets ; regularly so in alterius in dactylic verse (609).

³ Rarely alīe and alīd. The same stem appears in alī-quis (190, 2), some one ; alī-ter, otherwise.

⁴ For alīus by contraction. Alterius often supplies the place of alīus.

PLURAL.

1. These nine adjectives are: alius, a, us, another; nullus, a, um, no one; solus, alone; totus, whole; aliquis, any; quis,¹ one; alter, -tera, -terum,² the other³; uter, -tra, -trum,⁴ which (of two); neuter, -tra, -trum,⁴ neither.

NOTE 1.—The regular forms occasionally occur in the Gen. and Dat. of some of these adjectives.

NOTE 2.—Like uter are declined its compounds: utergue, utervis, uterlibet, utervaque. In alteruter sometimes both parts are declined, as alterius utrius; and sometimes only the latter, as alterutrius.

THIRD DECLENSION: CONSONANT AND I STEMS.

152. Adjectives of the third declension may be divided into three classes:

I. Those which have in the Nominative Singular three different forms—one for each gender.

II. Those which have two forms—the masculine and feminine being the same.

III. Those which have but one form—the same for all genders.

153. ADJECTIVES OF THREE ENDINGS in this declension have the stem in i, and are declined as follows:

Acer, sharp. ¹		SINGULAR.
	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
Nom.	acer ²	acris	acre
Gen.	acris	acris	acris

² Gen. alterius, Dat. alteri; otherwise declined like liber (149).

³ Or one of two, the one.

⁴ Gen. utrius, Dat. utri; otherwise like aeger (150). Neuter like uter.

⁵ Acer is declined like ignis in the Masc. and Fem., and like mare (63) in the Neut., except in the Nom. and Voc. Sing., Masc., and in the Abl. Sing.

⁶ These forms in er are like those in er of Decl. II. in dropping the ending in the Nom. and Voc. Sing. and in developing final r into er: acer for acris, stem, acri.

	MASC.	PLURAL, FEM.	NEUT.

NOTE 1.—Like ācris are declined:

1) Alacer, lively; campester, level; celeber, famous; celer,¹ swift; equester, equestrian; palūster, marshy; pedester, pedestrian; puter, putrid; salūber, healthful; silvester, woody; terrester, terrestrial; volucer, winged.

2) Adjectives in er designating the months: Octōber, brīs.²

NOTE 2.—In the poets and in early Latin the form in er, as ācer, is sometimes feminine, and the form in is, as ācris, is sometimes masculine.

154. ADJECTIVES OF TWO ENDINGS are declined as follows:

Tristis, sad. ³			Tristior, sadder. ⁴
			SINGULAR.
	M. AND F.	NEUT.		M. AND F.	NEUT.

Voc.	tristēs	tristia		tristiōrēs	tristiōra
Abl.	tristibus	tristibus		tristiōribus	tristiōribus

NOTE 1.—Like tristior, comparatives, as consonant stems, generally have the Abl. Sing. in e, sometimes in i, the Nom. Plur. Neut. in a, and the Gen. Plur. in um. But complūre, several, has Gen. Plur. complūrium; Nom., Acc., and Voc. Plur. Neut. complūra or complūria; see Plus, 165.

NOTE 2.—In poetry, adjectives in is, e, sometimes have the Abl. Sing. in e: cognōmīne from cognōmīnis, of the same name.

¹ This retains e in declension: celer, celeris, celere; and has um in the Gen. Plur.

² See also 77, 2, note.

³ Tristis and triste are declined like doris and dore; the stem is tristi.

⁴ Tristior is the comparative (160) of tristis; the stem was originally tristiō, but it has been modified to tristius (61, 1) and tristiōr (31).

⁵ Enclosed endings are rare.

155. ADJECTIVES OF ONE ENDING generally end in s or x, but sometimes in l or r.

156. Audāx, audacious.¹

Acc.	amantes (is)	amantia		prudentes (is)	prudentia
Voc.	amantes	amantia		prudentes	prudentia
Abl.	amantibus	amantibus		prudentibus	prudentibus

NOTE.—The participle amāns differs in declension from the adjective prūdēns only in the Abl. Sing., where the participle usually has the ending e, and the adjective, i.

¹ Observe that i in the Abl. Sing., and ea, eum, and is in the Plur., are the regular case-endings for i-stems; see 62 and 63.

² According to Ritschl, Schmitz, and others, the e which is long in prūdēns before ns is short in all other forms of the word, i. e., before nt. In the same manner the a which is long in amāns, is according to Ritschl short in amantis, amanti, etc.; see p. 87, footnote 2. See also Schmitz, pp. 2-26; Ritschl, Rhein. Museum, xxxi., p. 469; Müller, p. 27.

Participles used adjectively may of course take l. A few adjectives have only e in general use:—(1) pauper, paupere, poor; pūber, pūbere, mature;—(2) those in es, G. itis or idis: āles, dēses, rīses, sēpes, superes; (3) caslebs, compes, impes, princeps.

1. NEUTER PLURAL.—Many adjectives like memor, from the nature of their signification, want the Neuter Plural; all others have the ending ia, as felicia, prudentia, except uber, ubera, fertile, and vetus, vetera.

2. GENITIVE PLURAL.—Most adjectives have ium, but the following have um :

1) Adjectives of one ending with only e in the Ablative Singular (157, note): pauper, pauperum.

2) Those with the Genitive in eris, oris, uris: vetus, veterum, old; memor, memorum, mindful; cicur, cicurum, tame.

3) Those in ceps: anceps, ancipitum, doubtful.

4) Those compounded with substantives which have um: inops (ops, opum), inopum, helpless.

IRREGULAR ADJECTIVES.

159. Irregular adjectives may be—

I. INDECLINABLE: frūgi, frugal, good; nēquam, worthless; mille, thousand; see 176.

II. DEFECTIVE: (cēterus) cētera, cēterum, the other, the rest; (lūdicus) lūdica, lūdicum, sportive; (sōns) sontis, guilty; (sēminex) sēminexia, half dead; pauci, ae, a, few, used only in the Plural; see also 158, 1.

III. HETEROCLITES.—Many adjectives have two distinct forms, one in us, a, um, of the first and second declensions, and one in is and e of the third: hilarus and hilaris, joyful; exanimus and exanimis, lifeless.

COMPARISON OF ADJECTIVES.

160. Adjectives have three forms, called the Positive degree, the Comparative, and the Superlative: altus, altior, altissimus, high, higher, highest. These forms denote different degrees of the quality expressed by the adjective.

161. The Latin, like the English, has two modes of comparison :

I. TERMINATIONAL COMPARISON—by endings.

II. ADVERBIAL COMPARISON—by adverbs.

I. TERMINATIONAL COMPARISON.

162. Adjectives are regularly compared by adding to the stem of the positive the endings :

COMPARATIVE			SUPERLATIVE
MASC.	FEM.	NEUT.	MASC.	FEM.	NEUT.
ior	ior	ius	issimus	issima	issimum ¹

altus, altior, altissimus, high, higher, highest, levis, levior, levissimus, light, lighter, lightest.

NOTE.—VOWEL STEMS lose their final vowel: alto, altior, altissimus.

163. IRREGULAR SUPERLATIVES.—Many adjectives with regular comparatives have irregular superlatives. Thus:

1. Those in er add rimus to this ending:¹ acer, acrior, acerrimus, sharp.

NOTE.—Vetus has veterrimus; medius, both medierrimus and medierrimissimus; dexter, dextrimus.

2. Six in ilis add limus to the stem:¹

facilis ,	difficilis ,	easy ,	difficult ,
similis ,	dissimilis ,	like ,	unlike ,
gracilis ,	humilis ,	slender ,	low :

facilis, facilior, facillimus. Imbecilis has imbecillimus.

3. Four in rus have two irregular superlatives :

inferus ,	inferior ,	infimus and imus ,	lower ,
superus ,	superior ,	suprēmus and summus ,	upper ,
posterus ,	posterior ,	postrēmus and postumus ,	next .

¹ The superlative ending -issimus is probably compounded of is, from ide, the original comparative ending (154, foot-note 4), and simus for timus; ide-timus = ide-simus = is-simus. After i and r, the first element is omitted, and s assimilated: facilis, facillimus; acer, acerrimus, acerrimus; but those in ilis drop the final vowel of the stem. See Bopp, §§ 291–307; Schleicher, pp. 488–494; Roby, p. lxxi.

164. Egēnus, prōvidus, and compounds in dicus, ficus, and volus, are compared with the endings entior and entissimus, as if from forms in ēns:

egēnus,	egentior,	egentissimus,	needy,
prōvidus,	prōvidentior,	prōvidentissimus,	prudent,
maledicus,	maledicentior,	maledicentissimus,	slandrous,
mūnificus,	mūnificentior,	mūnificentissimus,	liberal,
benevolus,	benevolentior,	benevolentissimus,	benevolent.

NOTE.—Mirificissimus occurs as the superlative of mirificus, wonderful.

165. SPECIAL IRREGULARITIES OF COMPARISON.

bonus,	melior,	optimus,	good,
malus,	pējor,	pessimus,	bad,
māgnus,	mājor,	māximus,	great,
parvus,	minor,	minimus,	small,
multus,	plūs,	plūrimus,	much.

NOTE 1.—Piūs is neuter, and has in the singular only Nom. and Acc. piūs, and Gen. piūris. In the plural it has Nom. and Acc. piūrēs (m. and f.), piūra (n.), Gen. piūrum, Dat. and Abl. piūribus.

NOTE 2.—Dives, frūgi, and nēquam are thus compared:

dīves,	{ divitior,	divitissimus, }	rich,
	{ ditior,	ditissimus, }
frūgi,	frūgālior,	frūgālistimus,	frugal,
nēquam,	nēquior,	nēquistimus,	worthless.

166. POSITIVE WANTING.

citior,	citimus,	nearer,	prior,	prīmus,	former,
dēterior,	dēterrimus,	worse,	propior,	prōximus,	nearer,
interior,	intimus,	inner,	ūterior,	ūltimus,	farther.
ocior,	ocissimus,	swifter,

167. COMPARATIVE WANTING.

1. In a few participles used adjectively: meritus, meritissimus, deserving.
2. In these adjectives:

diversus,	diversissimus,	different,	novus,	novissimus,	new,
falsus,	falsissimus,	false,	sacer,	saceritimus,	sacred,
inclutus,	inclutissimus,	renowned,	vetus,	veteritimus,	old.
invitus,	invitissimus,	unwilling,

NOTE.—Many participles used adjectively are compared in full: amāns, amantior, amantissimus, loving; doctus, doctior, doctissimus, instructed, learned.

168. SUPERLATIVE WANTING.

1. In most verbals in ilis and illis: docilis, docilior, docile.
2. In many adjectives in ālis and ilis: capitalis, capitalior, capital.
3. In alacer, alacrior, active; cæcus, blind; diuturnus, lasting; longinquus, distant; optimus, rich; præclivis, steep; propinquus, near; salutāris, salutary, and a few others.

4. Three adjectives supply the superlative thus:

adolēscēns,	adolēscēntior,	minimus nātū, ¹	young,
juvenis,	jūnior,	minimus nātū,	young,
senex,	senior,	māximus nātū,	old.

169. WITHOUT TERMINATIONAL COMPARISON.

1. Many adjectives, from the nature of their signification, especially such as denote material, possession, or the relations of place and time: aureus, golden; paternus, paternal; Rōmānus, Roman; æstivus, of summer.

2. Most adjectives in us preceded by a vowel: idōneus, suitable.

3. Many derivatives in alis, aris, ilis, ulus, icus, inus, irus: mortalis (mors), mortal.

4. Albus, white; claudus, lame; ferus, wild; lassus, weary; mirus, wonderful, and a few others.

II. ADVERBIAL COMPARISON.

170. Adjectives which want the terminational comparison, form the comparative and superlative, when their signification requires it, by prefixing the adverbs magis, more, and māxime, most, to the positive: arduus, magis arduus, māxime arduus, arduous.

1. Other adverbs are sometimes used with the positive to denote different degrees of the quality: admodum, valde, oppidō, very; imprimis, apprime, in the highest degree. Per and prae in composition with adjectives have the force of very: perdifficilis, very difficult; praeclārus, very illustrious.

2. Strengthening particles are also sometimes used—(1) With the comparative: etiam, even, multō, longē, much, far: etiam diligentior, even more diligent; multō diligentior, much more diligent—(2) With the superlative: multō, longē, much, by far; quam, as possible: multō or longē diligentissimus, by far the most diligent; quam diligentissimus, as diligent as possible.

NUMERALS.

171. Numerals comprise numeral adjectives and numeral adverbs.²

172. Numeral adjectives comprise three principal classes:

1. CARDINAL NUMBERS: ūnus, one; duo, two.

2. ORDINAL NUMBERS: primus, first; secundus, second.

3. DISTRIBUTIVES: singulī, one by one; binī, two by two, two each, two apiece.

173. To these may be added—

¹ Smallest or youngest in age. Nātū is sometimes omitted.

² The first ten cardinal numbers, mille, primus, secundus, and semel (once), fourteen words in all, furnish the basis of the Latin numeral system. All other numerals are formed from these either by derivation or by composition.

1. MULTIPLICATIVES, adjectives in plex, Gen. plici, denoting so many fold: simplex, single; duplex, double; triplex, threefold.

2. PROPORTIONALS, declined like bonus, and denoting so many times as great: duplus, twice as great; triplus, three times as great.

174. TABLE OF NUMERAL ADJECTIVES:

CARDINALS.	ORDINALS.	DISTRIBUTIVES.
1. unus, una, unum	primus, first	singuli, one by one
2. duo, duae, duo	secundus, second	binī, two by two

70. septuāgintā	septuāgēsimus	septuāgēnī
80. octōgintā	octogēsimus	octogēnī

² Literally two from twenty, one from twenty, by subtraction; but these numbers may be expressed by addition: decem et octo; decem et novem; so 28, 29; 38, 39, etc., either by subtraction from trigintā, etc., or by addition to viginti.

³ If the tens precede the units, et is omitted, otherwise it is generally used. So in English cardinals, twenty-one, one and twenty.

⁴ Alter is often used for secundus.

⁵ Decimus, with or without et, may precede: decimus et tertius or decimus tertius.

⁶ Sometimes expressed by addition: octāvus decimus and nōnus decimus.

⁷ Sometimes written with g: vigesimus; trigesimus.

1. ORDINALS with pars, part, expressed or understood, may be used to express fractions: tertia pars, a third part, a third; quarta pars, a fourth; duae tertias, two thirds.

NOTE.—Cardinal numbers with partes are used in fractions when the denominator is larger than the numerator by one: duae partes, two thirds, tres partes, three fourths, etc.

2. DISTRIBUTIVES are used—

1) To show the number of objects taken at a time, often best rendered by adding to the cardinal each or apiece: ternos denarios accēperunt, they received each three denarii, or three apiece. Hence—

2) To express Multiplication: decies centēna milia, ten times a hundred thousand, a million.

3) Instead of Cardinals, with nouns plural in form, but singular in sense: bina castra, two camps. Here for singuli and terni, ūni and trini are used: ūnas litterae, one letter; trinas litterae, three letters.

4) Sometimes of objects spoken of in pairs: bini scyphi, a pair of goblets; and in the poets with the force of cardinals: bina hastilia, two spears.

3. Poets use numeral adverbs (181) very freely in compounding numbers: bis sex, for duodecim; bis septem, for quattuordecim.

4. Sēscenti and mille are sometimes used indefinitely for any large number, as one thousand is used in English.

¹ In compounding numbers above 100, units generally follow tens, tens hundreds, etc., as in English; but the connective et is either omitted, or used only between the two highest denominations: mille centum viginti or mille et centum viginti, 1120.

² Often incorrectly written sēscenti, sēscentēsīmus, and sēscenti.

³ Often written millia. For duo milia, bina milia or bis mille is sometimes used.

⁴ Literally "ten times a hundred thousand"; the table might be carried up to any desired number by using the proper numeral adverb with centēna milia: centiēs centēna milia, 10,000,000; sometimes in such combinations centēna milia is understood, and the adverb only is expressed, and sometimes centum milia is used.

DECLENSION OF NUMERAL ADJECTIVES.

175. Ūnus, Duo, and Trēs are declined as follows:

	SINGULAR.			Ūnus, one.			PLURAL.
Nom.	ŭnus	ŭna	ŭnum	ŭnī	ŭnae	ŭna

NOTE 1.—The plural of ŭnus in the sense of alone may be used with any noun: ŭnī Ūbī, the Ūbī alone; but in the sense of one, it is used only with nouns plural in form, but singular in sense: ŭna castra, one camp; ŭnas litterae, one letter.

NOTE 2.—Like duo is declined ambo, both.

NOTE 3.—Multi, many, and plūrimī, very many, are indefinite numerals, and as such generally want the singular. But in the poets the singular occurs in the sense of many a: multa hostia, many a victim.

176. The Cardinals from quattuor to centum are indeclinable.

177. Hundreds are declined like the plural of bonus: ducentī, ae, a.

178. Mille as an adjective is indeclinable; as a substantive it is used in the singular in the Nominative and Accusative,³ but in the plural it is declined like the plural of mare (63): milia,⁴ milium, milibus.

NOTE.—With the substantive mille, milia, the name of the objects enumerated is generally in the Genitive: mille hominum, a thousand men (of men); but if a declined numeral intervenes it takes the case of that numeral: tria milia trecenti milia, three thousand three hundred soldiers.

179. Ordinals are declined like bonus, and distributives like the plural of bonus, but the latter often have ŭm instead of ōrum in the Genitive: binām for binōrum.

¹ In the ending o in duo and ambo (175, note 2), we have a remnant of the dual number which has otherwise disappeared from the Latin, though preserved in Greek and Sanskrit. Compare the Sanskrit dva, the Greek duo, the Latin duo, and the English two.

² Instead of duōrum and duārum, duūm is sometimes used.

³ Rarely in other cases in connection with milium or milibus.

⁴ Generally written with one l: milla, but sometimes with two: millia.

10.	X.	30.	XXX.	1,000.	CIO, or M. ¹
11.	XI.	40.	XL.	10,000.	CCIOO.

1. LATIN NUMERAL SYMBOLS are combinations of: I = 1; V = 5; X = 10; L = 50; C = 100; IO or D = 500; CIO or M = 1,000.²

2. IN THE COMBINATION OF THESE SYMBOLS, except IO, observe—

1) That the repetition of a symbol doubles the value: II = 2; XX = 20.

2) That any symbol standing before one of greater value, subtracts its own value, but that after one of greater value, it adds its own value: V = 5; IV = 5 - 1 = 4; VI = 5 + 1 = 6.

3. IN THE COMBINATION OF IO observe—

1) That each O (inverted C) after IO increases the value tenfold: IO = 500; IOO = 500 × 10 = 5,000; IOOO = 5,000 × 10 = 50,000.

2) That these numbers are doubled by placing C the same number of times before I as O stands after it: IO = 500; CIO = 500 × 2 = 1,000; IOO = 5,000; CCIOO = 5,000 × 2 = 10,000.

3) That smaller symbols standing after these add their value: IO = 500; IOC = 600; IOCC = 700.

NUMERAL ADVERBS.

181. To numerals belong also numeral adverbs:

1. semel, once	5. quinquies ³	9. novies
2. bis, twice	6. sexies	10. decies
3. ter, three times	7. septies	11. undecies
4. quater	8. octies	12. duodecies

¹ Thousands are sometimes denoted by a line over the symbol: $\overline{\text{II}}$ = 2,000; $\overline{\text{V}}$ = 5,000.

² The origin of these symbols is uncertain. According to Mommsen, I is the outstretched finger; V, the open hand; X, the two hands crossed; L, the open hand like V, but in a different position; CIO is supposed to be a modification of the Greek Φ , not otherwise used by the Romans, afterward changed to M; IO, afterward changed to D, is a part of CIO; C is also supposed to be a modification of the Greek Θ , but it may be the initial letter of centum, as M may be that of mille.

³ In adverbs formed from cardinal numbers, ies is the approved ending, though iens often occurs. In adverbs from indefinite numeral adjectives iens is the approved ending: totiens (from tot), so often; quotiens (from quot), how often. See Brambach, p. 14.

NOTE 1.—In compounds of units and tens, the unit with et generally precedes, as in the table: vis et vicies; the tens, however, with or without et, may precede.

NOTE 2.—Another class of numeral adverbs in um or o is formed from the ordinals: primum, primò, for the first time, in the first place; tertium, tertio, for the third time.

CHAPTER III

PRONOUNS.

182. In construction, Pronouns² are used either as Substantives: ego, I, tū, thou; or as Adjectives: meus, my, tuus, your.

183. Pronouns are divided into six classes:

1. Personal Pronouns: tū, thou.
2. Possessive Pronouns: meus, my.
3. Demonstrative Pronouns: hic, this.
4. Relative Pronouns: qui, who.
5. Interrogative Pronouns: quis, who?
6. Indefinite Pronouns: aliquis, some one.

I. PERSONAL PRONOUNS.

184. Personal Pronouns,³ so called because they designate the person of the noun which they represent, are:

² But in their signification and use, Pronouns differ widely from ordinary substantives and adjectives, as they never name any object, action, or quality, but simply point out its relation to the speaker, or to some other person or thing; see 314, II., with foot-note.

³ Also called Substantive Pronouns, because they are always used substantively.

Ego, I.	Tū, thou.	Sui, of himself, etc. ¹

Dat. nōbīs	vōbīs	sibī
Acc. nōs	vōs	sē
Voc.	vōs
Abl. nōbīs	vōbīs	sē

1. The CASE-ENDINGS of PRONOUNS differ considerably from those of Nouns.
2. SUI, of himself, etc., is often called the Reflexive pronoun.
3. EMPHATIC FORMS in met occur, except in the Gen. Plur.: egomet, I myself; tēmet, etc. But the Nom. tū has tūte and tūtemet, not tūmet.
4. REDUPLICATED FORMS.—Seē, tēē, mēmē, for sē, tē, mē.
5. ANCIENT AND RARE FORMS.—Mis for mei; tis for tui; mēd and mēpte for mē; tēd for tē; sēd, sēpse, for sē.
6. CUM, when used with the ablative of a Personal Pronoun, is appended to it: mācum, tēcum.

II. POSSESSIVE PRONOUNS.

185. From Personal pronouns are formed the Possessives:

meus, a, um, my ;	noster, tra, trum, our ;
tuus, a, um, thy, your ;	vester, tra, trum, your ;
suus, a, um, his, hers, its ;	suus, a, um, their .

¹ Of himself, herself, itself. The Nominative is not used.

² Ego has no connection in form with mei, mihi, etc., but it corresponds to the Greek ἐγών, ἐγώ. The oblique cases of ego and tū in the singular are derived from the Indo-European roots ma and tva. Compare the Accusative Singular of each in—

SANSKRIT.	GREEK.	LATIN.	ENGLISH.
mā-m or mī,	μή,	mē,	me.
tvā-m or tvā,	τί or αἶ,	tū,	thee.

Sui, sibī, sē, in both numbers are formed from the root sua. The origin of the plural forms of ego and tū is obscure. See Papillon, pp. 142-149; Kühner, I., pp. 378-382.

³ Vestrūm and vestrī are also written costrūm and costrī, though less correctly. Mei, tui, sui, nostri, and vestri, are in form strictly Possessives in the Gen. Sing., but by use they have become Personal. Nostrī and vestrī have also become Plural. Thus, memor vestri, 'mindful of you,' means literally mindful of yours, i. e., of your welfare, interest. Nostrūm and vestrūm, for nostrōrum and vestrōrum, are also Possessives; see 185.

NOTE 1.—Possessives are declined as adjectives of the first and second declensions; but meus has in the Vocative Singular Masculine generally mī, sometimes meus, and in the Genitive Plural sometimes meūm instead of meōrum.¹

NOTE 2.—Emphatic forms in pte and met occur: suapte, suamē.

NOTE 3.—Other possessives are: (1) cujus, a, um,² 'whose,' and cujus, a, um,³ 'whose?' declined like bonus, and (2) the Patrials, nostrā, Genitive ātia, 'of our country,' vestrā, Genitive ātia, 'of your country,' and cujā, Genitive ātia, 'of whose country,' declined as adjectives of Declension III.

III. DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS.

186. Demonstrative Pronouns, so called because they specify the objects to which they refer, are declined as follows:

I. Hic, this.⁴

² From the relative qui, cujus (187), also written quōius.

³ From the interrogative quis, cujus (188), also written quōius.

⁵ The Genitive suffix is us, appended to the stem after the addition of i (foot-note 4): ho-i-us, hūjus (i changed to j between two vowels, 28); isto-i-us, istīus (i retained after a consonant). The suffix us, originally as, is in origin the same as the suffix is in the third declension. In one the original vowel a is weakened to u, and in the other to i. See Wordsworth, p. 95; Corssen, I., p. 807.

In prose i in the ending tus is generally long.

⁶ Demonstrative, Relative, Interrogative, and Indefinite Pronouns want the Vocative.

⁷ Here the form with c, haec, is sometimes used.

⁸ The stem of iste (for istus) is isto in the Masc. and Neut., and istā in the Fem. O is weakened to e in isto (24, 1, note) and to u in istū-d. Ancient and rare forms of iste

III. Ille, that, that one, he, is declined like iste; see II. on the preceding page.

IV. *Is, he, this, that.*¹ are istus (for iste), forms in i, ae, i (for iue) in the Genitive, and in o, ae, o (for i) in the Dat.: istī (for istius), istō (for istī), istas (for istius or istī).

¹ The stem of ille (for illus) is illo, illa. Ancient and rare forms are (1) illus (for ille), forms in i, ae, i (for iue) in the Genitive Singular, and in o, ae, o (for i) in the Dative Singular: illi (for illius), etc.; (2) forms from ollus or olle (for those from ille): ollus, olla, olla, etc.

³ Sometimes a diphthong in poetry. In the same way the plural forms ei, ii, eis, iis, are sometimes monosyllables. Instead of ii and iis, i and is are sometimes written.

But ce is often retained for emphasis; hīce, hūjusce, hōsce, hōrunce (m changed to n), hōrunc (e dropped). Ce, changed to ci, is generally retained before the interrogative nē: hīcine, hōscine.

4. DEMONSTRATIVE ADJECTIVES: tālis, e, such; tantus, a, um, so great; tot, so many; totus, a, um, so great. Tot is indeclinable; the rest regular.

NOTE.—For tālis, the Genitive of a demonstrative with modi (Genitive of modus, measure, kind) is often used: hījūsmōdī, ejūsmōdī, of this kind, such.

IV. RELATIVE PRONOUNS.

187. The Relative quī, 'who,' so called because it relates to some noun or pronoun, expressed or understood, called its antecedent, is declined as follows: *

² Eīdem and eīadem are the approved forms. Instead of īdem and īadem, dissyllables in poetry, īdem and īadem are often written.

³ Illīc and tālic are formed from the stems of ille and tate in the same manner as hīc is formed from its stem; see page 72, foot-note 4.

⁴ Observe that ce is retained in full after e, but shortened to c in all other situations.

⁵ The stem of quī is quo, quā, which becomes co, cu in cūjus and cui. Quī and

Abl. quò	quâ	quò	quibus	quibus	quibus

1. *Qui*² = quò, quâ, 'with which,' 'whorewith,' is a Locative or Ablative of the relative qui.

2. Cum, when used with the Ablative of the relative, is generally appended to it: quibuscum.

3. Quicumque and Quisquis, 'whoever,' are called from their signification general relatives.³ Quicumque (quicunque) is declined like qui. Quisquis is rare except in the forms, quisquis, quidquid (quicquid), quòquò.

NOTE.—The parts of Quicumque are sometimes separated by one or more words: quò rē cumque.

4. RELATIVE ADJECTIVES: quālis, e, such as; quantus, a, um, so great; quot, as many as; quotus, a, um, of which number; and the double and compound forms: quālisquālis, quālescumque, etc.

NOTE.—For quālis the Genitive of the relative with modi is often used: cūjusedmodi, of what kind, such as; cūjusedmodi, cūcūmodi (for cūjusedmodi), of whatever kind.

V. INTERROGATIVE PRONOUNS.

188. The Interrogative Pronouns quis and quī, with their compounds, are used in asking questions. They are declined as follows:

quæ are formed from quo and qua like hī and hæ in hī-e and hæ-e from hō and hæ; see 186, I., foot-note 4. Ancient or rare forms are quet, quis (for quī), Nom. Sing.; quōtis (i = f); quōt, cui (for cūjus, as in cūmodi = cūjusedmodi), quōiet, quōi (for cui); quēs (for quī), Nom. Plur.; quai (for quæ), Fem. and Neut. Plur.; quetis, quīs (for quibus).

¹ An Accusative quom, also written quum and cum, formed directly from the stem quo, became the conjunction quom, quum, cum, 'when,' lit. during which, i. e., during which time. Indeed, several conjunctions are in their origin Accusatives of pronouns: quam, 'in what way,' 'how,' is the Accusative of quī; quamquam, 'however much,' the Accusative of quis-quis (187, 8); tum, 'then,' and tam, 'so,' Accusatives of the pronominal stem to, ta, seen in ta-tus, is-it, is-ia (186, II., foot-note 8).

² This is an element in quīn = quī-na, 'by which not,' 'that not,' and in quippe = quī-pe, 'indeed.'

³ Relative pronouns, adjectives, and adverbs may be made general in signification by taking cumque, like quī-cumque, or by being doubled like quis-quis: quālis-cumque, quālis-quālis, of whatever kind; ubi-cumque, ubi-ubi, wheresoever.

⁴ The relative quī, the interrogatives quis, quī, and the indefinites quis, quī, are all formed from the stem quo, qua. The ancient and rare forms are nearly the same in all; see page 74, foot-note 5.

I. Quis, who, which, what?

SINGULAR.			PLURAL.
MASC.	FEM.	NEUT.	MASC.	FEM.	NEUT.
Nom. quis	quae	quid	quī	quae	quae
Gen. cūjus	cūjus	cūjus	quōrum	quārum	quōrum
Dat. cui	cui	cui	quibus	quibus	quibus
Acc. quem	quam	quid	quōs	quās	quae
Abl. quō	quā	quō	quibus	quibus	quibus

II. Quī, which, what? is declined like the relative quī.

1. Quis is generally used substantively, and Quī, adjectively. The forms quis and quem are sometimes feminine.

2. Quī, how? in what way? is a Locative or Ablative of the interrogative quis; see 137, 1.

3. COMPOUNDS of quis and quī are declined like the simple pronouns: quisnam, quīnam, ecquis, etc. But ecquis has sometimes ecqua for ecquae.

4. INTERROGATIVE ADJECTIVES: quālis, e, what? quantus, a, um, how great? quot, how many? quotus, a, um, of what number? uter, utra, utrum, which (of two)? see 151.

VI. INDEFINITE PRONOUNS.

189. Indefinite Pronouns do not refer to any definite persons or things. The most important are quis and quī, with their compounds.

190. Quis, 'any one,' and quī, 'any one,' 'any,' are the same in form and declension as the interrogatives quis and quī. But—

1. After sī, nisi, nē, and num, the Fem. Sing. and Neut. Plur. have quae or qua: sī quae, sī qua.

2. From quis and quī are formed—

1) The Indefinites:

aliquis,	aliqua,	aliquid or aliquod, ¹	some, some one.
quispiam,	quaequam,	quidpiam or quodpiam, ²	some, some one.
quidam,	quaedam,	quiddam or quoddam, ³	certain, certain one.
quisquam,	quaequam,	quicquam or quidquam, ⁴	any one.

¹ Aliquis is compounded of all, seen in ali-us; quisquam, of quis and quam; quisque, of quis and que (from quī); quisvis, of quī and the verb vis (293), 'you wish'—hence qui-vis, 'any you wish'; quilibet, of quī and the impersonal libet, 'it pleases.'

² Also written quippiam, quoppiam.

³ Quidam changes m to n before d: quendam for quemdam.

⁴ Quisquam generally wants the Fem. and the Plur.

2) The General Indefinites:

quisque,	quaeque,	quidque or quodque, ¹	every, every one.
quivis,	quaevis,	quidvis or quodvis,	any one you please.
quilibet,	quaelibet,	quidlibet or quodlibet,	any one you please.

NOTE 1.—These compounds are generally declined like quis and qui, but they have in the Neut. Sing. quod used adjectively, and quid substantively.

NOTE 2.—Aliquis has aliqua instead of aliquae in the Fem. Sing. and Neut. Plur. Aliqui for aliquis occurs.

191. The correspondence which exists between Demonstratives, Relatives, Interrogatives, and Indefinites, is seen in the following

TABLE OF CORRELATIVES.

INTERROGATIVE.	INDEFINITE.	DEMONSTRATIVE.	RELATIVE.
quis, qui, who? what?	quis, qui , ³ any one, any; aliquis , ³ some one, some; quidam , certain one, certain;	Hic , this one, this; ⁴ iste , that one, that; ille , that one, that; is , he, that;	qui , ³ who.
uter , which of two?	uter or alteruter , ei- ther of two;	uterque , each, both; ⁵	qui , who.
quālis , of what kind?	quālislibet , ³ of any kind;	talis , such;	quālis , ³ as.
quantus , how great?	aliquantus , some- what great; quan- tioris , as great as you please;	tantus , so great;	quantus , ³ as, as great.
quot , how many?	aliquot , some;	tot , so many;	quot , as, as many.

NOTE.—Nescio quis, 'I know not who,' has become in effect an indefinite pronoun = quidam, 'some one.' So also nescio qui, 'I know not which' or 'what' = 'some'; nescio quot = aliquot, 'some,' 'a certain number.'

¹ In quis-quaeque both parts are regularly declined.

² Observe that the question quis or qui, who or what? may be answered indefinitely by quis, qui, aliquis, etc., or definitely by a demonstrative, either alone or with a relative, as by hic, this one, or hic qui, this one who; is, he, or is qui, he who, etc.

⁴ On hic, iste, ille, and is, see 450; 451, 1.

⁵ Or one of the demonstratives, hic, iste, etc.

CHAPTER IV.

VERBS.

192. VERBS in Latin, as in English, express existence, condition, or action: est, he is; dormit, he is sleeping; legit, he reads.

193. Verbs comprise two principal classes:

I. TRANSITIVE VERBS admit a direct object of the action: servum verberat, he beats the slave.¹

II. INTRANSITIVE VERBS do not admit such an object: puer currit, the boy runs.¹

194. Verbs have Voice, Mood, Tense, Number, and Person.

I. VOICES.

195. There are two voices:

I. The ACTIVE VOICE² represents the subject as ACTING or EXISTING: pater filium amat, the father loves his son; est, he is.

II. The PASSIVE VOICE represents the subject as ACTED UPON by some other person or thing: filius a patre amatur, the son is loved by his father.

1. INTRANSITIVE VERBS generally have only the active voice, but are sometimes used impersonally in the passive; see 301, 1.

2. DEONENT VERBS³ are Passive in form, but not in sense: loquor, to speak. But see 231.

II. MOODS.

196. There are three moods:⁴

¹ Here servum, 'the slave,' is the object of the action: beats (what?) the slave. The object thus completes the meaning of the verb. He beats is incomplete in sense, but the boy runs is complete, and accordingly does not admit an object.

³ So called from dēponō, to lay aside, as they dispense, in general, with the active form and the passive meaning. For deponent verbs with the sense of the Greek Middle, see 465.

⁴ Mood, or Mode, means manner, and relates to the manner in which the meaning of the verb is expressed, as will be seen by observing the force of the several Moods.

I. The INDICATIVE MOOD either asserts something as a fact or inquires after the fact:

Legit, HE IS READING. Legitne, IS HE READING? Servius regnavit, Servius REIGNED. Quis ego sum, who AM I?

II. The SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD expresses not an actual fact, but a possibility or conception. It is best translated '—

1. Sometimes by the English auxiliaries,¹ let, may, might, should, would:

Amamus patriam, LET US LOVE our country. Sint beati, MAY THEY BE happy. Quaerat quispiam, some one MAY INQUIRE. Hic nemo dixerit, no one WOULD SAY this. Ego censeam, I SHOULD THINK, or I AM INCLINED TO THINK. Entitur ut vincat, he strives that HE MAY CONQUER.² Domum ubi habitaret, legit, he selected a house where HE MIGHT DWELL.

2. Sometimes by the English Indicative, especially by the Future forms with shall and will:

Huc cedamus, SHALL WE YIELD to this one? Quid dies ferat incertum est, what a day WILL BRING FORTH is uncertain. Dubitō num debeam, I doubt whether I OUGHT. Quaesivit si liceret, he inquired whether IT WAS LAWFUL.

3. Sometimes by the Imperative, especially in prohibitions:

Scribere nō pigresce, DO NOT NEGLECT to write. Nō transieris Iberum, DO NOT CROSS the Ebro.

4. Sometimes by the English Infinitive:⁴

Contendit ut vincat, he strives TO CONQUER.³ Missi sunt qui cōsulerent Apollinem, they were sent TO CONSULT Apollo.

III. The IMPERATIVE MOOD expresses a command or an entreaty:

Iūstitiam cole, PRACTISE justice. Tū nō cede malis, DO NOT YIELD to misfortunes.

¹ The use and proper translation of the Subjunctive must be learned from the Syntax. A few illustrations are here given to aid the learner in understanding the Paradigms of the Verbs; see 477-530.

² This is generally the proper translation in simple sentences and in principal clauses (483), and sometimes even in subordinate clauses (490).

³ Or, he strives to conquer; see 4 below, with foot-note 4.

⁴ The English has a few remnants of the Subjunctive Mood, which may also be used in translating the Latin Subjunctive: Utinam possem, would that I WERE ABLE.

⁵ Observe, however, that the Infinitive here is not the translation of the Subjunctive alone, but of the Subjunctive with its subject and connective: ut vincat, to conquer (lit., that he may conquer); qui cōsulerent, to consult (lit., who should or would consult).

III. TENSES.

197. There are six tenses:

I. THREE TENSES FOR INCOMPLETE ACTION:

1. Present: amō, I love, I am loving.¹
2. Imperfect: amābam, I was loving, I loved.
3. Future: amābō, I shall love, I will love.

II. THREE TENSES FOR COMPLETED ACTION.

1. Perfect: amāvī, I have loved, I loved.
2. Pluperfect: amāveram, I had loved.
3. Future Perfect: amāverō, I shall have loved.²

NOTE 1.—The Latin Perfect sometimes corresponds to our Perfect with have (have loved), and is called the Present Perfect or Perfect Definite; and sometimes to our Imperfect or Past (loved), and is called the Historical Perfect or Perfect Indefinite.³

NOTE 2.—The Indicative Mood has all the six tenses; the Subjunctive has the Present, Imperfect, Perfect, and Pluperfect; the Imperative, the Present and Future only.⁴

198. PRINCIPAL AND HISTORICAL.—Tenses are also distinguished as—

I. PRINCIPAL OR PRIMARY TENSES:

1. Present: amō, I love.
2. Present Perfect: amāvī, I have loved.⁵
3. Future: amābō, I shall love.
4. Future Perfect: amāverō, I shall have loved.

II. HISTORICAL OR SECONDARY TENSES:

1. Imperfect: amābam, I was loving.
2. Historical Perfect: amāvī, I loved.⁶
3. Pluperfect: amāveram, I had loved.

¹ Or, I do love. The English do may also be used in translating the Imperfect and Perfect: I did love.

² Or, I will have loved.

³ Thus the Latin Perfect combines within itself the force and use of two distinct tenses—the Perfect proper, seen in the Greek Perfect, and the Aorist, seen in the Greek Aorist: amāvī = εφίληκα, I have loved; amāvī = εφίλησα, I loved. The Historical Perfect and the Imperfect both represent the action as past, but the former regards it simply as a historical fact—I loved; while the latter regards it as in progress—I was loving.

⁴ The nice distinctions of tense have been fully developed only in the Indicative. In the Subjunctive and Imperative, the time of the action is less prominent and is less definitely marked.

199. NUMBERS AND PERSONS.—There are two numbers, SINGULAR and PLURAL,¹ and three persons, FIRST, SECOND, and THIRD.¹

NOTE.—The various verbal forms which have voice, mood, tense, number, and person, make up the finite verb.

200. Among verbal forms are included the following verbal nouns and adjectives:

I. The INFINITIVE is a verbal noun.² It is sometimes best translated by the English Infinitive, sometimes by the verbal noun in ING, and sometimes by the Indicative:

Exire ex urbe volō, I wish to go out of the city. Gestiō scire omnia, I long to know all things. Haec scire juvat, to know these things affords pleasure. Peccāre licet nēmīni, to sin is lawful for no one. Vincere³ solis, you know how to conquer, or you understand conquering.³ Tē dicunt esse⁴ sapientem, they say that you ARE⁴ wise. Sentimus calēre⁴ ignem, we perceive that fire is HOT.⁴ See also Syntax, 532-539.

II. The GERUND gives the meaning of the verb in the form of a verbal noun of the second declension, used only in the genitive, dative, accusative, and ablative singular. It corresponds to the English verbal noun in ING:

Amandi, OF LOVING. Amandi causā, for the sake OF LOVING. Ars vivendi, the art OF LIVING. Cupidus tē audiendi, desirous OF HEARING you. Utilis bibendi, useful FOR DRINKING. Ad discendum propēnsus, inclined TO LEARN,⁵ OR TO LEARNING. Mēns discendō alitur, the mind is nourished BY LEARNING. See also Syntax, 541-544.

III. The SUPINE gives the meaning of the verb in the form of a verbal noun of the fourth declension. It has a form in um and a form in ū:

Amātum, TO LOVE, FOR LOVING. Amātū, TO BE LOVED, FOR LOVING, IN

² The Infinitive has the characteristics both of verbs and of nouns. As a verb, it governs oblique cases and takes adverbial modifiers; as a noun, it is itself governed. In origin it is a verbal noun in the Dative or Locative. See Jolly, pp. 179-200.

³ Observe that the infinitive vincere may be translated by the English infinitive, to conquer, or by the verbal noun, conquering.

⁴ Observe that the infinitives esse and calēre are translated by the indicative are and is (is hot); and that the Acc. tē, the subject of esse, is translated by the Nom. you, the subject of are; and that the Acc. ignem, the subject of calēre, is translated by the Nom. fire, the subject of is.

⁵ Occasionally the Gerund, especially with a preposition, may be thus translated by the English infinitive.

LOVING. Auxilium postulatum venit, he came to ask aid. Difficile dictū est, it is difficult to tell. See Syntax, 545-547.

NOTE.—The Supine in um is an Accusative in form, while the Supine in a may be either a Dative or an Ablative; see 116.

IV. The PARTICIPLE in Latin, as in English, gives the meaning of the verb in the form of an adjective.¹ It is sometimes best translated by the English Participle or Infinitive, and sometimes by a Clause:

Amāns, LOVING. Amātūrus, ABOUT TO LOVE. Amātus, LOVED. Amandus, DESERVING TO BE LOVED. Platō scribens mortuus est, Plato died WHILE WRITING, OR WHILE HE WAS WRITING. Sol oriens diem conficit, the sun RISING, OR WHEN IT RISES,² causes the day. Rediit bellī cāsum tentātūrus, he returned TO TRY (lit., about to try) the fortune of war. In amicis eligendis,³ in SELECTING friends. See Syntax, 548-550.

NOTE.—A Latin verb may have four participles: two in the Active, the Present and the Future, amāns, amātūrus; and two in the Passive, the Perfect and the Gerundive,⁴ amātus, amandus.

CONJUGATION.

201. Regular verbs are inflected, or conjugated, in four different ways, and are accordingly divided into Four Conjugations,⁴ distinguished from each other by the stem characteristics or by the endings of the Infinitive, as follows:

	CHARACTERISTICS.	INFINITIVE ENDINGS.
CONJ. I.	ā	ā-re
II.	ē	ē-re
III.	e	e-re
IV.	i	i-re

202. PRINCIPAL PARTS.—The Present Indicative, Present Infinitive, Perfect Indicative, and Supine are called from their importance the Principal Parts of the verb.

¹ Participles are verbs in force, but adjectives in form and inflection. As verbs, they govern oblique cases; as adjectives, they agree with nouns.

² Or by its rising.

³ Sometimes called the Future Passive Participle. In agreement with a noun, it is often best translated like a gerund governing that noun; see 544.

⁴ The Four Conjugations are only varieties of one general system of inflection, as the differences between them have been produced in the main by the union of different final letters in the various stems with one general system of suffixes; see Comparative View of Conjugations, 213-216.

NOTE 1.—In the inflection of verbs it is found convenient to recognize four stems:

1) The Verb-Stem, which is the basis of the entire conjugation. This is often called simply the Stem.

2) Three Special Stems, the Present Stem, the Perfect Stem, and the Supine Stem.

NOTE 2.—The Special Stems are formed from the Verb-Stem, unless they are identical with it.¹

203. The ENTIRE CONJUGATION of any regular verb may be readily formed from the Principal Parts by means of the proper endings.²

1. SUM, I am, is used as an auxiliary in the passive voice of regular verbs. Accordingly, its conjugation, though quite irregular, must be given at the outset. The Principal Parts are—

PRES. INDIC.	PRES. INFIN.	PERF. INDIC.
sum, I am ,	esse, to be ,	ful, I have been .

NOTE 1.—Sum has no Supine.

NOTE 2.—Two independent stems or roots³ are used in the conjugation of this verb, viz.: (1) es, seen in s-um (for es-um) and in es-se, and (2) fu, seen in fu-i.

¹ For the treatment of Stems, see 249-256. In many verbs the stem is itself derived from a more primitive form called a Root. For the distinction between roots and stems, and for the manner in which the latter are formed from the former, see 313-318.

² In the Paradigms of regular verbs, the endings which distinguish the various forms are separately indicated, and should be carefully noticed. In the parts derived from the present stem (§22, I.) each ending contains the characteristic vowel.

³ The forms of irregular verbs are often derived from different roots. Thus in English, am, was, been; go, went, gone. Indeed, the identical roots used in the conjugation of sum are in constant use in our ordinary speech. The root es, Greek ἐσ, originally as, is seen in am (for as-mi), art (for as-ti), are (for as-e); the root fu, Greek φύ, originally dhū, is seen in be (for bhe), been. The close relationship existing between the Sanskrit, Greek, Latin, and English is seen in the following comparative forms; is-ōi is Homeric, and i-vri Doric:

SANSKRIT.	GREEK.	LATIN.	ENGLISH.
as-mi	ei-μί	s-um	s-in as-ti	es-τί	es	ar-t
as-ti	es-τί	es-t	is
s-mas	es-μᾶς for es-μές	s-umus	ar-e s-tha	es-τή	es-tis	ar-e
s-anti	i-vρι for es-vρι	s-unt	ar-o

Every verbal form is thus made by appending to the stem, or root, a pronominal ending meaning I, thou, he, etc. Thus mi, seen in the English me, means I. It is retained in as-mi and ei-μί, but shortened to m in s-u-m and a-m. ti, meaning he, is preserved in as-ti and es-τί, but shortened to t in es-t and lost in is. The stem also undergoes various changes: in Sanskrit it is as, sometimes shortened to s; in Greek ἐσ, sometimes shortened to i; in Latin es, sometimes shortened to s, as in Sanskrit; in English a, ar, or is.

¹ The Supine is wanting.² Sum is for esum, eram for esam. Whenever s of the stem es comes between two vowels, e is dropped, as in sum, sunt, or s is changed to r, as in eram, erō; see 31, 1. The pupil will observe that the endings which are added to the roots es and fu are distinguished by the type.³ Or you are, and in the Imperfect, you were; thou is confined mostly to solemn discourse.⁴ In verbs, final o, marked ō, is generally long.⁵ Or, Future, I will be; Perfect, I was; see 197, note 1.

PARTICIPLE.

*Fut. futurus,*⁴ about to be.

1. In the Paradigm all the forms beginning with e or s are from the stem es; all others from the stem fu.⁵

2. RARE FORMS:—forem, foris, fard, forent, fore, for essem, esses, esset, essent, futurus esse; siem, sies, siet, sient, or fuam, fuas, fuat, fuant, for sim, sis, sit, sint.

¹ On the translation of the Subjunctive, see 196, II., and remember that it is often best rendered by the Indicative. Thus, sim may often be rendered I am, and fuerim, I have been.

² Or be thou, or may you be.

³ The Fut. may also be rendered like the Pres., or with let: be thou; let him be.

⁴ Futurus is declined like domus. So in the Infinitive: futurus, a, um esse.

⁵ Es and fu are roots as well as stems. As the basis of this paradigm they are properly stems, but as they are not derived from more primitive forms, they are in themselves roots.

¹ The final ā of the stem disappears in amō for ama-ō, amem, amē's, etc., for ama-ēm, ama-is, etc. Also in the Pass. in amor for ama-or, amer, etc., for ama-ir, etc.; see 23; 27. Final o, marked ō, is generally long.

² Or I am loving, I do love. So in the Imperfect, I loved, I was loving, I did love.

³ Or thou lovest. So in the other tenses, thou wast loving, thou wilt love, etc.

⁴ Or I will love. So in the Future Perfect, I shall have loved or I will have loved.

⁵ Or I loved; see 197, note 1.

217. A few verbs of the Third Conjugation form the Present Indicative in iō, ior, like verbs of the Fourth Conjugation. They are inflected with the endings of the Fourth wherever those endings have two successive vowels. These verbs are—

1. Capiō, to take; cupiō, to desire; faciō, to make; fodiō, to dig; fugiō, to flee; jaciō, to throw; pariō, to bear; quatiō, to shake; repiō, to seize; sapiō, to be wise, with their compounds.

2. The compounds of the obsolete verbs, laciō, to entice, and speciō,¹ to look; alliciō, eliciō, illiciō, pelliciō, etc.; aspiciō, conspiciō, etc.

3. The Deponent Verbs: gradior, to go; morior, to die; patior, to suffer; see 231.

VERBAL INFLECTIONS.

220. The PRINCIPAL PARTS are formed in the four conjugations with the following endings, including the characteristic vowels, ā, ē, e, i :

CONJ. I.	ō, āre, āvi, ātum, amō, amāre, amāvi, amātum, to love.
CONJ. II. In a few verbs:	eō, ēre, ēvi, ētum, deleō, delēre, delēvi, deletum, to destroy.
In most verbs:	eō, ēre, ui, itum, moneō, monēre, monui, monitum, to advise.
CONJ. III. In consonant stems:	ō, ere, si, tum, carpō, carpere, carpsi, carptum, to pluck.
In vowel stems:	ō, ere, i, tum,
	acuō, acuere, acui, acūtum, to sharpen.
CONJ. IV.	iō, ire, iui, itum, audiō, audire, audiui, auditum, to hear.

221. COMPOUNDS of verbs with dissyllabic Supines generally change the stem-vowel in forming the principal parts:

I. When the Present of the compound has i for e of the simple verb :

1. The Perfect and Supine generally resume the e:¹

regō,	regere,	rēxi,	rectum,	to rule.
dirigō,	dirigere,	dirēxi,	directum,	to direct.

2. But sometimes only the Supine resumes the e:¹

teneō,	tenēre,	tenui,	tentum,	to hold.
dētineō,	dētīnere,	dētīnui,	dētentum,	to detain.

II. When the Present of the compound has i for a of the simple verb:

1. The Perfect generally resumes the vowel of the simple perfect, and the Supine takes e,¹ sometimes a:

capiō,	capere,	cēpi,	captum,	to take.
accipiō,	accipere,	accēpi,	acceptum,	to accept.

2. But sometimes the Perfect retains i and the Supine takes e:¹

rapio,	rapere,	rapui,	raptum,	to seize.
diripio,	diripere,	diripui,	direptum,	to tear asunder.

NOTE.—For Reduplication in compounds, see 255, I., 4; other peculiarities of compounds will be noticed under the separate conjugations.

222. All the forms of any regular verb arrange themselves in three distinct groups or systems:

I. The PRESENT SYSTEM, with the Present Infinitive as its basis, comprises—

1. The Present, Imperfect, and Future Indicative—Active and Passive.
2. The Present and Imperfect Subjunctive—Active and Passive.
3. The Imperative—Active and Passive.
4. The Present Infinitive—Active and Passive.
5. The Present Active Participle.
6. The Gerund and the Gerundive.

NOTE.—These parts are all formed from the Present Stem, found in the Present Infinitive Active by dropping the ending re: amāre, present stem AMĀ; monēre, MONĒ; regere, REGĒ; audire, AUDĪ.

II. The PERFECT SYSTEM, with the Perfect Indicative Active as its basis, comprises in the Active Voice—

1. The Perfect, Pluperfect, and Future Perfect Indicative.
2. The Perfect and Pluperfect Subjunctive.
3. The Perfect Infinitive.

NOTE.—These parts are all formed from the Perfect Stem, found in the Perfect Indicative Active, by dropping i: amāvī, perfect stem AMĀV; monuī, MONU.

III. The SUPINE SYSTEM, with the Supine as its basis, comprises—

¹ The favorite vowel before a, or two or more consonants; see 24, 1.

1. The Supines in um and a, the former of which with iri forms the Future Infinitive Passive.

2. The Future Active and Perfect Passive Participles, the former of which with esse forms the Future Active Infinitive, and the latter of which with the proper parts of the auxiliary sum forms in the Passive those tenses which in the Active belong to the Perfect System.

NOTE.—These parts are all formed from the Supine Stem, found in the Supine by dropping um: amatum, supine stem AMAT; monitum, MONIT.

DEPONENT VERBS.

231. Deponent Verbs have in general the forms of the Passive Voice with the signification of the Active. But—

1. They have also in the Active, the future infinitive, the participles, gerund, and supine.

2. The gerundive generally has the passive signification; sometimes also the perfect participle: hortandus, to be exhorted; expertus, tried.

3. The Future Infinitive of the Passive form is rare, as the Active form is generally used.

NOTE.—The synopsis of a single example will sufficiently illustrate the peculiarities of Deponent Verbs.

232. Hortor, I exhort.

1. PRINCIPAL PARTS.

hortor, hortārī, hortātus sum.

2. PRESENT SYSTEM; STEM, hortā.

INDICATIVE.	SUBJUNCTIVE.	IMPER.	INFINITIVE.	PARTICIPLE.
Pres. hortor ¹	horter	hortāre	hortārī	hortāns
Imp. hortābar	hortārer
Fut. hortābor		hortātor

Gerund, hortandī.

Gerundive, hortandus.

3. SUPINE SYSTEM; STEM, hortat.

Perf. hortātus sum	hortātus sim		hortātus esse	hortātus
Plup. hortātus eram	hortātus essem
F. P. hortātus erō
Fut.			hortātūrus esse	hortātūrus

Supine, hortātum, hortātū.

NOTE.—For the Principal Parts of Deponent Verbs in the other conjugations, see 268, 283, and 288. From these Principal Parts the pupil, by the aid of the paradigms already learned, will be able to inflect any Deponent Verb.

PERIPHRASTIC CONJUGATION.

233. The ACTIVE PERIPHRASTIC CONJUGATION, formed by combining the Future Active Participle with sum, denotes an intended or future action:

¹ The tenses are inflected regularly through the persons and numbers: hortor, hortāris, hortātur, hortāmur, hortāmini, hortantur. All the forms in this synopsis have the active meaning, I exhort, I was exhorting, etc., except the Gerundive, which has the passive force, deserving to be exhorted, to be exhorted. The Gerundive, as it is passive in meaning, cannot be used in intransitive Deponent Verbs, except in an impersonal sense; see 301, 1.

Imp. amātūrus eram	amātūrus essem
Fut. amātūrus erō
Perf. amātūrus fui	amātūrus fuerim	amātūrus fuisse
Plup. amātūrus fueram	amātūrus fuisset
F. P. amātūrus fuerō ¹

234. The PASSIVE PERIPHRASTIC CONJUGATION, formed by combining the Gerundive with sum, denotes necessity or duty.

*Amandus sum, I must be loved.*²

Pres. amandus sum	amandus sim	amandus esse
Imp. amandus eram	amandus essem
Fut. amandus erō
Perf. amandus fui	amandus fuerim	amandus fuisse
Plup. amandus fueram	amandus fuisset
F. P. amandus fuerō

NOTE.—The Periphrastic Conjugation, in the widest sense of the term, includes all forms compounded of participles with sum; but as the Pres. Part. with sum is equivalent to the Pres. Ind. (amāns est = amat), and is accordingly seldom used, and as the Perf. Part. with sum is, in the strictest sense, an integral part of the regular conjugation, the term Periphrastic is generally limited to the two conjugations above given.

PECULIARITIES IN CONJUGATION.

235. Perfects in āvi, ōvi, ivī, and the tenses derived from them, sometimes drop v and suffer contraction before s and r, and sometimes before t. Thus—

Ā with the following vowel becomes ā: amāvisti (amaisti), amāsti; amāveram (amaeram), amāram; amāvisse (amaisse), amāsse; amāvit (amait), amāt.

Ē with the following vowel becomes ē: nēvi (to spin), nēvistī (neisti), nēsti; nēverunt (neerunt), nērunt.

Ī and Ĭ become ī: audīvistī (audiisti), audīsti; audīvissem (audiissem), audīsem; audīvit (audiit), audīt.

1. Perfects in ivī sometimes drop v in any of their forms, but generally without contraction, except before s: audīvi, audīi, audīit, audīeram; audīvistī, audīisti or audīsti.

¹ The periphrastic forms are inflected regularly through the persons and numbers: amātūrus sum, es, est. The Fut. Perf. is exceedingly rare.

² Or, I deserve (ought) to be loved.

2. Perfects in ovi.—The perfects of nesciō, to know, and moverē, to move, sometimes drop v and suffer contraction before r and s: nōvisti, nōsti.

3. Perfects in si and xi sometimes drop is, is, or is: scripsisti, scripsisti; diassis, dixi; accēssisti, accēssisti.

236. The ending ere for erunt in the Perfect is common in Livy and the poets, but rare in Cicero and Cæsar.

NOTE.—The form in ere does not drop v. In poetry erunt occurs.

237. Re for ris in the ending of the second Person of the Passive is rare in the Present Indicative, but common in the other tenses.

238. Dic, dūc, fac, and fer, for dice, dūce, face, and ferē, are the Imperatives of dicō, dūcō, faciō, and ferō, to say, lead, make, and bear.

NOTE 1.—Dice, dūce, and face occur in poetry.

NOTE 2.—Compounds follow the simple verbs, except those of faciō, which change a into i: cōnfice.

239. Undus and undi for endus and endi occur as the endings of the Gerundive and Gerund of Conj. III. and IV., especially after i: faciundus, from faciō, to make; dicundus, from dicō, to say.

240. ANCIENT AND RARE FORMS.—Various other forms, belonging in the main to the earlier Latin, occur in the poets, even of the classical period, and occasionally also in prose, to impart to the style an air of antiquity or solemnity. Thus forms in—

1. ibam for iēbam, in the Imperfect Ind. of Conj. IV.: scribam for scriēbam. See Imperfect of eō, to go, 295.

2. Ibo, ibor, for iam, iar, in the Future of Conj. IV.: scribō for scriviam; opperibor for opperiar. See Future of eō, 295.

3. im for am or em, in the Pres. Subj.: edim, edis, etc., for edam, edas, etc.; duim (from duō, for dō), for dem.—In sim, velim, nōlim, malim (204 and 293), im is the common ending.

4. āssō, ēssō, and sō, in the Future Perfect, and āssim, ēssim, and sim, in the Perfect Subjunctive of Conj. I., II., III.: faxō (facō) for *fecerō*¹ (from faciō); faxim for *fecerim*¹; ausim for ausus sim (for ausurim, from audēō). Rare examples are: levāssō for levaverō; prohibēssō for prohibuerō; jūssō for jusserō; capō for cēperō; axō for ēgerō; occidit for occiderit; taxit for teigerit.

5. tō and minō for tor, the former in both numbers, the latter in the singular, of the Future Imperative, Passive and Deponent: arbitratō, arbitraminō for arbitrator; ūtuntō for ūtuntor.

6. ier for ī in the Present Passive Infinitive: amārier for amari; vidērier for videri.

¹ Remember that r in erō and erim was originally s; see 31, 1; 204, foot-note 2.

ANALYSIS OF VERBAL ENDINGS.

241. The endings which are appended to the stems in the formation of the various parts of the finite verb contain three distinct elements:

1. The TENSE-SIGN: ba in amā-ba-m, regē-bā-s.
2. The MOOD-VOWEL: ā in mone-ā-s, reg-ā-s.
3. The PERSONAL ENDING: s in monē-ā-s, reg-ā-s.

I. TENSE-SIGNS.

242. The Present is without any tense-sign: amā-s. So also the Future¹ in Conjugations III. and IV.

243. In the other tense-forms of all regular verbs, the tense-sign is found in the auxiliary with which these forms are all compounded:

Amā-bam,² amāv-eram; amā-bō, amāv-erō; monē-bam, monu-eram.

II. MOOD-SIGNS.

244. The Indicative has no special sign to mark the Mood.

245. The Subjunctive has a long vowel—ā, ē,³ or *i*⁴—before the Personal Endings:

Mone-ā-mus, mone-ā-tis, am-ē-mus, am-ē-tis, s-i-mus, s-i-tis.

NOTE.—This vowel is shortened before final m and t, and generally in the Perfect before a, mus, and tis. moneam, amēt, sit, fuertis, amāverimus, amāveritis.

¹ This Future is in form a Present Subjunctive, though it has assumed in full the force of the Future Indicative; see foot-note 4 below.

² Bam and eram are both auxiliary verbs in the Imperfect, the former from the stem bāu, the old form of fu in fu-i, and the latter from the stem es; the former added to the Present stem forms the Imperfect, the latter added to the Perfect stem forms the Pluperfect. Bō and erō are Future forms, the former from bāu, the latter from es; the former added to the Present stem forms the Future in Conjugations I. and II., the latter added to the Perfect stem forms the Future Perfect. In the Subjunctive the tense-forms, except the Present, are compounded with Subjunctive tense-forms from es; thus, erem in regerem is for esem, the old form of essem; erim in rex-erim is for esim = etm, and issim in rex-issim is for essem; thus the Present and Imperfect Subjunctive of sum added to the Perfect stem form the Perfect and Pluperfect Subjunctive.

³ This ē comes from a-i, of which the i alone is the true Mood Sign.

⁴ The Latin Subjunctive contains the forms of two distinct Moods—the Subjunctive with the sign ā, and the Optative with the sign i, sometimes contained in ē for a-i. Thus: Subjunctive, mone-ā-mus, audi-ā-tis; Optative, s-i-mus, reger-i-tis, am-ē-mus for ama-i-mus, reger-ē-s for regera-i-s. The Subjunctive and Optative forms, originally distinct, have in the Latin been blended into one Mood, called the Subjunctive, and are used without any difference of meaning. Thus the Mood in mone-ā-mus, a Subjunctive form, has precisely the same force as in am-ē-mus, an Optative form. The First Person Singular of Futures in am-regam, audiam, etc.—is in form a Subjunctive, while the other Persons, regēs, et, etc., audite, et, etc., are in form Optatives.

246. The Imperative is distinguished by its Personal Endings; see 247, 3.

III. PERSONAL ENDINGS.

247. The Personal Endings are formed from ancient pronominal stems, and have, accordingly, the force of pronouns in English. They are as follows:

	PERSON.	ACTIVE.	PASSIVE.	MEANING.
Singular. ¹	First	m	r	I
	Second	s	ris	thou, you
	Third	t	tur	he, she, it
Plural. ²	First	mus	mur	we
	Second	tis	mini ³	you
	Third	nt	ntur	they

EXAMPLES.

amāba-m	amāba-r	regō	rego-r
amābā-s	amābā-ris	regi-s	rege-ris
amāba-t	amābā-tur	regi-t	regi-tur
amābā-mus	amābā-mur	regi-mus	regi-mur amābā-tis	amābā-mini	regi-tis	regi-mini amāba-nt	amāba-ntur	regu-nt	regu-ntur

1. OMITTED.—In the Present,⁴ Perfect, and Future Perfect Ind. of all the conjugations, and in the Future Ind. of Conjugations I. and II., the ending m does not appear. In these forms the First Person ends in ō:⁵ amō, amābō, amāverō; except in the Perfect, where it ends in i:⁶ amāvī.

2. The endings of the Perfect Active are peculiar. They are the same as in fuī:

¹ In the Singular these Personal Endings contain each—(1) in the Active Voice one pronominal stem, m, I; s, thou, you; t, he; and (2) in the Passive two such stems, one denoting the Person, and the other the Passive Voice: thus, in the ending tur, t (tū) denotes the person, and r, the voice. R of the first person stands for m-r.

² In the Plural the Endings contain each—(1) in the Active two pronominal stems: mu-s = m (mu) and s, I and you, i. e., we; tis = t (the original form for s, thou, as seen in tū, thou) and s = s and s, thou and thou, i. e., you; nt = n and t, he and he, i. e., they; and (2) in the Passive three such stems, the third denoting the Passive Voice: thus in ntur, nt (ntu) denotes the person and number, and r, the voice.

³ Mini was not originally a Personal Ending, but the Plural of a Passive Participle, not otherwise used in Latin, but seen in the Greek (μενοι). Amāmini, originally amāmini estis, means you are loved, as amāti estis means you have been loved.

⁴ Except in sum, I am, and inquam, I say.

⁵ The origin of this final ō is uncertain. Curtius regards it as simply the thematic vowel, but Meyer recognizes in it a suffla combined with the thematic vowel; see Curtius, Verbum, I., pp. 199, 200; Meyer, p. 249.

⁶ Probably a part of the stem; but see Curtius, Verbum, II., p. 178; Papillon, pp. 194-196; also two papers by the author, on the Formation of the Tenses for Completed Action in the Latin Finite Verb; Transactions of the Am. Phil. Assoc., 1874 and 1875.

	SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
First Pers.	fu-i ¹	fu-i-mus
Second	fu-is-ti	fu-is-tis
Third	fu-i-t	fu-āru-nt or ēre

3. The Imperative Mood has the following Personal Endings :

	ACTIVE.		PASSIVE.
	SINGULAR.	PLURAL.	SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
Pres. Second Pers.	— ²	te	re	mini
Fut. Second	tō	tōte	tor
Third	tō	ntō	tor	ntor

248. Infinitives, Participles, Gerunds, and Supines are formed with the following endings :

	ACTIVE.	PASSIVE.
Infinitive Present	re (ere)	ri (eri), I
Perfect	isse	us esse
Future	ūrus esse	um iri
Participle Present	ns
Future	ūrus
Perfect		us
Gerundive		ndus
Gerund	ndi
Supine	um, ū

FORMATION OF STEMS.

249. The three Special Stems are all formed from the Verb Stem.

I. PRESENT STEM.

250. The Present Stem, found in the Present Infinitive Active by dropping re, is generally the same as the Verb Stem in the First and in the Fourth Conjugations, and sometimes in the Second. Thus, amā, dēlē, and *audī*³ are both Present Stems and Verb Stems.

² In the Present the ending is dropped in the Sing. Act., and the endings te and re are shortened from tis and ris of the Indicative by dropping s and changing final t into e; see §4, 1, note. In the Future, tō of the second person corresponds to ti of the Perfect Ind.; tō and ntō of the third person to t and nt. Tor and ntor add r to tō and ntō. Tōte doubles the pronominal stem.

³ The final vowels are generally explained as derived from aŷa, which became Ōmŷ. I., aŷo, shortened to ō in am-ō, and to ā in the other forms, as am-ā-n.

251. The Present Stem, when not the same as the Verb Stem, is formed from it by one of the following methods :

1. By adding a short vowel, called the Thematic vowel :¹

regô ;	Stem , reg ;	Present Stem , rage ;	to rule.
canô ;	" can ;	" cane ;	to sing.

2. By adding a Thematic vowel preceded by n, so, or t :

ainô ;	Stem , ai ;	Present Stem , aine ;	to permit. spernô ;	" sper, sprê ;	" sperne ;	to spurn. temnô ;	" tem ;	" temne ;	to despise. veterâsoô ;	" veterâ ;	" veterâsoe ;	to grow old. crêsoô ;	" crê ;	" crêsoe ;	to increase. plectô ;	" plect ;	" plecte ;	to braid.

3. By adding a Thematic vowel preceded by i or j :

capîô ;	Stem , cap ;	Present Stem , cap-je, cape ; ²	to take. pellô ;	" pel ;	" pel-je, pelle ; ³	to drive.
currô ;	" cur ;	" cur-je, curre ; ³	to run.

4. By adding a Thematic vowel and inserting n—changed to m before a labial, b or p ; see § 3, 3 :

frangô ;	Stem , frag ;	Present Stem , frange ;	to break. fundô ;	" fud ;	" funde ;	to pour.
rumpô ;	" rup ;	" rumpe ;	to hurt.

5. By adding â, ë, or i :

juvô ;	Stem , juv ;	Present Stem , juvâ ;	to assist. vidô ;	" vid ;	" vidë ;	to see. haurîô ;	" haur for haus ;	" hauri ;	to draw.

6. By reduplicating the stem :

sistô ;	Stem , sta ;	Present Stem , sista, ³ siste ;	to place.
serô ;	" sa ;	" sisa, sise, sere ; ⁴	to sow.

NOTE.—Sometimes two of these methods are united in the same stem :

gignô ;	Stem , gen ;	Present Stem , gigena, gigne ; ⁵	to beget.
nanciscor ;	" nac ;	" nancisce ; ⁶	to obtain.

Conj. II., êja, shortened to ed in dêl-êd, and to ê in dêl-ê-mus ; and in Conj. IV., tjo, shortened to id in aud-id, to tu in aud-tu-ni, and to i in aud-i-mus ; see § 35, foot-note.

¹ This Thematic vowel, originally a, is generally weakened to e or i : reg-e-re, reg-i-mus ; but sometimes it appears to take the form of ô or u : reg-ô, reg-u-ni. There is, however, some difference of opinion in regard to the origin of ô in such cases : see § 47, 1, foot-note 5.

² With variable Thematic vowel ; see foot-note 1, above. J, pronounced y, assimilated to i and r in pelle and curre, as in the Greek πέλλα, from παλ-ω. See Curtius, Verbum, I., p. 300.

³ For stista for stasta. The s in siste takes the several forms of the Thematic vowel.

⁴ S changed to r between two vowels ; see § 1, 1. The vowel a of the stem is weakened to i before s, but to e before r ; see § 4, 1 and 2.

⁵ Reduplication with Thematic vowel.

⁶ N inserted and i-sc-e added.

II. PERFECT STEMS.

252. Vowel Stems form the Perfect Stem by adding v:

amō (a-ō),	amāvi ;	Stem, amā ;	Perfect Stem, amāv ;	to love.
dēlēō,	dēlēvi ;	" dēlē ;	" dēlēv ;	to destroy.
audiō,	audiui ;	" audi ;	" audiv ;	to hear.

1. In verbs in uō, the Perfect Stem is the same as the Verb Stem :

acuō,	acui ;	Stem, acu ;	Perfect Stem, acu ;	to sharpen.
-------	--------	-------------	---------------------	-------------

253. Many Liquid Stems, and a few others, form the Perfect Stem by adding u:

alō,	alui ;	Stem, al ;	Perfect Stem, alu ;	to nourish.
fremō,	fremui ;	" frem ;	" fremu ;	to rage.
teneō,	tenui ;	" ten ;	" tenu ;	to hold.
doceō,	docui ;	" doc ;	" docu ;	to teach.

254. Most Consonant Stems form the Perfect Stem by adding u:

regō,	rēxi ;	Stem, reg ;	Perfect Stem, rēx = regs ;	to rule.
scribō,	scripsi ;	" scrib ;	" scrips = scribsa ;	to write.
carpō,	carpsi ;	" carp ;	" carps ;	to pluck.

255. A few Consonant Stems form the Perfect Stem without any suffix whatever. But of these—

I. Some reduplicate the stem :¹

canō,	cecinī ;	Stem, can ;	Perfect Stem, cecin ;	to sing.
-------	----------	-------------	-----------------------	----------

1. The REDUPLICATION consists of the initial consonant (or consonants) of the stem with the following vowel, or with e—generally with the following vowel, if that vowel is e, i, o, or u, otherwise with e ; see examples under 271, 1, and 272, 1.

2. The STEM-VOWEL a is generally weakened to i, sometimes to e : caddō, cecidī (for cecadī), to fall.

3. In VERBS BEGINNING WITH Sp OR Sz, the reduplication retains both consonants, but the stem drops the s : spondēb, spondi (for spospondi), to promise ; stō, steti (for steti), to stand.

4. In COMPOUNDS the reduplication is generally dropped, but it is retained in the compounds of dō, to give ; stō, to stand ; discō, to learn ; poscō, to demand ; and sometimes in the compounds of currō, to run ; re-spondēb, re-spondi, to answer ; circum-dō, circum-dedi ; circum-stō, circum-steti, to encircle. The compounds of dō which are of the third conjugation change e of the reduplication into i : ad-dō, ad-didi (for ad-dedi), to add ; see 259, 1.

II. Some lengthen the Stem-Vowel :²

emō,	ēmī ;	Stem, em ;	Perfect Stem, ēm ;	to buy.
agō,	ēgī ;	" ag ;	" ēg ;	to drive.
ab-igō,	ab-ēgī ;	" abig ;	" abēg ;	to drive away.

NOTE.—The stem-vowels a and (in compounds) i generally become ē, as in agō and ab-igō.

² See lists, 271, 2 ; 272, 2.

III. Some retain the stem unchanged :¹

icō,	icī ;	Stem , ic ;	Perfect Stem , ic ;	to strike.
visō,	visī ;	" vis ;	" vis ;	to visit.

NOTE.—Of the few verbs belonging to this class, nearly all have the stem-syllable long.

III. SUPINE STEM.

256. The Supine Stem adds t to the Verb Stem :

amō, ²	amātum ;	Stem , amā ;	Supine Stem , amāt ;	to love. dicō,	dictum ;	" dic ;	" dict ;	to say. monēō,	monitum ;	" moni ; ³	" monit ;	to advise. dēlēō,	dēlētum ;	" dēlē ;	" dēlēt ;	to destroy. audiō,	auditum ;	" audi ;	" audit ;	to hear.
carpō,	carptum ;	" carp ;	" carpt ;	to pluck.

1. Stems in d and t, most stems in l and r, and a few others, change t into s :

laedō,	laesum ;	Stem , laed ;	Supine Stem , laes ; ⁴	to hurt.
vertō,	versum ;	" vert ;	" vers ; ⁴	to turn. verrō,	verrum ;	" verr ;	" vers ;	to brush.
fallō,	falsum ;	" fall ;	" fals ;	to deceive.

CLASSIFICATION OF VERBS. *

FIRST CONJUGATION.

CLASS I.—STEM IN ā : PERFECT IN vi OR ui.257. Principal Parts in—ō, āre, āvī, ātum. *

These endings belong to most verbs of this conjugation. The following are examples :

dōnō	dōnāre	dōnāvī	dōnātum,	to bestow. honōrō	honōrāre	honōrāvī	honōrātum,	to honor. liberō	liberāre	liberāvī	liberātum,	to free. nōminō	nōmināre	nōmināvī	nōminātum,	to name. pūgnō	pūgnāre	pūgnāvī	pūgnātum,	to fight. spērō	spērāre	spērāvī	spērātum,	to hope.

NOTE 1.—Pōtō, āre, āvī, ātum, to drink, has also a supine, pōtum.

NOTE 2.—Cēnātus, from cēnō, 'to dine,' and jūrātus, from jūrō, 'to swear,' are active in meaning, having dined, etc. Pētus, from pōtō, is also sometimes active in meaning.

³ See 207.

⁴ Laes is for laed, plaus for plaud, vis for vid, vers for vert, fals for fall, vers for verri; see 35, 3, 2), note.

⁶ It is deemed unnecessary longer to retain the double mark $\approx$ over final o in verbs. The pupil has now learned that this vowel may be short, though it is generally long in the Augustan poets.

258. Principal Parts in—o, āre, uī, itum.¹

crepō	crepāre	crepui	crepitum, ²	to creak.
cubō	cubāre	cubui	cubitum, ³	to recline.
domō	domāre	domui	domitum,	to lame.
ēnecō	ēnecāre	ēnecui	ēnectum, ⁴	to kill.
fricō	fricāre	fricui	{ frictum, fricātum, }	to rub.
micō	micāre	micui	_____	to glitter.
plicō	plicāre	{ plicāvi plicui }	{ plicātum, plicitum, ⁵ }	to fold.
secō	secāre	secui	sectum, ⁶	to cut.
sonō	sonāre	sonui	sonitum, ⁷	to sound.
tonō	tonāre	tonui	_____	to thunder.
vetō	vetāre	vetui	vetitum,	to forbid.

CLASS II.—PERFECT IN I.259. Principal Parts in—o, āre, i, tum.1. WITH REDUPLICATION.⁸

dō	dare	dedi	datum,	to give.
stō	stāre	steti	stātum,	to stand.

2. WITH LENGTHENED STEM-VOWEL.⁹

juvō	juvāre	jūvi	jūtum, ¹	to assist.
lavō	lavāre	lāvi	{ lavātum, ² lautum, lōtum, }	to wash.

NOTE 1.—In dō the characteristic a is short by exception: ¹⁰ dādam, dabo, darem, etc. Four compounds of dō—circumdō, pessumdō, satiodō, and venumdō—are conjugated like the simple verb; the rest are of the Third Conjugation (271). The basis of several of these compounds is dō, 'to place,' originally distinct from dō, 'to give.'

NOTE 2.—Compounds of stō generally want the Supine. In the Perfect they have steti, if the first part is a dissyllable, otherwise steti: adstō, adstāre, adsteti. Diēto and exstō want Perfect and Supine.

² Increpō, āre, uī (dōi), itum (dōtum); discrepō, āre, uī (dōi), —.

³ Compounds which insert m, as accumbō, etc., are of Conj. III.; see 273.

⁴ The simple necō is regular, and even in the compound the forms in āvi and atum occur.

⁵ Dimicō, āre, āvi (uī), ātum; ēmicō, āre, uī, ātum.

⁶ Duplicō, multiplicō, replicō, and supplicō, are regular: āre, āvi, ātum.

⁷ Secō has participle secūtūrus; sonō, sonātūrus; juvō, juvātūrus, in compounds also jūtūrus. Resonō has Perfect resonāvi. Most compounds of sonō want the Supine.

⁸ See 255, I. and II.

⁹ In poetry, lavō is sometimes of Conj. III.: lavō, lavere, lāvi, etc.

¹⁰ This short vowel is explained by the fact that dō is a root-verb formed directly from the root da without the suffix from which the d is derived in other verbs in this conjugation; see 250, foot-note.

260. DEPONENT VERBS.

In this conjugation deponent verbs are entirely regular.

cōnor	cōnārī	cōnātus sum,	to endeavor. hortor	hortārī	hortātus sum,	to exhort.
miror	mirārī	mirātus sum,	to admire.

SECOND CONJUGATION.

CLASS I.—STEM IN ē: 'PERFECT IN vi OR ui.261. Principal Parts in—eō, ēre, ēvi, ētum.

These endings belong to the following verbs :

dēlēō	dēlēre	dēlēvi	dēlētum,	to destroy. complēō	complēre	complēvi	complētum, ¹	to fill. flēō	flēre	flēvi	flētum,	to weep. nēō	nēre	nēvi	nētum, ²	to spin.

262. Principal Parts in—eō, ēre, ui, itum.

These endings belong to most verbs of this conjugation. The following are examples :

dēbeō	dēbere	dēbui	dēbitum,	to owe. habēō	habere	habui	habitum,	to have. monēō	monēre	monui	monitum,	to advise. noceō	nocēre	nooui	nocitum,	to hurt. pāreō	pāre	pāui	pāritum,	to obey. placēō	placēre	placui	placitum,	to please.
taceō	tacēre	tacui	tacitum,	to be silent.

NOTE 1.—Many verbs with the Perfect in ui want the Supine. The following are the most important :

candeō, to shine.	madeō, to be wet.	sorbeō, to swallow.
egeō, to want.	niteō, to shine.	splendeō, to shine. ēmineō, to stand forth.	oleō, to smell.	studeō, to study. flōreō, to bloom.	palleō, to be pale.	stupeō, to be amazed.

lateō, to be hid.	sileō, to be silent.	vireō, to be green.

NOTE 2.—Some verbs, derived mostly from adjectives, want both Perfect and Supine. The following are the most important :

albeō, to be white.	hebeō, to be blunt.	maereō, to be sad.
calveō, to be bald.	timeō, to be moist.	polleō, to be powerful. cāneō, to be gray.	immineō, to threaten.	renideō, to shine.
flāveō, to be yellow.	lacteō, to suck.	squaleō, to be filthy.

¹ So other compounds of the obsolete plao: expleō, impleō, etc.

² To these may be added aboleō, abolēre, abolēvi, abolitum, 'to destroy,' with Supine in itum. See also aboliscō, 277.

CLASS II.—STEM IN c, n, r, OR s: PERFECT IN ul.¹263. Principal Parts in—eo, ēre, ul, tum or sum.²

These endings belong to the following verbs :

cēseō	cēnsēre	cēnsul	cēnsūm, ³	to think. doceō	docēre	docul	dōctum,	to teach. misceō	miscēre	miscul	{ mistum, mixtum, }	to mix. teneō	tenēre	tenul	tentum, ⁴	to hold.
torreō	torrēre	torrul	tostum,	to roast.

CLASS III.—STEM IN A CONSONANT: PERFECT IN si OR i.264. Principal Parts in—eo, ēre, si, tum.

augeō	augēre	auxi	auctum,	to increase. indulgeō	indulgēre	indulsi	indultum,	to indulge. torqueō	torquēre	torsi	tortum,	to twist.

265. Principal Parts in—eo, ēre, si, sum.²

algeō	algēre	alsi	—	to be cold. ardeō	ardēre	arsi	arsum,	to burn. cōniveō	cōnivēre	{ cōnivi cōnixi }	—	to wink at. frigeō	frigēre	frixi (rare)	—	to be cold. fulgeō	fulgēre	fulsi	— ⁵	to shine. haereō	haerēre	haesi	haesum, ⁶	to stick. jubeō	jubēre	jussi	jussum,	to order. lūceō	lūcēre	lūxi	—	to shine. lūgeō	lūgēre	lūxi	—	to mourn. maneō	manēre	mānsi	mānsūm,	to remain. mulgeō	mulgēre	mulsi	mulsum,	to milk. mulceō	mulcēre	mulsi	mulsum, ⁷	to soothe. rideō	ridēre	risi	risum,	to laugh. suadeō	suādēre	suāsi	suāsum,	to advise. tergeō	tergēre	tersi	tersum,	to wipe. turgeō	turgēre	tursi (rare)	—	to swell.
urgeō (urgueō)	urgēre	ursi	—	to press.

NOTE.—Cieō, ciēre, ciui, ciūm, to arouse, has a kindred form, ciō, ciire, ciui, ciūm, from which it seems to have obtained its Perfect. In compounds the forms of the Fourth Conj. prevail, especially in the sense of to call, call forth.

¹ For convenience of reference, a General List of all verbs involving irregularities will be found on page 888.

² The Present Stem adds i; see 251, 5. For phonetic changes, see 33-36.

³ Participle cēsus and cēnsitus.—Percēseō wants Supine: recēseō has recēsum and recēnsitum.

⁴ In most compounds the Supine is rare.

⁵ Poetic, fulgō, fulgere, etc.

⁶ The stem of haereō is haec. The Present adds i and changes s to r between two vowels. In haesi and haesum, s standing for ss or st is not changed.

⁷ In compounds sometimes mulctum.

266. Principal Parts in—eo, ēre, ī, tum.

WITH LENGTHENED STEM-VOWEL.

teor	rēri	{ misertus sum, }	to think.
		ratus sum,

¹ For reduplication in compounds, see 255, I., 4.² So circumsedeo and supersedo. Other compounds thus: assideo, ēre, assidi, assēssum; but disideo, praesideo, and resideo, want Supine.³ Observe that the supine stem is wanting in most of these verbs.⁴ Participle, prānens, in an active sense, having dined.⁵ Cōnfiteor, ēri, cōnfessus: so profiteor.

8. Semi-Deponent—Deponent in the Perfect.

audeō	audēre	ausus sum,	to dare.
gaudeō	gaudēre	gāvīsus sum,	to rejoice.
soleō	solēre	solitus sum,	to be accustomed.

THIRD CONJUGATION.

NOTE.—This conjugation contains the primitive verbs of the language; see 335.

CLASS I.—STEM IN A CONSONANT : PERFECT IN SI OR I.269. Principal Parts in—ō (or io), ere, si, tum.

These are the regular endings in verbs whose stems end in a consonant. The following are examples :¹

carpō	carpere	carpsi	carptum, ²	to pluck.
cingō	cingere	cinxi (gesi)	cinctum,	to gird.

spernō	spernere	sprēvi	sprētum,	to spurn.
suēscō	suēscere	suēvi	suētum,	to become accustomed.

NOTE.—Serō, serere, sēvi, satum,⁷ to sow.

278. The following verbs have the Perfect in ivī from a stem in i:

arcēssō	arcēssere	arcēssivī	arcēssitum,	to call for.
capessō	capessere	capessivī	capessitum,	to lay hold of.
cupiō	cupere	cupivī	cupitum,	to desire.
facessō	facessere	{ facessivī facessi }	facessitum,	to make.

¹ Other compounds of cellō want the Perfect and Supine, except percellō, percellere, percussī, percussum.

² Compounds thus: corripīā, corripere, corripul, corruptum.

³ The Perfect in sul seems to be a double formation, et enlarged to sul.

⁴ The stem of pāscō is pā, pās; the Present Stem adds ce; see §51, 2.

⁵ So inolēscō; but adolēscō has Supine adultum; exolēscō, exolētum; obolēscō, obolētum.

⁶ Incrēscō and succrēscō want the Supine.

⁷ Compounds thus: cōnsērā, cōnserere, cōnsēvi, cōnsētum.

incēssō	incēssere	{ incēssivī incēssī }	————	to attack.
laccēssō	laccessere	laccēssivī	laccēssitum,	to provoke.
linō	linere	livī, lōvī	litum,	to smear.
nōscō	nōscere	nōvī	nōtum, ¹	to know.
petō	petere	petivī	petitum,	to ask.
quaerō	quaerere	quaesivī	quaesitum, ²	to seek.
rudō	rudere	rudivī	ruditum,	to bray.
sapiō	sapere	sapivī, sapui	————	to taste.
sinō	sinere	sivī	situm,	to permit.
terō	terere	trivī	tritum,	to rub.

279. Principal Parts in—ō, ere, ī, tum.

These are the regular endings in verbs with u-stems. The following are examples:

acuō	acuere	acui	acūtum,	to sharpen.
arguō	arguere	argui	argūtum,	to convict.
imbuō	imbuere	imbuī	imbūtum,	to imbue.
minuō	minuere	minui	minūtum,	to diminish.
ruō	ruere	ruī	rutum,	to fall.
statuō	statuere	statui	statūtum,	to place.
tribuō	tribuere	tribui	tribūtum,	to impart.

NOTE.—Fluō and struō have the Perfect in xi.

fluō	fluere	fluxī ³	fluxum,	to flow.
struō	struere	struxī ³	structum,	to build.

INCEPTIVES.

280. Inceptives end in scō, and denote the beginning of an action.

NOTE.—When formed from verbs, they are called Verbal Inceptives, and when formed from nouns or adjectives, Denominative Inceptives.

281. Most VERBAL INCEPTIVES want the Supine, but take the Perfect of their primitives:

acēscō	(aceō)	acēscere	acui	————	to become sour.
ārēscō	(āreō)	ārēscere	arui	————	to become dry.
calēscō	(caleō)	calēscere	calui	————	to become warm.
flōrēscō	(flōreō)	flōrēscere	flōrui	————	to begin to bloom.
tepēscō	(tepeō)	tepēscere	tepuī	————	to become warm.
virēscō	(vireō)	virēscere	virui	————	to become green.

NOTE.—The following take the Perfect and Supine of their primitives:

concupiscō	(con, cupiō)	ere	concupivī	concupitum,	to desire.
convalescō	(con, valeō)	ere	convalui	convallitum,	to grow strong.
exardescō	(ex, ardēō)	ere	exarsi	exarsum,	to burn.
inveterascō	(inveterō)	ere	inveteravi	inveteratum,	to grow old.
obdormiscō	(ob, dormiō)	ere	obdormivi	obdormitum,	to fall asleep.
reviviscō	(re, viviō)	ere	revixi	revictum,	to revive.
sciscō	(sciō)	ere	scivi	scitum,	to enact.

¹ So ignōscō; agnōscō and cognōscō have itum in Supine, agnitum; agnōscō and interndescō want Supine.

² Compounds thus: acquirō, ere, acquiescī, acquiesitum.

³ For flu-g-si, strug-si, formed not from u-stems, but from consonant-stems.

282. Most DENOMINATIVE INCEPTIVES want both Perfect and Supine:

ditescō	(dīves),	to grow rich.	mītescō	(mīlis),	to grow mild.
dulcescō	(dulcis),	to become sweet.	mollescō	(mollis),	to grow soft.
grandescō	(grandis),	to grow large.	puerāscō	(puer),	to become a boy.

NOTE.—The following have the Perfect in ui:

crēbrescō	(crēber)	ere	crēbrui,	to become frequent.
dūrescō	(dūrus)	ere	dūrui,	to become hard.
innōtescō	(in, nōtus)	ere	innōtui,	to become known.
maerescō	(macer)	ere	maerui,	to become lean.
mātūrescō	(mātūrus)	ere	mātūrui,	to ripen.
obmūtescō	(ob, mūtus)	ere	obmūtui,	to grow dumb.
recrūdescō	(re, crūdus)	ere	recrūdui,	to bleed afresh.
vīlescō	(vīlis)	ere	vīlui,	to become worthless.

283. DEPONENT VERBS.

amplector	I	amplēxus sum,	to embrace.
apiscor	I	aptus sum, ¹	to obtain.
comminiscor	I	commentus sum, ²	to devise.
expergiscor	I	experrēctus sum,	to awake.
fatiscor	I ³		to gape.
fruo	I	{ fructus sum, }	to enjoy.
		{ fruitus sum, }
fungor	I	functus sum,	to perform.
gradior	I	grēssus sum, ⁴	to walk.
irāscor	I		to be angry.
lābor	I	lāpsus sum,	to fall.
liquor	I		to melt.
loquor	I	locūtus sum,	to speak.
morior	I (iri, rare)	mortuus sum, ⁵	to die.
nanciscor	I	nactus (nactus) sum,	to obtain.
nāscor	I	nātus sum, ⁶	to be born.
nitor	I	{ nixus sum, }	to strive.
		{ nixus sum, }
obliscor	I	oblītus sum,	to forget.
paciscor	I	pactus sum,	to bargain.
patior	I	passus sum,	to suffer.
proficiscor	I	profectus sum,	to set out.
queror	I	questus sum,	to complain.
reminiscor	I		to remember.
ringor	I	rictus sum,	to growl.
sequor	I	secūtus sum,	to follow.
ulciscor	I	ultus sum,	to avenge.
utor	I	ūsus sum,	to use.
vāscor	I		to eat.

Semi-Deponent—Deponent in the Perfect.

fido	fīdere	fīsus sum,	to trust.
------	--------	------------	-----------

¹ Adīpiscor, i, adeptus sum; so indīpiscor.² Com-miniscor is compounded of con, and the obsolete miniscor; re-miniscor wants the Perfect.³ Dē-fatiscor, i, dē-fessus sum.⁴ Compounds thus: aggredior, i, aggrēssus sum.⁵ Morior has future participle moritūrus; nāscor, nāscitūrus.

FOURTH CONJUGATION.

CLASS I.—STEM IN I: PERFECT IN VI.

284. Principal Parts in—is, ire, ivi, itum.

The following are examples:

finiō	finire	finivi	finitum,	to finish.
lēniō	lēnire	lēnivi	lēnitum,	to alleviate.
mūniō	mūnire	mūnivi	mūnitum,	to fortify.
pūniō	pūnire	pūnivi	pūnitum,	to punish.
sciō	scire	scivi	scitum,	to know.
sepeliō	sepelire	sepelivi	sepultum, ¹	to bury.
sitiō	sitire	sitivi	_____	to thirst.
vāgiō	vāgire	vāgivi	_____	to cry.

NOTE 1.—V is often dropped in the Perfect: audii for audivi; see 235, 1.

NOTE 2.—Desideratives (338, III.)—except desuriō, ire, —, itum; nūpturiō, ire, ivi, and parturiō, ire, ivi—want both Perfect and Supine. Also a few others:

bālbutiō,	to stammer.	ferōciō,	to be fierce.	sāgiō,	to be wise.
cacūtiō,	to be blind.	ganniō,	to bark.	superbiō,	to be proud.
feriō,	to strike.	ineptiō,	to trifle.	tussiō,	to cough.

CLASS II.—STEM IN C, L, OR R: PERFECT IN UĪ.

285. Principal Parts in—is, ire, ui, tum.

amiciō	amicire	amicui (xi)	amictum,	to clothe.
aperiō	aperire	aperui	apertum,	to open.
operiō	operire	operui	opertum,	to cover.
salīō	salire	salui (it)	(saltum), ²	to leap.

CLASS III.—STEM IN A CONSONANT: PERFECT IN SI OR I.

286. Principal Parts in—is, ire, si, tum.

farcīō	farcire	farsi	{ fartum, ³ }	to stuff.
fulciō	fulcire	fulsi	{ farctum, }
fulciō	fulcire	fulsi	fultum,	to prop.
hauriō ⁴	haurire	hausi	haustum, hausum,	to draw.
saepiō	saepire	saepsi	saeptum,	to hedge in.
sanciō	sancire	sansi	{ sanctum, }	to ratify.
sanciō	sancire	sansi	{ sanctum, }
sarciō	sarcire	sarsi	sartum,	to patch.
vinciō	vincire	vinxi	vinctum,	to bind.

² Compounds thus: dēstiliō, ire, ui (it), (dēsultum).

³ Compounds thus: cōnferciō, ire, cōnferesi, cōnferetum.

⁴ The stem of hauriō is haus. The Present adds h and changes s to r between two vowels. In hausi and hausum, s standing for ss or st is not changed.

287. Principal Parts in—to, ire, si, sum.

rauciō	raucire	raui	rausum,	to be hoarse. sentio	sentire	sensi	sensum,	to feel.

NOTE.—The following verbs have the Perfect in i :

comperiō	comperire	comperi	compertum,	to learn. reperiō	reperire	reperi	repertum,	to find. veniō	venire	veni ¹	ventum,	to come.

288. DEPONENT VERBS.

1. Regular.

blandior	Irī	blanditus sum,	to flatter. largior	Irī	largitus sum,	to bestow. mentior	Irī	mentitus sum,	to lie. mōlior	Irī	mōlitus sum,	to strive. partior	Irī	partitus sum,	to divide. potior ²	Irī	potitus sum,	to obtain. sortior	Irī	sortitus sum,	to draw lots.

2. Irregular.

assentior ³	Irī	assensus sum,	to assent. experior	Irī	expertus sum,	to try. mētor	Irī	mēsus sum,	to measure. opperior	Irī	{ oppertus sum, opperitus sum, }	to await. ordior	Irī	orsus sum,	to begin. orior	Irī	ortus sum, ⁴	to rise.

IRREGULAR VERBS.

289. A few verbs which have special irregularities are called by way of preëminence Irregular or Anomalous Verbs. They are sum, edō, ferō, volō, fiō, eō, quēō, and their compounds.

290. Sum, 'I am,' and its compounds.

I. The conjugation of sum has been already given (204); its numerous compounds—absum,⁵ adsum, dæsum, præsum,⁵ etc.—except possum and præsum, are conjugated in the same way.

² In the Present Indicative and Subjunctive, forms of Conjugation III. occur.

³ Compounded of ad and sentio; see 287.

⁴ Participle, oritūrus.—Present Indicative, Conjugation III., oreris, oritur. Imperfect Subjunctive, erirer or orerer.—So compounds, but adorior follows Conjugation IV.

⁵ Absum and præsum, like possum, have Present Participles, absēns and præseñs, used as adjectives, absent, present.

II. Possum, pōsse, potui, to be able.

INDICATIVE.
SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
Pres. possum, potes, potest;	possumus, potestis, possunt.
Imp. poteram; ¹	poterāmus.
Fut. poterō;	poterimus.
Perf. potui;	potuimus.
Plup. potueram;	potuerāmus.
P. P. potuerō;	potuerīmus.

SUBJUNCTIVE.

Pres. possim, possis, possit;	possimus, possitis, possint.
Imp. pōsem;	pōsēmus.
Perf. potuerim;	potuerīmus.
Plup. potuissem;	potuissēmus.

INFINITIVE.

Pres. pōsse.
Perf. potuisse.

PARTICIPLE.

Pres. potēns (as an adjective).

NOTE 1.—Possum is compounded of potis, 'able,' and sum, 'to be.' The parts are sometimes separated, and then potis is indeclinable: potis sum, potis sumus, etc.

NOTE 2.—In possum observe—

- 1) That potis drops is, and that t is assimilated before s: possum for potsum.
- 2) That f of the simple is dropped after t: potui for potfui.
- 3) That the Infinitive pōsse and Subjunctive pōsem are shortened forms for potesse and potessem.

NOTE 3.—For OLD AND RARE FORMS, see 204, 2.

III. Prōsum, 'I profit,' is compounded of prō, prōd, 'for,' and sum, 'to be.' It retains d when the simple verb begins with e: prōsum, prōdca, prōdest, etc. Otherwise it is conjugated like sum.

291. Edō, edere, ēdi, ēsum, to eat.

This verb is sometimes regular, and sometimes takes forms similar, except in quantity,¹ to those of sum which begin in es. Thus—

INDICATIVE.

Pres. {	edō,	edis,	edit;	edimus,	editis,	edunt.
		ēs, ²	ēst;		ētis.

SUBJUNCTIVE.

Imp. {	ederem,	ederēs,	ederet;	ederēmus,	ederētis,	ederent.
	ēssem,	ēssets,	ēsset;	ēssemus,	ēssetis,	ēsSENT.

¹ Inflected regularly through the different persons: poteram, poterās, poterat, etc. So also in the other tenses: potui, potuisti, etc.

² These forms have t long before s, while the corresponding forms of sum have s short.

IMPERATIVE.

Pres.	{ ede;	edite.
	{ ēs; ¹	ēste.
Fut.	{ editō;	editōte,	eduntō.
	{ ēstō;	ēstōte.

INFINITIVE.

Pres.	edere.	ēsse.
--------------	--------	-------

NOTE 1.—In the PASSIVE, ēstur for editur and ēstetur for ederitur also occur.

NOTE 2.—FORMS IN IM for am occur in the Present Subjunctive: edim, edis, edit, etc., for edam, edās, edat, etc.

NOTE 3.—COMPOUNDS are conjugated like the simple verb, but comedō has in the Su pine comēsum or comētum.

292. Ferō, ferre, tuli, lātum, to bear.

ACTIVE VOICE.

SINGULAR.		INDICATIVE.	PLURAL.
Pres.	ferō, fers, fert;		ferimus, fertis,² ferunt.
Imp.	ferēbam;³		ferēbāmus.
Fut.	feram;		ferēmus.
Perf.	tuli;		tulimus.
Plup.	tuleram;		tulerāmus.
F. P.	tulerō;		tulerīmus.
		SUBJUNCTIVE.
Pres.	feram;		ferāmus.
Imp.	ferrem;		ferrēmus.⁴
Perf.	tulerim;		tulerīmus.
Plup.	tulisse;		tulissēmus.
		IMPERATIVE.
Pres.	fer;⁵		ferite.
Fut.	fertō,		fertōte,
	fertō;		feruntō.
		INFINITIVE.	PARTICIPLE.
Pres.	ferre.⁴		Pres. ferēns.
Perf.	tulisse.
Fut.	lātūrus esse.		Fut. lātūrus.

² Fer-s, fer-t, fer-tis, like es-t, es-tis, dispense with the usual thematic vowel & With such vowel the forms would be feris, ferit, fertis.

³ Inflect the several tenses in full: ferēbam, ferēbās, etc.

⁴ Ferrem, etc., for fererem, etc.; ferre for ferere (e dropped).

⁵ Fer for fers; fertō, fertis, fertōte, fertis, fertur, without thematic vowel.

GERUND.	SUPINE.
Gen. ferendi,
Dat. ferendō,
Acc. ferendum,	Acc. lātum,
Abl. ferendō.	Abl. lātū.

PASSIVE VOICE.

feror, ferri, lātus sum, to be borne.

SINGULAR.	INDICATIVE.	PLURAL.
Pres. feror, ferris, fertur; ¹		ferimur, ferimini, feruntur.
Imp. ferēbar;		ferēbāmur.
Fut. ferar;		ferēmur.
Perf. lātus sum;		lāti sumus.
Plup. lātus eram;		lāti erāmus.
F. P. lātus erō;		lāti erimus.

	SUBJUNCTIVE.
Pres. ferar;	ferāmur.
Imp. ferrer; ¹	ferrēmur.
Perf. lātus sim;	lāti simus.
Plup. lātus essem;	lāti essemus.

	IMPERATIVE.
Pres. ferre; ¹	ferimini.
Fut. fertor; ¹	—
fertor;	feruntor.

INFINITIVE.	PARTICIPLE.
Pres. ferri. ¹
Perf. lātus esse.	Perf. lātus.
Fut. lātum iri.	Ger. ferendus.

1. Ferō has two principal irregularities:

1) Its forms are derived from three independent stems, seen in ferō, tuli, lātum.

2) It dispenses with the thematic vowel, e or i, before r, s, and t.

2. COMPOUNDS of ferō are conjugated like the simple verb, but in a few of them the preposition suffers a euphonic change:

ab-	auferō	auferre	abstuli	ablātum
ad-	adferō	adferre	attuli	allātum
con-	cōnferō	cōnferre	contuli	collātum
dis-	differō	differre	distuli	dilātum
ex-	effero	efferre	extuli	elātum
in-	inferō	inferre	intuli	illātum
ob-	offerō	offerre	obtuli	oblātum
sub-	sufferō	sufferre	sustuli	sublātum

NOTE.—Sustulit and sublātum are not often used in the sense of sufferō, to bear, but they supply the Perfect and Supine of tollō, to raise; see 271.

293. Volō,	velle,	volui,	to be willing.
Nōlō,	nolle,	nōlui,	to be unwilling.
Mālō,	malle,	mālui,	to prefer.

INDICATIVE.

Pres. volō,	nōlō,	mālō,
vis,	nōn vis,	māvis,
vult;	nōn vult;	māvult;
volumus,	nōlumus,	mālumus,

SUBJUNCTIVE.

Pres. velim. ¹	nōlim.	mālim.
Imp. vellem. ²	nōllem.	māllem.
Perf. voluerim.	nōluerim.	māluerim.
Plup. voluissem.	nōluissem.	māluissem.

IMPERATIVE.

Pres. nōli,	nōlite.
Fut. nōlitō,	nōlitōte,
nōlitō;	nōluntō.

INFINITIVE.

Pres. velle.	nolle.	malle.
Perf. voluisse.	nōluisse.	māluisse.

PARTICIPLE.

Pres. volēns.	nōlēns.
----------------------	---------

NOTE 1.—The stem of volō is vol, with variable stem-vowel, o, e, u.

NOTE 2.—Nōlō is compounded of nē or nōn and volō; mālō, of magis and volō.

NOTE 3.—RARE FORMS.—(1) Of volō: vult, vultis, for vult, vultis; sīs, sūltis, for sī vis, sī vultis; vīn' for vīene.—(2) Of nōlō: nēvis, nēvult (nēvult), nērelle, for nōn (nē) vis, nōn (nē) vult, nōlle.—(3) Of MALŌ: māvolō, māvelim, māvellem, for mālō, mālim, māllem.

² Vellem and celle are syncopated forms for celerem, celere; e is dropped and r assimilated: velerem, celrem, vellem; velere, celre, celle. So nōllem and nōlle, for nōlerem and nōlere; māllem and mālle, for mālerem and mālere.

Gen. eundi,
Dat. eundō,
Acc. eundum,		Acc. itum,
Abl. eundō.		Abl. itū.

1. Eō is a verb of the Fourth Conjugation, but it forms the Supine with a short vowel (itum), and is irregular in several parts of the Present System. It admits contraction according to 235: istis for ististis, etc.

2. Eō, as an intransitive verb, wants the Passive, except when used impersonally in the third singular, itur, ibātur, etc. (301, 1), but iri, the Passive Infinitive, occurs as an auxiliary in the Future Infinitive Passive of the regular conjugations: amātum iri, etc.

3. Compounds of eō generally shorten iei into ei. Vēnēō (vēnum eō) has sometimes vēnēdam for vēnīdam. Many compounds want the Supine, and a few admit in the Future a rare form in eam, iēe, iel.

NOTE 1.—Transitive compounds have the Passive: adeō, to approach; adeor, etc.

NOTE 2.—Ambiō is regular, like audīo, though ambīdam for ambīdam occurs.

296. Quēō, quīre, quīvi, quītum, to be able, and nequēō, nequīre, nequīvi (ii), nequītum, to be unable, are conjugated like eō, but they want the Imperative and Gerund, and are rare except in the Present tense.¹

DEFECTIVE VERBS.

297. Defective Verbs want certain parts. The following are the most important:²

I. PRESENT SYSTEM WANTING.

Coepti, I have begun. Memini, I remember. Ōdi, I hate.

INDICATIVE.

Perf. coepti.	memini.	ōdi.
Plup. coeperam.	memineram.	ōderam.
F. P. coeperō.	meminerō.	ōderō.

SUBJUNCTIVE.

Perf. coeperim.	meminerim.	ōderim.
Plup. coepissem.	meminissem.	ōdissem.

IMPERATIVE.

Sing. mementō.
Plur. mementōte.

² For many verbs which want the Perfect or Supine, or both, see 262-264.

INFINITIVE.
Perf. coepisse.	meminisse.	odisse.
Fut. coepturus esse.		osurus esse.
PARTICIPLE.
Perf. coeptus.		osus. ¹
Fut. coepturus.		osurus.

1. With PASSIVE INFINITIVES, coepi generally takes the Passive form: coeptus sum, eram, etc. Coeptus is Passive in sense.

2. Memini and odi are Present in sense; hence in the Pluperfect and Future Perfect they have the sense of the Imperfect and Future. Nōvī, 'I know,' Perfect of nōscō, 'to learn,' and cōsuēvī, 'I am wont,' Perfect of cōsuēscō, 'to accustom one's self,' are also Present in sense.

II. PARTS OF EACH SYSTEM WANTING.

1. *Āio, I say, say yes.*²

Indic. Pres. āio,	ais, ³	ait;	_____	_____	aiunt.
Imp. āiebam,	-ēbās,	-ēbat;	-ēbāmus,	-ēbātis,	-ēbant. ⁴
Perf. _____	_____	ait;	_____	_____	_____
Subj. Pres. _____	āiās,	aiat;	_____	_____	aiant.
Imper. Pres. al (rare).
Part. Pres. aiēns.

2. Inquam, I say.

Indic. Pres. inquam,	inquis, inquit;	inquimus, inquitis, inquiunt.
Imp. _____	_____ inquitēbat; ⁴	_____
Fut. _____	inquiēs, inquiet;	_____
Perf. _____	inquitī, inquit;	_____
Imper. Pres. inque.	Fut. inquitō.

3. *Fāri, to speak.*⁵

Indic. Pres. _____	_____	fātur;	_____	_____	_____
Fut. fābor,	_____	fābitur;	_____	_____	_____
Perf. fātus sum,	es,	est;	fāti sumus,	estis,	sunt.
Plup. fātus eram,	erās,	erat;	fāti erāmus,	erātis,	erant.
Subj. Perf. fātus sim,	sis,	sit;	fāti simus,	sitis,	sint.
Plup. fātus essem,	essēs,	esset;	fāti essemus,	essētis,	essent.
Imper. Pres. fāre.
Infīn. Pres. fāri.
Part. Pres. (fāns) fantis.		Perf. fātus.		Ger. fandus.
Gerund, Gen. and Abl. fandī, dō.		Supīne, Abl. fātū.

¹ Osus is Active in sense, hating, but is rare except in compounds: exōsus, parōsus.

² In this verb a and i do not form a diphthong; before a vowel the i has the sound of y: ā-yō, ā-yunt; see 10, 4, 8).

³ The interrogative form aiene is often shortened into ai'n.

⁴ Aibam, aīdās, etc., occur; also inquitat for inquitēbat.

⁵ Fāri is used chiefly in poetry. Compounds have some forms not found in the simple: adfāmur, adfāmini, adfābar; efāberis.

III. IMPERATIVES AND ISOLATED FORMS.

1. IMPERATIVES.

havē,	havēte;	havētō;	Inf. havēre, ¹	hail. salvā,	salvēte,	salvētō; ²	salvēre,	hail. cedō,	cette,			tell me, give me.
apage,				begone.

2. ISOLATED FORMS.

INDICATIVE.		SUBJUNCTIVE.
PRESENT.	FUTURE.	PRESENT.	IMPERFECT.	INFINITIVE.
cōnfit; —	—	cōnflat; cōnfleret;	cōnfleri,	to be done. dēfit, dēfunt;	dēfiet;	dēflat; —	dēfleri,	to be wanting.
infīt, infiunt,	—	—	—	to begin.
Sub. Imp. forem, forēs, foret,		— — —	forent.	Inf. fore. ³
Ind. Pres. ovat,		he rejoices.		Part. ovāns.
Ind. Pres. quaesō, quaesumus, ⁴		I pray.

IMPERSONAL VERBS.

298. Impersonal Verbs correspond to the English Impersonal with it: licet, it is lawful; oportet, it behooves.⁵ They are conjugated like other verbs, but are used only in the third person singular of the Indicative and Subjunctive, and in the Present and Perfect Infinitive.

299. The most important Impersonal Verbs are—deceit,	deceit,	it becomes. ⁶	piget,	{ piguit,	{ it grieves.

libet,	{ libuit,	{ it pleases. ⁶	paenitet,	{ pigitum est,	{
	{ libitum est,			{ paenituit,	{ it causes re-
	{ licuit,			{	{ gret. ⁷
licet,	{ licitum est,	{ it is lawful. ⁶
liquet,	licuit,	it is evident. ⁶	pu-det,	{ puduit,	{ it shames. miseret,	miseritum est,	it excites pity. ⁷		{ puditum est,	{
oportet,	oportuit,	it behooves.	taedet,	{ taeduit,	{ it wearies. ⁸
				{ taesum est,	{

1. PARTICIPLES are generally wanting, but a few occur, though with a somewhat modified sense: (1) from LIBET: libēns, willing; (2) from LICET: licēns, free; licitus, allowed; (3) from PAENITET: paenitēns, penitent; paenitendus, to be repented of; (4) from PUDET: pudēns, modest; pudendus, shameful.

2. GERUNDS are generally wanting, but occur in rare instances: paenitendum, pudendum.

¹ Also written avē, avēte, etc.

² The Future salvēbis is also used for the Imperative.

³ Forem = essem; fore = futūrum esse; see 204, 2.

⁴ Old forms for quaerō and quaerimus.

⁵ The subject is generally an infinitive or clause, but may be a noun or pronoun denoting a thing, but not a person: hōc fieri oportet, that this should be done is necessary.

⁶ These four occur in the third person plural, but without a personal subject.

⁷ Mi miseret, I pity; mē paenitet, I repent.

⁸ Also the compound, porttaedet, portuenum est, it greatly wearies.

300. Generally Impersonal are several verbs which designate the changes of the weather, or the operations of nature :

Fulminat, it lightens; grandinat, it hails; lucescit, it grows light; pluit, it rains; rorat, dew falls; tonat, it thunders.

301. Many other verbs are often used impersonally :

Accidit, it happens; apparet, it appears; cōstat, it is evident; contingit, it happens; delectat, it delights; dolet, it grieves; interest, it concerns; juvat, it delights; pale, it is plain; placet, it pleases; praestat, it is better; refert, it concerns.

1. In the PASSIVE VOICE intransitive verbs can be used only impersonally. The participle is then neuter :

Mihi creditur, it is credited to me, I am believed; tibi creditur, you are believed; creditum est, it was believed; certatur, it is contended; curritur, there is running, people run; pugnatur, it is fought, they, we, etc., fight; viuitur, we, you, they live.

2. The PASSIVE PERIPHRASTIC CONJUGATION (234) is often used impersonally. The participle is then neuter :

Mihi scribendum est, I must write; tibi scribendum est, you must write; illi scribendum est, he must write.

CHAPTER V.

PARTICLES.

302. THE Latin has four parts of speech sometimes called Particles: the Adverb, the Preposition, the Conjunction, and the Interjection.

ADVERBS.

303. The Adverb is the part of speech which is used to qualify verbs, adjectives, and other adverbs: celeriter currere, to run swiftly; tam celer, so swift; tam celeriter, so swiftly.

304. In their origin, Adverbs are mainly the oblique cases¹ of nouns, adjectives, participles, and pronouns.

I. ACCUSATIVES.—Many Adverbs were originally Accusatives :

1. ACCUSATIVES OF NOUNS: partim, partly; foras,¹ out of doors; *diu*¹ (for *diuum*²), for a long time. Here belong numerous adverbs in tim and sim, chiefly from verbal nouns³ no longer in use: ¹ contemptim, contemptuously;

¹ Some, indeed, are the oblique cases of words not otherwise used in Latin, and some are formed by means of case-endings no longer used in the regular declensions.

² Accusative of dius = diu.

³ Some adverbs in tim and sim are from adjectives: singulātīm, one by one. In time doubtless tim, diim, sim, and im came to be regarded simply as adverbial suffixes, and were so used in forming new adverbs.

sensim, perceptibly, slowly; raptim, hastily; statim, steadily; furtim, by stealth.

2. ACCUSATIVES OF NOUNS WITH PREPOSITIONS: ad-modum, very, to the full measure; in-vicem, in turn; in-cassum, in vain; ob-iter, on the road, in passing; ob-viam, in the way, against; post-modum, after a short time; *inter-diū*¹ and inter-dies,¹ during the day; inter-dum,¹ during the time, in the mean time.

3. ACCUSATIVES OF ADJECTIVES:

1) NEUTERS in um, a, e, us, is: solum, only; multum, multa, much; nimum, too much; parum, little; secundum, secondly; ceterum,² cetera, as to the rest; verum,³ truly; abunde,³ abundantly; facile, easily; saepe,⁴ often; plus, more; minus, less; saepius, more frequently; magis, more, rather.⁵

2) FEMININES in am, as: bifariam,⁶ in two parts; multifariam, in many parts; clam = calam, secretly; palam, openly; perperam, wrongly; alide, otherwise.

4. ACCUSATIVES OF PRONOUNS: quam,⁷ how much; tam,⁷ so much; tum, then; tunc, at that time; nunc, now.

II. ABLATIVES.—Many Adverbs were originally Ablatives:

1. ABLATIVES OF NOUNS in o, e, is: ergo, accordingly; ⁸ numero, exactly; forte, by chance; iure, rightly; sponte, willingly; gratis, or gratīs, gratuitously; foris, out of doors.

NOTE.—The ablative is sometimes accompanied by a preposition or by an adjective: ex-templo, immediately—lit., from the moment; illico for in loco, on the spot; quotannis, yearly; multi-modis, in many ways; ho-die (hōc-die), to-day; quā-rē, wherefore, by which thing.

2. ABLATIVES OF ADJECTIVES AND PARTICIPLES in o, FEMININE, o, a,⁹ and i, NEUTER: *dextrā*¹⁰ = dexterā, on the right; extrā,¹¹ on the outside; infra,¹¹ on the under side; intrā, on the inside;—intrō, within; ultrō, beyond; perpetuō, continually; rārō, rarely; subitō, suddenly; auspicatō, after taking the aus-

¹ Diū and dum are explained as forms of dium = dies, and dies as for dīs; see Corssen, I., pp. 282-286; II., 453.

² Often becoming conjunctions—ceterum, but. Nōn, from no-num, also belongs here.

³ From obsolete abundā.

⁴ Here may be added semel, 'once,' and etiam, 'at the same time,' both for simile.

⁵ Secus, 'otherwise'; tenus, 'as far as'; prōtinus, 'straightforward'; and versus, 'toward,' doubtless belong here.

⁶ Originally partem or viam may have been used.

⁷ Quam, from stem qua, in qui, quae; tam, tum, from stem ta, to, in the final syllable of iste, for is-tu-s, is-ta; tunc = tum-ce, nunc = num-ce, in which num is from the stem no, seen also in num, 'whether,' and also in its original form, na, in nam, 'for.'

⁸ Literally, by the dead. Compare Greek ἐπὶ νεκροῖς.

⁹ That o is here an ablative ending is proved by the fact that it appears in early Latin in the form of ōd, an undoubted ablative ending.

¹⁰ With these feminines, parte or vīa may have been originally used.

¹¹ Often becoming prepositions. In fact, all prepositions in o are derived from adverbs which were originally ablatives in ōd, afterward o.

pices; cōsultō, after deliberating; sortitō, by lot, i. e., after casting lots;—doctē, learnedly; liberē, freely; certē,¹ surely; rectē, rightly; verē, truly;—doctissimē, most skillfully; māximē,² especially;—brevē, briefly.

3. ABLATIVES OF PRONOUNS: ed, there, in that way; hūc, here, in this way; quā, where, in which way; eādem, by the same road, in the same way.

NOTE.—Several pronominal adverbs denote direction toward a point: ad, to that place; hūc, hūc, to this place; ³ illū, illū-c, illū-c, to that place; istū, istū-c, istū-c, to the place where you are; quō, to which place.

III. LOCATIVES.—Some Adverbs were originally Locatives:

1. LOCATIVES OF NOUNS AND ADJECTIVES in ī or ē: herī, yesterday; temperi, in time; vesperi, in the evening; peregrī, or peregrē, in a foreign land.

2. LOCATIVES OF PRONOUNS: hīc,⁴ here; illīc,⁴ there; istīc, there where you are; ecī, in this way, thus; utī,⁵ ut, in which way; ibī,⁶ there; ubī, where.

NOTE.—Locative forms in im also occur: olim, formerly; utrimque, on both sides; illim, illin-c, from that place; hinc, from this place; often with de: utrin-de, from both sides; in-de, from that point, thence.

IV. ADVERBS IN tus AND ter.—Adverbs are also formed by means of the endings *tus*⁷ and ter:⁸

Fundī-tus, from the foundation; radīcī-tus, from the roots, utterly; divīnī-tus, by divine appointment, divinely; fortī-ter, bravely; acri-ter, sharply; duri-ter, harshly; elegant-ter, elegantly; aman-ter, lovingly; pruden-ter, prudently.

NOTE 1.—The stem-vowel before tus becomes i, and consonant stems assume i: fundī-tus,⁹ radīcī-tus. The stem-vowel before ter also becomes i: duri-ter.⁹ Consonant stems, however, do not assume i, but drop final t: aman-ter, aman-ter.

NOTE 2.—Many adverbs are simply adverbial phrases or clauses whose parts have become united in writing. In these compound forms prepositions

¹ As ē is an ablative ending, certū and certē are only different forms of the same word; so also rectū and rectē, verū and verē, though the two forms do not always have precisely the same meaning: verū, in truth; verē, truly.

² This is the regular ending in superlatives.

³ These are sometimes explained as Datives, but they are probably Ablatives; illū, lit., by that way or road, finally came to mean to that place, i. e., to the place to which the road leads.

⁴ Here the Locative ending is ī: hī, illī, istī, ei; o for oe is a demonstrative ending, meaning here. hīc is the Locative of ecī; see §13, foot-note.

⁵ Ubi contains two stems—u or eu (seen in ubi), and ta or to (seen in te in te-to).

⁶ In ibī and ubī the ending is ibī; i in ibī is the stem of is, he; u in ubī is the same as in ubi.

⁷ Seen also in in-ter, in the midst; in-tus, within; sub-ter and sub-tus, below. These suffixes are of uncertain origin; the former appears to be a case-suffix with ablative meaning, no longer used in declension; the latter, like ter in al-ter, no-ter, and de-ter, has lost its case-suffix, and may therefore represent either terū with an ablative suffix, or terum with an accusative suffix. See Corssen, II., p. 299; Kühner, I., p. 679.

⁸ The stem-vowel o is changed to i.

are especially common, and sometimes seem to be used with cases with which they do not otherwise occur: ant-eā,¹ before, before that; inter-eā, in the mean time; post-eā, after; ante-hāc,¹ before this; quem-ad-modum, in what manner; parum-per, for a while; nū-per = novum-per, lately; tanti-per, for so long a time; videlicet = videre licet, clearly—lit., 'it is permitted to see'; scilicet = scire licet, certainly; forſitan = forſe ſit an, perhaps.

305. Many Pronominal Adverbs, like the pronouns from which they are formed (191), are correlatives of each other, as will be seen in the following

TABLE OF CORRELATIVES.

INTERROGATIVE.	INDEFINITE.	DEMONSTRATIVE.	RELATIVE.
I. PLACE IN WHICH.
ubi , where? ²	alicubi , somewhere; uspiam , usquam , anywhere; ubivis , where you please.	hic , here; ³ istuc , there; illuc , there; ibī , there.	ubi , where.
II. PLACE TO WHICH.
quō , whither?	aliquō , to some place; quolibet , quovis , whither you please.	hūc , to this place; ⁴ istūc , to that place; illūc , to that place; eō , to that place; eōdem , to the same place.	quō , whither.
quōrſum , ⁴ to what place? to what end?	aliquō-verſum , ⁴ to some place.	hōrſum , ⁴ to this place.	quōrſum , to which place or end.
III. PLACE FROM WHICH.
unde , whence?	alicunde , from some place; undelibet , from any place.	hinc , from this place; istinc , from that place; illinc , from that place; inde , from that place.	unde , whence.

² Observe that the question ubi, 'where?' may be answered indefinitely by aliquō, uspiam, etc., or definitely by a demonstrative either alone or with a relative: hic, 'here'; hic, ubi, 'here, where.'

⁴ For quō-verſum = quō-cereſum, 'whither turned'; aliquō-cereſum, hūc-cereſum.

INTERROGATIVE.	INDEFINITE.	DEMONSTRATIVE.	RELATIVE.
IV. TIME.
quandō , when?	quandō , aliquandō , unquam , at any time.	nunc , now; tunc , then; tunc , at that very time; tūc , then.	quom , cum , quum , when.
quotiens , how often?	aliquotiens , somewhat often.	totiens , so often.	quotiens , as, as often.
V. WAY, MANNER, DEGREE.
quā , by or in what way?	aliquā , by or in some way; quāvis , by any way.	hāc , by this way; istāc , by that way; illāc , by that way; eā , by that way; eā- dem , by the same way.	quā , by which way.
quam , how much?	aliquam , somewhat.	tam , so much.	quam , as.

NOTE 1.—From Relative Adverbs are formed General or Indefinite Relations by appending -cumque or by reduplicating the form: ubicumque, ubique, wheresoever; quocumque, quodque, whithersoever.

NOTE 2.—Other examples are—

1) PLACE:—alibi, elsewhere; ibidem, in the same place; neubi, lest anywhere, that nowhere; sicubi, if anywhere; alio, to another place; citra, to this side; ultra citraque, to and fro; utroque, to both places; aliquando, from another place; indidem, from the same place; utrimque, from or on both sides; undique, from all sides.

2) TIME:—hodie, to-day; heri, yesterday; cras, to-morrow; pridie, the day before; postridie, the day after; jam, already; jam tunc, even then; jamdiu, jamdiudum, jampridem, long ago; quondam, at a certain time; olim, formerly, hereafter; interim, interea, meanwhile; antes, prius, before; post, postea, afterward; unquam, ever; nunquam, never; semper, at all times.

3) WAY, MANNER, DEGREE:—adeo, so; aliter, otherwise; magis, more; paene, almost; palam, openly; prorsus, wholly; rite, rightly; valde, greatly; vix, scarcely.

4) CAUSE:—cuius, why; eō, for this reason; ideo, idcirco, propterea, on this account; ergo, igitur, itaque, therefore, accordingly.

NOTE 3.—Nescio, with an interrogative adverb, is often equivalent to an indefinite adverb: nescio quomodo, I know not in what way = quodammodo, in some way; nescio ubi = aliquibi, in some place; nescio unde = aliquando, from some place; see also 191, note.

NOTE 4.—Adverbial phrases are formed by combining mirum or nimium with quantum: mirum quantum, it is wonderful how much = wonderfully much, wonderfully; nimium quantum, exceedingly. Mirum quam, eādem quam, and valde quam have a similar force: how wonderfully, how very, how greatly = exceedingly, wonderfully.

NOTE 5.—For INTERROGATIVE PARTICLES, see 311, 8.

NOTE 6.—For NEGATIVE PARTICLES, see 552.

306. COMPARISON.—Most adverbs are derived from adjectives, and are dependent upon them for their comparison. The comparative is the accusative neuter singular of the adjective, and the superlative changes the ending us of the adjective into ē:¹

altus,	altior,	altissimus,	lofty.
altē,	altius,	altissimē,	loftily.
prūdēns,	prūdēntior,	prūdēntissimus,	prudent.
prūdēnter,	prūdēntius,	prūdēntissimē,	prudently.

1. When the adjective is compared with magis and māximē, the adverb is compared in the same way:

ēgregius,	magis ēgregius,	māximē ēgregius,	excellent.
ēgregiē,	magis ēgregiē,	māximē ēgregiē,	excellently.

2. When the adjective is irregular, the adverb has the same irregularity:

bonus,	melior,	optimus,	good.
bene,	melius,	optimē,	well.
male,	pējus,	pessimē,	badly.

3. When the adjective is defective, the adverb is generally defective:

—	dēterior,	dēterrīmus,	worse.
—	dēteriori,	dēterrīmē,	worse.
novus,	—	novissimus,	new.
novē,	—	novissimē,	newly.

4. A few not derived from adjectives are compared:

diū,	diūtius,	diūtissimē,	for a long time.
saepe,	saepius,	saepissimē,	often.
satis,	satius,	—	sufficiently.
nūper,	—	nūperimē,	recently.

5. Most adverbs not derived from adjectives, as also those from adjectives incapable of comparison (169), are not compared: hic, here; nunc, now; vulgārīter, commonly.

6. Superlatives in ē or um are used in a few adverbs: primē, primum, potissimum.

PREPOSITIONS.

307. The Preposition is the part of speech which shows the relations of objects to each other:

In Itāliā esse, to be IN Italy; ante mē, BEFORE me.

NOTE 1.—Prepositions were originally adverbs, and, like other adverbs (304), are in origin petrified case-forms.²

NOTE 2.—For the Use of Prepositions, see 432–437.

NOTE 3.—For the FORM and MEANING of Prepositions in Composition, see 344, 5.

308. INSEPARABLE PREPOSITIONS.¹—Ambi, amb, 'around,' 'about'; dis, dis, 'asunder'; in, 'not,' 'un-'; por, 'toward,' 'forth'; re, red, 'back'; ad, ad, 'aside,' 'apart'; and et, 'not,' are called Inseparable Prepositions, because they are used only in composition.

NOTE.—For the FORM and MEANING of the Inseparable Prepositions in Composition, see 344, 6.

CONJUNCTIONS.

309. Conjunctions are mere connectives. They are either Coordinate or Subordinate.

1. COÖRDINATE CONJUNCTIONS connect similar constructions:

Labor voluptasque,² labor AND pleasure. *Karthaginem cepit Ac*³ diruit, he took AND destroyed Carthage.

2. SUBORDINATE CONJUNCTIONS connect subordinate with principal constructions:

*Haec dum*⁴ colligunt, effugit, WHILE they collect these things, he escapes.

310. COÖRDINATE CONJUNCTIONS comprise—

1. COPULATIVE CONJUNCTIONS, denoting UNION:

Et, que, atque,⁵ de, and; etiam, quoque, also; neque, nec, and not; neque—neque, nec—nec, neque—nec, neither—nor.

2. DISJUNCTIVE CONJUNCTIONS, denoting SEPARATION:

Aut,⁶ vel, ve, sive (seu), or; aut—aut, vel—vel, either—or; sive—sive, either—or.

NOTE.—Here belong interrogative particles in double or disjunctive questions: utrum, num, or ne—an, whether—or; an, or; an—an, neque, or not; see 353.

3. ADVERSATIVE CONJUNCTIONS, denoting OPPOSITION:

= FROM a place; ex loco = OUT OF a place; aliquid loco movere, to move anything FROM a place; aliquid ex loco movere, to move anything OUT OF a place. An adverb thus separated from the verb and brought into connection with a noun ceased to be an adverb and became a preposition.

¹ Like other prepositions, these were doubtless originally case-forms.

² Thus que connects two nominatives, de two indicatives which are entirely coördinate, took AND destroyed, but dum connects the subordinate clause, haec—colligunt, with the principal clause, effugit—he escapes WHILE they collect these things.

³ Copulative conjunctions are et = Greek eti, que = et, and their compounds—et—iam or et—jam, at—que, quo—que, ne—que. Ac is a shortened form of at—que; nec, of ne—que.

⁴ Disjunctives are aut, vel, ve, with their compounds: vel = velle, 'should you wish,' offering a choice, ve = vie, 'you wish,' as in qui—vie, 'any you please'; sive = sive, 'if you wish.'

Sed,¹ autem, et̄rum, et̄rō, but; at, but, on the contrary; atque, rather; c̄terum, but still, moreover;² tamen, yet.

4. ILLATIVE CONJUNCTIONS, denoting INFERENCE:

Ergō, igitur, inde, proinde, itaque, hence, therefore; see also 554, IV., 2.

5. CAUSAL CONJUNCTIONS, denoting CAUSE:

Nam, namque, enim, denim, for.³

311. SUBORDINATE CONJUNCTIONS comprise—

1. TEMPORAL CONJUNCTIONS, denoting TIME:

Quando, quom,⁴ cum, or quum, when; ut, ubi, as, when; cum (quom or quum) primum, ut primum, ubi primum, simul, simulac, simul ac, simulatque, simul atque, as soon as; dum, dōnec, quoad, quandis,⁵ while, until, as long as; antequam, priusquam, before; postquam, after.

2. COMPARATIVE CONJUNCTIONS, denoting COMPARISON:

Ut, utī, sicut, sicutī, as, so as; velut, just as; prout, prout, according as, in comparison with; quam, as; tanquam, quasi, ut et, ac et, velut et, as if.

3. CONDITIONAL CONJUNCTIONS, denoting CONDITION:

Si,⁶ if; et̄ nōn, nisi, nē, if not; sia, but if; et̄ quidem, if indeed; et̄ modo, dum modo, dummodo, if only, provided.

4. CONCESSIVE CONJUNCTIONS, denoting CONCESSION:

Quamquam, licet,⁷ cum (quom,⁴ or quum), although; etsi, tametsi, diametsi, even if; quamvis,⁷ quantumvis, quantumlibet,⁷ however much, although; ut, grant that; nē, grant that not.

5. FINAL CONJUNCTIONS, denoting PURPOSE OR END:

Ut, utī, that, in order that; nē, nēve (neu), that not; quō, that; quōminus,⁸ that not.

6. CONSECUTIVE CONJUNCTIONS, denoting CONSEQUENCE OR RESULT:

Ut, so that; ut̄ nōn, quin,⁹ so that not.

¹ Conjunctions, like adverbs, consist largely of case-forms, chiefly from pronominal stems. Thus, sed, et̄rō, ergō, etc., are explained as ablatives (sed from sei); autem, et̄rum, c̄terum, quam, quod, quom, or cum, etc., as accusatives; qua, ubi, utī, ut, etc., as locatives.

² Lit., as to the rest.

³ But most Causal Conjunctions are subordinate; see 311, 7.

⁴ Quom, the original form out of which cum and quum were developed (32; 36, foot-note), occurs in early Latin, as in Plautus. Cum is the approved form in classical Latin.

⁵ See 304, I., 1 and 2, foot-notes.

⁷ Licet is strictly a verb, meaning it is permitted; vis, in quam-vis and quantum-vis, is also a verb: quam-vis, 'as much as you wish'; as is also libet, 'it pleases,' in quantum-libet, 'as much as is pleasing.'

⁸ Quōminus = quō minus, 'by which less'; quin = qui nē, 'by which not.'

7. CAUSAL CONJUNCTIONS, denoting CAUSE:

Quia, quod, quoniam,¹ quandō, because, inasmuch as; cum (quom, quum), since; quandōquidem, siquidem,² utpote, since indeed.

8. INTERROGATIVE CONJUNCTIONS, denoting INQUIRY:*

Ne, nōne, num, utrum, an, whether; an nōn, necne, or not.

INTERJECTIONS.

312. Interjections are certain particles used as expressions of feeling or as mere marks of address.⁴ They may express—

1. Astonishment: ō, hem, ehem, atāt, bubac, vāh, ēn, ecoe.
2. Joy: id, zoe, euge, ēja, ō, papae.
3. Sorrow: vae, ei, heu, zheu, dhā, āh, au, prā.
4. Disgust: aha, phy, apage.
5. Calling: heus, ō, eho, ehodum.
6. Praise: eu, euge, ēja, hēja.

CHAPTER VI.

FORMATION OF WORDS.

SECTION I.

ROOTS.—STEMS.—SUFFIXES.

313. Words are formed from stems (46, 1), and stems from roots or from other stems.

NOTE 1.—Thus status, 'position,' is formed from the stem statu by adding the nominative suffix s,⁵ but the stem statu is itself formed from the root sta by appending the derivative suffix tu.

² Lit., if indeed.

³ These are sometimes classed as Adverbs. In some of their uses they are plainly Conjunctions, while in other cases they approach closely to the nature of Adverbs. As a matter of convenience they may be called Interrogative Particles; see 351, 1.

⁴ Some interjections seem to be the simple and natural utterance of feeling, and accordingly do not appear to have been built up, like other words, from roots and stems, but to be themselves specimens of the unorganized elements of human speech. Others, however, are either inflected forms, as age, 'come,' apage = āways, 'begone,' or mutilated sentences or clauses: mehercule, mehercule, etc., = mē Hercule, 'may Hercules protect me'; mēcastōr, 'may Castor protect me'; mēdātus fidius, 'may the true God help me'; ēcastōr = ēn Castōr, 'lo Castor.'

⁵ This s is doubtless a remnant of an old demonstrative, ea, meaning that, he, she.

NOTE 2.—Words are either simple or compound :

1. Simple, when formed from single roots with or without suffixes.

2. Compound, when formed by the union of two or more roots or stems; see 340, III.

314. ROOTS.—Roots are the primitive elements out of which all words in our family of languages have been formed.¹ They are of two kinds:

I. PREDICATIVE ROOTS, also called VERBAL ROOTS.² These designate or name objects, actions, or qualities: es in es-t, he is; î in î-re, to go; duc in duc-s = duz, leader; doc in doc-ilis, docile.

II. DEMONSTRATIVE ROOTS,³ also called PRONOMINAL ROOTS. These do not name objects or actions, but simply point out the relation of such objects or actions to the speaker: me in mei, of me; tu in tui, of you; î in îs, that, that one, he.

315. The STEMS⁴ of simple words may be divided into three classes: Root Stems, Primary Stems, and Secondary Stems.

316. ROOT STEMS are either identical with roots, or are formed from them without the aid of suffixes:

Duc-is, 'of a leader,' root-stem duc; ⁵ es-is, 'you are,' root-stem es; reg-es, 'kings,' root-stem reg; voc-is, 'of the voice,' root-stem voc; murmur-is, 'of a murmur,' root-stem murmur.

317. PRIMARY STEMS are formed from roots by means of suffixes:⁶

² Observe that from this class of roots, whether called Predicative or Verbal, may be formed the stems, not only of verbs, but also of nouns, adjectives, and, in fact of all the parts of speech except pronouns.

³ The learner should note the difference in signification between Predicatives and Demonstrative Roots. Thus duc has a definite meaning, and must always designate one who leads; while the pronoun ego is not the name of any person or thing, but may be used by any and every person in speaking of himself.

⁵ The basis of every inflected word is a stem. Duc is therefore the stem of duc-is, but as it can not be derived from a more primitive form, it is also a root. According to some authorities, reg, the stem of reg-is, and voc, the stem of voc-is, are not roots, but derived from more primitive forms—reg in reg-u, and voc in voc-u; according to other authorities, however, reg and reg are only two forms of the same root; so also voc and voc, duc and duc. The stem murmur is not a root, but formed from the root mur by reduplication. See Curtius, Chron., p. 25; Schleicher, pp. 341-350; Meyer, pp. 5 371-376.

⁶ Any suffix used to form a Primary Stem is called a Primary Suffix; see 3

ROOT.	SUFFIX.	STEM.	WORD.
ar,	vo,	ar-vo,	ar-vu-m, ¹	field. fac,	to,	fac-to,	fac-tu-s, ¹	made. sta,	tu,	sta-tu,	sta-tu-s,	position.

NOTE.—All stems formed from verb-stems are also generally classed as Primary Stems:² cūrā-tor, 'guardian,' 'curator,' from cūrā, 'to care for,' from cūra, 'care.'

318. SECONDARY STEMS are formed from other stems³ by means of suffixes:—

STEM.	SUFFIX.	SECONDARY STEM.	WORD.
civi, ⁴	co;	civi-co,	civicus,	civic. victōr, ⁵	iā;	victōr-iā,	victōria,	victory. victōr,	ic;	victōr-ic,	victrix, ⁶	victrix.

319. The STEMS OF COMPOUND WORDS are formed by the union of two or more stems, or of a stem with a root:

fu-erā, ⁷	fu-erā-s,	you had been. grand-aevo, ⁸	grand-aevu-s,	of great age. igni-color, ⁹	igni-color,	fire-colored.
māgn-ānimo, ¹⁰	māgn-animu-s,	great-souled.

NOTE 1.—Words are formed from Stems by means of the Suffixes of Inflection; see 46 and 202, note 1.

NOTE 2.—A single root often gives rise to a large class of forms. Thus, from the root sta, 'to stand,' are derived—

1. The numerous forms which make up the conjugation of the verb stā, stāre, steti, stātum, to stand.

2. All the forms of the verb stā, stāre, steti, stātum, 'to place.'

3. Numerous other forms. Thus (1), sta-bilis, 'stable,' 'firm,' from which are derived stabillō, 'to make firm'; stabilitās, 'firmness,' and stabilliter, 'firmly'; (2) stabulum, 'a standing place,' 'stable,' from which are derived stabulō, and stabulor, 'to have a standing place'; (3) stāmen, 'something standing,' 'warp in an upright loom'; (4) stātim, 'in standing,' 'at once'; (5) stātilis, 'standing'; (6) stātilis, 'stationary'; (7) stātor, 'a stayer'; and (8) stātus, 'position,' from which is derived stātū, 'to place,' which in turn becomes the basis of stātua, 'a statue,' and stātūra, 'stature.'

¹ Ar-vo-m weakened to arvum, fac-to-s to factus; see 22, 2.

² This is a matter of convenience, as new stems, or words, are formed from verb-stems in the same manner as from roots; see Schleicher, p. 347.

³ Except verb-stems. Remember that stems formed from verb-stems are treated as Primary; see 317, note.

⁴ Any suffix used to form a Secondary stem is called a Secondary suffix, but many suffixes may be either primary or secondary. Thus co in civico is Secondary, as it is added to a stem; but in locus, 'place,' it is Primary, as it is added to a root.

⁵ Civi is the stem of civis, citizen; victōr of victor, conqueror.

⁶ For victōria, by contraction.

⁷ Compounded of root fu with stem erā from the root es; see 203, note 2, and 243.

⁸ For grandi-aevo.

⁹ Compounded of igni, the stem of ignis, 'fire,' and of color, the stem of color, 'color.'

¹⁰ Compounded of māgno, the stem of māgnus, 'great,' and of ānimo, the stem of animus, 'soul'; māgno-ānimo becoming māgnānimo.

320. SUFFIXES.—Most suffixes¹ appear to have been formed from a comparatively small number of primitive elements called

PRIMARY SUFFIXES.

I.	II. ²	EXAMPLES.
a,	ā, ³ o, ē, e, i, ō, u,	ā and o in nouns and adjectives, ē in nouns, and e, i, ō, and u in verbs: scrib-a , writer; fug-a , flight; jug-o , Nom. jug-u-m , ⁴ yoke; fid-ē , Nom. fid-ē-s , faith; reg-e , ⁵ rule thou; reg-i-s , you rule; reg-ō , I rule; reg-u-nt , they rule.
i,	i,	in a few nouns: av-i , Nom. av-i-s , bird; arc-i , Nom. arc-i-s , arc-s , ⁶ arx , citadel.
u,	u,	in nouns: ⁷ ac-u , Nom. ac-u-s , needle.
an,	on, ōn, en, in,	denoting either the ACT or the AGENT; asperg-on , Nom. asperg-s (G. inīs), sprinkling; ger-on , ger-s (G. ōnis), a carrier; pect-en (G. inīs), a comb.
ant, ⁸	ent, unt,	in present participles: ¹⁰ audient-s , ¹⁰ audiens , hearing; ab-es-ent-s , ab-sens , absent; amā-ent-s , amāns , loving.

¹ Most suffixes appear to be of pronominal origin, i. e., from pronominal stems or roots, but, according to Bopp, Corssen, and others, a few may be of verbal origin. Thus in several suffixes beginning with b—seen in ber, bilis, bulum, etc.—Corssen recognises the root bhar = fer in fer-o, 'to bear'; in some beginning with t—seen in ter, tor, tūrus, etc.—the root tar, 'to accomplish'; in some beginning with c—seen in cer, culum, orum, etc.—the root kar = cer, ore in cre-o, 'to make.' For a discussion of the subject, see Bopp, III., pp. 186-201; Corssen, I., p. 567; II., pp. 40, 68; Schleicher, p. 448.

² Column I. shows the suffix in its supposed original form, while column II. shows the various forms which the suffix has assumed in Latin.

³ Originally long in Latin in feminine forms; see 21, 2, 1).

⁵ Observe that the Present stem takes the several forms, reg-e, reg-i, reg-ō, reg-u; but see page 118, foot-note 5.

⁶ Often thus dropped; sometimes changed to a, ē: mar-i, mare, sea; caed-i, caeda, caedē-s, slaughter.

⁷ Also in adjectives, in union with ē making ut: ten-ut-a, thin.

⁸ N dropped; see 36, 5, 8).

⁹ This is the base of several compound suffixes: ent-o, ent-id, ent-to—Nom. ent-um, ent-ia, and ent-ium; flu-ent-um, stream; capit-ent-ia, wisdom; sil-ent-ium, silence.

¹⁰ Also in a few adjectives and nouns: frequ-ent-s, frequēns, frequent; part-en-parēns. Here s is the Nominative ending.

I.	II.	EXAMPLES.
as,	os, us, es,¹ ōs, ōr, ur,	gen-os, gen-us, ² birth; corp-us, ³ body; nub-es, cloud; rōb-ur, ⁴ strength; sop-or (21, 2), sleep.
ja⁵ = ya,	iā,⁶ io, iō,	iā and io in adjectives; iō in nouns: ex-im-iā, ex-im-io , Nom. ex-im-iu-s, ex-im-ia, ex-im-iu-m , select; fac-iā , Nom. fac-iā-s , appearance.
ja⁶ = ya,	e, i, iō, iu,	in verbs: cap-e , take thou; cap-ere , to take; cap-i-s , you take; cap-i-mus , we take; cap-iō , I take; cap-iu-nt , they take.
jans⁷ = yans,	iōs, iōr, ius, jōr, ōr,	in comparatives: mag-iōs, mag-iōr, mā-jōr , Nom. mā-jor (21, 2), greater; min-ōr, min-or (21, 2), smaller; see 162, 165.
ka,	cā, co,	rare: ⁸ pau-cā, pau-co, pau-cus, a, um , small; lo-co, locus , place.
la,	lā, lo, li,	see ra .
ma,⁹	mā, mo,	for-ma , form; pri-mo, pri-mus , first; sup-mo, sum-mo (34, 8), sum-mus , highest; al-mo, al-mus , cherishing.

² With variable vowel (57, 2); in early Latin o, in classical Latin u in Nominative Singular, e in other cases. We thus have in early Latin os in gen-os, and in classical Latin us in gen-us, and es changed to er (31, 1) in gen-er-is, gen-er-i, etc. Words of this class take no Nominative ending.

³ With variable vowel—o, u. We thus have corp-us, corp-or-is, with e changed to r (31, 1). s final is also changed to r in rōdur; see 31, 2.

⁴ Doubtless a pronominal stem. It is common as a secondary suffix (page 154, foot-note 4): pater-io, patr-io, Nom. patr-i-us, paternal; victōr-ia, victory; lūxur-ia, lūxur-iās, luxury; see 335.

⁵ Originally long in Latin, see 21, 2, 1).

⁶ Probably the verbal root ja, identical with i in ira, to go. So explained by Curtius, Verbum, I., pp. 290-295. Ja was also used as a secondary suffix, appended to the stems of nouns and adjectives, in forming denominative verbs; see 335, foot-note.

⁷ This suffix is generally secondary: alt-ior, alt-ius, higher; sapient-ior, wiser; see 162.

⁸ It seems to appear without its final vowel in some nouns in a: ape-c-a, apex, point, top. It is common as a secondary suffix: civi-co, civi-cus, civis (330); and is also used in compound suffixes, as cu-lo, ci-no, ti-co: flōs-cu-lus, a small flower; vātt-ci-nus, prophetic. See Schleicher, p. 478; Corssen, II., pp. 205, 806, 807.

⁹ This is also an element in ti-mā, ti-mo, ei-mā, ei-mo, is-si-mā, is-si-mo: op-ti-mus, a, um, best; alt-is-si-mus, highest.

I.	II.	EXAMPLES.
man, ¹	men, ² min, ³ mōn,	denoting the MEANS of the action, sometimes the ACT itself, or its RESULT: tegi-men , or teg-men , ⁴ a covering; nō-men , ⁵ name; cerid-men , contest; ser-mōn , ser-mō , ⁶ discourse.
na, ⁷	nā, no,	1. in adjectives with the force of perfect participles: ⁸ plēd , plē-no , plē-nus , a, um, filled, full; rēg-no , rēg-num , kingdom, that which is ruled. 2. in nouns and adjectives with various meanings: ⁹ sop-no , som-no (33, 8, note), som-nus , sleep.
ni,	ni, ¹	ig-ni , ig-nis , fire; pā-ni , pā-nis , bread.
nu,	nu,	very rare: ma-nu , ma-nus , hand.
ra, ⁸ la,	rā, ro, lā, lo, li,	ag-ro (agrus), ager , field; sac-ro (sac-rus), sacer , sac-ra , sac-rum , sacred; sed-lā , sel-la (34, 2), seat; candā-la , a light; tā-lo , tā-lum , weapon; doci-lī , doci-lis , docile.
ta, ⁹	tā, to, sā, so,	1. in perfect participles: ¹⁰ amā-tū , amā-tus , a, um, loved; plaud-to , plaud-so (35, 8), plausus , applauded; cōnā-tus , having tried; prān-sus , having taken lunch. 2. in a few adjectives: sex-to , sex-tus , sixth.

² With variable vowel (57, 2). The suffix man is weakened to men in the Nominative Singular, and to mīn in the other cases.

³ For gnō-men, 'name,' the means by which one is known.

⁴ N is dropped; see 36, 5, 8).

⁵ Nearly equivalent to ta. In some languages it forms passive participles like ta.

⁶ Often secondary: pater-no, pater-nus, paternal; sometimes preceded by d, i, or s: font-ā-nus, of a fountain; can-i-nus, canine; ali-i-nus, belonging to another; see 327, 329, and 330.

⁷ As ta and na are closely related in meaning and use, so are tī and nā. They are sometimes united in the same suffix: tī-d-nā (326).

⁸ Ra and la are only different forms of the same suffix. In Latin and Greek this suffix often forms verbal adjectives which sometimes pass into nouns: gnō-rus, 'knowing,' from gnā in nō-scō, 'to know'; dō-por, 'gift,' 'something given,' from dō in dō-mus, 'to give.'

⁹ In the form of tī it is the first element in tī-mus, a, um: op-tī-mus, best; and the second element in is-tī-mus, a, um: alt-is-tī-mus, highest. In the form of tā, it is the first element in tā-tī, shortened to tūt: civī-tās = civī-tūt-s, state.

¹⁰ Often becoming adjectives or nouns: al-to, al-tus, high; nā-tus, son.

I.	II.	EXAMPLES.
tar,	ter, tōr,	see tra.
ti, ¹	ti, ² si,	in verbal nouns: vā-ti , vā-tis , garment; met-ti , met-tis , messis (35, 3), reaping, harvest.
tu,	tū, ³	in verbal nouns, including supines: sta-tu , sta-tus , standing; i-tu , i-tus , going; dic-tū (supine), in telling, to tell.
tar, ⁴ tra, ⁴	ter, tōr, tro,	ter ⁵ and tōr denoting AGENCY; tro, MEANS: pa-ter , father; mā-ter , mother; vic-tor , conqueror; audi-tor , hearer; arā-trum , plough.
vā,	vo, uo,	in nouns and adjectives: ar-vo , ar-vum , ploughed field; vac-uo , vac-uus , empty.

SECTION II.

DERIVATION OF WORDS.

FORMATION OF NOUNS BY SUFFIXES.

I. FROM THE STEMS OF OTHER NOUNS.

321. DIMINUTIVES generally end in—lus, la, lum; ulus, ula, ulum; ulus, cula, culum:⁶

¹ Ti is the first element in tū-d, tū-o, tū-ē, tū-d-ni, tū-on (i dropped): justi-tia, justice; servi-tio, servi-tium, service; dūri-tiā, dūri-tiis, hardness; sta-tiōn, sta-tiō (n dropped), station.

² I often disappears: men-ti, men-tis, men-tis, mēns (36, 2), mind.

³ Tu is the first element in the suffixes, tū-d, tū-o; tū-ti, tū-ti, and tū-don: sta-tua, statue; mor-tuus, dead; servi-tūti, servi-tūt (servi-tūte), servi-tūte, servitude; turpi-tūdon, turpi-tūdō (n dropped), turpitude.

⁴ Perhaps of verbal origin (320, foot-note 1). This suffix seems to be the basis of several compound suffixes: tōr-tū, tōr-to, tūr-tū, tūro, trio for tōr-t-o, etc.; see examples, 324, 326, 330.

⁵ Ter is used in names denoting family relationship, originally AGENCY: pa-ter, lit., protector, from the root pa, to protect.

⁶ For the convenience of the learner the suffixes are given in the Nominative form, i. e., with the Nominative ending and the modified stem-vowel. Observe that the stem suffix in lu-s and lu-m is lo. The endings, ulus, ula, ulum, were developed irregularly after the analogy of u-lus, u-la, u-lum in such words as hortu-lus, virgu-lus, oppidu-lum, where the u is the modified stem-vowel. Thus the u in rēg-u-lus and capit-u-lum is an irregularity introduced from the Diminutives of a and o stems. Lus, la, lum are formed from the suffix la or ra, often used in forming Primary Stems (320). Culus, cula, culum are compound suffixes in which the first part, cu, is formed from the suffix, originally ka, modified in Latin to co, cu, seen in lo-co-s, locus, place; see 320, ka, foot-note.

filio-lus,	a little son,	from	filius,	son.
filio-la,	a little daughter,	"	filia,	daughter.
atrio-lum,	a small hall,	"	atrium,	hall.
alveo-lus,	a small cavity,	"	alveus,	cavity.
hortu-lus,	a small garden,	"	hortus,	garden.
virgu-la,	a small branch,	"	virga,	branch.
oppidu-lum,	a small town,	"	oppidum,	town.
rēg-ulus,	a petty king,	"	rēx,	king.
capit-ulum,	a small head,	"	caput,	head.
fiōs-culus,	a small flower,	"	fiōs,	flower.
parti-cula,	a small part,	"	pars,	part.
mūnus-culum,	a small present,	"	mūnus,	present.

1. Lus, la, lum, are appended to a and o stems; ulus, ula, ulum, to Dental and Guttural stems; culus, cula, culum, to e, i, and u stems, and to Liquid and s stems; see examples.

2. Before lus, la, lum, the stem-vowels ā and o take the form of o after e or i, and the form of u in other situations: filio-lus, filio-la for filid-la, hortu-lus for horto-lus.

3. Before culus, cula, culum, stems in u change u into i, and stems in on change o into u: versi-culus, 'a little verse,' from versus; homun-culus, 'a small man,' from homō. Like nouns in on, a few other words form diminutives in -culus, -cula: av-unculus, 'maternal uncle,' from avus, 'grandfather.'

4. El-lus, el-la, el-lum, il-lus, il-la, il-lum,² are used when the stem of the primitive ends in ā or o, preceded by l, n, or r: ocul-lus,³ 'small eye,' from oculus; fābel-la, 'short fable,' from fābula; vīl-lum,² 'a small wine,' from vīnum.

NOTE.—The endings leus and ciō occur: ecu-leus,² 'a small horse,' from egrus; homun-ciō, 'a small man,' from homō.

322. PATRONYMICS, or names of DESCENT, generally end in— dēs, stem-suffix dā, masculine; s for ds, stem-suffix d, feminine.

Tantali-dēs,	son of Tantalus ;	Tantali-s,	daughter of Tantalus . ⁴
Thēsi-dēs,	son of Theseus ;	Thēsī-s,	daughter of Theseus .
Thestia-dēs,	son of Thestius ;	Thestīā-s,	daughter of Thestius .

NOTE.—The suffix nē, preceded by i or ō, is sometimes used in forming feminine Patronymics: Neptūni-nē, daughter of Neptune; Acrisiō-nē, daughter of Acrisius.

¹ Nūbē-cula, plēbē-cula, and vulpē-cula are formed as if from e-stems.

² The syllables el and il do not belong to the ending, but are produced by a slight change in the stem. The quantity of the vowel e or i is therefore determined by the primitive: thus, oculus, oculu-lus = ocul-lus; vīnum, vīnu-lum = vīn-lum = vīl-lum.

³ Also written equuleus, but oculeus is the approved form.

⁴ The vowel preceding the suffix is usually i, as in Tantali-dēs, Tantali-s, modified from the stem-vowel o. Primitives in eus generally change eu to i or ēi, as in Thēsi-dēs, Thēsī-s; and primitives in iūs change stem-vowel o to a, as in Thestia-dēs. Other nouns sometimes form Patronymics after the analogy of nouns in iūs: Lāertiādēs, son of Laertes. Aenēds has Aenēādēs, masculine, and Aenēis, feminine.

323. DESIGNATIONS OF PLACE are often formed with the endings—

	ārium,	ētum, tum,	īle. ¹
columb-ārium,	a dovecot,	from	columba,	dove.
querc-ētum,	a forest of oaks,	"	quercus,	oak.
salic-tum,	a thicket of willows,	"	salix,	willow.
ov-īle,	a sheepfold,	"	ovis,	sheep.

1. Ārium designates the PLACE where anything is kept, a receptacle: aerārium, 'treasury,' from aes, money.

2. Ētum, tum, used with names of trees and plants, designate the PLACE where they flourish: olivētum, 'an olive-grove,' from oliva, 'olive-tree.'

3. īle, used with names of animals, designates their STALL or FOLD: bovile, 'stall for cattle,' from bōs, stem bov.

4. OTHER EXAMPLES are—

Aestu-ārium, 'tidal bay,' from aestus, 'tide'; avi-ārium, 'aviary,' from avis, 'bird'; dōn-ārium, 'place for offerings,' from dōnum, 'gift'; pōm-ārium, 'orchard,' from pōmum, 'fruit'; aescul-ētum, 'forest of oaks,' from aesculus, 'oak'; pin-ētum, 'pine-forest,' from pinus, 'pine'; ros-ētum, 'rose-bed,' from rosa, 'rose'; vin-ētum, 'vineyard,' from vinum, 'vine'; virgul-tum, 'a thicket,' from virgula, 'bush'; capr-īle, 'goat-stall,' from capr, 'goat.'

324. DERIVATIVES are also formed with several other endings, especially with—ārius, iō, ium, itium, ina, imōnium, itās, tūs, ātus.²

statu-ārius,	a statuary,	from	status,	statue.
mūl-iō,	muleteer,	"	mūlus,	mule.
sacerdōt-ium,	priesthood,	"	sacerdōs,	priest.
serv-itium,	servitude,	"	servus,	slave.
rēg-ina,	queen,	"	rēx,	king.
patr-imōnium,	patrimony,	"	pater,	father.
cīv-itās,	citizenship,	"	cīvis,	citizen.
vir-tūs,	virtue,	"	vir,	man.
cōnsul-ātus,	consulship,	"	cōnsul,	consul.

1. Ārius and iō generally designate PERSONS by their occupations.

2. Ium and itium denote OFFICE, CONDITION, or COLLECTION: servitium, servitude, sometimes a collection of servants.

¹ Ārium and īle are the endings of neuter adjectives used substantively (330). The vowels ā and i were probably developed out of the stem-vowel of the primitive, but they were afterward treated as a part of the suffix. For an explanation of such vowels, see 330, foot-note. Many derivative endings were thus formed originally by the union of certain suffixes with the stem-vowel of the primitive; accordingly, when added to vowel stems, they generally take the place of the stem-vowel: columb-ā, columb-ārium; querc-o, querc-ētum.

² Ārius is identical in origin with the adjective ending ārius (330), and ātus with ātus in participles. In each the initial ā was originally the stem-vowel of the primitive. Ina is the same formation as the adjective ending inus (330). On i-tium, i-mōnium, i-tās, and tūs, see tī, ta, tu, man, mōn, with foot-notes, 330; remember that the initial i was developed from the stem-vowel of the primitive.

3. Īna and īmōnium are used with some variety of signification; see examples under 7 below.

4. Itās and tās designate some CHARACTERISTIC or CONDITION: hērād-ias, 'heirship,' from hēras, 'heir'; virtūs, 'manliness,' 'virtue,' from vir.

5. Ātus denotes RANK, OFFICE, COLLECTION: cōnsulātus, 'consulship,' from cōsul; senātus, 'senate,' 'collection of old men,' from senex.

6. For PATRIAL or GENTILE NOUNS, see §31, note 1.

NOTE.—The endings agē, igē, and *igē*¹ also occur: vir-agē, 'heroic maiden,' from vir, 'hero'; ferr-igē, 'iron-rust,' from ferrum, 'iron.'

7. OTHER EXAMPLES ARE—

Libr-ārius, 'transcriber of books,' from liber, 'book'; lign-ārius, 'joiner,' from lignum, 'wood'; quadrig-ārius, 'driver of a four-horse chariot,' from quadriga, 'four-horse chariot'; arbitr-ium, 'decision,' from arbitr, 'arbitr'; conjug-ium, 'wedlock,' from conjux, 'spouse'; magis-ter-ium, 'presidency,' from magis-ter, 'president'; os-tium, 'door,' from os, 'mouth'; gall-ina, 'hen,' from gallus, 'cock'; doctr-ina, for docētr-ina, 'doctrine,' from doctor, 'learned man,' 'doctor'; mātr-īmōnium, 'matrimony,' from māter, 'mother'; aedil-itās, 'office of edile,' from aedilis, 'edile'; audōr-itās, 'authority,' from audōr, 'founder,' 'author'; senec-tās, 'old age,' from senex, 'old man'; tribūn-ātus,² 'office of tribune,' from tribūnus, 'tribune.'

II. NOUNS FROM ADJECTIVES.

325. From Adjectives are formed various ABSTRACT NOUNS with the endings—ia, itia, ta, tās, itās, tūs, ūdō, itūdō, īmōnia.³

diligent-ia,	diligence,	from	diligēns,	diligent.
superb-ia,	haughtiness,	"	superbus,	haughty.
amic-itia,	friendship,	"	amicus,	friendly.
juven-ta,	youth,	"	juvenis,	young.
liber-tās,	freedom,	"	liber,	free.
bon-itās,	goodness,	"	bonus,	good.
pi-etās, ⁴	piety,	"	pius,	pious.
juven-tūs,	youth,	"	juvenis,	young.
dulc-ūdō,	sweetness,	"	dulcis,	sweet.
sol-itūdō,	solitude,	"	solus,	alone.
ācr-īmōnia,	sharpness,	"	ācer,	sharp.

¹ These endings were formed, according to Corssen, by appending the suffix an to ag, the root of agō, to put in motion, make, do; see Corssen, I., p. 577.

² As if formed from a verb, tribūnō, āre, like equit-ātus, 'cavalry,' from equitō, āre, 'to ride,' from equus, 'a horseman.'

³ When appended to vowel stems, these endings take the place of the final vowel. Originally the initial i in i-tā, i-tās, i-tūdō, and i-mōnia formed no part of the suffix, but represented the stem-vowel of the primitive. On ia, ita, and ta, see ja, it, and ta, §20; on i-tās and tās, see page 160, foot-note 2; on i-tūdō and i-mōnia, see tu and man, §20. The origin of i-dō, i-din is obscure.

⁴ For pi-tās by dissimilation (§6).

NOTE 1.—Instead of is and itis, ide and idies occur: pauper, pauper-ide, poverty; durus, dur-itis or dur-ide, hardness.

NOTE 2.—Before ide the stem of the adjective is sometimes slightly changed: facilis, facultide, faculty; difficilis, difficultide, difficulty; potens, potestide, power.

NOTE 3.—A few adjectives form abstracts with both ide and itidē: firmus, firm-ide, firm-itidē, firmness. Polysyllabic adjectives in us often suffer contraction before these endings: honestus for honest-ide, 'honesty,' from honestus; solicitudē for solic-ide, 'solicitude,' from solicitus.

1. OTHER EXAMPLES ARE—

Audo-ide, 'boldness,' from audax, 'bold'; just-ide, 'justice,' from justus, 'just'; acer-ide, 'cruelty,' from acerus, 'cruel'; senec-ide, 'old age,' from senex, 'old'; aequal-ide, 'equality,' from aequalis, 'equal'; cār-ide, 'dearness,' from cārus, 'dear'; anxi-dē, 'anxiety,' from anxius, 'anxious'; alt-itidē, 'height,' from altus, 'high'; fort-itidē, 'bravery,' from fortis, 'brave'; māgn-itidē, 'greatness,' from māgnus, 'great.'

III. NOUNS FROM VERBS AND FROM ROOTS.

326. From the Stems of Verbs and from Roots are formed numerous nouns with the suffixes—¹ ter, tor,² trix, trum, tūra, tūs, tiō, iō.³

pa-ter,	father,	from the root	pa,	to protect.
frā-ter,	brother,	"	bhra, fra,	to support.
amā-tor,	lover,	"	amā-re,	to love.
audi-tor,	hearer,	"	audi-re,	to hear.
dēfēn-sor,	defender,	"	dēfend-ere,	to defend.
vēnā-tor,	hunter,	"	vēnā-rī,	to hunt.
vēnā-trix,	huntress,	"	"	"
gubernā-trix,	directress,	"	gubernā-re,	to direct.
arā-trum,	plough,	"	arā-re,	to plough.
rōs-trum, ⁴	beak,	"	rōd-ere,	to gnaw.
pīc-tor,	painter,	"	ping-ere,	to paint.
pīc-tūra,	painting,	"	"	"
ū-sūra, ⁵	using,	"	ūt-i,	to use.
audi-tus,	hearing,	"	audi-re,	to hear.
vi-sus, ⁶	sight,	"	vid-ēre,	to see.
audi-tiō,	hearing,	"	audi-re,	to hear.
moni-tiō, ⁶	advising,	"	monē-re,	to advise.
vi-siō, ⁵	seeing,	"	vid-ēre,	to see.
leg-iō,	a selecting,	"	leg-ere,	to select.
occid-iō,	a slaying,	"	occid-ere,	to slay.

¹ These endings appear to be true suffixes, as they do not contain the stem-vowel of the primitive.

² For the phonetic change by which t in tor, tūra, etc., unites with a preceding d or t and produces ss or s, as in dēfend-tor, dēfēnsor, see 35, 3, 2).

³ On ter, tor, trix, and tūra, see tar, tra; on tus and tiō, see tu and ti; and on iō see ja, 320.

⁴ For rōd-trum; see 35, 3, 1).

⁵ For ūt-tūra, vid-tus, vid-tiō; see 35, 3, 2).

⁶ From stem moni, seen in mont-tum.

1. Ter, tor, and trix designate the AGENT or DOER; trum, the MEANS of the action; and tūra, tus, tiō, and iō, the ACT itself; see examples. But nouns in tus and iō sometimes become concrete, and denote the RESULT of the action: quas-tus, 'gain,' from quas-ere, 'to gain'; leg-iō, 'a selecting' and then 'a legion' (the men selected), from leg-ere, 'to select'; exerci-tus, 'exercise,' 'drill,' and then 'an army' (a collection of trained men), from exercē-re, 'to exercise.'

2. Us, a, *ō*¹ sometimes designate the AGENT of the action: coqu-us = coquus, cook, from coqu-ere, to cook; scrib-a, writer, from scrib-ere; err-ō, wanderer, from err-ā-re.

NOTE 1.—Tor, trix, tūra, and tus are sometimes added to noun stems with or without change: viā-tor, 'traveler,' from viā, 'way'; senā-tor, 'senator,' from senex (Genitive senis, stem sen), 'old man'; janī-tor, 'janitor,' and janī-trix, 'janitrix,' from janua, 'gate'; litterā-tūra, 'writing,' from littera, 'letter'; cōsul-d-tus, 'consulship,' from cōsul, 'consul.'

NOTE 2.—For nouns in iō from the stems of other nouns, see 324, with 1.

3. OTHER EXAMPLES ARE—

Accūsā-tor, 'accuser,' from accūsā-re, 'to accuse'; cūrā-tor, 'keeper,' from cūrā-re, 'to take care of'; dā-tor, 'giver,' from dā-re, 'to give'; victor, 'victor,' from vinc-ere,² 'to conquer'; inven-trix, 'a female discoverer,' from inven-ire, 'to discover'; mīnstrum = mon-as-trum,³ 'prodigy,' from mon-ere, 'to admonish'; rād-trum, 'rake,' from rād-ere, 'to rake,' 'scrape'; armā-tūra, 'arming,' 'equipment,' from armā-re, 'to arm'; nā-tūra, 'birth,' 'nature,' from nā-ai,⁴ 'to be born'; scrip-tūra, for scrib-tūra,⁵ 'writing,' from scrib-ere, 'to write'; driv-tus, for ag-tus,⁶ 'driving,' 'act,' from ag-ere, 'to drive,' 'act'; act-iō, for ag-tiō, 'action,' from ag-ere, 'to act'; moni-tiō, 'act of admonishing,' from monē-re, 'to admonish'; mon-itus, 'admonition,' from monē-re, 'to admonish'; opin-iō, 'opinion,' from opin-āri, 'to think'; opt-iō, 'choice,' from opt-ā-re, 'to choose.'

327. From the Stems of Verbs and from Roots are formed nouns with the suffixes—or, us, ēs, iēs, iūm, en, men, mentum, mōnia, mōnium, bulum, culum, brum,⁷ crum, num.⁸

¹ O and ā, the stems of us and a, are only different forms of the suffix a; and ōn, the stem of ōnia, is from the suffix an; see 320.

² Root viā.

³ With the compound suffix es-trum, from as-tra; see as and tra, 320.

⁴ Root nā.

⁵ See 33, 1.

⁶ Observe change in quantity: ag-ere, driv-tus; see Gellius, IX., 6.

⁷ On the forms bulum, brum, culum, crum, see 35, 2, foot-note 3.

⁸ On or (for os), us, and ēs, see as; on iēs and iūm, see ja; on en, see an; on men, mentum, mōnia, and mōnium, see man; on num, see na—all in 320; on bulum, brum, culum, crum, see Corssen, II., p. 40.

am-or,	love,	from	am-āre,	to love.
tim-or,	fear,	"	tim-ēre,	to fear.
gen-us,	birth,	"	gen in gign-ere,	to bear.
frig-us,	cold,	"	frig-ere, ¹	to be cold.
sēd-ēs,	seed,	"	sēd-ēre, ²	to sit.
fac-iēs,	make, face,	"	fac-ere,	to make.
gaud-ium,	joy,	"	gaud-ēre,	to rejoice.
stud-ium,	zeal, study,	"	stud-ēre,	to be zealous.
pect-en,	a comb,	"	pect-ere,	to comb.
flū-men,	a stream,	"	flu-ere,	to flow.
ōrnā-mentum,	ornament,	"	ōrnā-re,	to adorn.
queri-mōnia,	complaint,	"	queri,	to complain.
ali-mōnium,	nourishment,	"	ale-re,	to nourish.
vocā-bulum,	appellation,	"	vocā-re,	to call.
vehi-culum,	vehicle,	"	vehe-re,	to carry.
dēlu-brum,	shrine,	"	dēlu-ere,	to cleanse.
simulā-crum,	image,	"	simulā-re,	to represent.
rēg-num,	reign,	"	reg-ere,	to rule.

1. Or, us, ēs, iēs, and ium generally designate the ACTION or STATE denoted by the verb, but ēs, iēs, and ium sometimes designate the RESULT of the action: aedificium, 'edifice,' from aedific-āre, 'to build.'

2. Mēn, mentum, mōnia, mōnium, and num generally designate the MEANS of the action, or its involuntary SUBJECT, sometimes the ACT itself, or its RESULT: flu-men, 'a stream,' 'something which flows,' from flu-ere; ag-men, 'an army in motion,' from ag-ere.

NOTE.—The stem or root is sometimes shortened or changed: mo-mentum, 'moving force,' from mo-ēre.

3. Bulum, culum, brum, and crum designate the INSTRUMENT or the PLACE of the action: vehi-culum, 'vehicle' (instrument of the action), from vehe-re; sta-bulum, 'stall' (place of the action), from stā-re.

NOTE.—The vowel of the stem is sometimes changed: sepul-crum, 'sepulchre,' from sepel-ire, 'to bury'; see 24, 8.

4. In culum, o is dropped after c and g: vinc-ulum, 'a bond,' from vinc-ire; reg-ula, 'rule,' from reg-ere.

NOTE.—*Dō, la, agō, igō,*³ and a few other endings also occur: torpē-dō, 'numbness,' from torpē-re, 'to be numb'; cupi-dō, 'desire,' from cupe-re, 'to desire'; candē-la, 'candle,' from candē-re, 'to shine'; vor-agō, 'whirlpool,' from vor-āre, 'to swallow up'; vert-igō, 'a turn,' from vert-ere, 'to turn.'

5. OTHER EXAMPLES are—

Splend-or, 'brightness,' from splend-āre, 'to be bright'; op-us, 'work,' from the root op for ap, 'work'; dec-us, 'ornament,' from root dec, in dec-et,

¹ In several of these examples the noun is not strictly derived from the verb, but both noun and verb are formed from one common root, as frig-us and frig-ere from the root frig.

² Sed-ēre and sēd-ēre show a variable root-vowel—a, ē; see 20, note 2.

³ See Corssen, L, p. 577; II, pp. 302, 303.

'it is becoming'; nub-is, 'cloud,' from the root nub in nub-ere, 'to veil'; spec-ies, 'look,' from spec-ere, 'to look'; effug-ium, 'escape,' from effug-ere, 'to escape'; imper-ium, 'command,' from imper-āre, 'to command'; certā-men, 'contest,' from certā-re, 'to contend'; docu-mentum, 'lesson,' 'document,' from docē-re, 'to teach'; nūtri-mentum, 'nourishment,' from nūtri-re, 'to nourish'; pā-bulum, 'fodder,' from the root pā in pā-scere, 'to feed'; spectā-culum, 'sight,' from spectā-re, 'to behold'; lū-crūm, 'gain,' from lū-ere, 'to pay'; dō-num, 'gift,' from the root dā in dā-re, 'to give.'

FORMATION OF ADJECTIVES BY SUFFIXES.

I. ADJECTIVES FROM NOUNS.

328. FULLNESS.—Adjectives denoting fullness, abundance, sup-ply, generally end in—

	ōsus , ōsus , lēns , lentus , tus .*
anim-ōsus ,	full of courage ,	from	animus ,	spirit, courage
fructu-ōsus ,	fruitful ,	"	fructus ,	fruit.
belli-cōsus ,	warlike ,	"	bellum ,	war.
pesti-lēns ,	pestilential ,	"	pestis ,	pest.
pesti-lentus ,	"	"	"	"
vīno-lentus ,	full of wine ,	"	vīnum ,	wine.
fraudu-lentus ,	fraudulent ,	"	fraus ,	fraud.
ālā-tus ,	winged ,	"	āla ,	wing.
turri-tus ,	turreted ,	"	turris ,	turret.
cornū-tus ,	horned ,	"	cornū ,	horn.
jūs-tus ,	just ,	"	jūs ,	right.

NOTE.—Before deus the stem-vowel is generally dropped, but u is retained: animō-deus, anim-ōsus, but fructu-deus.

1. OTHER EXAMPLES are—

Ann-ōsus, 'full of years,' from annus, 'year'; lūxuri-ōsus, 'luxurious,' from lūxuria, 'luxury'; pericul-ōsus, 'dangerous,' from periculum, 'danger'; tenebr-ōsus and tenebri-cōsus, 'gloomy,' from tenebrae, 'gloom'; turbu-lentus, 'riotous,' from turba, 'riot'; barbā-tus, 'bearded,' from barba, 'beard'; auri-tus, 'long eared,' from auris, 'ear'; onus-tus, 'burdened,' from onus, 'burden.'

329. MATERIAL.—Adjectives designating the material of which anything is made generally end in—

* With modified stem or root: docē, docu; dā, dō.

† On deus, see Schleicher, p. 403; Corssen, I., p. 62; II., p. 668. Cōsus is from co and deus; thus from bellum, 'war,' is formed belli-cus, 'belonging to war'; and from belli-cus is formed bellico-deus, belli-cōsus, 'warlike.' On lēns, lentus, see ra, la, 320. The vowel before lēns, lentus—generally a, sometimes o or u—was originally the stem-vowel of the primitive, as in vīno-lentus, pesti-lēns, pesti-lentus, but it was sometimes treated as a part of the suffix: et-olentus, 'violent,' from vis, 'force.' Tus is identical with tus in the passive participle, and when added to vowel-stems is preceded by d, t, or u: ālā-tus, turri-tus, cornū-tus, like amā-tus, audī-tus, acū-tus ('sharpened,' from acu-o, 'to sharpen'). It may, however, be added to consonant-stems: jūs-tus.

eus, nus, neus, æceus, icus.¹

aur-eus,	golden,	from	aurum,	gold.
argent-eus,	of silver,	"	argentum,	silver.
fag-eus,	of beech,	"	fagus,	a beech.
fagi-nus, ²	"	"	"	"
fagi-neus, ²	"	"	"	"
pōpul-nus, ²	of poplar,	"	pōpulus,	a poplar.
pōpul-neus, ²	"	"	"	"
papŷr-æceus,	of papyrus,	"	papŷrus,	papyrus.
later-icus,	of brick,	"	later,	brick.

NOTE.—These endings sometimes denote characteristic or possession: virginæus, 'belonging to a maiden.'

330. CHARACTERISTIC.—Adjectives signifying belonging to, derived from, generally end in—cus, icus, ālis, īlis, ānus, īnus, āris, ārius, ius, ōnsis.⁴

civ-icus,	relating to a citizen,	from	civis,	citizen.
patr-icus,	paternal,	"	pater,	father.
nātūr-ālis,	natural,	"	nātūra,	nature.
mort-ālis,	mortal,	"	mors,	death.
host-īlis,	hostile,	"	hostis,	enemy.
civ-īlis,	relating to a citizen,	"	civis,	citizen.
oppid-ānus,	of the town,	"	oppidum,	town.
urb-ānus,	of the city,	"	urbs,	city.
mar-īnus,	marine,	"	mare,	sea.
equ-īnus,	of, pertaining to a horse,	"	equus,	horse.
lūn-āris,	lunar,	"	lūna,	moon.
salūt-āris,	salutary,	"	salūs,	safety.
auxili-ārius,	auxiliary,	"	auxilium,	aid.
rēg-ius,	royal,	"	rēx,	king.
ōrātōr-ius,	of an orator,	"	ōrātōr, ⁵	orator.
for-ēnsis,	forensic,	"	forum,	forum.

¹ On eus, stem eo, see Corssen, II., pp. 342-346; Bopp, III., p. 429; on nus, see na, 320. Neus adds eus to no, seen in nus; æceus adds eus to æc, seen in æc (333, foot-note 2); and ic-ius adds ius to ic or ico; see ja, 320, and icus, 330.

² Stem-vowel changed to i before nus and neus.

³ Stem-vowel dropped before nus and neus.

⁴ On eus, see ka, 320. In i-cus, i was originally the stem-vowel of the primitive, but was finally treated as a part of the suffix, as in patr-icus. In the same way the vowels ā and i in ālis, īlis, āris, ārius, ānus, and īnus were developed from the stem-vowels of the primitives; thus in such words as doc-i-lis, 'docile,' from doc-ē-re, the suffix seems to have been originally lis, but at length the preceding i was treated as a part of the suffix, making lis. If now lis be added to hosti, the stem of hostis, we shall have hosti-lis = host-īlis; or, with Corssen, we may suppose that from hostis was formed the verb hosti-re, and that the ending lis was added directly to hosti, making hosti-lis. The long initial vowel in other endings is supposed to have had a similar origin. ālis, īlis, and āris are virtually the same suffix, as l and r are interchangeable; see ra, la, foot-note, 320. ārius = āri-ius. On ānus, īnus, and ius, see ja and na, 320; on ōnsis, see Corssen, I., pp. 62, 254; II., pp. 668, 719.

⁵ But ōrātōr is formed from ōrāt-re by adding tor to the stem; see 326.

1. Ester or estris,¹ timus, itimus, ticus,² cinus, and a few other endings occur: terr-ester or terr-estris, 'terrestrial,' from terra, 'earth'; maritimus, 'maritime,' from mare, 'sea'; lég-itus, 'lawful,' from lêx, lêgis, 'law'; rûs-ticus, 'rustic,' from rûs, 'country'; vâti-cinus, 'prophetic,' from vâtês, 'prophet.'

2. OTHER EXAMPLES ARE—

Domini-cus, 'of a master,' from dominus, 'master'; servo-ilis, 'slavish,' from servus, 'slave'; vir-ilis, 'manly,' from vir, 'man'; capit-âlis, 'of the head,' 'capital,' from caput, 'head'; rêg-âlis, 'kingly,' from rêx, 'king'; cônsul-âris, 'consular,' from cônsul, 'consul'; milit-âris, 'military,' from miles, 'soldier'; agr-ârius, 'of or relating to land,' from ager, 'field'; arg-ent-ârius, 'of silver,' from argentum, 'silver'; can-inus, 'of a dog,' from canis, 'dog'; lup-inus, 'of a wolf,' from lupus, 'wolf'; mont-ânus, 'of a mountain,' from mônus, 'mountain'; nox-i-us, 'injurious,' from noxa, 'injury'; pater-i-us, 'of a father,' from pater, 'father'; imperâtor-i-us, 'of a commander,' from imperâtor, 'commander.'

331. Adjectives from proper nouns generally end in—ânus, iânus, inus; i-us, iacus, icus; ênsis, iênsis; ês, aeus, êus.³

Sull-ânus,	of Sulla,	from	Sulla,	Sulla .
Rôm-ânus,	Roman,	"	Rôma,	Rome .
Mari-ânus,	of Marius,	"	Marius,	Marius .
Cicerôn-iânus,	Ciceronian,	"	Cicerô,	Cicero .
Lat-inus, ²	Latin,	"	Latium,	Latium .
Plaut-inus,	of Plautus,	"	Plautus,	Plautus .
Corinth-i-us,	Corinthian,	"	Corinthus,	Corinth .
Corinth-i-acus,	"	"	"	"
Britann-icus,	British,	"	Britannus,	a Briton .
Cann-ênsis,	of Cannae,	"	Cannae,	Cannae .
Athên-iênsis,	Athenian,	"	Athênæ,	Athens .
Fidên-ês,	of Fidenæ,	"	Fidênæ,	Fidenæ .
Smyrn-aeus,	Smyranean,	"	Smyrna,	Smyrna .
Pythagor-êus,	Pythagorean,	"	Pythagorês,	Pythagoras .

1. Ânus and iânus are the endings generally used in derivatives from Names of Persons; but others also occur.

NOTE 1.—Many of these adjectives from names of places are also used substantively as Patrial or Gentile Nouns to designate the citizens of the place: Corinthiês, the Corinthians; Athênîês, the Athenians.

NOTE 2.—The Roman Gentile or clans were all designated by adjectives in i-us, as gêns Cornêlia, gêns Jûlia.

¹ The ending ester or estris may be formed by adding ter or tris to es from the suffix as (320); but see Corssen, II., p. 549.

² On it-mus, it-tus, and it-ous, see in, ma, ca, 320.

³ When appended to vowel stems, these endings take the place of the stem-vowel: Sull-ânus. In fact, ânus is formed by the union of the stem-vowel with the suffix. So in Mari-ânus, but in examples like this the i before ânus was finally treated as a part of the suffix, making iânus, as seen in Cicerôn-iânus. Inus in Lat-inus contains to, from Lat-to, the stem of Latium.

NOTE 2.—An adjective in ess, used substantively, formed a part of the name of every distinguished Roman, and designated the gens to which he belonged; see Roman Names, 649.

II. ADJECTIVES FROM ADJECTIVES.

332. DIMINUTIVES from other adjectives generally end like diminutive nouns (§31) in—*lus, ulus, culus.*¹

ēbrio-lus,	somewhat drunken,	from	ēbrius,	drunken.
aureo-lus,	golden,	"	aureus,	golden. long-ulus,	rather long,	"	longus,	long. pauper-culus,	rather poor,	"	pauper,	poor.

NOTE 1.—The endings ellus and illus also occur as in nouns (§31, 4): nov-ellus, 'new,' from novus, 'new.'

NOTE 2.—Culus is sometimes added to comparatives: dūrius-culus, 'somewhat hard,' from dūrior, dūrtus, 'harder.'

III. ADJECTIVES FROM VERBS AND FROM ROOTS.

333. Verbal adjectives generally end in—*bundus, cundus, dus; bilis, tilis, silis, lis; āx.*² mīrā-bundus,	wondering,	from	mīrā-rī,	to wonder.

mori-bundus,	dying,	"	morī,	to die. verē-cundus,	diffident,	"	verē-rī,	to fear. cali-dus,	warm,	"	calē-re,	to be warm. pavi-dus,	fearful,	"	pavē-re,	to fear.
amā-bilis,	worthy of love,	"	amā-re,	to love.
dūc-tilis,	ductile,	"	dūc-ere,	to lead. flec-silis, ³	flexible,	"	flect-ere,	to turn. flexilis,
doci-lis,	docile,	"	docē-re,	to teach. pūgn-āx,	pugnacious,	"	pūgnā-re,	to fight. aud-āx,	daring,	"	audē-re,	to dare.

1. Bundus and cundus have nearly the force of the present participle; but bundus is somewhat more expressive than the participle: laetā-bundus, rejoicing greatly; and cundus generally denotes some characteristic rather than a single act or feeling: verē-cundus, diffident.

2. Dus retains the simple meaning of the verb.

3. Bilis, tilis, silis, and lis denote CAPABILITY, generally in a passive sense: amā-bilis, capable or worthy of being loved; sometimes in an active sense: terribilis, terrible, capable of producing terror.

² Bundus is explained by Corssen and others as formed by appending undus, endus, the Gerundive suffix, to du = fu, as seen in fuī; cundus, by adding the same suffix to co (ka, 320); see Corssen, II., pp. 316-312. On dus, see Corssen, II., pp. 303, 305; on lis, see ra, la, 320; and on tilis, 320, foot-note 1; also Corssen, I., pp. 166-169; on tilis and silis, Corssen, II., pp. 41, 326. The ending āx = a-co-s is for a-co-s, in which a was originally the stem-vowel of an ā-verb: thus pūgn-ā-co-s becomes pūgnā-ca, pūgnāx.

³ Flec-silis = flect-tilis; see 35, 3, 2).

4. Āx denotes INCLINATION, generally a faulty one: loquāx, loquacious.

5. Cus, iōus, ūcus, vus, uus, ivus, tivus, ticius, ius, and ulus¹ also occur:

Medi-cus, 'healing,' 'medical,' from medē-rī, 'to heal'; am-icus, 'friendly,' from am-āre, 'to love'; cad-ūcus, 'falling,' 'inclined to fall,' from cad-ere, 'to fall'; sal-vus, 'safe,' from root sal, 'whole,' 'sound'; noc-uus and noc-ivus, 'hurtful,' from noc-ēre, 'to hurt'; cap-tivus, 'captive,' from cap-ere, 'to take'; ficticius, for fig-ticius, 'feigned,' from fig, the root of fig-ere, 'to form,' 'fashion,' 'feign'; axim-ius, 'select,' 'choice,' from axim-ere, 'to select out'; cred-ulus, 'credulous,' from cred-ere, 'to believe.'

6. OTHER EXAMPLES ARE—

Ludi-bundus, 'sportive,' 'playful,' from lūde-re, 'to play'; ridi-bundus, 'laughing,' from ridē-re, 'to laugh'; fā-cundus, 'eloquent,' from fā-rī, 'to speak'; jū-cundus, for juv-cundus, 'pleasant,' from juv-āre, 'to aid,' 'delight'; avi-dus, 'greedy,' from avē-re, 'to long for'; cupi-dus, 'desirous,' from cupē-re, 'to desire'; timi-dus, 'timid,' from timē-re, 'to fear'; faci-lis, 'easy,' 'capable of being done,' from face-re, 'to do'; nūbi-lis, 'marriageable,' from nūbe-re, 'to marry'; ūti-lis, 'useful,' from ūti, 'to use'; credi-bilis, 'credible,' from crēde-re, 'to believe'; terri-bilis, 'terrible,' from terrē-re, 'to terrify'; laudā-bilis, 'praiseworthy,' from laudē-re, 'to praise'; fer-tilis, 'fertile,' from fer-re, 'to bear'; cap-āx, 'capacious,' from cap-ere, 'to take'; ten-āx, 'tenacious,' from ten-ēre, 'to hold.'

IV. ADJECTIVES FROM ADVERBS AND PREPOSITIONS.

334. A few adjectives are formed from adverbs and prepositions:

crās-tinus ,	of to-morrow ,	from	crās ,	to-morrow .
contrā-rius ,	contrary ,	"	contrā ,	against .
inter-nus ,	internal ,	"	inter ,	among, within .
super-bus ,	haughty ,	"	super ,	above .
super-nus ,	upper ,	"	"	"

FORMATION OF VERBS BY SUFFIXES.

I. VERBS FROM NOUNS AND ADJECTIVES.

335. Verbs formed from nouns and adjectives are called DENOMINATIVES. They end in—

CONJ. I.	CONJ. II.	CONJ. III.	CONJ. IV.
ō, ā-re,	eō, ē-re,	uō, ue-re,³	iō, i-re.⁴

¹ Vus, vus, and t-vus are only different forms of the same suffix; vus was formed by vocalizing v in vus; t-vus, by adding vus to the stem-vowel t; noc-t-vus, as if from a verb, noc-t-re = noc-ēre. The other endings are composed of elements already explained.

² But adverbs and prepositions are in origin case-forms; see 304; 307, note 1.

³ Conjugation III. contains primitive verbs with a few derivatives.

⁴ According to Curtius and others, the suffix which was added to the stems of nouns and adjectives to form verbs was originally ja, pronounced ya, probably identical with cūr-ō,	ā-re,	to care for,	from	cūr-a,	care.

fug-ō,	ā-re,	to put to flight,	"	fug-a,	flight.
pūgn-ō,	ā-re,	to fight,	"	pūgn-a,	battle.
bell-ō,	ā-re,	to carry on war,	"	bell-um,	war.
dōn-ō,	ā-re,	to give,	"	dōn-um,	gift.
firm-ō,	ā-re,	to make firm,	"	firm-us,	firm.
labōr-ō,	ā-re,	to labor,	"	labor,	labor.
liber-ō,	ā-re,	to liberate,	"	liber,	free.
nōmin-ō,	ā-re,	to name,	"	nōmen,	name.
alb-eō,	ē-re,	to be white,	"	alb-us,	white.
clār-ō,	ā-re,	to make bright,	"	clār-us,	bright.
clār-eō,	ē-re,	to be bright,	"	"	"
flōr-eō,	ē-re,	to bloom,	"	flōs,	flower.
lūc-eō,	ē-re,	to shine,	"	lūx=lūc-s,	light.
met-uō,	ue-re,	to fear,	"	met-us,	fear.
stat-uō,	ue-re,	to place,	"	stat-us,	position.
fin-iō,	I-re,	to finish,	"	fin-is,	end.
moll-iō,	I-re,	to soften,	"	moll-is,	soft.
vēst-iō,	I-re,	to clothe,	"	vēst-is,	garment.
serv-iō,	I-re,	to serve,	"	serv-us,	servant.
cūstōd-iō,	I-re,	to guard,	"	cūstōs,	guardian.

NOTE 1.—Denominatives of the second conjugation are intransitive, but most of the others are transitive.

NOTE 2.—Derivatives, like other verbs, may of course be deponent: dominor, āri, 'to domineer,' from dominus, 'master'; miror, āri, 'to wonder at,' from mirus, 'wonderful'; partior, īri, 'to part,' 'divide,' from pars, partis, 'part.'

1. OTHER EXAMPLES ARE—

• Culp-āre, 'to find fault,' from culp-a, 'fault'; glōri-āre, 'to boast,' 'glory,' from glōri-a, 'glory'; nov-āre, 'to make new,' from novus, 'new'; regn-āre, 'to reign,' from regnum, 'royal power'; lev-āre, 'to lighten,' from levis, 'light'; honor-āre, 'to honor,' from honor, 'honor'; laud-āre, 'to praise,' from laus = laud-s, 'praise'; sæv-īre, 'to be fierce,' from sævus, 'fierce.'

the root of i-re, 'to go.' This suffix added to a, the original stem-vowel of most nouns and adjectives, formed a-ja, still preserved in the ending ajā-mī in a large class of Sanskrit verbs. From this compound suffix aja are derived in Latin, in the first conjugation, (1) ā, contracted to o: cūr-o = cūr-ajā for cūr-aō for cūr-aja; (2) ā: cūr-ā-s, shortened to a in cūr-a-t for cūr-ā-t;—in the second conjugation, (1) eō: lūc-eō for lūc-aja; (2) ē: lūc-ē-s, shortened to e in lūc-e-t for lūc-ē-t; and in the fourth conjugation, (1) io and is: serv-io for serv-ija for serv-iu-ni for serv-iju-ni for serv-aju-ni; and (2) i: serv-i-s, shortened to i in serv-i-t for serv-i-t; see Bopp, I, pp. 207-229; Curtius, Verbum, I, pp. 292, 326-348; Schleicher, pp. 858-861. For an objection to this explanation of the a-verbs, see Corssen, II, pp. 738-736.—On final o of the first person, see §47, 1, foot-note 5.—The suffix ja, added to original i-stems, formed ija and gave rise to i-verbs: finiō = fin-i-jo = fin-ija; and added to u-stems, it formed u-ja and gave rise to u-verbs: met-uō = met-u-jo = met-uja.—In general, a-stems give rise to a-verbs: cūr-a, cūr-ā-re; o-stems, sometimes to a-verbs, sometimes to e-verbs, and sometimes to i-verbs: firmus, stem fir-mo, fir-m-ā-re; albus, stem alb-o, alb-i-re; sævus, stem sæv-o, sæv-i-re; consonant stems, to a-verbs, e-verbs, or i-verbs, after the analogy of vowel stems: labōr for labōr, labōr-ā-re; flōs, flōr-e-re for flōs-i-re (§1, 1); custōs, stem custōd, custōd-i-re.

II. VERBS FROM VERBS.¹

336. FREQUENTATIVES or INTENSIVES denote repeated, continued, or intense action. They are generally of the first conjugation, and are formed—

I. From the stem of the participle² in tus or sus:

cant-ō, āre, to sing,	from cantus	from canō, to sing. ³
capt-ō, āre, to snatch,	" captus	" capiō, to take.
dat-ō, āre, to give often,	" datus	" dō, to give.
habit-ō, āre, to inhabit,	" habitus	" habeo, to have.
quass-ō, āre, to shake violently,	" quassus	" quatiō, to shake.
terrīt-ō, āre, to frighten often,	" territus	" terreo, to frighten.

II. From the present stem, by adding tō and changing the preceding vowel to i, if not already in that form: ⁴

agi-tō, āre, to shake,	from agō, to move, lead.
clāmi-tō, āre, to shout often,	" clāmō, to shout.
rogi-tō, āre, to ask eagerly,	" rogō, to ask.
voci-tō, āre, to call often,	" vocō, to call.
voli-tō, āre, to flit about,	" volō, to fly.

NOTE 1.—Frequentatives are sometimes formed from other frequentatives: ⁵ cantitō, 'to sing often,' from cantō from canō; dictitō, 'to say often,' from dictō from dicō.

NOTE 2.—A few derivatives in esse and esse also occur. They are intensive in force, denoting earnest rather than repeated action, and are of the third conjugation: faciō, faceō, 'to do earnestly'; incipiō, incipiē, 'to begin eagerly.'

1. OTHER EXAMPLES ARE—

Dictō, 'to say often,' from dicō, 'to say'; spectō, 'to behold,' from speciō, 'to look at'; factitō, 'to do often,' from faciō, 'to do,' 'make'; imperitō, 'to command often,' from impero, 'to command'; rapiō, 'to snatch,' from rapiō, 'to seize.'

337. INCEPTIVES or INCHOATIVES denote the beginning of the action. They are of the third conjugation, and end in scō:

¹ Either directly or through the medium of nouns, adjectives, or participles.

² They are thus strictly denominatives (335). Intransitive verbs, though without the participle in tus or sus, may form frequentatives after the analogy of transitive verbs: cursō, āre, 'to run about,' formed as if from cursus from currō, 'to run'; venitō, āre, 'to come often,' formed as if from ventus, from venō, 'to come.'

⁵ Sometimes from frequentatives no longer in use: actitō, 'to act often,' as if from actō, not in use, from agō; scriptitō, 'to write often,' as if from scriptō, not in use, from scribō.

gel-â-scô,	to begin to freeze,	from	gel-ô,	â-re,	to freeze.
cal-â-scô,	to become warm,	"	cal-eô,	ê-re,	to be warm.
rub-â-scô,	to grow red,	"	rub-eô,	ê-re,	to be red.
vir-â-scô,	to grow green,	"	vir-eô,	ê-re,	to be green.
trem-i-scô,	to begin to tremble,	"	trem-ô,	e-re,	to tremble.
obdorm-i-scô,	to fall asleep,	"	obdorm-iô,	I-re,	to sleep.

338. DESIDERATIVES denote a desire to perform the action. They are of the fourth conjugation, and end in turiô or suriô:

par-turiô,	Ire,	to strive to bring forth,	from	pariô,	to bring forth.
ê-suriô,	Ire,	to desire to eat,	"	edô,	to eat. ¹

339. DIMINUTIVES denote a feeble action.² They are of the first conjugation, and end in illô:

cant-illô,	to sing feebly,	from	cantô,	to sing.
cônscrib-illô,	to scribble,	"	cônscribô,	to write.

NOTE.—For the DERIVATION OF ADVERBS, see 304.

SECTION III.

COMPOSITION OF WORDS,

340. New words may be formed—

I. By the union of two or more words under one principal accent, without change of meaning:

Ris publica, rêpublica, republic; agri cultûra, agricultûra, agriculture; jûris cônultus, jûriscônultus, lawyer, one skilled in the law; quem ad modum, quemadmodum, in what way—lit., to what measure.

NOTE.—These are compounds only in form. The separate words retain in a great measure their identity both in form and in meaning, and may in fact be written separately. Ris publica is the approved form. Other examples of this class are: lêgis-lâtor, law-giver; pater-familiâs, father of a family; senâtûs-cônultum, decree of the senate; hâd-tenus, thus far; saepe-numerô, often in number; bene-faciô, to do well, benefit; male-diciô, to revile; satis-faciô, to satisfy, do enough for; animus-ad-vertô, anim-ad-vertô, to notice, turn the mind to.

II. By prefixing an indeclinable particle to an inflected word, generally with some change of meaning:

Ad-sum, to be present; dâ-pônd, to lay down; re-pônd, to replace; ê-discô, to learn by heart; im-memor, unmindful; per-faciliô, very easy; prô-cônsul, proconsul, one acting for a consul; inter-rēgnum, interregnum, an interval between two reigns.

¹ These are the only desideratives in common use, but a few others occur: cênâ-turiô, 'to desire to dine,' from cênô, 'to dine'; êmp-turiô, 'to desire to purchase,' from emô, 'to purchase'; nûp-turiô, 'to desire to marry,' from nûbô, 'to marry.' They were probably formed originally through the medium of a verbal noun in tor or sor (336, foot-note 2): thus, cênô, cênâ-tor, 'one who dines'; cênâ-tor-i-re = cênâ-tur-i-re (o changed to u), 'to desire to dine'; emô, êmp-tor, 'a purchaser'; êmp-tor-i-re = êmp-tur-i-re, 'to desire to purchase.'

² Probably denominatiles formed from verb-stems through diminutive verbal nouns.

III. By uniting two or more simple stems or roots, and adding appropriate inflectional suffixes when needed:¹

Igni-color,¹ fire-colored; grandi-aevo-s,¹ grand-aevus, a, um, of great age; omni-potent-s, omnipotēns, omnipotent; māgno-animo-s, māgnanimus, a, um, great-souled; tubi-cen, trumpeter; arti-fec-s, artifex, artificer; alio-qui, aliquis,² any one.

1. In the first element of the compound observe—

1) That the stem-vowel generally takes the form of i: capro-corno-s, capri-cornus; tuba-cen, tubi-cen.

2) That consonant stems sometimes assume i: honor-i-fico-s, honorificus, a, um, honorable.

3) That the stem-vowel disappears before another vowel: māgno-animus, māgnanimus.

2. The stem-ending and the inflectional ending of the second element generally remain unchanged in the compound; see examples above. But observe—

1) That they are sometimes slightly changed: aequo-nocti, aequi-noctio-m,³ aequinotium, equinox; multa-forma, multi-formis, with many forms.

2) That a verbal root or stem may be the second element in a compound noun or adjective: tubi-cen (cen = can, the root of cantō, to sing), trumpeter; letī-fer (fer, root of ferō, to bear), death-bearing.

NOTE.—The words classed under II. and III. are regarded as real compounds, but those under III. best illustrate the distinctive characteristics of genuine compounds, as they are formed from compound stems and have a meaning which could not be expressed by the separate words. Thus, māgnus animus means a great soul, but māgnanimus means having a great soul.⁴

341. In COMPOUND NOUNS, the first part is generally the stem of a noun or adjective, sometimes an adverb or preposition; and the second part is the stem of a noun, or a stem from a verbal root:

arti-fex ,	artist ,	from	arti-fac	in	ars	and	faciō .
capri-cornus ,	capricorn ,	"	capro-cornu	"	caper	"	cornū .
aequi-noctium ,	equinox ,	"	aequo-nocti	"	aequus	"	nox .
nē-mō ,	nobody ,	"	ne-homon	"	nē	"	homō .
prō-nōmen ,	pronoun ,	"	prō-nōmen	"	prō	"	nōmen .

¹ Thus igni-color is formed by the union of two stems without inflectional suffix; but in grand-aevo-s, the suffix s is added to the stem grandaevō, compounded of grand and aevo.

² Literally, any other one.

³ Ti, the stem-ending of nox, becomes tiō, to which is added the nominative-ending m.

⁴ Class II. occupies a position intermediate between I. and III. Some compounds of particles with verbs, for example, have developed a meaning quite distinct from that denoted by the separate parts, while others have simply retained the ordinary meaning of those parts.

1. COMPOUNDS in ex, dex, fax, cen, cida, and cola deserve special notice:

Remo-ex, rēmex,¹ oarsman; jūs-dex, jūdex,¹ judge; arti-fax, artist; tibia-cen, tibi-cen,² flute-player; homon-cida, homī-cida,³ manslayer; agri-cola,⁴ husbandman, one who tills the soil.

NOTE.—Ex (for ag-e) is from the root ag in agō, to drive, impel; dex (for dico-e), from dico in dico, to make known; fax (for fac-e), from fac in facio, to make; cen, from can in canto, to sing; cida (for caed-a), from caed in caedo, to cut, slay; cola (for col-a), from col in colo, to cultivate.

342. IN COMPOUND ADJECTIVES, the first part is generally the stem of a noun or adjective, sometimes an adverb or preposition; and the second is the stem of a noun or adjective, or a stem from a verbal root:

lēti-fer ,	death-bearing ,	from lēti-fer	in lētum	and ferō .
māgn-animus ,	magnanimous ,	"	māgno-animo	"
per-facilis ,	very easy ,	"	per-facili	"
			"	per
				facilis .

1. COMPOUNDS in ceps, fer, ger, dicus, ficus, and volus deserve notice:

Parti-ceps, taking part; auri-fer, gold-bearing; armi-ger, carrying arms; fātī-dicus, predicting fate; miri-ficus, causing wonder; beno-volus, well-wishing.

NOTE.—Ceps (for cap-e) is from the root cap in capto, to take; fer, from fer in ferō, to bear; ger, from ger in gerō, to carry; dicus (for dico-o-e), from dico in dico, to make known; ficus (for fac-o-e), from fac in facio, to make; volus (for vol-o-e), from col in colo, to wish.

343. COMPOUND NOUNS and ADJECTIVES are divided according to signification into three classes:

I. DETERMINATIVE COMPOUNDS, in which the second part is qualified by the first:

Inter-rēx, interrex; meri-dies,⁵ midday; beno-volus, well-wishing; per-māgnus, very great; in-dignus, unworthy.

II. OBJECTIVE COMPOUNDS, in which the second part is limited by the first as object:

Prin-ceps, taking the first place; belli-ger, waging war; jū-dex, judge, one who dispenses (makes known) justice; homi-cida, one who slays a man; agri-cola, one who tills the field. See other examples in 342, 1.

III. POSSESSIVE COMPOUNDS, in origin mostly adjectives. They design-

¹ O is dropped in rēmex, and s in jūdex; see 27; 36, 3, note 3.

² A, weakened to t, unites with the preceding t, forming t.

³ N dropped, and o weakened to t; see 36, 3, note 3.

⁴ The stem-vowel o of agro is weakened to t: agri; see 22.

⁵ From medius and diēs.

nate qualities or attributes as possessed by some person or thing, and are often best rendered by supplying having or possessing:

Aeni-pēs, having bronze feet; ¹ celeri-pēs, swift-footed; ali-pēs, wing-footed, having wings for feet; māgn-animus, having a great soul; an-animus, having one mind; long-aevus, of great age, having a long life.

344. COMPOUND VERBS.—Verbs in general are compounded only with prepositions, originally adverbs: ²

Ab-ēd, to go away; ex-ēd, to go out; prōd-ēd, to go forth; con-cocō, to call together; dē-cidō, to fall off; prae-dicō, to foretell; re-dūcō, to lead back; re-ficiō, to repair, to make anew. ³

1. Faciō and fiō may also unite with verbal stems in e:

Cale-faciō, to make warm; cale-fiō, to be made warm, become warm; labe-faciō, to cause to totter; pate-faciō, to open, cause to be open.

2. Verbs are often united with other words in writing without strictly forming compounds:

Manū mittō or manū-mittō, to emancipate, let go from the hand; satīe faciō or satīe-faciō, to satisfy, do enough for; animum ad-vertō or anim-ad-vertō, to notice, turn the mind to.

3. Verbs in ficō and factō, like the following, are best explained not as compounds but as denominatives: ⁴

Aedi-ficō, to build, from aedifex; ampli-ficō, ⁴ to enlarge; cale-factō, to make warm, from cale-factus.

4. Verbs compounded with prepositions often undergo certain vowel-changes:

1) Short a and e generally become i: habeō, ad-hibeō; teneō, con-tineō. But a sometimes becomes e or u: carpō, dē-cerpō; calco, con-culcō.

2) de becomes i: caedō, in-cidō.

3) au generally becomes o or u: plaudō, ex-plōdō; claudō, in-clūdō.

5. FORM AND MEANING OF PREPOSITIONS IN COMPOSITION.—The following facts are added for reference:

A, ab, abs.—1. FORM: a before m and v, and sometimes before f; ab before c, g, t, and, with the loss of b, also before p ⁵; au in au-ferō and au-fugio; ab before the other consonants, and before vowels.—2. MEANING:

(1) 'away,' 'off': a-mittō, to send away; abs-condō, to hide away; as-portō,

¹ Observe the force of the compound. Aenus pēs means a brassen foot, but aeni-pēs means having brassen feet; see also 340, III, note.

² The words thus formed are strictly compounds of verbs with adverbs, as the original type of these compounds was formed before the adverb became a preposition.

³ Observe in these examples the strict adverbial use of the particles ab, ex, etc., away, out, etc. Prepositions, on the other hand, always denote relations, and are auxiliary to the case-endings; see 307, foot-note.

⁴ In some of these the primitive is not found in actual use.

⁵ As ab-e-pellō, as-pellō, to drive away.

to carry off; au-fugio, to flee away; ab-sum, to be away; ab-eo, to go away; ab-ficio or ab-icio,¹ to throw away; (2) in adjectives, generally negative: ad-mens, without mind, frantic; ad-similis, unlike.

Ad.—1. FORM: ad before vowels, and before b, d, f, h, j, m, n, q, and v, sometimes before g, l, r, and s, rarely before p and t; d assimilated before c, generally before p and t, and sometimes before g, l, q, r, and s; generally dropped before gn, sc, sp, and st.²—2. MEANING: 'to,' 'toward,' 'to one's self'; 'on,' 'at,' 'near,' 'by'; 'besides': ad-ducō, to lead to; ac-cidō, to fall to, happen; ad-movē, to move toward; ac-cipio, to receive, take to one's self; ac-cingō, to gird on; ad-latrō or al-latrō, to bark at; ad-sum, to be present or near; ad-stō or a-stō, to stand near, to stand by; ad-discō, to learn besides.

Ante.—1. FORM: unchanged except in anti-cipō, 'to take beforehand,' and in composition with stō: ante-stō or anti-stō, to stand before.—2. MEANING: 'before,' 'beforehand': ante-currō, to run before; ante-habē, to prefer—lit., to have or hold before.

Circum.—1. FORM: generally unchanged, but m is sometimes dropped in compounds of eo, to go: circum-eo or circu-eo, to go around.—2. MEANING: 'around,' 'about': circum-mittō, to send around.

Com.³—1. FORM: com before b, m, p; co before vowels,⁴ h, and gn,⁵ con or col before l; cor before r; con before the other consonants.—2. MEANING: (1) 'together,' 'with,' in various senses: com-bibō, to drink together; com-mittō, to let go together; co-eo, to go together; col-loquor, to talk with; con-figō, to contend with; (2) 'completely,' 'thoroughly': con-ficio, to complete, make completely; con-citō, to rouse thoroughly; con-sumō, to consume, take wholly; con-densus, very dense.

Ei, ex.—1. FORM: ex before vowels and before c, h, p, q, s, t, and with assimilation before f,⁶ z before the other consonants.⁷—2. MEANING: (1) 'out,' 'forth,' 'without,' implying 'freedom from': ex-eo, to go out, go forth; ex-cidō, to fall out; z-dō, to put forth; ex-sanguis, without blood, bloodless; ex-onerō, to unload, disburden; (2) 'thoroughly,' 'completely,' 'successfully': ex-urō, to burn up; z-discō, to learn by heart; ef-ficio, to effect, do successfully; z-durus, very hard.

² Sometimes retained: ad-gnoscō or z-gnoscō; ad-stō or a-stō.

³ An earlier form for cum.

⁴ A contraction often takes place: co-apō, co-gō. Com is sometimes retained before e or t, and co or con is used before i = j: com-edō, com-itor, co-icō or con-icō = con-ticō or con-ficō; see foot-note 1, p. 20.

⁵ Cō also appears in cō-nectō, cō-niceō, cō-nitor, and cō-nūctum.

⁶ But z-pōtō and z-pōtus; ex-scendō or z-scendō.

⁷ S is sometimes dropped after o: exspectō or ex-pectō.

⁸ C before f is not recommended; ef-fertō is better than ec-fertō.

⁹ But ex-lēa.

¹⁰ Im is the approved form before b, p, and m, especially in im-peritor, im-perō, and im-perium.

often changed to m before b and p; in other situations unchanged.—2. MEANING: 'in,' 'into,' 'on,' 'at,' 'against': in-colo, to dwell in; in-eo, to go into; in-migrō, to move into; in-nitor, to lean on; in-tueor, to look at; ir-rideo, to laugh at; im-pugnō, to fight against.

Inter.—1. FORM: unchanged, except in intel-lego, to understand.—2. MEANING: 'between,' sometimes involving interruption,¹ 'together': inter-venio, to come between, intervene; inter-dico, to forbid, interdict; inter-necto, to tie together.

Ob.—1. FORM: b assimilated before c, f, g, and p; dropped in o-mitto, to omit, and in operio, to cover; in other situations generally unchanged.—2. MEANING: (1) 'before,' 'in the way,' 'toward,' 'against,' especially of an obstruction or opposition: ob-ferō, to bring before; ob-sto, to stand in the way; oc-currō, to run toward, run to meet; op-pugnō, to attack, fight against; (2) 'down,' 'completely': oc-cido, to cut down, kill; op-primo, to press down, to overwhelm.

Per.—1. FORM: generally unchanged, but r is sometimes assimilated before l,² and is dropped before j in compounds of jūrō, as pē-jerō,³ to swear falsely.—2. MEANING: 'through,' 'thoroughly,' sometimes in a bad sense with the idea of breaking through, disregarding: per-lego, to read through; per-dico, to learn thoroughly; per-fidus, perfidious, breaking faith.

Post.—1. FORM: unchanged, except in pō-meridium, the open space on either side of the city-wall, and pō-meridiānus,⁴ of the afternoon.—2. MEANING: 'after,' 'behind': post-habeo, to place after, have after, esteem less.

Prō, prōd.—1. FORM: prō is the usual form, both before vowels and before consonants; prōd, the original form, is retained in a few words before vowels.—2. MEANING: 'forth,' 'forward,' 'before,' 'for': prōd-eo, to go forth or forward; prō-currō, to run forward; prō-pugnō, to fight in front of, fight for; pro-hibeo, to hold aloof, i. e., out of one's reach, hence to prohibit; prō-mitto, to send forth, to hold out as a promise, to promise.

Sub.—1. FORM: b assimilated before c, f, g, and p, and often before m and r; dropped before sp; in other situations unchanged. The form sube, shortened to sus, occurs in a few words: sus-cipio, sus-pendo.—2. MEANING: 'under,' 'down,' 'from under,' 'up'; 'in place of,' 'secretly'; 'somewhat,' 'slightly':⁵ sub-eo, to go under; sub-labor, to slip down; sub-duco, to draw from under, withdraw; sus-cipio, to undertake; sus-cito, to lift up, arouse;

¹ It is used in several compounds referring to death: inter-eo, to die; inter-ficio, to kill.

² Obs seems to occur in a few words: obs-oliscō, oc-tendo for obs-tendo (b dropped), though these words are sometimes otherwise explained; thus ob-soliscō, as a compound of soliscō from solco.

³ As per-lego, pel-lego; per-licio, pel-licio; but per is preferable.

⁴ For per-jūro.

⁵ Post-meridiānus is also used; pō-meridiānus is not approved, though it occurs.

⁶ As in prōd-eo, prōd-igo, prōd-igus, and before s in the compound of sum: prōd-ce, prōd-est, etc.

⁷ Mostly in adjectives: sub-absurdus, somewhat absurd; sub-dolus, somewhat crafty; sub-impudēns, somewhat impudent; sub-insolens, somewhat odious.

sub-stitū, to put in place of, to substitute; sub-ripio, to take away secretly; sub-rideo, to smile, laugh slightly; sub-difficilis, somewhat difficult.

Trans.—1. FORM: it generally drops s before s, and it often drops n before d, j,¹ l, m, n; it is otherwise unchanged.—2. MEANING: 'across,' 'through,' 'completely': trans-currō, to run across; trā-dūcō, to lead across; trān-silō, to leap across; trān-sigō, to transact; to finish, do completely or thoroughly—lit., to drive through.

6. FORM AND MEANING OF THE INSEPARABLE PREPOSITIONS.—The following facts are added for reference:

Ambi, amb.—1. FORM: amb before vowels; ambi, am, or an,² before consonants.—2. MEANING: 'around,' 'on both sides,' 'in two directions'. amb-ivō, to go round; amb-igō, to act in two ways, move in different directions, to hesitate; am-putō, to cut around or off; an-quirō, to search round.

Dis, di.—1. FORM: dis before c, p, q, t, before s followed by a vowel, and, with assimilation, before f; but dir for dis before a vowel or h; di in most other situations; but both dis and di occur before j.—2. MEANING: 'apart,' 'asunder,' 'between,' sometimes *negative*³ and sometimes intensive: dis-tinō, to hold apart; di-dūcō, to lead apart, divide; dif-fugio, to flee asunder, or in different directions; dir-imō, to take in pieces, destroy; dis-sentiō, to think differently, dissent; di-jūdicō, to judge between; dis-plecō, to displease, not to please; dif-ficilis, difficult, not easy; di-laūdō, to praise highly.

In.—1. FORM: n dropped before gn; otherwise like the preposition in.—2. MEANING: 'not,' 'un': i-gnoscō, not to know, not to recollect, to pardon; in-memor, unmindful; in-imicus, unfriendly.

Por, for port.—1. FORM: r assimilated before l and s; in other situations, por.—2. MEANING: 'forth,' 'forward,' 'near': pol-liceor, to hold forth, offer, promise; pos-sideō, to possess; ⁴ por-rigō, to hold out or forth, to offer.

Red, re.—1. FORM: red before vowels, before h, and in red-dō; re in other situations.—2. MEANING: 'back,' 'again,' 'in return':⁵ red-eō, to go back; re-ficiō, to repair, make again; red-amō, to love in return.

Sed,¹¹ sē.—1. FORM: sēd before vowels; sē before consonants.—2. MEANING: 'apart,' 'aside': sē-cēdō, to go apart, secede; sē-pōnō, to put aside or apart.

NOTE.—For the Composition of Adverbs, see 304, I., 2; 304, II., 1, note; 304, IV., note 2.

¹ Or before t = j or jt; see foot-note 1, p. 20.

² Compare ambō, both, and ἀμφί, around, on both sides.

³ An before c, q, f, and s.

⁴ For amb-ivō.

⁵ Dis-jungo, di-jūdicō.

⁶ Both literally 'apart' in respect to place or position, and figuratively 'apart' in sentiment or opinion.

⁷ Especially in adjectives: dis-par, unequal; dis-similis, unlike.

⁸ Greek πρὸς, πρός, πρός, to, toward; see Curtius, 881.

⁹ To sit near and so to control.

¹⁰ Sometimes negative, not, un-: re-signō, to unseal; re-clūdō, to open.

¹¹ Probably an old ablative of sui and identical with sēd, but.

CHAPTER I.

SYNTAX OF SENTENCES.

I. CLASSIFICATION OF SENTENCES.

345. SYNTAX treats of the construction of sentences.

346. A sentence is a combination of words expressing either a single thought or two or more thoughts.

347. A SIMPLE SENTENCE expresses a single thought:

Deus mundum aedificavit, God made (built) the world. Cic.

348. A COMPLEX SENTENCE expresses one leading thought with one or more dependent thoughts:

Dñeco eris fñlix, multñs numerñbis amñcñs, so long as you shall be prosperous, you will number many friends. Ovid.

NOTE 1.—In this example two simple sentences—(1) 'you will be prosperous,' and (2) 'you will number many friends'—are so united that the first only specifies the time of the second: You will number many friends (when?), so long as you shall be prosperous. The parts thus united are called Clauses or Members.

NOTE 2.—The part of the complex sentence which makes complete sense of itself—multñs numerñbis amñcñs—is called the Principal or Independent Clause; and the part which is dependent upon it—dñeco eris fñlix—is called the Subordinate or Dependent Clause.

349. A COMPOUND SENTENCE expresses two or more independent thoughts:

Sñl ruit et montñs umbrantur, the sun hastens to its setting and the mountains are shaded. Verg.

350. A DECLARATIVE SENTENCE has the form of an assertion:

Miltiadñs accñsñtus est, Miltiades was accused. Nep.

351. AN INTERROGATIVE SENTENCE has the form of a question:

Quis loquitur, who speaks? Ter. Quis nñn paupertñtem extimñscit, who does not fear poverty? Cic. Quid ais, what do you say? Ter. Ecquid¹ animadvertis silentium, do you not notice the silence? Cic. Quālis est oratiō, what kind of an oration is it? Cic. Quot sunt, how many are there? Plaut. Ubi sunt, where are they? Cic. Ubinam gentium sumus, where in the world are we? Cic. Visne fortunam experiri meam, do you wish to try my fortune? Cic. Nōne nobilitari volunt, do they not wish to be renowned? Cic. Num igitur peccāmus, are we then at fault? Cic.

1. INTERROGATIVE WORDS.—Interrogative sentences generally contain some interrogative word—either an interrogative pronoun, adjective, or adverb, or one of the interrogative particles:² -ne, nōne, num; see examples above.

NOTE 1.—Questions with -ne ask for information: Scribitne, 'is he writing?' Ne is sometimes appended to utrum, num, or an, without affecting their meaning, and sometimes inserted in the clause after utrum:

Numne ferre arma debuerunt, ought they to have borne arms? Cic. Utrum taceamne, an praedicem, shall I be silent, or shall I speak? Ter.

NOTE 2.—Questions with nōne expect the answer yes: Nōne scribit, 'is he not writing?'

NOTE 3.—Questions with num expect the answer no: Num scribit, 'is he writing?'

NOTE 4.—For questions with an, see 353, note 4.

2. The particle -ne is always appended to some other word, generally to the emphatic word of the sentence, i. e., to the word upon which the question especially turns; appended to nōn, it forms nōne:

Visne experiri, do you wish to try? Cic. Tūne id veritus es, did you fear this? Cic. Omnine pecūnia solūta est, has ALL the money been paid? Cic. Hocine est (= hocine est?) officium patris, is this the duty of a father? Ter. Unquamne vidisti, have you EVER seen? Cic. Nōne volunt, do they NOT wish? Cic.

3. Sometimes no interrogative word is used, especially in impassioned discourse:

Crēditis, do you believe? Verg. Ego nōn poterō, shall I not be able? Cic.

4. An emphatic tandem, meaning indeed, pray, then, often occurs in interrogative sentences:

Quod genus tandem est istud glōriæ, what kind of glory is that, pray? Cic.

NOTE 1.—Nam, appended to an interrogative, also adds emphasis:

Numnam haec audivit, did he hear this, pray? Ter.

NOTE 2.—For Two Interrogatives in the same clause, and for an Interrogatives with tantus, see 454, 3 and 4.

352. ANSWERS.—Instead of replying to a question of fact with a simple particle meaning yes or no, the Latin usually repeats the verb or some emphatic word, often with prorsus, vērō, and the like, or if negative, with nōn:

Dixitne causam, did he state the cause? Dixit, he stated it. Cic. Possumusne tūti esse, can we be safe? Nōn possumus, we can not. Cic.

¹ Ecquid, though the neuter accusative of an interrogative pronoun, has become in effect a mere particle with the force of nōne.

² See 311, 8, foot-note.

³ See 27, note.

NOTE 1.—Sometimes the simple particle is used—affirmatively, cēnē, etiam, ita, vērō, certē, etc.; negatively, nōn, minimē, etc.

Venitne, has he come? Nōn, no. Plaut.

NOTE 2.—Sometimes, without an actual repetition of the emphatic word, some equivalent expression is used:

Tuum vēstem dēstraxit tibi, did he strip off your coat? Factum, he did—lit., done, for it was done. Ter.

353. DOUBLE or DISJUNCTIVE QUESTIONS offer a choice or alternative, and generally take one of the following forms:

1. The first clause has utrum or -ne, and the second an:

Utrum ea vestra an nostra culpa est, is that your fault or ours? Cic.
Rōmāne veniō an hīc manēō, do I go to Rome, or do I remain here? Cic.

2. The first clause omits the particle, and the second has an, or anne:

Ēloquar an sileam, shall I utter it, or keep silence? Verg. Gabiniō dicam anne Pompēiō, to Gabinius, shall I say, or to Pompey? Cic.

NOTE 1.—Other forms are rare.¹

NOTE 2.—Utrum sometimes stands before a disjunctive question with -ne in the first clause and an in the second:

Utrum, taceamne, an praedicem, which, shall I be silent, or shall I speak? Ter.

NOTE 3.—When the second clause is negative, the particle generally unites with the negative, giving annōn or necne:

Sunt haec tua verba necne, are these your words or not? Cic.

NOTE 4.—By the omission of the first clause, the second often stands alone with an, in the sense of or, implying a negative answer:

An hōc timēmus, or do we fear this? Liv.

NOTE 5.—Disjunctive questions sometimes have three or more members:²

Gabiniō anne Pompēiō an utrique, to Gabinius, or Pompey, or both? Cic.

NOTE 6.—Disjunctive questions inquire which alternative is true. These must be distinguished—

1) From such single questions as inquire whether either alternative is true:

Sōlem dicam aut lūnam deum, *shall I call the sun or the moon a god?*³ Cic.

2) From two separate questions, introduced respectively by num, implying a negative answer, and by an, implying an affirmative answer:

Num furis? an lūdis mē? are you mad? or do you not rather mock me? Hor.

354. AN IMPERATIVE SENTENCE has the form of a command, exhortation, or entreaty:

Iūstitiam cole, cultivate justice. Cic.

355. AN EXCLAMATORY SENTENCE has the form of an exclamation:

Reliquit quōs virōs, what men he has left! Cic.

¹ Thus, in Vergil, -ne occurs in both clauses, also -ne in the first with seu in the second. In Horace, -ne occurs in the second clause with no particle in the first.

² Cicero, in his oration Prō Domō, xxii., 57, has a question of this kind extended to eight clauses, the first introduced by utrum and each of the others by an.

³ Observe that in this sense aut, not an, is used.

NOTE 1.—Many sentences introduced by interrogative pronouns, adjectives, or adverbs may be so spoken as to become exclamatory:

Quibus gaudiis exultabitis, in what joys will you exult! Cic.

NOTE 2.—Some declarative and imperative sentences readily become exclamatory.

NOTE 3.—Exclamatory sentences are often elliptical.

II. ELEMENTS OF SENTENCES.

356. The SIMPLE SENTENCE in its MOST SIMPLE FORM consists of two distinct parts, expressed or implied:

1. The SUBJECT, or that of which it speaks;
2. The PREDICATE, or that which is said of the subject:

Clullius moritur, *Clullius dies.*¹ Liv.

357. The SIMPLE SENTENCE in its MOST EXPANDED FORM consists only of these same parts with their various modifiers:

In his castris Clullius, Albānus rēx, moritur, *Clullius, the Alban king dies in this camp.*² Liv.

1. The subject and predicate of a sentence are called the Principal or Essential elements; their modifiers, the Subordinate elements.

2. The elements, whether principal or subordinate, may be either simple or complex:

1) Simple, when not modified by other words; see 358.

2) Complex, when thus modified; see 359.

358. The SIMPLE SUBJECT of a sentence must be a noun, a pronoun, or some word or words used as a noun:*

Rēx décrēvit, the king decreed. Nep. Ego scribō, I write. Cic. Ībam, I was walking. Hor. Vicimus, we have conquered. Cic. Videō idem valet, the word videō has the same meaning. Quint.

359. The COMPLEX SUBJECT consists of the simple subject with its modifiers:

Populus Rōmānus décrēvit, the Roman people decreed. Cic. Clullius rēx moritur, Clullius the king dies. Liv. Rēx Rutulōrum, the king of the Rutuli. Liv. Liber de officiis, the book on duties. Cic.

NOTE 1.—The subject is thus modified—

1) By an ADJECTIVE: Populus Rōmānus.

2) By a NOUN IN APPPOSITION: Clullius rēx.

3) By a GENITIVE: Rēx Rutulōrum.

4) By a NOUN WITH A PREPOSITION: Liber de officiis.

¹ Here Clullius is the subject, and moritur the predicate.

² Here Clullius, Albānus rēx, is the subject in its enlarged or modified form, and in his castris moritur is the predicate in its enlarged or modified form.

* A pronominal subject is always contained or implied in the personal ending. Thus in in īda-m is a pronominal stem = ego, and is the true original subject of the verb. See also 247; 368, 2, foot-note.

NOTE 2.—A noun or pronoun used to explain or identify another noun or pronoun denoting the same person or thing, is called an Appositive; as Cluilius rex, 'Cluilius the king.'

NOTE 3.—Any noun may be modified like the subject.

NOTE 4.—Sometimes adverbs occur as modifiers of nouns:

Nōn Ignāri sumus ante malōrum, we are not ignorant of FORT misfortunes. Verg.

360. The SIMPLE PREDICATE must be either a verb, or the copula sum with a noun or adjective:

Miltiadēs est acōdātus, Miltiades WAS ACQUIRED. Nep. Tū es testis, you ARE A WITNESS. Cic. Fortūna caeca est, fortune IS BLIND. Cic.

NOTE 1.—Like sum, several other verbs sometimes unite with a noun or an adjective to form the predicate; see 362, 2. A noun or an adjective thus used is called a Predicate Noun or Predicate Adjective.

NOTE 2.—Sum with an adverb sometimes forms the predicate:

Omnia rectē sunt, all things ARE RIGHT. Cic.

361. The COMPLEX PREDICATE consists of the simple predicate with its modifiers:

Miltiadēs Athēnas liberāvit, Miltiades liberated ATHENS. Nep. Labōri student, they devote themselves to LABOR. Caes. Mē rogāvit sententiā, he asked ME MY OPINION. Cic. Pōns iter hostibus dedit, the bridge furnished A PASSAGE TO THE ENEMY. Liv. Bella feliciter gessit, he waged wars UNSUCCESSFULLY. Cic. In his castris moritur, he dies (where?) IN THIS CAMP. Liv. Vere convēnere, they assembled (when?) IN THE SPRING. Liv.

1. The Predicate, when a verb, is thus modified—

1) By an ACCUSATIVE: Athēnas liberāvit.

2) By a DATIVE: Labōri student.

3) By two ACCUSATIVES: Mē rogāvit sententiā.

4) By an ACCUSATIVE and a DATIVE: Iter hostibus dedit.

5) By an ADVERB: Feliciter gessit.

6) By an ADVERBIAL PHRASE: In his castris moritur.

NOTE 1.—Still other modifiers occur with special predicates; see 406, 409, 410, 422.

NOTE 2.—No one predicate admits all the modifiers here given. Thus only transitive verbs admit an Accusative (371); only intransitive verbs, a Dative alone (384, I.); and only special verbs, two Accusatives (374).

2. A PREDICATE NOUN is modified like the subject:

Haec virtūs omnium est rēgina virtūtum, this virtue IS the queen OF ALL VIRTUES. Cic. See also 359, notes 1 and 3.

3. A PREDICATE ADJECTIVE is modified—

1) By an ADVERB: Satis hūmilis est, he IS SUFFICIENTLY humble. Liv.

2) By an OBLIQUE CASE: Avidi laudis fuerunt, they were desirous OF PRAISE. Cic. Omni aetate mors est communis, death IS common TO EVERY AGE. Cic. Digni sunt amicitia, they are worthy OF FRIENDSHIP. Cic.

NOTE.—Any adjective may be modified like the predicate adjective:

Eques Rōmānus satis lītterātus, a Roman knight sufficiently literary. Cic.

CHAPTER II.

SYNTAX OF NOUNS.

SECTION I.

AGREEMENT OF NOUNS.

RULE I.—Predicate Nouns.¹

362. A noun predicated of another noun denoting the same person or thing agrees with it in CASE:²

Brūtus custōs ³ libertātis fuit, Brutus was the GUARDIAN of liberty. Liv. Servius rex est declarātus, Servius was declared KING. Liv. Orestem sē esse dixit, he said that he was ORESTES. Cic. See 360, note 1.

NOTE.—This rule applies also to nouns predicated of pronouns:⁴

Ego sum nūntius, I am a messenger. Liv.

1. A Predicate Noun with different forms for different genders must agree in GENDER as well as in CASE:

Ūsus magister ⁵ est, experience is AN INSTRUCTOR. Cic. Historia est magistra ⁶ (not magister), history is AN INSTRUCTRESS. Cic.

2. PREDICATE NOUNS are most frequent with the following verbs:

1) With sum and a few intransitive verbs—evādō, existō, appareō, and the like:

Homō magnus evāserat, he had become (turned out) A GREAT MAN. Cic. Exstitit vindex libertātis, he became (stood forth) THE DEFENDER of liberty. Cic. See also examples under the rule.

2) With Passive Verbs of appointing, making, naming, regarding, esteeming, and the like:

Servius rex est declarātus, Servius was declared KING. Liv. Mundus civitās existimātur, the world is regarded as A STATE. Cic.

NOTE 1.—In the poets, Predicate Nouns are used with great freedom after verbs of a great variety of significations. Thus with audīo = appellor:

Rex audisti, you have been called KING; i. e., have heard yourself so called. Hor. Ego divūm incedō regina, I walk AS QUEEN of the gods. Verg.

¹ For convenience of reference, the Rules will be presented in a body on page 324.

² For Predicates Gentiles, see 401.

³ In these examples custōs, rex, and Orestem are all predicate nouns, and agree in case respectively with Brūtus, Servius, and sē (536).

⁴ As all substantive pronouns have the construction of nouns; see 182.

⁵ Observe that in Ūsus magister est, the masculine form, magister, is used to agree in gender with Ūsus; while in historia est magistra, the feminine form, magistra, is used to agree in gender with historia.

NOTE 2.—For Predicate Accusatives, see 373, 1.

NOTE 3.—The Dative of the object for which (390), pro with the Ablative, and locus or numerus (or in numerus) with the Genitive, are often kindred in force to Predicate Nouns: hosti, pro hostis, locus hostis, numerus (or in numerus) hostium, 'for an enemy,' or 'as an enemy':

Fuit omnibus donum, it was a BENEFIT (lit., FOR A BENEFIT) to all. Cic. Sicilia nobis pro aerario fuit, Sicily was a TREASURY (FOR A TREASURY) for us. Cic. Quaestori parentis locus fuit, he was a PARENT (lit., IN THE PLACE OF A PARENT) to the questor. Cic. Is tibi parentis numerus fuit, he was a PARENT to you. Cic. See also Predicate Genitive, 401.

3. PREDICATE NOUNS are used not only with finite verbs, but also with INFINITIVES and PARTICIPLES, and sometimes without verb or participle:

Declaratus rex Numa, Numa having been declared king. Liv. Caninius consul, Caninius BEING CONSUL. Cic. See 431, also Orestes under the rule.

NOTE 1.—For a PREDICATE NOMINATIVE after the INFINITIVE esse, see 536, 2, 1).

NOTE 2.—For an INFINITIVE or a CLAUSE instead of a Predicate Noun; see 539; 501.

RULE II.—Appositives.

363. An Appositive agrees in CASE with the noun or pronoun which it qualifies:

Clullius rex moritur, Clullius THE KING dies. Liv. Urbes Karthago atque Numantia, the cities CARTHAGE and NUMANTIA. Cic. Saguntum, foederatam civitatem, expugnavit, he took Saguntum, an allied town. Liv. See 359, note 2.

1. An Appositive with different forms for different genders must agree in GENDER as well as in CASE:

2. An Appositive often agrees with the pronoun implied in the ending of the verb:

*Hostis*² hostem occidere volui, I, AN ENEMY, wished to slay an enemy. Liv.

3. Appositives are kindred in force—

1) Generally to RELATIVE clauses:

Clullius rex, Clullius (who was) THE KING. Liv.

2) Sometimes to other SUBORDINATE clauses,³ as TEMPORAL, CONCESSIVE, etc.:

Furius puer didicit, Furius learned WHEN HE WAS A BOY OR AS A BOY. Cic. Junius aedem dictator dedicavit, Junius dedicated the temple WHEN DICTATOR. Liv.

4. By SYNESIS⁴—a CONSTRUCTION ACCORDING TO SENSE:

² Hostis agrees with ego, implied in volui, 'I wished'; see 358, foot-note.

³ This construction is sometimes called Adverbial Apposition.

⁴ See Figures of Speech, 636, IV., 4.

1) Possessives admit a Genitive in apposition with the Genitive of the pronoun implied in them :

*Tua ipseus*¹ amicitia, your own friendship. Cic. Meum solus peccatum, my fault ALONE. Cic. Nomen meum absentis, my name IN MY ABSENCE. Cic.

2) Locatives admit as an Appositive a Locative Ablative (411, 425), with or without a preposition :

Albae constituerunt in urbe opportuna,² they halted at Alba, A CONVENIENT CITY. Cic. Corinthi, Achaiae urbe, at Corinth, A CITY of Achaia. Tac.

5. CLAUSES.—A noun or pronoun may be in apposition with a clause, or a clause in apposition with a noun or pronoun :

*Nos, id*³ quod debet, patria delectat, our country delights us, as it ought. Cic. *Omnēs interfici jussit, munimentum*⁴ ad praesens, he ordered them all to be put to death, A MEANS OF PROTECTION for the present. Tac. For clauses in apposition with nouns or pronouns, see 499, 3; 501, III.

364. PARTITIVE APPPOSITION.—The parts may be in apposition with the whole, or the whole in apposition with the parts :

Duo reges, ille bellō, hic pace, civitatem auxerunt, two kings advanced the state, THE FORMER by war, the LATTER by peace. Liv. *Ptolemaeus et Cleopatra, reges*⁵ Aegypti, Ptolemy and Cleopatra, RULERS of Egypt. Liv.

SECTION II.

GENERAL VIEW OF CASES.

365. Cases, in accordance with their general force, may be arranged and characterized as follows :

I. Nominative,	Case of the Subject.
II. Vocative,	Case of Address.
III. Accusative,	Case of Direct Object.
IV. Dative,	Case of Indirect Object.
V. Genitive,	Case of Adjective Relations.
VI. Ablative,	Case of Adverbial Relations.*

¹ Ipeus agrees with tui (of you) involved in tua; solus and absentis, with mei involved in meum. The Genitive of ipse, solus, unus, and omnis is often thus used.

² As a Locative Ablative is a genuine Locative in sense, there is no special irregularity here, and in urbe opportuna may be explained as a separate modifier of the verb: 'They halted at Alba, at a convenient city.' Thus explained, it is not an appositive at all.

⁴ In the first example, ille and hic, the parts, are in apposition with reges, the whole; but in the second example, reges, the whole, is in apposition with the parts, Ptolemaeus and Cleopatra.

⁵ This arrangement is adopted in the discussion of the cases, because, it is thought, it will best present the force of the several cases and their relation to each other."

366. The Nominative, Genitive, Dative, Accusative, and Vocative have probably retained with very slight modifications their original force as developed in the mother tongue from which the Latin was derived.¹

367. The Ablative combines within itself the separate offices of three cases which were originally distinct :²

1. The Ablative proper, denoting the relation FROM—the place FROM which.

2. The Locative, denoting the relation IN, AT—the place IN or AT which.

3. The Instrumental, denoting the relation WITH, BY—the instrument or means WITH or BY which.

SECTION III.

NOMINATIVE.—VOCATIVE.

I. NOMINATIVE.

RULE III.—Subject Nominative.

368. The subject of a finite verb is put in the Nominative :³

Servius regnāvit, SERVIVS reigned. Liv. Patent portae, THE GATES are open. Cic. Rēx vicit, THE KING conquered. Liv. Ego rēgēs ējēcī, vōs tyrannōs intrōdūcītis, I have banished kings, you introduce tyrants. Cic.

1. The subject is always a substantive, a pronoun, or some word or clause used substantively ;⁴ see examples under the rule.

2. A pronominal subject is always expressed or implied in the ending of the verb :⁵

¹ That is, in the primitive Indo-European tongue, from which have been derived, either directly or indirectly, not only the Latin, Greek, and Sanskrit, but also the English, French, German, and indeed nearly all the languages of modern Europe. Upon the general subject of Cases, their original formation and meaning, see Bopp, I., pp. 242-519; Merguet, pp. 17-117; Penka, Hübschmann, Holzweissig, Delbrück, and, among the earlier writers, Hartung, 'Ueber die Casus,' etc., and Rumpel, 'Casuslehre.'

² See Delbrück, 'Ablativ, Localls, Instrumentalls.'

³ For the Subject of the Infinitive, see 536. For the Agreement of the verb with its subject, see 460.

⁴ For clauses used substantively, see 540.

⁵ See 247. Thus monēo means I (not you, he, or we, but I) instruct. Indeed, every verb contains a pronominal subject in itself, and in general it is necessary to add a separate subject only when it would otherwise be doubtful to whom the implied pronoun refers. Thus regnāvit, 'he reigned,' is complete of itself, if the context shows to Discipulos moneo¹ ut studia ament, I instruct pupils to love (that THEY may love) their studies. Quint. Non scholae, sed vitae discimus, we learn not for the school, but for life. Sen.

NOTE.—A separate pronominal subject may, however, be added for the sake of clearness, emphasis, or contrast, as in the fourth example under the rule.

3. The verb is sometimes omitted, when it can be readily supplied, especially if it is est or sunt:

Ece tuae litterae, lo your letter (comes). Cic. Tot sententiae, there are (sunt) so many opinions. Ter. Consul profectus (est), the consul set out. Liv.

NOTE 1.—The verb factū is often omitted in short sentences and clauses:

Melius hi, quam vōs, these have done better than you. Cic. Rēctū ille, he does rightly. Cic. Cotta finem, Cotta closed, lit., made an end. Cic. So also in Livy after nihil aliud (amplius, minus, etc.) quam, 'nothing other (more, less, etc.) than' = 'merely'; nihil praeterquam, 'nothing except' = 'merely': Nihil aliud quam steterunt, they merely stood (did nothing other than). Liv.

NOTE 2.—Certain forms of expression often dispense with the verb:

Quid, what? quid enim, what indeed? quid ergo, what then? quid quod, what of the fact that? quid plura, why more, or why shall I say more? nō plura, not to say more; nō multa, not to say much; quid hōc ad mē, what is this to me? nihil ad rem, nothing to the subject.

NOTE 3.—For the Predicate Nominative, see 362.

NOTE 4.—For the Nominative as an Appositive, see 363.

NOTE 5.—For the Nominative in Exclamations, see 381, note 3.

II. VOCATIVE.

RULE IV.—Case of Address.

369. The name of the person or thing addressed is put in the Vocative:

Perge, Laeli, proceed, LAELIUS. Cic. Quid est, Catiline, why is it, CATILINE? Cic. Tuum est, Servi, rēgnum, the kingdom is yours, SERVIUS. Liv. O dī immortalēs, O immortal gods. Cic.

1. An Interjection may or may not accompany the Vocative.

2. In poetry, and sometimes in prose, the Nominative in apposition with the subject occurs where we should expect the Vocative:

Audi tū, populus Albānus, hear ye, ALBAN PEOPLE. Liv.

3. Conversely, the Vocative by attraction sometimes occurs in poetry where we should expect the Nominative:

Quibus, Hector, ab orīs expectāte venis, from what shores, Hector, do you anxiously awaited come? Verg. Macte novā virtūte, puer, a blessing on your new valor, boy (lit., be enlarged by; supply estō). Verg.

whom the pronoun he refers; if not, the noun must be added: Servius rēgnāvit, lit., he, Servius, reigned, or Servius, he reigned. In the fourth example under the rule, ego and vōs, though already implied in the form of the verb, are expressed for emphasis. In impersonal verbs the subject 'it,' in English, is implied in the personal ending t.

SECTION IV.

ACCUSATIVE.

370. The Accusative is used¹—

- I. As the Direct Object of an Action;
- II. In an Adverbial Sense—with or without Prepositions;
- III. In Exclamations—with or without Interjections.

NOTE 1.—For the Predicate Accusative, see 362 and 373, 1.

NOTE 2.—For the Accusative in Apposition, see 363.

NOTE 3.—For the Accusative with Prepositions, see 433.

NOTE 4.—For the Accusative as the Subject of an Infinitive, see 536.

I. ACCUSATIVE AS DIRECT OBJECT.

RULE V.—Direct Object.

371. The Direct Object of an action is put in the Accusative:

Deus mundum aedificāvit, God made (built) THE WORLD. Cic. Libera rem publicam, free THE REPUBLIC. Cic. Populi Rōmāni salutē defendite, defend THE SAFETY of the Roman people. Cic.

I. The DIRECT OBJECT may be—

1. An External Object, the person or thing on which the action of the verb is directly exerted, as salutē above.

2. An Internal Object; i. e., one already contained or implied in the action itself. This embraces two varieties:

1) In a STRICT SENSE, the Cognate Accusative, an object having a meaning cognate or kindred to that of the verb:

Servitūtem servīre,² to serve in bondage (lit., to serve A SERVITUDE). Ter.

2) In a FREER SENSE, the Accusative of Effect, the object produced by the action:

Librum scribere, to write A BOOK. Cic.

NOTE.—Participles in duo, verbal adjectives in bundus, and in Plautus a few verbal nouns, occur with the accusative:

Vitābundus castra, avoiding the camp. Liv. Quid tibi hanc cūratiōst (cūratiō est)? rem = cūr hanc rem cūrās, what care have you of this? Plaut.

¹ The Accusative is probably the oldest of all the oblique cases known to our family of languages, and was therefore originally the sole modifier of the verb, expressing in a vague and general way several relations now recognized as distinct. This theory accounts for the great variety of constructions in which the Accusative is used in Latin. See Curtius, 'Zur Chronologie,' pp. 71-74; Holzweissig, pp. 84-88.

² The pupil will observe that the idea of servitūtem, 'servitude,' 'service,' is contained in the verb servīre, 'to serve,' 'to be a slave or servant.'

³ See 27, note.

II. The COGNATE ACCUSATIVE is generally—(1) a noun with an adjective or other modifier, or (2) a neuter pronoun or adjective. It is used quite freely both with transitive and with intransitive verbs, and sometimes even with verbs in the passive voice:

Eam vitam vivere, to live that LIFE. Cic. Mirum somniare somnium, to dream a wonderful DREAM. Plaut. *Eadem peccat, he makes THE SAME MISTAKES.*¹ Cic. Hoc studet unum, he studies this ONE THING (this one study). Hor. Perfidum ridens Venus, Venus smiling A PERFIDIOUS SMILE. Hor. Id assentior, I assent to THIS (I give THIS assent). Cic. Idem gloriari, to make THE SAME ROAST. Cic. Quid possunt, HOW powerful are they, or WHAT power have they? Caes. *Ea monemur, we are admonished OF THESE THINGS.*² Cic. Nihil moti sunt, they were NOT AT ALL moved. Liv.

NOTE.—Here may be mentioned the following kindred constructions:

Vox hominem sonat, the voice sounds HUMAN. Verg. Saltare Cyclopa, to dance THE CYCLOPS. Hor. Longam viam ire, to go A LONG WAY. Verg. Bellum pugnare, to fight A BATTLE. Verg.

III. SPECIAL VERBS.—Many verbs of FEELING or EMOTION, of TASTE and SMELL, admit the Accusative:

Honores desperat, he despairs of HONORS. Cic. Haec gemebant, they were sighing over THESE THINGS. Cic. Detrimenta ridet, he laughs at LOSSES. Hor. Olet unguenta, he has the odor of PERFUMES. Ter. Oratio redolet antiquitatem, the oration smacks of ANTIQUITY. Cic.

NOTE 1.—Such verbs are: desperō, to despair of; doleō, to grieve for; gemo, to sigh over; horreo, to shudder at; lacrimō, to weep over; maereo, to mourn over; miror, to wonder at; rideō, to laugh at; sistō, to thirst for, etc.; oleō, to have the odor of; sapio, to savor of, whether used literally or figuratively.³

NOTE 2.—Many verbs in Latin, as in English, are sometimes transitive and sometimes intransitive; see augeō, dūro, incipio, lazo, ruo, suppedito, turbo, etc., in the Dictionary.

NOTE 3.—Many verbs which are usually rendered by transitive verbs in English are intransitive in Latin, and thus admit only an indirect object or some special construction; see 385.

NOTE 4.—The object of a transitive verb is often omitted, when it can be easily supplied: moveo = moveo mē, 'I move (myself)'; vertit = vertit sē, 'he turns (himself)':

Castris nōn movit, he did not move from his camp. Liv. Jam verterat fortuna, fortune had already changed. Liv.

NOTE 5.—For the Passive Construction, see 464.

IV. An INFINITIVE or a CLAUSE may be used as Direct Object:

Imperare cupiunt, they desire TO RULE. Just. Opto ut id audiātis, I desire THAT YOU MAY HEAR THIS. Cic.

¹ Peccat, 'he makes a mistake'; idem peccat, 'he makes the same mistake,' where idem represents idem peccatum.

² Literally, we are admonished THESE THINGS, i. e., these admonitions.

³ Observe that with the Accusative desperō means not 'to despair,' but 'to despair of,' and is accordingly transitive; doleō, not 'to grieve,' but 'to grieve for,' etc. With some of the verbs here given the object is properly a Cognate Accusative.

372. Many COMPOUNDS of intransitive verbs with prepositions, especially compounds of verbs of motion with circum, per, praeter, trans, and super, take the Accusative:

Murmur contionem pervasit, a murmur went through THE ASSEMBLY. Liv. Rhenum transierunt, they crossed (went across) THE RHINE. Caes. Circumstant senatum, they stand around THE SENATE. Cic. Hereditatem obire, to enter upon the INHERITANCE. Cic. Eas nationes adire, to go to those NATIONS. Caes. Undam innatare, to float upon THE WAVE. Verg. Tela exire,¹ to avoid THE WEAPONS. Verg. Gallös praecedunt, they surpass THE GAULS. Caes.

RULE VI.—Two Accusatives—Same Person.

373. Verbs of MAKING, CHOOSING, CALLING, REGARDING, SHOWING, and the like, admit two Accusatives of the same person or thing:

Hamilearem imperatorem fecerunt, they made Hamilcar COMMANDER. Nep. Ancum regem populus creavit, the people elected Ancus KING. Liv. Summum consilium appellarunt Senatum, they called their highest council SENATE. Cic. Se praestitit propugnatorem libertatis, he showed himself THE CHAMPION of liberty. Cic. Flaccum habuit collegam, he had Flaccus AS COLLEAGUE. Nep. Socrates totius mundi se civem arbitrabatur, Socrates considered himself A CITIZEN of the whole world. Cic.

1. PREDICATE ACCUSATIVE.—One of the two Accusatives is the Direct Object, and the other an essential part of the Predicate. The latter may be called a Predicate Accusative; see 362.

NOTE 1.—Habeo, 'to have,' admits two Accusatives, but when it means 'to regard,' it usually takes, instead of the Predicate Accusative, the Dative of the object for which (384), the Ablative with in or pro, or the Genitive with loci, numeri or in numeri: ludibrio habere, 'to regard as an object of ridicule'; pro hoste habere, in hostibus habere, loco hostium habere, numero or in numero hostium habere, 'to regard as an enemy.' These constructions also occur with other verbs meaning to regard:

Ea honori habent, they regard these things AS AN HONOR. Sall. Illum pro hoste habere, to regard him AS AN ENEMY. Caes. Jam pro facto habere, to regard it AS already DONE. Cic. In hostium numero habuit, he regarded them AS ENEMIES (lit., in the number of, etc.). Caes. Me pro deridiculo putat, he regards me AS AN OBJECT OF RIDICULE. Ter.

NOTE 2.—The Predicate Accusative is sometimes an adjective:

Hominés caecis reddit avaritia, avarice renders men BLIND. Cic. Templa deorum sancta habebat, he regarded the temples of the gods AS SACRED. Nep.

2. In the PASSIVE these verbs take two Nominatives—a Subject and a Predicate—corresponding to the two Accusatives of the Active:

Servius rex est declaratus, Servius was declared KING. Liv. See also 362, 2.

¹ Observe that an intransitive verb may become transitive by being compounded with a preposition which does not take the Accusative.

RULE VII.—Two Accusatives—Person and Thing.

374. Some verbs of ASKING, DEMANDING, TEACHING, and CONCEALING, admit two Accusatives—one of the person and the other of the thing:

Mē sententiam rogāvit, he asked me MY OPINION. Cic. Philosophia nōs res omnēs docuit, philosophy has taught us all THINGS. Cic. Auxilia rēgem ōrābant, they asked AUXILIARIES from the king. Liv. Pacem tē poscimus, we demand PEACE of you. Verg. Nōn tē cēlāvi sērmōnem, I did not conceal from you THE CONVERSATION. Cic.

1. In the PASSIVE the PERSON becomes the subject, and the Accusative of the thing is retained:

Mē sententiam rogāvit, he asked me MY OPINION. Cic. Ego sententiam rogātus sum, I was asked MY OPINION. Cic. Artēs edōctus fuerat, he had been taught THE ARTS. Liv.

2. Two ACCUSATIVES are generally used with cēlō, doceō, edoceō; often with rogō, poscō, reposcō; sometimes with dedoceō, exposcō, flagitō, ōrō, etc., cōsultō, interrogō, percontor; rarely with monēō, admonēō, and postulō.

NOTE 1.—Cēlō, 'to conceal,' takes—(1) in the Active generally two Accusatives, as under the rule, but sometimes the Accusative of the person and the Ablative of the thing with dē; (2) in the Passive, the Accusative of a neuter pronoun or the Ablative with dē:

Mē hōc librō cēlāvit, he kept me ignorant of this book. Cic. Id cēlāri, to be kept ignorant of THIS. Nep. Cēlāri dē cōsiliō, to be kept ignorant of THE PLAN. Cic.

NOTE 2.—Docēō and edocēō generally follow the rule,¹ but sometimes they take the Accusatives of the person and the Ablatives of the thing with or without dē,² and sometimes the *Accusative*³ of the person with the Infinitive or a Subjunctive Clause:

Dē suā rē mē docet, he informs me in REGARD to his CASE. Cic. Litteris Græcis dōctus, instructed in Greek LITERATURE. Sall. Sōcratem fīdibus³ docuit, he taught Socrates (with) THE LYRE. Cic. Tū sapere docet, he teaches you to BE WISE. Cic.

NOTE 3.—Most verbs of asking and demanding sometimes take two Accusatives, but verbs of asking, questioning, generally take the Accusative of the *person*⁴ and the Ablative of the *thing*⁴ with dē, and verbs of imploping, demanding, generally the Accusative of the *thing*⁴ and the Ablative of the *person*⁴ with ā or ab:

Tū hīs dē rēbus interrogō, I ask you in REGARD to these THINGS. Cic. Victōriam ā dīs exposcere, to implore victory FROM THE GODS. Caes. Id ā eō flagitāre, to demand this FROM HIM. Caes.

¹ Other verbs of teaching—eruditō, inatitūō, informō, instruo, etc.—generally take the Ablative of the thing with or without a preposition, as in or dē; see Dictionary.

² Docēō, in the sense of inform, takes dē with the Ablative.

³ The Accusative may be omitted. With fīdibus supply canere.

⁴ The Accusative or Ablative of the person is often omitted, and a clause often takes the place of the Accusative or Ablative of the thing. For examples and for special constructions, see, in the Dictionary, cōsultō, interrogō, rogō; also flagitō, ōrō, poscō, exposcō, and reposcō.

NOTE 4.—Peto and postulo generally take the Accusative of the thing¹ and the Ablative of the person with à or ab; quaero, the Accusative of the thing¹ and the Ablative of the person with à or ex, à, ab, or dè:

Pacem ab Romanis petierunt, they asked peace FROM THE ROMANS. Caes. Aliquid ab amicis postulare, to demand something FROM FRIENDS. Cic. Querit ex eodè ea, etc., he asks OF HIM IN PRIVATE (from him alone) those questions, etc. Caes.

375. A NEUTER PRONOUN OR ADJECTIVE as a *Cognate*² Accusative occurs in connection with a Direct Object with many verbs which do not otherwise take two Accusatives:

Hic tē hortor, I exhort you to THIS, I give you THIS exhortation. Cic. Es monemur, we are admonished OF THESE THINGS. Cic. So with velle, Caes., B. G. I., 34.

376. A few COMPOUNDS of trans, circum, and ad admit two Accusatives, dependent the one upon the verb, the other upon the preposition:

Ibèrum cōpiās trājecit, he led his forces across THE EBRO. Liv. Animum adverti columellam, I noticed (turned my mind to) A SMALL COLUMN. Cic.

NOTE.—In the Passive these compounds and some others admit an Accusative depending upon the preposition:

Prætervehor ðetta Pantaglae, I am carried by THE MOUTH OF the Pantaglae. Verg. Locum sum prætervectus, I have been carried by THE PLACE. Cic.

377. In POETRY, rarely in prose, verbs of clothing, unclothing—induo, exuo, cingo, accingo, induco, etc.—are sometimes used reflexively in the Passive, like the Greek Middle, and thus admit an Accusative:

Galeam induitur, he puts on HIS HELMET. Verg. Inutile ferrum cingitur, he girds on HIS useless sword. Verg. Virginēs longam indutæ vèstem, maidens attired in long ROBES. Liv.

NOTE.—A few other verbs sometimes admit a similar construction in the poets:

Antiquum saturata doliorem, having satisfied her old RESENTMENT. Verg. Suspensæ loculis lacertō, with SATCHELS hung upon the arm (having hung, etc.). Hos. Pascuntur silvæ, they browse on THE FORESTS. Verg.

II. ACCUSATIVE IN AN ADVERBIAL SENSE.

RULE VIII.—Accusative of Specification.

378. A verb or an adjective may take an Accusative to define its application:⁴

¹ The Ablative of the person is often omitted, and, instead of the Accusative of the thing, a clause is often used. With postulo and quaero the Ablative with dè occurs. For examples and for other special constructions, see Dictionary.

² See 371, II.

³ As a rare exception, mones admits a noun as the Accusative of the thing; see Plant., Stich., 1, 2, 1.

⁴ The Accusative of Specification is closely related to the Cognate Accusative and to the Poetic Accusative after Passive verbs used reflexively, both of which readily pass into an adverbial construction. Thus capita in capita vèlāmur and galeam in galeam Capita vēlāmur, we have OUR HEADS veiled (are veiled as to OUR HEADS, or have veiled OUR HEADS). Verg. Nūbe humerōs amictus, with HIS SHOULDERS enveloped in a cloud. Hor. Miles frāctus membra labōre, the soldier with LIMBS shattered with labor (broken as to his limbs). Hor. Aenēās ōs deō similis, Aeneas like a god in APPEARANCE. Verg.

1. In a strict sense, the Accusative of Specification generally specifies the part to which the action or quality particularly belongs. In this sense, it is mostly poetic, but occurs also in prose. See Ablative of Specification, 424.

2. In a freer sense, this Accusative includes the adverbial use of partem, vicem, nihil, of id and genus in id temporis, id aetatis (at this time, age), id genus,¹ omne genus, quod genus (for ejus generis, etc.), etc.; also of secus, res, and of many neuter pronouns and adjectives—hōc, illud, id, quid (454, 2), multum, summum, cetera, reliqua, etc. In this sense, it is common in prose:

Maximam partem lacte vivunt, they live mostly (as to the largest PART) upon milk. Caes. Locus id temporis vacuus erat, the place was AT THIS TIME vacant. Cic. Aliquid id genus scribere, to write something OF THIS KIND. Cic. Aliās res est improbus, IN OTHER THINGS (as to the rest) he is unprincipled. Plaut. Quaerit, quid possint, he inquires HOW powerful they are. Caes. Quid vēnistī, WHY have you come? Plaut.

RULE IX.—Accusative of Time and Space.

379. DURATION OF TIME and EXTENT OF SPACE are expressed by the Accusative:

Rōmulus septem et trīgintā rēgnāvit annōs, Romulus reigned thirty-seven YEARS. Liv. Cyrus quadrāgintā annōs nātus rēgnāre coepit, Cyrus began to reign (when) forty YEARS old (having been born forty YEARS). Cic. Quinque milia passuum ambulare, to walk five MILES. Cic. Pedēs octōgintā distāre, to be eighty FEET distant. Caes. Nix quattuor pedēs alta, snow four FEET deep. Liv. But—

1. DURATION OF TIME is sometimes expressed by the Ablative, or by the Accusative with a preposition:

Pugnātum est hōris quinque, the battle was fought five HOURS. Caes. Per annōs viginti certātum est, the war was waged FOR twenty YEARS. Liv.

2. DISTANCE is sometimes expressed by the Ablative:

Milibus passuum sex a Caesaris castris cōnsēdit, he encamped AT THE DISTANCE OF six MILES from Caesar's camp. Caes.

NOTE.—Ab used adverbially, meaning off, sometimes accompanies the Ablative:

Ab milibus passuum duobus castra posuerunt, they pitched their camp two miles OFF. Caes.

induitur are similar constructions, while quid in quaerit quid possint may be explained either as a Cognate Accusative (371, I., 2) or as an Adverbial Accusative.

¹ Some grammarians treat genus in all such cases as an Appositive: aliquid, id genus, something, this kind: see Draeger, I., p. 2.

RULE X.—Accusative of Limit.

380. The PLACE TO WHICH is designated by the Accusative:¹

I. Generally with a preposition—ad or in :

Legiōnēs ad urbem addūcit, he is leading the legions TO or TOWARD THE CITY. Cic. Ad mē scribunt, they are writing TO ME. Cic. In Asiam redit, he returns INTO ASIA. Nep. Cōfūgit in aram, he fled TO THE ALTAR. Nep.

II. In names of towns without a preposition :

Nūntius Rōmān redit, the messenger returns TO ROME. Liv. Platō Tarentum vēnit, Plato came TO TARENTUM. Cic. Fūgit Tarquinios, he fled TO TARQUINIUS. Cic. But—

NOTE.—Verbs meaning to collect, to come together, etc.—convenio, cogo, conoco, etc.—are usually treated as verbs of motion, and thus take the Accusative, generally with a preposition; but verbs meaning to place—loco, colloco, pono, etc.—are usually treated as verbs of rest, and thus take the Ablative (425), generally with a preposition:

Unum in locum convenire, to meet IN one PLACE. Caes. Cōpiās in unum locum cōgere, to collect forces IN one PLACE. Caes. In alterius manū vitam pōnere, to place one's life IN the hand of another. Cic.

1. In the NAMES OF TOWNS the Accusative with ad occurs—(1) to denote to, toward, in the direction of, into the vicinity of, and (2) in contrast with ā or ab :

Trēs sunt viæ ad Mutinam, there are three roads TO MUTINA. Cic. Ad Zamam pervēnit, he came TO THE VICINITY OF ZAMA. Sall. Ā Dianio ad Sinōpēn, from Dianium TO SINOPE. Cic.

2. Like NAMES OF TOWNS are used—

1) The Accusatives domum, domos, rūs :

Scipiō domum reductus est, Scipio was conducted HOME. Cic. Domos abducti, led TO THEIR HOMES. Liv. Rūs evolāre, to hasten INTO THE COUNTRY. Cic. Domum reditiō, a return HOME. Caes.

2) Sometimes the Accusative of names of islands and peninsulas :

Lātōna cōfūgit Delum, Latona fled TO DELOS. Cic. Pervēnit Chersonesum, he went TO THE CHERSONESUS. Nep.

3) Rarely a few other Accusatives, as exsequiās, infitiās, etc. :²

Ille infitiās ibit, he will deny (will proceed TO a DENIAL). Ter.

3. The preposition is sometimes omitted before names of countries, and, in the poets, before names of nations and even before common nouns :

¹ Originally the place to which was uniformly designated by the Accusative without a preposition. Names of towns have retained the original construction, while most other names of places have assumed a preposition.

² See also the Supine in um, 546.

Aegyptum profugit, he fled to EGYPT. Cic. Italiam venit, he came to ITALY. Verg. Ibimus Africā, we shall go to the AFRICANS. Verg. Lavinia venit litora, he came to the Lavinian shores. Verg.

4. A POETICAL DATIVE occurs for the Accusative, with or without a preposition:

It clāmor caelō (for ad caelum), the shout ascends to HEAVEN. Verg. Faci- lis descensus Avernō, easy is the descent to HADES. Verg. See 385, 4.

III. ACCUSATIVE IN EXCLAMATIONS.

RULE XL—Accusative in Exclamations.

381. The Accusative, either with or without an interjection, may be used in exclamations:

Hæu mē miserum, AH ME unhappy! Cic. *Mē miserum, ME miserable!*¹ Cic. O fallācem spem, O deceptive HOPE! Cic. Mē caecum, blind that I am! Cic. Prō deōrum fidem, IN THE NAME of the gods! Cic. *Hancine audāciam, this AUDACITY?*² Cic. But—

NOTE 1.—An adjective or Genitive generally accompanies this Accusative, as in the examples.

NOTE 2.—Ō, hæu, and hæu are the interjections most frequently used with the Accusative, though others occur.

NOTE 3.—Other cases also occur in exclamations:

1) The Vocative—when an address as well as an exclamation is intended:

Prō sancte Juppiter, O holy JUPITER. Cic. Infelix Dido, unhappy Dido. Verg.

2) The Nominative—when the exclamation approaches the form of a statement:

En dextra, LO THE RIGHT HAND (there is, or that is the right hand)! Verg. Ecce tuas litteras, LO your LETTER (comes)! Cic.

3) The Dative—to designate the person after et, vae, and sometimes after ecce, en, hem:³

En mihī, WON TO ME. Verg. Vae tibi, WON TO YOU. Ter. Ecce tibi, LO TO YOU (lo here is to you = observe). Cic. En tibi, THIS FOR YOU (lo I do this for you). Liv.

SECTION V.

DATIVE.

² The exclamation may of course be interrogative in character.

³ This is an Ethical Dative; see 389.

⁴ The Indirect Object is generally a person, or something personified. Unlike the Direct Object, it is never contained in the action or produced by it, but is in most instances the interested recipient of it.

⁵ Whether this was the original meaning of the Dative is not known. Delbrück

383. The Dative is used—

- I. With a large class of Verbs and Adjectives ;
- II. With a few special Nouns and Adverbs.

RULE XII.—Dative with Verbs.

384. The INDIRECT OBJECT of an action is put in the Dative. It is used—

- I. With INTRANSITIVE and PASSIVE Verbs :

Tibi servio, I am devoted to you. Plaut. Serviunt populo, they are devoted to the people. Cic. Imperio parebant, they were obedient to (obeyed) authority. Caes. Tempori cedit, he yields to the time. Cic. Labori student, they devote themselves to labor. Caes. *Mundus deo pareat, the world obeys God.*¹ Cic. *Caesari supplicabo, I will supplicate Caesar.*¹ Cic. Nobis vita data est, life has been granted to us. Cic. Numitori deditur, he is delivered to Numitor. Liv.

- II. With TRANSITIVE Verbs, in connection with the DIRECT OBJECT :

Agrös plebi dedit, he gave lands to the common people. Cic. Tibi gratias ago, I give thanks to you. Cic. Natura hominem conciliat homini, Nature reconciles man to man. Cic. Pons iter hostibus dedit, the bridge gave a passage to the enemy. Liv. Leges civitatibus suis scripserunt, they prepared laws for their states. Cic.

1. The INDIRECT OBJECT may be—

- 1) The DATIVE OF INFLUENCE,² designating the person to whom something is or is done :

Serviunt populo, they are devoted to the people. Cic. Agrös plebi dedit, he gave lands to the common people. Cic.

- 2) The DATIVE OF INTEREST,² designating the person for whom something is or is done :

Sibi Megarensës vicit, he conquered the Megarians for himself. Just.

- 3) The DATIVE OF PURPOSE or END,² designating the object or end for which something is or is done :

Receptui cecinit, he gave the signal for a retreat. Liv.

thinks that this case originally designated the place or object toward which the action tended. See Kuhn's 'Zeitschrift,' vol. xviii., p. 81.

¹ Is subject to God ; will make supplication to Caesar.

² Observe that the Dative of Influence is very closely connected with the verb, and is, in fact, essential to the completeness of the sentence ; while the Dative of Interest and the Dative of Purpose are merely added to sentences which would be complete without them. Thus Megarensës vicit is complete in itself.

2. DOUBLE CONSTRUCTION.—A few verbs admit—(1) the Dative of the person and the Accusative of the thing, or (2) the Accusative of the person and the Ablative of the thing: alicui rem dōnāre, 'to present a thing to any one,' or aliquem rē dōnāre, 'to present any one with a thing':¹

Prædam militibus dōnat, he gives the booty TO THE SOLDIERS. Caes. Athēniensēs frumentō dōnavit, he presented the Athenians WITH GRAIN. Nep.

NOTE.—This construction may also be used of objects which are in a measure personified, or which involve persons:

Mūrum urbi circumdedit, he built a wall around THE CITY. Nep. Deus animum circumdedit corpore, God has encompassed the soul WITH A BODY. Cic.

3. To and for are not always signs of the Dative. Thus—

1) To, denoting mere motion or direction, is generally expressed by the Accusative with or without a preposition (380):

Veni ad urbem, I came TO THE CITY. Cic. Delum vēnimus, we came TO DELOS. Cic.

NOTE 1.—But the Dative occurs in the poets; see 380, 4, and 385, 4.

NOTE 2.—Mitto, 'to send,' and scribo, 'to write,' take the Dative, or the Accusative with ad, to denote the person to whom:

Scribit Labiēnō, he writes TO LABIENUS. Caes. Scribēs ad mē, you will write TO ME. Cic.

2) For, in defence of, in behalf of, is expressed by the Ablative with pro; for the sake of, for the purpose of, sometimes by the Accusative with in:

Pro patriā mori, to die FOR ONE'S COUNTRY. Hor. Dimicāre pro libertate, to fight FOR LIBERTY. Cic. Satis in usum, enough FOR USE. Liv.

4. The Dative sometimes depends, not upon the verb alone, but upon the Predicate as a whole:

Tegimenta galeis militēs facere jubet, he orders the soldiers to make coverings FOR THEIR HELMETS. Caes. Liberis divitēs esse volumus, we wish to be rich FOR THE SAKE OF OUR CHILDREN. Cic. Quis huic rēi testis est, who testifies TO THIS (lit., is a witness FOR this thing). Cic.

NOTE 1.—The Dative is used with verbs modified by cattē, bonē, and malē, whether written as compounds or not:

Illis satis facere (also written satisfacere), to satisfy THEM.² Caes. Cui bene dixit unquam, FOR WHOM has he ever spoken a good word? Cic. Optimō virō maledicere, to revile a most excellent man. Cic.

NOTE 2.—A Dative is sometimes thus added to the predicate when the English idiom would lead us to expect a Genitive depending upon a noun:

In cōspectum vēnerat hostibus,⁴ he had come in sight OF THE ENEMY (lit., TO THE

² Galeis is best explained as depending upon tegimenta facere, rather than upon facere alone; liberis, as depending upon divitēs esse volumus, and rēi upon testis est.

³ Literally, to do enough FOR THEM.

⁴ Hostibus does not depend at all upon cōspectum, but upon the entire predicate, in cōspectum vēnerat.

ENEMY). Cic. Caesari ad pedes proicere, to cast at the feet OF CAESAR (lit., TO CAESAR, at the feet). Caes. Mihi horror membra quatit, a shudder shakes my limbs. Verg. Urbi fundamenta iacere, to lay the foundations of (for) the city. Liv.

NOTE 3.—The Dative is sometimes very loosely connected with the predicate, merely designating the person with reference to whom the statement is true:

Tu illi pater es, you are a father to HIM. Tac. Tridui iter expeditis erat, it was a journey of three days FOR LIGHT-ARMED SOLDIERS. Liv. Est urbe egraeis tumulus, there is a mound as you go out of the city.¹ Verg.

5. WITH IMPERSONAL PASSIVE.—Verbs which admit only an Indirect Object in the Active are Impersonal in the Passive, but they may retain the Dative:

Hostibus resistunt, they resist THE ENEMY. Caes. His sententiis resistitur, resistance is offered to these OPINIONS. Caes. Nō mihi nocent, that they may not injure ME. Cic. Mihi nihil noceri potest, no injury can be done to ME (lit., injury can be done to ME not at all). Cic.

385. WITH SPECIAL VERBS.—The Dative of the Indirect Object is used with many verbs which require special mention. Thus—

I. With verbs signifying to benefit or injure, please or displease, command or obey, serve or resist, and the like:

Sibi prorsunt, they benefit THEMSELVES. Cic. Nocere alteri, to injure ANOTHER. Cic. Zenoni placuit, it pleased ZENO. Cic. Displicet Tullio, it displeases TULLUS. Liv. Cupiditatibus imperare, to command desires. Cic. Deo parere, to obey God. Cic. Rēgi servire, to serve the king. Cic. Hostibus resistere, to resist the enemy. Caes.

II. With verbs signifying to indulge, spare, pardon, threaten, believe, persuade, and the like:

Sibi indulgere, to indulge ONE'S SELF. Cic. Vitae parcere, to spare LIFE. Nep. Mihi ignoscere, to pardon ME. Cic. Minitans patriae, threatening his country. Liv. Irasci amicis, to be angry with friends. Cic. Mihi credere, believe me. Cic. Iis persuadere, to persuade them. Caes.

NOTE 1.—Some verbs of this class take the Accusative: dilecto, juvo, laedo, offendo, etc.:

Marium jūvit, he helped Marius. Nep. Nōn mē fama dēlectat, fame does not delight me. Cic.

NOTE 2.—For fido and confido with the Ablative, see 425, 1, 1), note.

NOTE 3.—The force of the Dative is often found only by attending to the strict meaning of the verb : nūbo, 'to marry' (strictly, to veil one's self, as the bride for the bridegroom); medeor, 'to cure' (to administer a remedy to); satisfacio, 'to satisfy' (to do enough for), etc.

¹ Other examples are: Ā Pylis eunti loco altō siti sunt, they are situated in an elevated place as you come (lit., to one coming) from Pylas. Liv. Dēscendentibus inter duos lūcos, as you descend (lit., to those descending) between the two groves. Liv. Exscendentibus ad templum māceria erat, there was an enclosure as you ascended to the temple. Liv. In universum aestimanti plus penes peditum rōboris est, to make a general estimate (lit., to one making, etc.), there is more strength in the infantry. Tac.

1. Some verbs admit either the Accusative or the Dative, but with a difference of meaning :

Cavere aliquem, to ward off some one; cavere alicui, to care for some one.

Consulere aliquem, to consult, etc.; alicui, to consult for, etc.

Metuere, timere aliquem, to fear; alicui, to fear for.

Prospicere, providere aliquid, to foresee; alicui, to provide for.

Temperare, moderari aliquid, to govern, direct; alicui (of things), to restrain, put a check upon; temperare alicui (of persons), to spare.¹

Hunc tū caveto, be on your guard against this one (lit., ward him off).

Hor. Et cavere volo, I wish to care for him (i. e., to protect him). Cic. Perfidiam timemus, we fear perfidy. Cic. Sibi timuerant, they had feared for themselves. Caes.

NOTE.—Dare litteras ad aliquem means to address a letter to some one; but dare litteras alicui generally means to deliver a letter to one as a carrier or messenger:

Litterae mihi ad Catilinam datae sunt, a letter addressed to Catiline was delivered to me. Cic.

2. A DATIVE rendered from occurs with a few verbs of differing, dissenting, repelling, taking away, etc.:

Differre cuius, to differ from any one. Nep. Sibi dissentire, to dissent from himself. Cic. Somnum mihi adimere, to take sleep from me. Cic.

NOTE.—For the Poetical Datives, see 4, below; and for the Ablative with verbs of Separation or Difference, see 413.

3. A DATIVE rendered with occurs with miscere, admiscere, etc., and sometimes with facio:

Severitatem miscere comitati, to unite severity with affability. Liv. Quid huic homini facias, what are you to do with (to) this man? Cic. See 4 below.

4. DATIVE IN POETRY.—In the poets and in late prose-writers, the Dative is used much more freely than in classical prose. Thus it occurs with more or less frequency with the following classes of verbs:

1) With verbs denoting Motion or Direction—for the Accusative with ad or in:

Multos demittimus Orcō (for ad or in Orcum), we send many down to Orcus. Verg. Caelō (for ad caelum) palmas tetendit, he extended his hands toward heaven. Verg. It clamor caelō, the shout goes to heaven. Verg. See also 392, I.

2) With verbs denoting Separation or *Difference*²—instead of the Ablative with ab or a, or the Accusative with inter:

Solstitium pecori (for a pecore) defendite, keep off the heat from the flock. Verg. Scurrae distabit amicus, a friend will differ from a jester. Hor. Serta capiti delapsae, garlands fallen from his head. Verg.

¹ Many other verbs take different constructions with different meanings; see cedo, convenio, cupio, desisto, doleo, maneo, parco, peto, solvo, and velo in the Dictionary.

² Thus with arceo, absum, differo, dissentio, dissideo, disto, etc.; see Dictionary.

8) With verbs denoting Union, Comparison, Contention, and the like—instead of the Ablative with cum, or the Accusative with inter :

Miscet¹ viris, he mingles WITH THE MEN. Verg. Concurrere hosti (for cum hoste), to meet THE ENEMY. Ov. Sölus tibi certat, he alone contends WITH you. Verg. Placitöne pugnābis amōri, will you contend WITH acceptable love? Verg.

4) In still other instances, especially in expressions of Place :

Haeret lateri (for in latere) arundō, the arrow sticks IN HER SIDE. Verg. Ardet apex capiti, the helmet gleams UPON HIS HEAD. Verg.

386. DATIVE WITH COMPOUNDS.—The Dative is used with many verbs compounded with—ad,	ante,	con,	dē,	in,	inter,

ob,	post,	prae,	prō,	sub,	super:

Adsum amicis, I am present WITH MY FRIENDS. Cic. Omnibus antestāre, to surpass ALL. Cic. Terris cohaeret, it cleaves TO THE EARTH. Sen. Hōc Caesari defuit, this failed (was wanting to) CAESAR. Caes. Voluptāti inhaerere, to be connected WITH pleasure. Cic. Interfuit pugnae, he participated in the battle. Nep. Cōsiliis obstāre, to oppose plans. Nep. Libertāti opēs postferre, to sacrifice wealth to liberty. Liv. Populō praesunt, they rule the people. Cic. Tibi prōsunt, they are profitable to you. Cic. Succumbere doloribus, to yield to sorrows. Cic. Superfuit patri, he survived his father. Liv.

1. TRANSITIVE VERBS thus compounded admit both the Accusative and the Dative :

Se opposuit hostibus, he opposed HIMSELF TO THE ENEMY. Cic. Capiti subduxerat ensem, she had removed my sword from my head. Verg. See also Libertāti opēs postferre, above.

2. COMPOUNDS OF OTHER PREPOSITIONS, especially of ab, ex, and circum, sometimes admit the Dative ; while several of the compounds specified under the rule admit the Ablative with or without a preposition :

Sibi libertātem abjūdicat, he deprives HIMSELF (sentences himself to the loss) of liberty. Cic. Mibi timōrem ēripe, free ME from fear (lit., snatch away fear FOR ME). Cic. Pugnā assuescere, to be accustomed to (trained in) battle. Liv. Dicta cum factis componere, to compare words with deeds. Sall.

3. MOTION OR DIRECTION.—Compounds expressing mere motion or direction generally take the Accusative with or without a preposition :

¹ Thus, with cōpulo, jungo, misceo, admisceo, permisceo,necto, socio, etc.; certo, contendō, luctor, pugno, etc.

² Misceo, as a transitive verb, occurs with the Accusative and Dative even in classical prose; see 385, 8; also 371, III., note 2.

³ See assuesco, assuefacto, acquiesco, coeo, cohaereo, colludo, communito, compno, concordo, cōfero, cōfigo, congruo, conjungo, cōsentio, cōsto, insisto, insideo, insum, and interdicto, in the Dictionary. See also Draeger, I., pp. 406-426

⁴ See accido, accidō, addo, adfero, adhaerescō, adhibeo, adjungo, admīto, adoribo, adsum, illudo, incido, incumbo, incurro, infero, offero, oppono, in the Dictionary.

Adire arda, to approach THE ALTARS. Cic. Ad cōsulū adire, to go to THE CONSULS. Cic. In bellum insistit, he devotes himself to the war. Caes. Ad omne periculum oppōnitur, he is exposed to every peril. Cic.

4. Several compounds admit either the Accusative or the Dative without any special difference of meaning:¹

Munitiōnibus adjacent, they are near THE FORTIFICATIONS. Tac. Mare illud adjacent, they are near that SEA. Nep. Quibus timor incēsserat, whom fear had seized. Sall. Timor patrēs incēssit, fear seized the fathers. Liv.

5. Many compounds which usually take the Accusative or the Ablative with a preposition in classical prose, admit a Dative in poetry:

Quid contendat hirundō cyncis (for cum cyncis), why should the swallow contend with swans? Lucr. Contendit Homērō, you contend with HOMER. Prop. Animis illābi nostris (for in animis nostris), to sink into our minds. Verg.

NOTE.—Instead of the compounds of ad, ante, etc., the poets sometimes use in the same sense the simple verbs² with the Dative:

Qui haeserat (= adhaeserat) Evandrō, who had joined himself to EVANDER. Verg. Pōnis (= appōnis) mīhi porcum, you offer ME (place BEFORE ME) swine's flesh. Martial.

387. The DATIVE OF THE POSSESSOR is used with the verb sum:

*Mīhi est noverca, I have (there is to ME) a stepmother.*³ Verg. Fōnti nōmen Arethūsa est, THE FOUNTAIN has (there is to THE FOUNTAIN) the name Arethusa. Cic. But—

NOTE 1.—The DATIVE OF THE NAME as well as of the possessor is common in expressions of naming: nōmen est, nōmen datur, etc.:

Scipionī Africānō cōgnōmen fuit, Scipio had the surname AFRICANUS. Sall. Here Africānō, instead of being in apposition with cōgnōmen, is put by attraction in apposition with Scipionī.

NOTE 2.—The GENITIVE OF THE NAME dependent upon nōmen occurs:

Nōmen Mercuri est mīhi, I have the name of MERCURY. Plaut.

NOTE 3.—By a GREEK IDIOM, volēns, cupiēns, or inētitus sometimes accompanies the Dative of the possessor:

Quibus bellum volentibus erat, who liked the war (lit., to whom wishing the war was). Tac.

388. The DATIVE OF THE APPARENT AGENT is used with the Gerundive, and with the Passive Periphrastic Conjugation:

¹ Such are adjaçeo, adūlor, antecēdo, anteeo, cōmitor, dēspērō (also with dē), illūdo, incēdo, insulto, invādo, praecurro, praesto, praestolor.

² Thus ferō for adferō, prīferō; haereō for adhaereō; pōnō for appōnō, dēpōnō, impōnō, etc.

³ The Dative with est usually expresses simple possession or ownership, like the English have. Habeō is sometimes used in the same sense, but it more commonly expresses some of the shades of meaning denoted by hold, keep, regard, and the like: arcem habēre, 'to hold the citadel'; aliquem in obediētiōne habēre, 'to hold or keep one in siege'; prō hoste habēre, 'to regard as an enemy.'

*Proelia conjugibus loquenda, battles FOR WOMEN to talk about.*¹ Hor. Suum cuique incommodum ferendum est, EVERY ONE has his own trouble to bear, or must bear his own trouble. Cic.

NOTE.—Instead of the Dative of the Apparent Agent, the Ablative with ā or ab is sometimes used :

*Quibus est ā vobis*² cōsulendum, for whom measures must be taken BY YOU. Cic.

1. The DATIVE OF THE APPARENT AGENT is sometimes used with the compound tenses of passive verbs :

*Mihī cōsiliū captū jam diū est, I have a plan long since formed.*³ Cic.

NOTE.—HABEŌ with the Perfect Participle has the same force as EST MIHĪ with the Participle :

Bellum habuit indictum, he had a war (already) declared. Cic.

2. The REAL AGENT, with Passive verbs, is in classical prose denoted by the Ablative with ā or ab;⁴ see 415, I.

3. The DATIVE is used with the tenses for incomplete action, to designate the person who is at once Agent and Indirect Object, the person BY whom and FOR (to) whom the action is performed :

Honestā bonis viris queruntur, honorable things are sought BY good MEN (i. e., for themselves). Cic.

4. In the POETS, the Dative is often used for the Ablative with ā or ab, to designate simply the agent of the action :

Nōn intellegor ulli, I am not understood BY ANY ONE. Ovid. Rēgnāta arva Saturnō, lands ruled BY SATURN. Verg.

389. The ETHICAL DATIVE, denoting the person to whom the thought is of special interest, is often introduced into the Latin sentence :⁴

At tibi venit ad mē, but LO, he comes to me. Cic. Ad illa mihi intendat animū, let him, I PRAY, direct his attention to those things. Liv. Quō mihi abis, whither are you going, PRAY? Verg. Quid mihi Celsus agit, what is MY Celsus doing? Hor.

¹ The Dative with the Gerundive, whether alone or in the Periphrastic Conjugation, designates the person who has the work to do; while with the compound tenses of passive verbs it designates the person who has the work already done.

² Here ā vobis is necessary, to distinguish the Agent from the Indirect Object, quibus; but the Ablative with ā or ab is sometimes used when this necessity does not exist.

³ The Dative with the Gerundive is best explained as the Dative of Possessor or of Indirect Object. Thus, suum cuique incommodum est means 'every one has his trouble' (cuique, Dative of Possessor); and suum cuique incommodum ferendum est, 'every one has his trouble to bear.' So too, mihī cōsiliū est, 'I have a plan'; mihī cōsiliū captum est, 'I have a plan (already) formed.'

⁴ Compare the following from Shakespeare: 'He plucked me ope his doublet and offered them his throat to cut.' Jullus Caesar, Act I., Scene II. 'It ascends me into the brain.' Henry IV., Part II., Act IV., Scene III. 'He presently steps me a little higher.' Henry IV., Part I., Act IV., Scene III.

NOTE 1.—The ETHICAL DATIVE is always a personal pronoun.

NOTE 2.—The ETHICAL DATIVE occurs with VOLŪ and with INTERJECTIONS:

Quid vobis vultis, what do you wish, intend, mean? Liv. Avaritia quid tibi vult, what does avarice mean? or what object can it have? Cic. Ei mihi, ah me! Verg. Vae tibi, woe to you. Ter. See 381, note 3, 8).

RULE XIII.—Two Datives—To which and For which.

390. Two Datives—the OBJECT TO WHICH and the OBJECT OR END FOR WHICH—occur with a few verbs:

I. With INTRANSITIVE and PASSIVE verbs:

Malū est hominibus avāritia, avarice is an evil to men (lit., is to men for an evil). Cic. Est mihi cūrae, it is a care to me. Cic. Domus dedecorū dominō fit, the house becomes a disgrace to its owner. Cic. Vēnit Atticis auxiliō, he came to the assistance of the Athenians. Nep. Hūc illi tribuēbātur Ignāviae, this was imputed to him as cowardice (for cowardice). Cic. Eis subsidiō missus est, he was sent to them as aid. Nep.

II. With TRANSITIVE verbs in connection with the ACUSATIVE:

Quīnque cohōrtēs castris praesidiō reliquit, he left five cohorts for the defence of the camp (lit., to the camp for a defence). Caes. Periclēs agrōs suōs dōnō rēi publicae dedit, Pericles gave his lands to the republic as a present (lit., for a present). Just.

NOTE 1.—The verbs which take two Datives are—

1) Intransitive verbs signifying to be, become, go, and the like: sum, fio, etc.

2) Transitive verbs signifying to give, send, leave, impute, regard, choose, and the like: dō, dōnō, dā, habeo, mitto, relinquo, tribuo, verto, etc. These take in the Active two Datives with an Accusative; but in the Passive two Datives only, as the direct object of the Active becomes the subject of the Passive; see 464.

NOTE 2.—One of the Datives is often omitted, or its place supplied by a predicate noun:

Ea sunt vērū, these things are of use (for use). Caes. Tū illi pater es, you are a father to him. Tac. See 362, 2, note 8.

NOTE 3.—With audiens two Datives sometimes occur, dictō dependent upon audīns, and a personal Dative dependent upon dictō audiēns, and sometimes dictō oboediēns is used like dictō audiēns:

Dictō sum audiēns, I am listening to the word. Plaut. Nōbīs dictō audiēns es, he is obedient to us. Cic. Magistrō dictō oboediēns, obedient to his master. Plaut.

RULE XIV.—Dative with Adjectives.

391. With adjectives the OBJECT TO WHICH the quality is directed is put in the Dative:

Patriae solum omnibus cārum est, the soil of their country is dear to all. Cic. Id aptum est temporī, this is adapted to the time. Cic. Omni aetātē mors est commūnis, death is common to every age. Cic. Canis similis lupō est, a dog is similar to a wolf. Cic. Nātūrae accommodātum, adapted to nature. Cic. Graeciae ūtile, useful to Greece. Nep.

I. ADJECTIVES which take the DATIVE are chiefly those signifying—

Agreeable, easy, friendly, like, near, necessary, suitable, subject, useful, together with others of a similar or opposite meaning,¹ and verbals in bilis.

II. OTHER CONSTRUCTIONS sometimes occur where the learner would expect the Dative:

1. The Accusative with a Preposition: (1) in, āgrā, adversus, with adjectives signifying friendly, hostile, etc., and (2) ad, to denote the object or end for which, with adjectives signifying useful, suitable, inclined, etc.:

Perindulgēs in patrem, very kind to his father. Cic. Multās ad res perūtills, very useful for many things. Cic. Prōnus ad luctum, inclined to mourning. Cic.

2. The Accusative without a Preposition with propior, prōximus:

Propior montem, nearer the mountain. Sall. Prōximus mare, nearest to the sea. Caes. See 433 and 437.

3. The Ablative with or without a Preposition:

Aliēnum ā vitā meā, foreign to my life. Ter. Homine aliēnissimum, most foreign to or from man. Cic. Ei cum Rōsciō commūnis, common to him and Roscius (with Roscius). Cic.

4. The Genitive: (1) with adjectives used substantively; (2) with adjectives meaning like,² unlike,² near, belonging to, and a few others:³

Amicissimus hominum, the best friend of the men (i. e., the most friendly to them). Cic. Alexandri similis, like Alexander (i. e., in character). Cic. Dispar sui, unlike itself. Cic. Cujus parēs, like whom. Cic. Populi Rōmāni est propria libertās, liberty is characteristic of the Roman people. Cic.

NOTE 1.—Idem occurs with the Dative, especially in the poets:

Idem facit occidētī, he does the same as to kill, or as he who kills. Hor.

NOTE 2.—For the Genitive and Dative with an adjective, see 399, I., note 1.

RULE XV.—Dative with Nouns and Adverbs.

392. The Dative is used with a few special nouns and adverbs:

I. With a few nouns from verbs which take the Dative:

Jūstitia est obtemperatiō⁴ lēgibus, justice is obedience to laws. Cic.

² The Genitive is used especially of likeness and unlikeness in character.

³ As similis, dissimilis, assimilis, cōsimilis, pār, dispar; affinis, finitimus, propinquus; proprius, sacer, commūnis; aliēnus, contrārius, insuētus, etc.

⁴ From obtemperō, which takes the Dative.

Sibi respondiō, a reply to HIMSELF. Cic. Opulentō hominī servitūs dura est, serving (servitude to) a rich man is hard. Plaut. Facilis dēscēsus¹ Avernō, easy is the descent to Averna. Verg.

II. With a few adverbs from adjectives which take the Dative:

Congruenter² naturas vivere, to live in accordance WITH NATURE. Cic. Sibi convenienter dicere, to speak consistently WITH HIMSELF. Cic. Proximē hostium castris, next to the camp of the enemy. Caes.

NOTE 1.—In rare instances the Dative occurs with a few nouns and adverbs not included in the rule:

Tribūnica potestās, mūnimentum libertātī, tribunician power, a defence FOR LIBERTY. Liv. Huc unā = unā cum hoc, with this one. Verg.

NOTE 2.—For the Dative of Gerundives with official names, see 544, note 2.

NOTE 3.—For the Dative with interjections, see 381, note 3; 389, note 2.

SECTION VI.

GENITIVE.

393. The Genitive in its ordinary use corresponds to the English possessive, or the objective with of, and expresses various adjective relations.³

NOTE.—But the Genitive, especially when objective (396, III.), is sometimes best rendered to, for, from, in, on account of, etc.:

Benefici grātia, gratitude FOR A FAVOR. Cic. Labōrum fuga, escape FROM LABORS. Cic. Ereptae virginis ira, anger on account of the rescue of the maiden. Verg.

394. The Genitive is used chiefly to qualify or limit nouns and adjectives,⁴ though it also occurs with verbs and adverbs.

RULE XVI.—Genitive with Nouns.

395. Any noun, not an appositive, qualifying the meaning of another noun, is put in the Genitive:

Catonis orationēs, CATO'S orations. Cic. Castra hostium, the camp OF THE ENEMY. Liv. Mors Hamilcaris, the death OF HAMILCAR. Liv. Deūm metus, the fear OF the gods. Liv. Vir cōsiliū magnū, a man OF great prudence. Caes. Pars populi, a part OF the people. Cic.

² From congruens, which takes the Dative.

³ The Genitive has nearly the force of an adjective, and means simply of or belonging to. Thus, rēgis, equivalent to rēgius, means of or belonging to a king. On the origin and use of the Genitive, see Hübschmann, p. 106; Merguet, p. 69; Holzweissig, pp. 26 and 78; Draeger, I., pp. 417-498; Roby, II., pp. 116-187.

⁴ Doubtless originally it limited only nouns and adjectives.

NOTE 1.—For the Appositive, see 363.

NOTE 2.—An ADJECTIVE is sometimes used for the Genitive :

Bellica glōria = belli glōria, the glory of war. Cic. Conjux Hectoris = conjux Hectoris, the wife of Hector. Verg. Pūna Marathōnia, the battle of Marathon. Cic. Dīana Ephesia, Diana of Ephesus. Cic. See 393, foot-note.

NOTE 3.—For the Predicate Genitive, see 401.

NOTE 4.—For special uses of the Dative, see 384, 4, note 2.

396. The qualifying Genitive may be—

I. A POSSESSIVE GENITIVE,¹ designating the author and the possessor :

Xenophōntis libri, the books of Xenophon. Cic. Fānum Neptūni, the temple of Neptune. Nep.

II. A SUBJECTIVE GENITIVE, designating the subject or agent of the action, feeling, etc. :

Serpentis morsus, the bite of the serpent. Cic. Pavor Numidārum, the fear of the Numidians. Liv.

NOTE.—The POSSESSIVE PRONOUN is regularly used for the Subjective Genitives of Personal pronouns :

Mea domus, my house. Cic. Fāma tua, your fame. Cic.

III. An OBJECTIVE GENITIVE, designating the object toward which the action or feeling is directed :

Amor glōriae, the love of glory. Cic. Memoria malōrum, the recollection of sufferings. Cic. Deūm metus, the fear of the gods. Liv.

NOTE 1.—For the OBJECTIVE GENITIVE, the Accusative with in, ergā, or adversus is sometimes used :

Odium in hominum genus, hatred of or toward the race of men. Cic. Ergā vōs amor, love toward you. Cic.

NOTE 2.—The POSSESSIVE occurs, though rarely, for the Objective Genitives of Personal pronouns :

Tua fiduciā, reliance on you. Cic.

IV. A PARTITIVE GENITIVE, designating the whole of which a part is taken :

Quis vestrūm, which of you? Cic. Vitae pars, a part of life. Cic. Omnium sapientissimus, the wisest of all men. Cic.

V. A DESCRIPTIVE GENITIVE, also called a GENITIVE OF CHARACTERISTIC, designating character or quality, including value, price, size, weight, age, etc.

Vir māximi cōsiliī, a man of very great prudence. Nep. Mitis ingenii juvenis, a youth of mild disposition. Liv. Vēstis māgni pretii, a garment of great value. Cic. Exsiliū decem annōrum, an exile of ten years. Nep. Corōna parvī ponderis, a crown of small weight. Liv. See 404.

¹ It will be found convenient thus to characterize the different uses of the Genitive by the relation actually existing between the words united by it, though that special relation is not expressed by the case itself, but merely suggested by the meaning of the words thus united.

NOTE 1.—The Descriptive Genitive must be accompanied by an adjective or some other modifier, unless it be a compound containing a modifier; as hujusmodi = hujus modi; tridui, from trēs diēs; bidui, from duo (bis) diēs.

NOTE 2.—For id genus = ejus generis, omne genus = omnis generis, see 378, 2.

NOTE 3.—For the Descriptive Ablative, see 419, II., with note.

VI. AN APPositionAL GENITIVE, having the general force of an Appositive (363):

Virtūs continentiae, the virtue of self-control. Cic. Oppidum Antiochiae, the city of Antioch. Cic. Tellūs Ausoniae, the land of Ausonia. Verg.

397. The PARTITIVE GENITIVE designates the whole of which a part is taken. It is used—

1. With pars, nēmō, nihil; with nouns of quantity, number, weight, etc., as modius, legiſ, talentum; and with any nouns used partitively:

Equōrum pars, a part of the horses. Liv. Nihil novi (441, 2), nothing new (of new). Cic. Nihil reliquū (441, 2), nothing left (lit., of the rest). Sall. Medimnum tritici, a bushel of wheat. Cic. Pecūniæ talentum, a talent of money. Nep. Quōrum Gaius, of whom Gaius. Cic.

2. With Numerals used substantively:¹

Quōrum quattuor, four of whom. Liv. Equitum centum, a hundred of the cavalry. Curt. Sapientum octāvus, the eighth of the wise men. Hor. Ūnus pontium, one of the bridges. Caes.

NOTE.—In good prose the Genitive is not used when the two words refer to the same number of objects, even though of be used in English:

Qui (not quōrum) duo supersunt, of whom two survive. Cic. Omnēs hominēs, all men. Cic. But see p. 209, note 4, with foot-note.

3. With Pronouns and Adjectives used substantively, especially with comparatives, superlatives, and neuters:²

Quis vestrū, which of you? Cic. Num quidnam novī, is there anything new (of new)? Cic. Cōsulū alter, one of the consuls. Liv. Prior hōrum, the former of these. Nep. Gallōrum fortissimī, the bravest of the Gauls. Caes. Id temporis, that (of) time. Cic. Multum operæ, much (of) service. Cic.

NOTE 1.—Pronouns and adjectives, except neuters, when used with the Partitive Genitive, take the gender of the Genitive, unless they agree directly with some other word; see cōsulū alter, above.

NOTE 2.—Uterque, 'each,' 'both,' is generally used as an adjective; but when it is combined in the singular number with another pronoun, it usually takes that pronoun in the Genitive:

Uterque exercitus, each army. Caes. Quæ utraque, both of which. Sall. *Utrique nostrū*³ grātū, acceptable to each of us. Cic.

² As hōc, id, illud, quid; multum, plūs, plūrimū, minus, minimū, tantum, quantum, etc.

³ A Partitive Genitive, because a pronoun.

NOTE 3.—For the Partitive Genitive, the Accusative with inter or ante, or the Ablative with ex, dē, or in, is sometimes used:

Inter regēs opulentissimus, the most wealthy of (among) kings. Sen. Unus ex viris, one of the heroes. Cic. Unus dē legātis, one of the lieutenants. Cic.

NOTE 4.—Poets and late prose writers make a very free use of the Partitive Genitive after adjectives:

Sancta deārum, holy goddesses. Enn. Sancte deōrum, O holy god. Verg. Festās diērum, festal days. Hor. Levīs cohōrtium, the light-armed cohorts. Tac. Inclutus philosophōrum, the renowned philosopher. Just. Rēliquum diēi, the rest of the day. Liv. Multum diēi, much of the day. Liv. Rēliquum noctis, the rest of the night. Tac. Strāta viārum = strātae viarū, paved streets. Verg. Vāna rerū = vānae res, vain things. Hor. Hominum cūcti, all of the men. Ovid. Cūcta terrārum, all lands. Hor. See also 438, 5.

NOTE 5.—The Neuter of pronouns and adjectives with the Partitive Genitive is sometimes used of persons:

Quid hōc est hominis, what kind of a man is this? Plaut. Quidquid erat patrum res dicerēs, you would have said that all the senators (lit., whatever there was of fathers) were accused. Liv. Quid hūc tantum hominum incēdunt, why are so many men (so much of men) coming hither? Plaut.

4. The Partitive Genitive also occurs with a few adverbs used substantively:³

Armōrum adfatim, abundance of arms. Liv. Lūcis nimis, too much (of) light. Ovid. Sapientiae parum, little (of) wisdom. Sall. Partim copiarum, a portion of the forces. Liv. Quod ejus facere potest, as far as (what of it) he is able to do. Cic. Nūquam gentium, nowhere in the world. Cic. Hūc arrogantiae, to this degree of insolence. Tac. Maximē omnium, most of all. Cic.

398. GENITIVE IN SPECIAL CONSTRUCTIONS.—Note the following:

1. THE GOVERNING WORD is often omitted. Thus—

Aedēs, templum, discipulus, homō, juvenis, puer, etc.; causa, grātia, and indeed any word when it can be readily supplied:

Ad Jovis (sc. aedem), near the temple of Jupiter. Liv. Hannibal annōrum novem (sc. puer), Hannibal, a boy nine years of age. Liv. Aberant bidui (sc. viam or spatium), they were two days' journey distant. Cic. Conferre vitam Treboni cum Dolabellae (sc. vitā), to compare the life of Trebonius with that of Dolabella. Cic.

NOTE 1.—The governing word is generally omitted when it has been expressed before another Genitive, as in the last example; and then the second Genitive is sometimes attracted into the case of the governing word:

¹ Unus is generally followed by the Ablative with ex or dē, but sometimes by the Genitive.

² Observe that in this case the partitive idea has entirely disappeared, and that the construction is partitive in form, but not in sense.

³ As with adverbs of QUANTITY—abundē, adfatim, nimis, parum, partim, quoad, satia, etc.; of PLACE—hic, hūc, nūquam, ubi, etc.; of EXTENT, DEGREE, etc.—ad, hūc, quō; and with superlatives. As adverbs are substantives or adjectives in origin, it is not strange that they are thus used with the Genitive.

Natura hominis bestis (for bestiarum naturae) antecedit, the nature of man surpasses (that of) the brutes. Cic.

NOTE 2.—In many cases where we supply son, daughter, husband, wife, the ellipsis is only apparent, the Genitive depending directly on the proper noun expressed:

Hasdrubal Gisco's, Gisco's Hasdrubal, or Hasdrubal the son of Gisco. Liv. Hectoris Andromachê, Hector's Andromache, or Andromache the wife of Hector. Verg.

2. Two GENITIVES are sometimes used with the same noun. One is generally subjective, the other either objective or descriptive:

Memmi odium potentiae, Memmius's hatred of power. Sall. Helveticorum injuriæ populi Romani, the wrongs done by the Helvetii to the Roman people. Caes. Superiorum dierum Sabinî cunctatiô, the delay of Sabinus during (lit., of) the preceding days. Caes.

3. A GENITIVE sometimes accompanies a POSSESSIVE, especially the Genitive of ipse, solus, unus, or omnis:

Tua ipsius amicitia, your own friendship. Cic. Meum solus peccatum, my fault alone. Cic. Nomen meum absentis, my name in my absence. Cic.

4. The Genitive is used with instar, 'likeness,' 'image,' in the sense of as large as, of the size of, equal to:

Instar montis equus, a horse of the size of a mountain. Verg.

5. The Genitive is used with pridie, postridie, ergo, and tenus:²

Pridie ejus diei, on the day before that day. Caes. Postridie ejus diei, on the day after that day. Caes. Virtutis ergo, on account of virtue. Cic. Lumborum tenus, as far as the loins. Cic. For tenus with the Ablative, see 434.

RULE XVII.—Genitive with Adjectives.

399. Many adjectives take a Genitive to complete their meaning:

Avidus laudis, desirous of praise. Cic. Otii cupidus, desirous of leisure. Liv. Conscius conjurationis, cognizant of the conspiracy. Sall. Amans sui virtutis, virtue fond of itself. Cic. Efficiens voluptatis, productive of pleasure. Cic. Gloriae memor, mindful of glory. Liv.

NOTE.—This Genitive corresponds to the Objective Genitive with nouns:

Amor gloriæ, the love of glory. Cic. Appetens gloriæ, desirous of (eager for) glory. Cic.

I. The Genitive is used with adjectives denoting—

1. DESIRE OR AVERSION:³

¹ Ipsius may be explained as agreeing with tui (of you), involved in tua, and solus and absentis as agreeing with mei (of me), involved in meum.

² These words are strictly nouns, and, as such, govern the Genitive. Pridie and postridie are Locatives; ergo is an Ablative, and tenus, an Accusative; see 304; 307, note 1.

³ Such are—(1) avidus, cupidus, studicus; fastidicus, etc.; (2) gndrus, ignarus, consuetus, cunctus, inctus, nescius, certus, incertus; providus, prudens, impru-

Contentiōnis cupidus, desirous of contention. Cic. Sapientiae studiōsus, studious of (student of) wisdom. Cic. Terrae fastidiōsus, weary of the land. Hor.

2. KNOWLEDGE, SKILL, RECOLLECTION, with their contraries :¹

Rēi gnārus, acquainted with the thing. Cic. Prūdēns rēi militāris, skilled in military science. Nep. Peritus belli, skilled in war. Nep. Insuētus laboris, unaccustomed to labor. Caes. Glōriāe memor, mindful of glory. Liv. Immemor beneficii, forgetful of kindness. Cic.

3. PARTICIPATION, GUILT, FULNESS, MASTERY, with their contraries :¹

Adfinis culpaē, sharing the fault. Cic. Ratiōnis particeps, endowed with (sharing) reason. Cic. Ratiōnis expers, destitute of reason. Cic. Manifestus rērum capitālium, convicted of capital crimes. Sall. Vita metus plēna, a life full of fear. Cic. Mei potēns sum, I am master of myself. Liv. Virtutis compos, capable of virtue. Cic.

NOTE 1.—The Genitive and Dative sometimes occur with the same adjective :

Mēns sibi cōnsca rēcti, a mind conscious to itself of rectitude. Verg. Sibi cōnsca culpaē, conscious to themselves of fault. Cic.

NOTE 2.—For the Genitive with adjectives used substantively, and with adjectives meaning like, unlike, near, belonging to, etc., see 391, II., 4.

NOTE 3.—For the Genitive with dignus and indignus, see 421, note 2.

II. The Genitive is used with VERBALS in āx, and with PRESENT PARTICIPLES used adjectively :

Virtūtum ferāx, productive of virtues. Liv. Tenāx propositi, tenacious (steadfast) of purpose. Hor. Amāns patriae, fond of his country.² Cic. Fugiēns laboris, shunning labor. Caes.

III. In the poets and in late prose writers, especially in Tacitus, the Genitive is used—

1. With adjectives of almost every variety of signification, simply to define their application :³

Aevi matūrus, mature in age. Verg. Ingēns virium, mighty in strength. Sall. Sēri studiōrum, late in studies. Hor. Integer aevi, unimpaired in age (i. e., in the bloom of youth). Verg. Aeger animi,⁴ afflicted in spirit. Liv. Anxius animi,⁴ anxious in mind. Sall. Fidēns animi, confident in spirit. Verg.

2. With a few adjectives, to denote cause :

Laetus laborum, pleased with the labors. Verg. Nōtus animi paterni, distinguished for paternal affection. Hor.

dēns; peritus, imperitus, rudis, insuētus; memor, immemor, etc.; (8) adfinis, cōsors, exsors, expers, particeps, manifestus, noxius; plēnus, fertilis, refertus, egēnus, inops, vacuus; potēns, impotēns, compos, etc.

² Amāns patriae, 'fond of his country,' represents the affection as permanent and constant; whereas the participial construction, amāns patriam, 'loving his country,' designates a particular instance or act.

³ Like the Ablative of Specification; see 424. For vōli reus, 'bound to fulfil a vow,' see 410, III., note 2.

⁴ Probably a Locative in origin, as animis is used in similar instances in the plural.

400. Adjectives which usually take the Genitive, sometimes admit other constructions:

1. The DATIVE:

Manus subitis avidae, hands ready for sudden events. Tac. Insuetus moribus Romanis, unaccustomed to Roman manners. Liv. Facinori mens conscia, a mind conscious of crime. Cic. See 391.

2. The ACCUSATIVE WITH A PREPOSITION:

Insuetus ad pugnam, unaccustomed to battle. Liv. Fertilis ad omnia, productive for all things. Plin. Avidus in novas res, eager for new things. Liv.

3. The ABLATIVE WITH OR WITHOUT A PREPOSITION:

Prudens in jure civili, learned in civil law. Cic. His de rebus conscius, aware of these things. Cic. Vacuus de defensoribus, destitute of defenders. Caes. Curs vacuus, free from cares. Cic. Refertus bonis, replete with blessings. Cic. See 414, III.

RULE XVIII.—Predicate Genitive.

401. A noun predicated of another noun denoting a different person or thing is put in the Genitive:

*Omnia hostium erant, all things belonged to the enemy.*¹ Liv. Senatus Hannibalis erat, the senate was HANNIBAL'S (i. e., in his interest). Liv. *Judicis est verum sequi, to follow the truth is the duty of a judge.*² Cic. Parvi pretii est, it is of small value. Cic. *Tyrus mare suae ditionis*³ fecit, Tyre brought the sea under (lit., made the sea of) her sway. Curt.

NOTE 1.—For a noun predicated of another noun denoting the same person or thing, see 362; 373, 1.

NOTE 2.—A PREDICATE GENITIVE is often nearly or quite equivalent to a Predicate adjective (360, note 1): hominis est = humanum est, 'it is the mark of a man,' 'is human'; stulti est = stultum est, 'it is foolish.' The Genitive is the regular construction in adjectives of one ending: sapientis est (for sapientē est), 'it is the part of a wise man,' 'is wise.'

NOTE 3.—Possessive pronouns in agreement with the subject supply the place of the Predicate Genitive⁴ of personal pronouns:

Est tuum (not tui) videre, it is your duty to see. Cic.

NOTE 4.—Aequi, boni, and reliqui occur as Predicate Genitives in such expressions as aequi facere, aequi bonique facere, boni cōsulere, 'to take in good part,' and reliqui facere, 'to leave':

Aequi bonique fecit, I take it in good part. Ter. Militēs nihil reliqui victis stercere, the soldiers left nothing to the vanquished. Ball.

¹ Literally, were of THE ENEMY, or were THE ENEMY'S.

² Literally, is of a JUDGE.

³ Here ditionis, denoting a different thing from mare, of which it is predicated, is put in the Genitive.

⁴ This is another illustration of the close relationship between a Predicate Genitive and a Predicate Adjective; see also note 2.

402. The PREDICATE GENITIVE is generally Possessive or Descriptive, rarely Partitive:

Haec hostium erant, these things were of (belonged to) THE ENEMY. Liv. Est imperatoris superare, it is the duty of a commander to conquer. Caes. Summae facultatis est, he is (a man) of the highest ability. Cic. Opera magni fuit, the assistance was of great value. Nep. Fies nobilium fontium, you will become one of the noble fountains. Hor.

403. The PREDICATE GENITIVE occurs most frequently with sum and facio, but sometimes also with verbs of seeming, regarding, etc.:

Oram Rōmānae diciōis fecit, he brought the coast under (made the coast of) Roman rule. Liv. Hominis videtur, it seems to be the mark of a man. Cic. See also examples under 401.

NOTE.—Transitive verbs of this class admit in the active an Accusative with the Genitive, as in the first example.

404. The PREDICATE GENITIVE of PRICE or VALUE is used with sum and with verbs of valuing:

Magni sunt tuae litterae, your letters are of GREAT VALUE. Cic. Pluris esse, to be of GREATER VALUE. Cic. Parvi pendere, to think lightly of. Sall. Auctoritatem tuam magni aestimō, I prize your authority highly. Cic.

NOTE 1.—With these verbs the Genitives of price or value is generally an adjective,¹ as in the examples, but pretii is sometimes used:

Parvi pretii est, it is of little value. Cic.

NOTE 2.—Nihil and, in familiar discourse, a few other Genitives² occur:

Nihil facere, to take no account of. Cic. Nōn flocci pendere, not to care a straw (lock of wool) for. Plant.

405. Tanti, quanti, plūris, and minōris are also used as GENITIVES OF PRICE with verbs of buying and selling:⁴

Emi hortos tanti, he purchased the gardens at so great a price. Cic. Vendō frumentum plūris, I sell grain at a higher price. Cic.

NOTE.—For the Ablative of price, see 422.

RULE XIX.—Genitive with Special Verbs.

406. The Genitive is used—

I. With misereor and miserescō:

Miserere laborum, pity the labors. Verg. Miserescite regis, pity the king. Verg.

¹ Facultatis and magni are Descriptive, but fontium is Partitive.

² The following adjectives are so used: magni, parvi, tanti, quanti; plūris, minōris; plurimi, maximī, and minimī.

³ As assis, flocci, nauci, and pili.

⁴ Observe that verbs of buying and selling admit the Genitive of price only when one of these adjectives is used. In other cases they take the Ablative of price.

II. With recordor, memini, reminiscor, and obliviscor:¹

Meminit praeteritōrum, he remembers the past. Cic. Oblitus sum meā, I have forgotten myself. Ter. Flagitiōrum recordārī, to recollect base deeds. Cic. Reminisce virtūtis, to remember virtue. Caes.

III. With rēfert and interest:

Illōrum rēfert, it concerns them. Sall. Interest omnium, it is the interest of all. Cic.

NOTE.—The expression, Venit in mentem, 'it occurs to mind,' is sometimes construed with the Genitive and sometimes with the Nominative:

*Venit mihi Platōnis in mentem,*² the recollection of Plato comes to my mind, or I recollect Plato. Cic. Nōn venit in mentem pūna, does not the battle occur to your mind? Liv.

407. Verbs of REMEMBERING and FORGETTING often take the Accusative instead of the Genitive:

Memineram Paullum, I remembered Paullus. Cic. Triumphōs recordārī, to recall triumphs. Cic. Ea reminiscere, remember those things. Cic.

NOTE 1.—The Accusative is the common construction (1) with recordor and (2) with the other verbs, if it is a neuter pronoun or adjective, or designates an object remembered by a contemporary or an eye-witness.

NOTE 2.—The Ablative with dē is rare:

Recordāre dē cēteris, bethink yourself of the others. Cic.

408. The CONSTRUCTION with rēfert and interest is as follows:

I. The PERSON interested is denoted—

1. By the Genitive, as under the rule.

2. By the Ablative Feminine of the Possessive.³ This takes the place of the Genitives of personal pronouns:

Meā rēfert, it concerns me. Ter. Interest meā, it interests me. Cic.

3. By the Dative, or Accusative with or without Ad; but rarely, and chiefly with rēfert, which moreover often omits the person:

Quid rēfert viventi, what does it concern one living? Hor. Ad mē rēfert, it concerns me. Plaut.

II. The SUBJECT OF IMPORTANCE, or that which involves the interest, is expressed by an Infinitive or Clause, or by a Neuter Pronoun:

¹ The Genitive with verbs of pitying, remembering, and forgetting probably depends upon the substantive idea contained in the verbs themselves; see Internal Object, 371, I., 2. Thus, memini with the Accusative means I remember distinctly and fully, generally used of an eye-witness or of a contemporary; but with a Genitive, it means to have some recollection of. With rēfert the Genitive depends upon rē, the Ablative of res, contained in the verb, and with interest it may be a Predicate Genitive, or may simply follow the analogy of rēfert.

² With venit in mentem, the Genitive Platōnis supplies the place of subject. It probably limits the pronominal subject already contained in venit, as in every Latin verb, it or that of Plato, the recollection of Plato.

³ See foot-note 1, above.

Interest omnium rectē facere, to do right is the interest of all. Cic. Vestra hoc interest, this interests you. Cic.

III. The DEGREE OF INTEREST is expressed by an Adverb, by a Neuter used adverbially, or by a Genitive of Value (404):

Vestra maximē interest, it especially interests you. Cic. Quid nostrā refert, what does it concern us? Cic. Magni interest meā, it greatly interests me. Cic.

IV. The OBJECT or END for which it is important is expressed by the Accusative with ad, rarely by the Dative:

Ad honorem nostrum interest, it is important for our honor. Cic.

RULE XX.—Accusative and Genitive.

409. The ACCUSATIVE of the PERSON and the GENITIVE of the THING are used with a few transitive verbs:

I. With verbs of reminding, admonishing:¹

Tē amicitiae commonefacit, he reminds you of FRIENDSHIP. Cic. Militēs necessitātis monet, he reminds the soldiers of the necessity. Ter.

II. With verbs of accusing, convicting, acquitting:¹

Virūs sceleris arguis, you accuse men of CRIME. Cic. Levitātis eum convincere, to convict him of levity. Cic. Absolvere injūriā eum, to acquit him of injustices. Cic.

III. With miseret, paenitet, pudet, taedet, and piget:²

Eorū nōs miseret, we pity THEM (it moves our pity OF THEM). Cic. Cōsiliū mē paenitet, I repent of my purpose. Cic. Mē stultitiā meae pudet, I am ashamed of my folly. Cic.

NOTE 1.—The Genitives of the Thing designates, with verbs of reminding, etc., that to which the attention is called; with verbs of accusing, etc., the crime, charge; and with miseret, paenitet, etc., the object which produces the feeling; see examples.

NOTE 2.—The personal verbs included under this rule retain the Genitives in the Passives:

Accusātus est prōditiōis, he was accused of TREASON. Nep.

¹ The Genitive with verbs of reminding and admonishing may be explained like that with verbs of pitying, remembering, and forgetting; see foot-note 1, page 214. With verbs of accusing, etc., the Genitive may also be explained in the same way, or may depend upon nōmine, crimine, or iudiciō, understood. Sometimes one of these nouns is expressed; see 410, II., 1.

² The Genitive with paenitet, pudet, etc., like that with venit in mentem (see 406, note, with foot-note), depends upon the impersonal subject contained in the verb. Thus, te haec pudet means these things shame you, and mē stultitiā meae pudet, literally rendered, means of my folly (i. e., the thought of it, or something about it), shames me. The Genitive with miseret may be explained either in the same way, or like that with miserere; see foot-note 1, page 214.

NOTE 3.—In judicial language a few verbs not otherwise so used are treated as verbs of accusing. Thus condico occurs with the Genitive in Livy, I, 32.

410. SPECIAL CONSTRUCTIONS.—The following deserve notice:

I. Verbs of REMINDING and ADMONISHING sometimes take, instead of the Genitive—

1. The Accusative of a neuter pronoun or adjective, rarely of a substantive, thus admitting two accusatives:

Illud me admonēs, you admonish me OF THAT. Cic.

2. The Ablative with dē—moneo and its compounds generally so:

Dē proeliō vōs admonui, I have reminded you OF THE BATTLE. Cic.

II. Verbs of ACCUSING, CONVICTING, sometimes take, instead of the Genitive of the crime, etc.—

1. The Genitive with nōmine, crimine, jūdiciō, or some similar word:

Nōmine conjuratiōnis damnāti sunt, they were condemned on the charge of conspiracy. Cic. Innocentem jūdiciō capitis arcessere, to arraign an innocent man on a capital charge. Cic.

2. The Accusative of a neuter pronoun or adjective, rarely:

Id me accūsās, you accuse me of that. Plaut.

3. The Ablative alone or with a preposition, generally dē:

Dē pecūniis repetundis damnātus est, he was convicted of extortion. Cic.

III. With verbs of CONDEMNING, the Penalty is generally expressed by the Ablative,¹ or by the Accusative with a preposition, usually ad:

Tertiā parte damnāri, to be condemned to forfeit a third of one's land. Liv. Capite damnāre, to condemn to death. Cic. Morte multāre, to punish with death. Cic. Ad bestiās condemnāre, to condemn to the wild beasts. Suet.

NOTE 1.—In the poets the penalty is sometimes expressed by the Dative:

Mortī damnātus, condemned to death. Lucr.

NOTE 2.—The Genitive occurs in such special expressions as capitis condemnāre, 'to condemn to death'; vōti damnāri, 'to be condemned to fulfil a vow' = 'to obtain a wish'; damnāri longi labōris, 'to be condemned to long labor'; *vōti reus*² = vōti damnātus, 'condemned to fulfil a vow':

Aliquem capitis condemnāre, to condemn one to death. Cic. Damnātus longi labōris, condemned to long labor. Hor.

IV. With MISERET, PAENITET, PUDET, TAEDET, and FIGET, an Infinitive or Clause is sometimes used, rarely a neuter pronoun or nihil:

Mē paenitet vixisse, I repent having lived. Cic. Tē haec pudet, these things shame you. Ter.

NOTE 1.—Like miseret are sometimes used miserēscit, commiserēscit, miseretur, commiseretur. Like taedet are used pertaedet, pertaesum est.

NOTE 2.—Pudet sometimes takes the Genitive of the person before whom one is ashamed:

Mē tui pudet, I am ashamed in your presence. Ter. Pudet hominum, it is a shame in the sight of men. Liv.

¹ Regularly so when the penalty is a definite sum of money.

² Best explained as a substantive.

NOTE 3.—Perlaesus admits the Accusative of the object :

Perlaesus Ignāviam suam, disgusted with his own inaction. Suet.

V. Many other verbs sometimes take the Genitive.¹ Thus—

1. Some verbs of plenty and want, as compleo, impleo,¹ egēo, indigēo, like adjectives of the same meaning (399, I., 3) :

Virtus exercitātōnis indiget, virtus requirēs exerciēs. Cic. Auxiliū egēre, to need aid. Caes. *Multitudinē religiōnis implēvit,*² he inspired (filled) the multitude with religion. Liv. Rerum satagere, to be occupied with (to do enough of) business. Ter.

2. Some verbs of desire, emotion, or feeling, like adjectives of the same meaning (399, I., 1) :

Cupiunt tui, they desire you. Plaut. Tui testimoniū veritus, fearing your testimony. Cic. Animi³ pendeo, I am uncertain in mind. Cic. Discrucior animi, I am troubled in spirit. Plaut. Tē angis animi, you make yourself anxious in mind. Plaut. Dēsipere mentis, to be foolish in mind, or mistaken in opinion. Plaut.

3. A few verbs denoting mastery or participation, like adjectives of the same meaning (399, I., 3), potior,⁴ adipiscor, regnō :

Siciliāe potitus est, he became master of Sicily. Nep. Rerum adeptus est, he obtained the power. Tac. Regnāvit populōrum, he was king of the peoples. Hor.

4. In the poets, a few verbs⁵ take the Genitive, instead of the Ablative of Separation or Cause (413) :

Abstinerē irarum, to abstain from anger. Hor. Labōrum decipitur, he is beguiled of his labors. Hor. Desine querelārum, cease from complaints. Hor. Desistere pugnae, to desist from the battle. Verg. Eum culpae liberāre, to free him from blame (i. e., to acquit him). Liv. Mirari labōrum, to admire because of toils. Verg. Damni infecti prōmittere, to give surety in view of expected damage. Cic.

NOTE.—For the Genitive of Gerunds and Gerundives, see 542, I.; 544.

SECTION VII.

ABLATIVE.

411. The LATIN ABLATIVE performs the duties of three cases originally distinct :*

I. The ABLATIVE PROPER, denoting the relation FROM :

Expulsus est patriā, he was banished FROM HIS COUNTRY. Cic.

² See 421, II.

³ Animi in such instances is probably a Locative in origin, as animis is used in the same way in the plural. See foot-note on animi, 399, III., 1.

⁴ Potior takes the Genitive regularly when it means to reduce to subjection.

⁵ As abstinere, decipere, desinere, desistere, levare, liberare, etc.; mirari, etc.

⁶ These three cases, still recognized in the Sanskrit, originally had distinct forms; but in the Latin, under the influence of phonetic change and decay, these forms have

II. The INSTRUMENTAL, denoting the relation WITH, BY :
Sol omnia luce collustrat, the sun illumines all things WITH ITS LIGHT. Cic.

III. The LOCATIVE, denoting the relation IN, AT :
Sē oppidō tenet, he keeps himself IN THE TOWN. Cic.

I. ABLATIVE PROPER.

RULE XXI.—Place from which.

412. The PLACE FROM WHICH is denoted by the Ablative:

I. Generally with a preposition—ā, ab, dē, or ex :

Ab urbe profisciscitur, he acts out FROM THE CITY. Caes. Dē forō, from the forum. Cic. Ex Africā, from (out of) Africa. Liv.

II. In NAMES OF TOWNS without a preposition :¹

Platōnem Athēnīs arcessivit, he summoned Plato FROM ATHENS. Nep. Fūgit Corinthō, he fled from Corinth. Cic.

1. Many names of islands, and the Ablatives domō and rūre, are used like names of towns :

Domō profugit, he fled FROM HOME. Cic. Delō profisciscitur, he proceeds FROM DELOS. Cic.

2. The Ablative of places not towns is sometimes used without a preposition, especially in poetry :

Cadere nūbibus, to fall FROM THE CLOUDS. Verg. Lābi equō, to fall FROM A HORSE. Hor.

3. The preposition is sometimes used with names of towns, especially for emphasis or contrast :

Ab Ardeā Rōmam vēnerunt, they came FROM ARDEA to Rome. Liv.

NOTE.—The preposition is generally used when the vicinity, rather than the town itself, is meant :

Discessit ā Brundisiō, he departed from Brundisium (i. e., from the port). Caes.

RULE XXII.—Separation, Source, Cause.

413. Separation, Source, and Cause are denoted by the Ablative with or without a preposition :

SEPARATION.—Caedem ā vōbīs dēpellō, I ward off slaughter FROM YOU. Cic. Hunc ā tuis arīs arcēbis, you will keep this one FROM YOUR ALTARS.

become identical, and their uses have been blended in a single case called the Ablative. On the general subject of the Ablative and its use, see Merguet, pp. 109–117; Delbrück; Hübschmann, pp. 62–106; Holzweissig, pp. 28 and 75; Draeger, I., pp. 494–571; Roby, II., pp. 68–115.

¹ This was the original construction for all places alike.

Cic. Expulsus est patriâ, he was banished from his country. Cic. Urbem commeâtû privâvit, he deprived the city of supplies. Nep. Cōnâtû dēstītērunt, they desisted from the attempt. Caes. Vāginā sripe ferrum, draw your sword from its scabbard. Verg.

SOURCE.—Hōc audiui dē parente meō, I heard this from my father. Cic. Oriundī ab Sabinis, descended from the Sabines. Liv. Status ex aere facta, a statue made of bronze. Cic. Abiete puppis, the stern made of fir. Verg. Jove nātus, son of Jupiter. Cic.

CAUSE.—Ars ūtilitāte laudātur, an art is praised because of its usefulness. Cic. Lacrimō gaudiō, I weep for (on account of) joy. Ter. Vestrā hōc causā volēbam, I desired this on your account. Cic. Rogātū vēneram, I had come by request. Cic. Ex vulnere aeger, ill in consequence of his wound. Cic. Aeger erat vulneribus, he was ill in consequence of his wounds. Nep.

NOTE 1.—Transitive Verbs admit an Accusative with the Ablative; see examples.

NOTE 2.—The prepositions most frequently used with the Ablative of Separation and Source are ā, ab, dē, ē, ex, and with the Ablative of Cause, dē, ē, ex.

NOTE 3.—With the Ablative of Separation the preposition is more freely used when the separation is local and literal than when it is figurative: dē forō, 'from the forum'; ex Asiā, 'out of Asia'; but levāre metū, 'to relieve from fear'; cōnātū dēstītere, 'to desist from the undertaking.'

NOTE 4.—For the Genitive instead of the Ablative of Separation, see 410, V., 4; and for the Dative similarly used, see 385, 2.

414. The ABLATIVE OF SEPARATION designates that from which anything is separated, or of which it is deprived, and is generally used without a preposition in the following situations:

I. With verbs meaning to relieve, deprive, need, be without: ¹

Levā mē hōc onere, relieve me of this burden. Cic. Vindis exsolvere, to release from chains. Plaut. Molestiā expedire, to relieve of trouble. Cic. Militem praedā fraudāre, to defraud the soldiery of booty. Liv. Nōn egeō medicinā, I do not need a remedy. Cic. Vacāre culpā, to be free from fault. Cic. See also examples under 413.

II. With moveō in special expressions: ²

Signum movēre locō, to move the standard from the place. Cic.

III. With adjectives meaning free from, destitute of: ³

Animus liber cūrā, a mind free from care. Cic. Expert metū, free from fear. Cic. Urbs nūda praesidiō, a city destitute of defence. Cic.

NOTE.—For a similar use of the Genitive,⁴ see 399, I., 3.

IV. With opus and ūsus, meaning need:

¹ As expediō, exonerō, levō, relevo, libero, relaxo, solvo, absolvo, exsolvo; exuo, fraudo, nūdo, orbo, spolio, privo, etc.

² As in movēre locō, movēre senātū, movēre tribū, movēre vestigiō.

³ Ā or ab is generally used with names of persons and sometimes with other words.

⁴ Egēnus, indīgus, sterilis, and some others are freely used with the Genitive: see 399, I., 2.

Auctoritate tuā nobis opus est, we need (there is to us a need of) your authority. Cic. Ūsus est tuā mihi operā, I need your aid. Plaut.

NOTE 1.—In most other instances a preposition accompanies the Ablative of Separation, though often omitted in poetry and in late prose.

NOTE 2.—Opus est and ŭsus est admit the Dative of the person with the Ablative of the thing; see examples.

NOTE 3.—With opus and ŭsus, the Ablative is sometimes a perfect participle, or, with opus, a noun and a participle:

Cōsultō opus est, there is need of deliberation. Sall. Opus fuit Hirtiō contentō, there was need of meeting Hirtius. Cic.

NOTE 4.—With opus est, rarely with ŭsus est, the thing needed may be denoted—

1) By the Nominative, rarely by the Genitive or Accusative:

Dux nobis opus est, we need a leader, or a leader is necessary (a necessity) for us. Cic. Temporis opus est, there is need of time. Liv. Opus est cibum, there is need of food. Plaut.

2) By an Infinitive, a Clause, or a Supine:

Opus est tē valere, it is necessary that you be well. Cic. Opus est ut lavem, it is necessary for me to bathe (that I bathe). Plaut. Dictū est opus, it is necessary to be told. Ter.

415. The ABLATIVE OF SOURCE more commonly takes a preposition; see examples under 413. It includes agency, parentage, material, etc.

I. The agent or author of an action is designated by the Ablative with ā or ab:

Occisus est ā Thēbānīs, he was slain by the Thebans. Nep. Occidit ā forti Achille, he was slain (lit., fell) by brave Achilles. Ov.

1. The Ablative without a preposition may be used of a person, regarded not as the author of the action, but as the means by which it is effected:

Cornua Numidīs¹ firmat, he strengthens the wings WITH NUMIDIANS. Liv.

NOTE 1.—The Accusative with per may be used of the person through whose agency the action is effected:

Ab Oppianicō per Fabriciōs¹ factum est, it was accomplished by Oppianicus THROUGH THE AGENCY OF THE FABRICII. Cic.

NOTE 2.—For the Dative of Agent, see 388.

2. When anything is personified as agent, the Ablative with ā or ab may be used as in the names of persons:

Vinci ā voluptate, to be conquered by pleasure. Cic. Ā fortunā datam occasionem, an opportunity furnished by fortune. Nep.

II. PERFECT PARTICIPLES denoting parentage or birth—genitus, nātus, ortus, etc.—generally take the Ablative without a preposition:

Jove nātus, son of Jupiter. Cic. Tantalō prōgnātus, descended from Tantalus. Cic. Parentibus nāti humilibus, born of humble parents. Cic.

¹ Here note the distinction between the Ablative with ab (ab Oppianicō), denoting the author of the action, the Accusative with per (per Fabriciōs), the person through whose agency the action was performed, and the Ablative alone (Numidīs), the means of the action.

NOTE.—In designating REMOTE ANCESTRY, de or ab is generally used; but after aditus and ortus, the Ablatives familiæ, genere, loci, and stirps, when modified by an adjective, omit the preposition:

Oriondi ab Sabina, descended from the Sabines. Liv. Ortī ab Germanis, sprung from the Germans. Caes. Nobili genere natus, born of a noble family. Sall.

III. With the ABLATIVE OF MATERIAL, ex or ex is generally used, though often omitted, especially in poetry:

Statua ex ære facta, a statue made of bronze. Cic. Pōcula ex aurō, cups of gold. Cic. Aere cavō clipeus, a shield of concave bronze. Verg. Abiete puppis, the stern made of fir. Verg.

NOTE 1.—A special use of the Ablative, kindred to the above, is seen with facio, fit, and sum in such expressions as the following:

Quid hōc homine faciās, what are you to do with this man? Cic. Quid illō fiet, what will become of him? Cic. Quid tē futurum est, what will become of you? Cic.

NOTE 2.—The Dative or the Ablative with dē occurs in nearly the same sense:

Quid huic hominī faciās, what are you to do with (or to) this man? Cic. Quid dē tē futurum est, what will become of you? Cic.

416. The ABLATIVE OF CAUSE is generally used without a preposition.¹ It designates that by reason of which, because of which, in accordance with which anything is or is done, and is used both with verbs and with adjectives;² see examples under 413.

I. CAUSE is sometimes denoted—

1) By the Ablative with ā, ab, dē, ex, prae:

Ab eādē superbīā nōn venire, not to come because of the same haughtiness. Liv. Ex vulnere aeger, ill in consequence of his wound. Cic. Ex invidiā laborāre, to suffer from unpopularity. Cic. Nōn prae lacrimis scribere, not to write in consequence of tears. Cic.

2) By the Accusative with ob, per, propter:

Per aetatem inutiles, useless because of (lit., through) their age. Caes. In oppidum propter timorem sese recipiunt, they betake themselves into the city on account of their fear. Caes.

NOTE 1.—With transitive verbs the motive which prompts the action is often expressed by the Ablative with a perfect passive participle:

Rēgnī cupiditāte inductus conjūratiōnem fecit, influenced by the desire of ruling, he formed a conspiracy. Caes.

NOTE 2.—That in accordance with which anything is done is often denoted by the Ablative with ē or ex:

¹ The Ablative of Cause is very far removed from the original meaning of the Ablative, and indeed in some of its uses was probably derived from the Instrumental Ablative; see 418.

² This includes such Ablatives as meā fūdictiō, in accordance with my opinion; meā sententiā, jūssū, impulsiō, monitiō, etc.; causā, gratiā; also the Ablative with dē, ex, propter, dolore, causā, exultō, gaudio, labore, lacrimā, luctu, triumpho, etc.

³ See note 2, foot-note.

⁴ Here cupiditās must be construed with inductus, yet it really expresses the cause of the action, facit.

Rēs ex foedere repetuntur, restitution is demanded in accordance with the treaty. Liv. Diēs ex praeceptis tuis actus, a day passed in accordance with your precepts. Cic. Ex veritate aestimare, to estimate in accordance with the truth. Cic. Ex auctoritate¹ senātūs confirmare, to ratify on the authority of the senate. Liv.

RULE XXIII.—Ablative with Comparatives.

417. Comparatives without QUAM are followed by the Ablative:²

Nihil est amābilius virtute,³ nothing is more lovely than virtue. Cic. Quid est melius bonitate,⁴ what is better than goodness? Cic. Scimus sōlem majōrem esse terrā,⁵ we know that the sun is larger than the earth. Cic. Amicitia, quā nihil melius habēmus, friendship, than which we have nothing better. Cic. Lacrimā nihil citius arēscit, nothing dries sooner than a tear. Cic. Potīōrem frā salutem habet, he regards safety as better than anger. Liv.

1. COMPARATIVES WITH QUAM are followed by the Nominative, or by the case of the corresponding noun before them:

Hibernia minor quam Britannia existimātur, Ireland is considered smaller than Britain. Caes. Agris quam urbi terribilior, more terrible to the country than to the city. Liv.

NOTE 1.—The construction with quam is the full form for which the Ablative is an abbreviation. The Ablative is freely used for quam with a Subject Nominative or Subject Accusative—regularly so for quam with the Nominative or Accusative of a relative pronoun, as in the fourth example under the rule. In other cases quam is retained in the best prose, though sometimes omitted in poetry.

NOTE 2.—After plūs, minus, amplius, or longius, in expressions of number and quantity, quam is often omitted without influence upon the construction;⁴ sometimes also after māior, minor, etc.:

Tecum plūs annum vixit, he lived with you more than a year. Cic. Minus duo milia, less than two thousand. Liv.

NOTE 3.—Instead of the Ablative after a comparative, a preposition with its case, as ante, prae, propter, or supra, is sometimes used:

Ante aliōs immānior, more monstrous than (before) the others. Verg.

NOTE 4.—Alius, involving a comparison, other than, is sometimes used with the Ablative:

¹ These and similar Ablatives with prepositions show the transition from source to cause, and illustrate the manner in which the latter was developed from the former. The Ablative with the preposition seems in general to retain something of the idea of source.

² This Ablative furnishes the standard of comparison—that from which one starts. Thus, if virtus is taken as the standard of what is lovely, nothing is more so. This Ablative is sometimes explained as instrumental (418), but that view is controverted by a similar use of the Greek Genitive, which does not contain the instrumental Ablative, and of the Sanskrit Ablative, which is often distinct from the instrumental.

³ Virtūte = quam virtūs; bonitūte = quam bonitūs; terrā = quam terram (see ease).

⁴ So in expressions of age: nātus plūs trigintā annīs, 'having been born more than thirty years.' The same meaning is also expressed by māior trigintā annīs nātus, māior trigintā annīs, māior quam trigintā annōrum, or māior trigintā annōrum.

Quærit alia his, he seeks other things than these. Plaut. Alius sapientis, other than a wise man. Hor.

NOTE 5.—Quam pro denotes disproportion, and many Ablatives—opinione, spe, æquò, iustò, solitò, etc.—are often best rendered by clauses:

Minor caedēs quam pro victoriā, less slaughter than was proportionate to the victory. Liv. Sērius spē venit, he came later than was hoped (than hope). Liv. Plūs æquò, more than is fair. Cic.

2. With Comparatives, the MEASURE OF DIFFERENCE,¹ the amount by which one thing surpasses another, is denoted by the Ablative:

Hibernia dimidiò minor quam Britannia, Ireland smaller by one half than Britain. Caes.

II. INSTRUMENTAL ABLATIVE.

418. The Instrumental Ablative denotes both Accompaniment and Means.²

RULE XXIV.—Ablative of Accompaniment.

419. The Ablative is used—

I. To denote ACCOMPANIMENT. It then takes the preposition cum:

Vivit cum Balbō, he lives with Balbus. Cic. Cum gladiis stant, they stand with swords (i. e., armed with swords). Cic.

II. To denote CHARACTERISTIC or QUALITY. It is then modified by an adjective or by a Genitive:

Summā virtutē adulēscēns, a youth of the highest virtue. Caes. Quidam magnō capite, ore rubicundō, magnis pedibus, a certain one with a large head, with a red face, and with large feet. Plaut. Catilina ingenio malō fuit, Catiline was a man of a bad spirit. Sall. Uri sunt speciei tauri, the urus is (lit., the uri are) of the appearance of a bull. Caes.

NOTE.—The Ablative, when used to denote characteristic or quality, may be called either the Descriptive Ablative or the Ablative of Characteristic.

III. To denote MANNER.³ It then takes the preposition cum, or is modified by an adjective or by a Genitive:

² The idea of means was probably developed from that of accompaniment, as seen in such expressions as cum omnibus copiis sequitur, 'he pursues with all his forces'—accompaniment, which readily suggests means, as he employs his forces as means; equi iterunt, 'they went with horses'—accompaniment and means. Some scholars have conjectured that originally accompaniment and means were expressed by separate case-forms, but of this there seems to be little proof.

³ Note the close connection between these three uses of the Ablative—the first designating an attendant person or thing—with Balbus, with swords; the second, an attendant quality—a youth with (attended by) the highest virtue; the third, an attendant

Cum virtute vixit, he lived VIRTUOUSLY. Cic. Summa vi proelium commiserunt, they joined battle WITH THE GREATEST VIOLENCE. Nep. Duobus modis fit, it is done in two ways. Cic.

NOTE 1.—The Ablative of manner sometimes takes cum even when modified by an adjective:

Magna cum cura scripsit, he wrote WITH GREAT CARE. Cic.

NOTE 2.—But the Ablative of a few words is sometimes used without cum, even when unattended by an adjective, as jure, 'rightly'; injuria, 'unjustly'; ordine, 'in an orderly manner'; ratione, 'systematically'; silentio, 'in silence,' etc.¹

NOTE 3.—Per, with the Accusative, sometimes denotes MANNER: per vim, 'violently'; per ludum, 'sportively.'

1. On the ABLATIVE OF ACCOMPANIMENT, observe—

1) That cum is often omitted—(1) especially when the Ablative is qualified by an adjective, and (2) after jungo, miscuo, and their compounds:

Ingenti exercitu profectus est, he set out with a large army. Liv. Improbis scelere juncti, depravely joined with crime. Cic.

2) That the Ablative with cum is often used of hostile encounters:

Cum Gallis certare, to fight with the Gauls. Sall. Nobiscum hostes contenderunt, the enemy contended with us. Cic.

NOTE.—For the Dative with verbs denoting union or contention, see 385, 4, 8).

2. On the DESCRIPTIVE ABLATIVE, as compared with the DESCRIPTIVE GENITIVE, observe—

1) That in descriptions involving size and number, the Genitive is used; see examples under 396, V.

2) That in most descriptions involving external characteristics, parts of the body, and the like, the Ablative is used, as in the second and fourth examples under 419, II.

3) That in other instances either case may be used.

4) That the Ablative, like the Genitive, may be used either with nouns, as in the first and second examples under 419, II., or with verbs in the predicate, as in the other examples.

RULE XXV.—Ablative of Means.

420. INSTRUMENT and MEANS are denoted by the Ablative:

Cornibus tauri se tutantur, bulls defend themselves WITH THEIR HORNS. Cic. Gloria ducitur, he is led BY GLORY. Cic. Sol omnia luce collustrat, the sun illumines all things with its light. Cic. Lacte vivunt, they live upon milk. Caes. Tellus saucia vomeribus, the earth turned (wounded) with the ploughshare. Ovid.

ant circumstance—to live with virtue, virtuously. Compare cum Balbo vivere and cum virtute vivere.

¹ But perhaps most Ablatives which never take cum are best explained as the Ablative of cause—as lege, 'according to law'; consuetudine, 'according to custom'; consilio, 'on purpose,' etc.

NOTE.—This Ablative is of frequent occurrence, and is used both with verbs and with adjectives.

1. The following expressions deserve notice :

1) Quadrāgintā hostiis sacrificāre, to sacrifice with forty victims. Liv. Facere vitulā, to make a sacrifice of (lit., with) a female calf. Verg.

2) Fidibus cantāre, to play upon a stringed instrument. Cic. Pila ludere, to play at ball (lit., with the ball). Hor.

3) Aureliā viā proficisci, to set out by the Aurelian way. Cic. Eodem itinere ire, to go by the same road. Liv. Esquiliā portā ingredi, to enter by the Esquiline gate. Liv.

4) Virtūte praeditus, possessed of virtue. Cic. Legionēs pulchris armis praeditas, legions furnished with beautiful arms. Plaut.

2. Adficere with the Ablative forms a very common circumlocution : honōre adficere = honōrāre, to honor ; admirationē adficere = admirāri, to admire ; pōnā adficere = pūnīre, to punish, etc. :

Omnēs laetitias adficiť, he gladdens all. Cic.

RULE XXVL.—Ablative in Special Constructions.'

421. The Ablative is used—

I. With ūtor, fruor, fungor, potior, vescor, and their compounds :

Plūrimis rēbus fruimur et ūtimur, we enjoy and use VERY MANY THINGS.

Cic. Magnā est praeda potitus, he obtained GREAT BOOTY. Nep. Lacte et carne vescēbantur, they lived upon milk and flesh. Sall.

II. With VERBS and ADJECTIVES OF PLENTY :

Villa abundat lacte, caseo, melle ; the villa abounds IN MILK, CHEESE, and HONEY. Cic. Urbs referta copiis, a city filled WITH SUPPLIES. Cic. Virtūte praeditus, endowed with virtue. Cic. Deus bonis explēvit mundum, God has filled the world with blessings. Cic.

III. With dignus, indignus,² and contentus :

Digni sunt amicitia, they are worthy OF FRIENDSHIP. Cic. Vir patre dignus, a man worthy OF HIS FATHER. Cic. Honōre indignissimus, most unworthy OF honor. Cic. Nātūra parvō contenta, nature content WITH little. Cic.

NOTE 1.—Transitive verbs of Plenty³ take the Accusative and Ablative :

Armīs nāvēs onerat, he loads the ships with arms. Sall. See also the last example under 421, II.

NOTE 2.—Dignor, as a Passive verb meaning 'to be deemed worthy,'

¹ This Ablative is readily explained as the Ablative of means : thus, ūtor, 'I use,' 'I serve myself by means of' ; fruor, 'I enjoy,' 'I delight myself with' ; vescor, 'I feed upon,' 'I feed myself with,' etc.

² The nature of the Ablative with dignus and indignus is somewhat uncertain. On etymological grounds it is explained as instrumental ; see Delbrück, p. 72 ; Corssen, 'Krit. Beitr.,' p. 47.

³ Transitive verbs of plenty mean 'to fill,' 'to furnish with,' etc., as cumulō, compleo, impleo, imbuo, instruō, onero, ornō, etc.

takes the Ablative; but as a Deponent verb meaning 'to deem worthy,' used only in poetry and late prose, it takes the Accusative and Ablative:

Honore dignati sunt, they have been deemed worthy of honor. Cic. Mē dignor honore, I deem myself worthy of honor. Verg.

NOTE 3.—Dignus and indignus occur with the Genitive:

Dignus salūtia, worthy of safety. Plaut. Indignus avorum, unworthy of their ancestors. Verg.

NOTE 4.—Ūtor, fruor, fungor, potior, and vescor, originally transitive, are occasionally so used in classic authors. Their participle in us is passive in sense. Ūtor admits two Ablatives of the same person or thing:

Mē ūtātur patre, he will find (use) me a father. Ter.

NOTE 5.—For the Genitive with potior, see 410, V., 3. For the Genitive with verbs and adjectives of plenty, and for the Accusative and Genitive with transitive verbs of plenty, see 410, V., 1, with foot-note, and 399, L., 3.

RULE XXVII.—Ablative of Price.

422. PRICE is generally denoted by the Ablative:

Vēdidit aurō patriam, he sold his country FOR GOLD. Verg. Condūxit māgno domum, he hired a house AT A HIGH PRICE. Cic. Multō sanguine Poenis victōria stetit, the victory cost the Carthaginians (stood to the Carthaginians at) much blood. Liv. Quinquāgintā talentis aestimāri, to be valued at fifty talents. Nep. Vile est viginti minis, it is cheap at twenty minae. Plaut.

NOTE 1.—The ABLATIVE OF PRICE is used (1) with verbs of buying, selling, hiring, letting; (2) of costing, of being cheap or dear;¹ (3) of valuing; (4) with adjectives of value.¹

NOTE 2.—With verbs of EXCHANGING—mūtō, commūtō, etc.—(1) the thing received is generally treated as the price, as with verbs of selling, but (2) sometimes the thing given is treated as the price, as with verbs of buying, or is put in the Ablative with cum:

Pāce bellum mūtāvit, he exchanged war FOR PEACE. Sall. Exsilium patriā mūtāvit, he exchanged his country for exile. Curt. Cum patriae caritate glōriam commūtāvit, he exchanged love of country for glory. Cic.

NOTE 3.—For the GENITIVE OF PRICE, see 405.

RULE XXVIII.—Ablative of Difference.

423. The MEASURE OF DIFFERENCE is denoted by the Ablative:

Ūnō die longiorem mēsem faciunt, they make the month ONE DAY longer (longer by ONE DAY). Cic. Biduō mē antecēssit, he preceded me BY TWO DAYS. Cic. Sōl multis partibus māior est quam terra, the sun is very much (lit., BY MANY PARTS) larger than the earth. Cic.

NOTE 1.—The Ablative is thus used with all words involving a comparison, but adverbs often supply its place: multum rōbustior, 'much more robust.'

NOTE 2.—The Ablative of difference includes the Ablative of distance (379, 2), and the Ablative with ante, post, and abhinc in expressions of time (430).

¹ As stō, cōnstō, liceō, sum, etc.; cārus, vendit, etc.

RULE XXIX.—Specification.

424. A noun, adjective, or verb may take an Ablative to define its application :

Agēsilaus nōmine, nōn potestate fuit rēx, Agésilau8 was king IN NAME, not IN POWER. Nep. Claudus altero pede, lame IN ONE FOOT. Nep. Mōribus similēs, similar in character. Cic. Reliquō8 Gallō8 virtūte praecedunt, they surpass the other Gauls in courage. Caes.

NOTE 1.—This ABLATIVE shows in what respect or particular anything is true: thus, king (in what respect?) in name.

NOTE 2.—For the ACCUSATIVE OF SPECIFICATION, see 378.

III. LOCATIVE ABLATIVE.

RULE XXX.—Place in which.

425. The PLACE IN WHICH is denoted—

I. Generally by the *Locative Ablative*¹ with the preposition in :

Hannibal in Italiā fuit, Hannibal was IN ITALY. Nep. In nostris castris, in our camp. Caes. In Appiā viā, on the Appian way. Cic.

II. In NAMES OF TOWNS by the Locative,² if such a form exists, otherwise by the Locative Ablative :

Rōmae fuit, he was AT ROME. Cic. Corinthi puerō8 docebat, he taught boys AT CORINTH. Cic. Athēnis fuit, he was AT ATHENS. Cic. Hōc facis Argis, you do this at Argos. Hor. Karthāgine rēgēs creabantur, kings were dedcd (created) at Carthage. Nep. Gādibus vixit, he lived at Gades. Cic.

NOTE.—For the construction with verbs meaning to collect to come together, and with those meaning to place, see 380, note.

1. In the names of places which are not towns, the LOCATIVE ABLATIVE is often used without a preposition :

1) When the idea of means, manner, or cause is combined with that of place :³

Castris se tenuit, he kept himself IN CAMP. Caes. Aliquem tectō recipere, to receive any one IN ONE'S OWN HOUSE. Cic. Proeliō cadere, to fall IN BATTLE. Caes. Adolescentibus delectari, to take pleasure in the young. Cic. Suā

¹ The learner will remember that the Locative Ablative does not differ in form from any other Ablative; see 411.

² See 48, 4; 51, 8; 66, 4. The Locative was the original construction in all names of places.

³ In some cases place and means are so combined that it is difficult to determine which is the original conception.

victoriā gloriāntur, they glory in their victory. Caes. Nullō officiō assuefacti, trained in no duty. Caes.

NOTE.—The Ablative is generally used with fido, confido, nitor, innitor, and frētus:

Nēmō fortunae stabilitate cōfidit, no one trusts (confides in) the stability of fortune. Cic. Salūs veritate nititur, safety rests upon truth. Cic. Frētus amica, relying upon his friends. Liv.

2) When the idea of place is figurative rather than literal:

Nova pectore versat cōsilia, she devises (turns over) new plans IN HER BREAST. Verg. Stāre iudiciis, to abide BY (stand IN) THE DECISIONS. Cic. Promissis manēre, to remain true to promises (lit., remain IN). Verg. Pendere animis,¹ to be perplexed in mind. Cic. Intimis sēnsibus angī, to be troubled in one's inmost feelings. Cic. Ferōx bellō, valiant in war. Hor. Iure peritus, skilled in law. Cic.

2. The Ablatives locō, locis, parte, partibus, dextra, laeva, sinistra, terrā, and marī, especially when qualified by an adjective, and other Ablatives when qualified by tōtus, are generally used without the preposition:

Aliquid locō pōnere, to put anything IN ITS PLACE. Cic. Terrā marique, on land and sea. Liv. Tōtā Graeciā, in all Greece. Nep.

NOTE 1.—The Ablative librō, 'book,' generally takes the preposition when used of a portion of a work, but omits it when used of an entire treatise:

In eō librō, in this book (referring to a portion of the work). Cic. Aliō librō, in another work. Cic.

NOTE 2.—Other Ablatives sometimes occur without the preposition, especially when qualified by omnia, medius, or intersus:

Omnibus oppidiis, in all the towns. Caes.

NOTE 3.—In poetry the Locative Ablative is often used without the preposition:

Lūcia opācis, in shady groves. Verg. Silvīs agrisque, in the forests and fields. Ov. Theātris, in the theatres. Hor. Ferre umerō, to bear upon the shoulder. Verg.

3. ABLATIVE FOR THE LOCATIVE.—Instead of the Locative in names of towns the Ablative is used, with or without a preposition—

1) When the proper name is qualified by an adjective or adjective pronoun:

In ipsā Alexandriā,² in Alexandria itself. Cic. Longā Albā, at Alba Longa. Verg.

2) Sometimes when not thus modified:

In monte Albānō Laviniōque, on the Alban mount and at Lavinium. Liv. In Alexandriā,³ at Alexandria. Liv.

NOTE.—The following special constructions deserve notice:

In oppidō Citio,⁴ in the town Citium. Nep. Albā,⁴ in urbe opportūnā, at Alba, a convenient city. Cic.

¹ In the singular animi is generally used, a Locative probably both in form and in signification; see p. 211, foot-note 4.

² At Alexandria would regularly be expressed by the Locative, Alexandriae.

³ Here Citio is in apposition with oppidō, the usual construction in such cases, though a Genitive limiting oppidō occurs: In oppidō Antiochia, in the city of Antioch. Cic.

⁴ A Locative may thus be followed by in urbe, or in oppidō, modified by an adjective; but see 363, 4, 2). The preposition in is sometimes omitted.

426. LIKE NAMES OF TOWNS are used—

1. Many NAMES OF ISLANDS:

Lesbi vixit, he lived in Lesbos. Nep. Conon Cypri vixit, Conon lived in Cyprus. Nep.

2. The LOCATIVES domi, rūri, humi, militiae, and belli:

Domi militiaeque, at home and in the field. Cic. Rūri agere vitam, to spend life in the country. Liv.

NOTE.—A few other Locatives also occur:

Rōmae Numidiaque, at Rome and in Numidia. Sall. Domum Chersonēsi habuit, he had a house in the Chersonesus. Nep. Truncum reliquit arēnae,¹ he left the body in the sand. Verg.

427. SUMMARY.—The NAMES OF PLACES NOT TOWNS are generally put—

I. In the Accusative with ad or in, to denote the PLACE TO WHICH:

In Asiam redit, he returns to (into) Asia. Nep.

II. In the Ablative with ab, dē, or ex, to denote the PLACE FROM WHICH:

Ab urbe proficiscitur, he sets out from the city. Caes.

III. In the Locative Ablative with in, to denote the PLACE AT OR IN WHICH:

Hannibal in Italiā fuit, Hannibal was in Italy. Nep.

NOTE.—For qualifications and exceptions, see 380, 8 and 4; 412, 2; 425, 1 and 2.

428. SUMMARY.—The NAMES OF TOWNS are put²—

I. In the Accusative, to denote the PLACE TO WHICH:

Nuntius Rōmam redit, the messenger returns to Rome. Liv.

II. In the Ablative, to denote the PLACE FROM WHICH:

Fūgit Corinthō, he fled from Corinth. Cic.

III. In the Locative, or in the Locative Ablative,³ to denote the PLACE AT OR IN WHICH:

Corinthi puerōs docebat, he taught boys at Corinth. Cic. Gadibus vixit, he lived at Gades. Cic.

NOTE.—For qualifications and exceptions, see 380, 1; 412, 3; 425, 3.

RULE XXXI.—Time.

429. The TIME of an Action is denoted by the Ablative:

Octogēsimo annō est mortuus, he died in his eightieth year. Cic. Vere convēnere, they assembled in the spring. Liv. Natāli diē suō, on his birth-

¹ So also terrae and viciniae.

² This, the original construction for all names of places, has been retained unchanged only in the names of towns and in a few other words. Most names of places have assumed a preposition with the Accusative and Ablative, and have substituted the Locative Ablative with a preposition in place of the Locative; see 411, III.

³ That is, the Locative is used if any such form exists; if not, the Locative Ablative supplies its place.

day. Nep. Hieme et aestate, in winter and summer. Cic. Sōlis occāsū, at sunset. Caes. Adventū Caesaris, on the arrival of Caesar. Caes. Lūdis, at the time of the games. Cic. Vix decem annis, scarcely in ten years. Nep. His viginti annis, within these twenty years. Cic.

1. Certain relations of TIME are denoted by the Ablative with in or dē :

In tali tempore,¹ at such a time (i. e., under such circumstances). Liv. In diebus proximis decem,¹ in the next ten days. Sall. Dē mediā nocte, in (lit., from, out of) the middle of the night. Caes.

2. Certain relations of TIME are denoted by the Accusative with ad, in, inter, intrā, sub, etc. :

Ad cōstitutam diem, at the appointed day. Cic. Ad cēnam invitāre in posterum diem, to invite to dinner for the next day. Cic. Intrā viginti diēs, within twenty days. Plaut. Inter tot annōs, within so many years. Cic. Sub noctem, toward night. Caes.

430. The INTERVAL between two events may be denoted by the Accusative or Ablative with ante or post :

Aliquot post mēses² occisus est, he was put to death some months after. Cic. Post diēs paucos vēnit, he came after a few days. Liv. Paucis ante diēbus,³ a few days before. Cic. Homērus annis multis fuit ante Rōmulum, Homer lived many years before Romulus. Cic. Paucis diēbus post ejus mortem, a few days after his death. Cic. Annis quingentis post, five hundred years after. Cic. Quartum post annum quam redierat, four years after he had returned. Nep. Nonō annō postquam, nine years after. Nep. Sextō annō quam erat expulsus, six years after he had been banished. Nep.

NOTE 1.—In these examples observe—

1) That the numeral may be either cardinal, as in the sixth example, or ordinal, as in the last three.⁴

2) That with the Accusative ante and post either precede the numeral and the noun, or stand between them; but that with the Ablative they either follow both, or stand between them.⁵

3) That quam may follow ante and post, as in the seventh example; may be united with them, as in the eighth, or may be used for postquam, as in the ninth.

NOTE 2.—The ABLATIVE OF THE RELATIVE may be used for postquam :

Quatriduō, quō occisus est, four days after he was killed. Cic.

¹ The Ablative with in is used to denote (1) the circumstances of the time, and (2) the time in or within which. In the second sense it is used especially after numeral adverbs and in designating the periods of life: bis in diē, 'twice in the day'; in pueritiā, 'in boyhood,' etc.

² In two instances the Ablative with abhinc is used like the Ablative with ante: Abhinc trigintā diēbus, thirty days before. Cic.

³ The Accusative after ante and post depends upon the preposition, but the Ablative is explained as the measure of difference (423).

⁴ Thus, 'five years after' = quinque annis post, or quintō annō post; or post quīnque annōs, or post quintum annum; or with post between the numeral and the noun, quīnque post annis, etc.

⁵ Any other arrangement is rare.

NOTE 3.—The time since an event may be denoted by the Accusative with ab hinc or ante, or by the Ablative with ante.¹

Ab hinc annos trecentos fuit, he lived three hundred years ago. Cic. Paucis ante diebus erupit ex urbe, he broke out of the city a few days ago. Cic.

RULE XXXII.—Ablative Absolute.²

431. A noun and a participle may be put in the Ablative to add to the predicate an attendant circumstance:

Servio regnante viguerunt, they flourished in the reign of Servius (Servius reigning).³ Cic. Regibus exactis, consules creati sunt, after the banishment of the kings, consuls were appointed. Liv. Equitatu praemissos, subsequébatur, having sent forward his cavalry, he followed. Caes. Regnum haud satis prosperum neglecta religione, a reign not sufficiently prosperous because religion was neglected. Liv. Perditis rebus omnibus tamen virtus se sustentare potest, though all things are lost, still virtue is able to sustain itself. Cic. Obsidibus imperatis, hos Aeduis tradit, having demanded hostages, he delivers them to the Aedui. Caes.

1. The Ablative Absolute, much more common than the English Nominative Absolute, generally expresses the time, cause, or some attendant circumstance of an action.

2. This Ablative is generally best rendered—(1) by a noun with a preposition—in, during, after, by, with, through, etc.; (2) by an active participle with its object; or (3) by a clause with when, while, because, if, though, etc.; ⁴ see examples above.

3. A connective sometimes accompanies the Ablative:

Nisi munitis castris, unless the camp should be fortified. Caes.

4. A noun and an adjective, or even two nouns, may be in the Ablative Absolute.⁵

¹ The Accusative is explained as duration of time (370), the Ablative as measure of difference (423).

² This Ablative is called absolute, because it is not directly dependent for its construction upon any other word in the sentence. Originally Locative, it was first used to denote situation or time, a meaning from which its later uses may be readily derived. Thus, while the force of a Locative Ablative is apparent in Servio regnante and in regibus exactis, it is recognized without difficulty in neglecta religione as indicating the situation or state of things in which the reign was not prosperous. In some instances, however, the Ablative Absolute may be instrumental or causal.

³ Or, while Servius was reigning or was king.

⁴ Or, after the kings were banished.

⁵ In this example obsidibus and hos refer to the same persons. This is unusual, as in this construction the Ablative generally refers to some person or thing not otherwise mentioned in the clause to which it belongs.

⁶ The first method of translation comes nearer the original Latin conception, but the other methods generally accord better with the English idiom.

⁷ This construction is peculiar to the Latin. In the corresponding constructions in Sanskrit, Greek, and English, the present participle of the verb 'to be' is used.

Serēnō caelō, when the sky is clear. Sen. Caniniō cōsule, in the consulship of Caninius. Cic.

NOTE 1.—An infinitive or clause may be in the Ablative Absolute with a neuter participle or adjective:

Auditō Dārium mōviase, pergit, having heard that Darius had withdrawn (that Darius had, etc., having been heard), he advanced. Curt. Multī, incertō quid vitārent, interiērunt, many, uncertain what they should avoid (what they, etc., being uncertain), perished. Liv.

NOTE 2.—A participle or adjective may stand alone in the Ablative Absolute:

Multum certātō, pervicit, he conquered after a hard struggle.¹ Tac.

NOTE 3.—Quique or ipse in the Nominative may accompany the Ablative Absolute:

Multis sibi quisque petentibus, while many sought, each for himself. Sall. Causā ipse prō sē dictā damnatur, having himself advocated his own cause, he is condemned. Liv.

NOTE 4.—For the use of absents and præsents in the Ablative Absolute with a plural noun or pronoun, see 438, 6, note.

SECTION VIII.

CASES WITH PREPOSITIONS.

RULE XXXIII.—Cases with Prepositions.

432. The Accusative and Ablative may be used with prepositions:*

Ad amicum scripat, I have written to a friend. Cic. In cūriam, into the senate-house. Liv. In Italiā, in Italy. Nep. Prō castris, before the camp.

433. The ACCUSATIVE is used with—

Ad, adversus (adversum), ante, apud, circā, circum, circiter, cis, citrā, contrā, ergā, extrā, infrā, inter, intrā, juxtā, ob, penes, per, pōne, post, praeter, prope, propter, secundum, suprā, trāns, ultrā, versus:

Ad urbem, to the city. Cic. Adversus deōs, toward the gods. Cic. Ante lucem, before light. Cic. Apud concilium, in the presence of the council. Cic. Circā forum, around the forum. Cic. Citrā flūmen, on this side of the river. Cic. Contrā naturā, contrary to nature. Cic. Intrā mūrōs, within the walls. Cic. Post castra, behind the camp. Caes. Secundum naturā, according to nature. Cic. Trāns Alpēs, across the Alps. Cic.

NOTE 1.—Exadversus (um) also occurs with the Accusative:

Exadversus eum locum, over against that place. Cic. See also 437.

NOTE 2.—Versus (um) and usque, as adverbs, often accompany prepositions, especially ad and in:

Ad oceanum versus, toward the ocean. Caes. Ad meridiem versus, toward the south. Liv. Usque ad castra hostium, even to the camp of the enemy. Caes.

¹ Literally, it having been much contested. The participle is used impersonally.

² On the general subject of Prepositions and their Use, see Roby, II., pp. 351-456; Draeger, I., pp. 574-665; Kühner, II., pp. 355-432.

NOTE 3.—For proptus, præcise, proptor, and præsumus, with the Accusative, see prope, note 2, under I., below.

NOTE 4.—For compounds of prepositions, see 372 and 376.

I. The following uses of prepositions with the Accusative deserve notice:¹

Ad, to, the opposite of ab, FROM—(1) TO, TOWARD, TILL; (2) NEAR, AT, ON: ad me, 'to me,' 'near me,' 'at my house'; ad urbem, 'to the city,' 'near the city'; ad dextram, 'on the right'; ad multam noctem, 'till late in the night'; ad lucem, 'till daybreak'; ad hoc, 'besides this,' 'moreover'; ad verbum, 'word for word'; ad hunc modum, 'after this manner'; ad ultimum, 'at last'; ad unum omnes, 'all to a man,' 'all without exception.'

Apud, NEAR, AT, BEFORE, IN THE PRESENCE OF: apud oppidum, 'near or before the town'; apud me, 'at my house'; sum apud me, 'I am at home' or 'I am in my right mind'; apud Platōnem, 'in the works of Plato.'

Ante, BEFORE, IN FRONT OF, ABOVE, IN PREFERENCE TO: ante suos annos, 'before his time,' 'too early'; ante tempus, 'before the proper time'; ante annum, 'a year before'; ante urbem conditam, 'before the founding of the city'; ante aliis pulcherrimus omnes, 'the most beautiful above all others.'

Circum, circā, circiter,² ROUND, AROUND, ABOUT: circum forum, 'around the forum'; circā se, 'around or with himself'; circā eandem hōram, 'about the same hour'; circiter meridiem, 'about midday.'

NOTE.—Circum, the oldest of these forms, is used only of place; circā, both of place and of time; circiter, rare as a preposition, chiefly of time. They are all freely used as adverbs: circum conventre, 'to gather around'; circā esse, 'to be around'; circiter pare quarta, 'about the fourth part.'

Cis, citrā,³ ON THIS SIDE—cis opposed to trāns, ACROSS, ON THE OTHER SIDE; citrā opposed to ultrā, BEYOND: cis flumen, 'on this side of the stream'; cis paucos dies, 'within a few days'; citrā veritatem, 'short of the truth'; citrā auctoritatem, 'without authority.'

Contrā,⁴ OPPOSITE TO, OVER AGAINST, AGAINST, CONTRARY TO: contrā eas regiones, 'opposite to those regions'; contrā populum, 'against the people'; contrā naturam, 'contrary to nature.'

Ergā,⁵ TOWARD, TO, AGAINST: ergā parentes, 'toward parents'; odium ergā Rōmāns, 'hatred to the Romans'; ergā regem, 'against the king.'

Extrā, OUTSIDE, WITHOUT, FREE FROM, EXCEPT: extrā portam, 'outside the gate'; extrā culpam, 'without fault'; 'free from fault'; extrā ducem, 'except the leader,' 'besides the leader.'

Infrā,⁶ BELOW, UNDER, BENEATH, LESS THAN, AFTER, LATER THAN, opposed to suprā, ABOVE: infrā lunam, 'beneath the moon'; infrā me, 'below me'; infrā tres pedes, 'less than three feet'; infrā Lycūrgum, 'after Lycurgus.'

¹ For the form and meaning of prepositions in composition, see 344, 5.

² These three forms are all derived from circus, 'a circle' (i. e., from its stem); see 304; 307, note 1.

³ These are often adverbs.

⁴ According to Vanček, from δ and the root reg in regō; 'in the direction of' (lit., from the direction of). In Tacitus, sometimes IN RELATION TO: ergā domum suam, 'in relation to his own household.'

⁵ Infrā = inferā parte, 'in the lower part'

Inter,¹ BETWEEN, AMONG, IN THE MIDST OF: inter urbem et Tiberim, 'between the city and the Tiber'; inter bonos, 'among the good'; inter manus, 'in the hands'; 'within reach'; tangible; inter nos, 'between us'; 'in confidence'; inter se amare, 'to love one another'; inter se differre, 'to differ from one another'; inter paucos, inter paucos, 'especially'; 'preëminently'; inter paucos disertus, 'preëminently eloquent'; inter purpuram atque aurum, 'in the midst of purple and gold.'

Intra, WITHIN, LESS THAN, BELOW, opposed to extra, ON THE OUTSIDE, WITHOUT: intra castra, 'within the camp'; intra me, 'within me'; ² intra se, 'in his mind' or 'in their minds'; ³ intra centum, 'less than one hundred'; intra modum, 'within the limit'; intra famam, 'below his reputation.'

Ob, BEFORE, IN VIEW OF, IN REGARD TO, ON ACCOUNT OF: ob oculos, 'before one's eyes'; ob stultitiam tuam, 'in view of your folly,' or 'in regard to your folly'; ob hanc rem, 'in view of this thing,' 'for this reason,' 'on this account'; quam ob rem, 'in view of which thing,' 'wherefore.'

Per, THROUGH, BY THE AID OF: per forum, 'through the forum'; per alios, 'through others,' 'by the aid of others'; per se, 'by his own efforts,' also 'in himself,' 'in itself'; per metum, 'through fear'; per aetatem, 'in consequence of age'; per ludum, 'sportively'; per vim, 'violently'; per me licet, 'it is allowable as far as I am concerned' (i. e., I make no opposition).

Post, BEHIND, AFTER, SINCE: post montem, 'behind the mountain'; post dedicationem templi, 'after the dedication of the temple'; post hominum memoriam, 'since the memory of men.'

Praeter,⁴ BEFORE, ALONG, PAST, BY, BEYOND, BESIDES, EXCEPT, CONTRARY TO: praeter oculos, 'before their eyes'; praeter oram, 'along the coast'; praeter ceteros, 'beyond others,' 'more than others'; praeter haec = praeter ea, 'besides these things,' 'moreover'; praeter me, 'except me'; praeter spem, 'contrary to expectation.'

Prope, propter, NEAR, NEAR BY. Prope, NEAR; propter = prope, a strengthened form of prope,⁵ VERY NEAR, ALONGSIDE OF, also IN VIEW OF, ON ACCOUNT OF: prope hostes, 'near the enemy'; prope metum, 'near to fear,' 'almost fearful'; propter mare, 'near the sea'; propter timorem, 'on account of fear'; propter se, 'on his own account,' 'on their own account.'

NOTE 1.—Prope, as an adverb, is sometimes combined with a, ab, or ad: prope a Sicilia, 'near Sicily,' 'not far from Sicily'; prope ad portas, 'near to the gates.'

NOTE 2.—Like prope, the derivatives proptus and proximè, and sometimes even propior and proximus, admit the Accusative: ⁶ Propius periculum, nearer to danger. Liv. Proximè deos, very near to the gods.

¹ Formed from in by the ending ter, like praeter from prae (434, I.), prop-ter from prope (433, I.), and sub-ter from sub (435, I.).

² Often equivalent to in meo animo, 'in my mind.'

³ Sometimes, in his country, or in their country.

⁴ In origin kindred to the Greek παρά.

⁵ Formed from prae (434, I.), like in-ter from in; see inter, with foot-note.

⁶ See inter, with foot-note.

⁷ Perhaps by a construction according to sense, following the analogy of prope, though in most cases a preposition may readily be supplied.

Cic. Propter montem, nearer to the mountain. Sal. Proximus mare, nearest to the sea. Caes.

Secundum,¹ FOLLOWING, NEXT AFTER, NEXT BEHIND, ALONGSIDE OF, CONFORMING TO, ACCORDING TO, IN FAVOR OF: secundum aram, 'behind the altar'; secundum deos, 'next after the gods'; secundum ludos, 'after the games'; secundum flumen, 'along the river'; secundum naturam, 'according to nature,' 'following nature'; secundum causam nostram, 'in favor of our cause.'²

Supra,³ ON THE TOP, ABOVE, BEFORE, TOO HIGH FOR; opposed to infra, BELOW: supra lunam, 'above the moon'; supra hanc memoriam, 'before our time'; supra hominem, 'too high for a man.'

Trans, ACROSS, ON THE OTHER SIDE, opposed to cis, ON THIS SIDE: trans Rhenum, 'across the Rhine'; trans Alpes, 'on the other side of the Alps.'

Ultra, BEYOND, ACROSS, ON THE OTHER SIDE, MORE THAN, LONGER THAN, AFTER, opposed to citra, ON THIS SIDE: ultra eum locum, 'beyond that place'; ultra eum, 'beyond him'; ultra pignus, 'more than a pledge'; ultra fidem, 'beyond belief,' 'incredible'; ultra pueriles annos, 'after (beyond) the years of boyhood.'

434. The ABLATIVE is used with—

Ā or ab (abs),	absque ,	cōram ,	cum ,	dē ,
ē or ex ,	prae ,	prō ,	sine ,	tenu s.

Ab urbe, from the city. Caes. Cōram conventū, in the presence of the assembly. Nep. Cum Antiochō, with Antiochus. Cic. Dē forō, from the forum. Cic. Ex Asiā, out of Asia. Nep. Sine corde, without a heart. Cic.

NOTE 1.—Many verbs compounded with ab, dē, ex, or super admit the Ablative dependent upon the preposition, but the preposition is often repeated,⁴ or some other preposition of kindred meaning is used:

Abire magistratū, to retire from office. Tac. Pugnā excedunt, they retire from the battle. Caes. Dē vitā decēdere, to depart from life. Cic. Decēdere ex Asiā, to depart out of Asia. Cic.

NOTE 2.—Ā and ē are used only before consonants, ab and ex before either vowels or consonants. Ab is antiquated, except before ū.

NOTE 3.—For cum appended to the Ablative of a personal pronoun or of a relative, see 184, 6, and 187, 2.

NOTE 4.—Tenus follows its case. In its origin it is the Accusative of a noun,⁵ and as such it often takes the Genitive:

Collō tenu, up to the neck. Ov. Lumbōrum tenu, as far as the loins. Cic.

¹ Properly the neuter of secundus, 'following,' 'second'; but secundus is a gerundive from sequor, formed like dīcundus from dico (239). For the change of qu to c before u in sec-undus for sequ-undus, see 26, foot-note.

² Like the adjective secundus in ventus secundus, 'a favoring wind'—one that follows us on our course; flūmine secundō, 'with a favoring current' (i. e., down the stream).

³ Supra = superā parte, 'on the top.'

⁴ Literally, before this memory. For hīc meaning my or our, see 450, 4, note 1.

⁵ Though in such cases the first element of the compound is not strictly a preposition, but an adverb (344, with foot-note). Thus, in dē vitā decēdere, dē in the verb retains its adverbial force, so that, strictly speaking, the preposition is used only once.

⁶ From the root tan, ten, seen in ten-ā, ten-ē, and in the Greek τεν-ω.

NOTE 5.—For the Ablative with or without de, as used with faciō, fiō, and sum, see 415, III., note.

I. The following uses of prepositions with the Ablative deserve notice:

A, ab, abs, FROM, BY, IN, ON, ON THE SIDE OF. 1. Of Place; FROM, ON, ON THE SIDE OF: ā Galliā, 'from Gaul'; ab ortū, 'from the east'; ā fronte, 'in front' (lit., from the front); ā tergō, 'in the rear'; ab Sēquanis, 'on the side toward the Sequani.' 2. Of Time; FROM, AFTER: ab hōrā tertiā, 'from the third hour'; ā puerō, 'from boyhood'; ab cohortātiōne, 'after exhorting.' 3. In other relations; FROM, BY, IN, AGAINST: ā poenā liber, 'free from punishment'; missus ab Syracūsīs, 'sent by the Syracusans'; ab equitatē firmus, 'strong in (lit., from) cavalry'; ab animō aeger, 'diseased in mind'; ab eis defendere, 'to defend against (from) them'; esse ab aliquō, 'to be on one's side'; ā nobīe, 'in our interest'; servus ā pedibus, 'a footman.'

NOTE.—Abegre, rare in classical prose, is found chiefly in Plautus and Terence.

Cum, WITH, in most of its English meanings: cum patre habitāre, 'to live with one's father'; Caesar cum quīngus legiōnibus, 'Caesar with five legions'; consul cum summō imperiō, 'the consul with supreme command'; servus cum telō, 'a slave with a weapon'; 'an armed slave'; cum primā luce, 'with the early dawn'; 'at the early dawn'; consentire cum aliquō, 'to agree with any one'; cum Caesare agere, 'to treat with Caesar'; cum aliquō dimicāre, 'to contend with any one'; multis cum lacrimis, 'with many tears'; cum virtute, 'virtuously'; cum eō ut, or cum eō quod, 'with this condition that,' 'on condition that.' See also 419, III.

De, DOWN FROM, FROM, OF. 1. Of Place; DOWN FROM, FROM: dē caelo, 'down from heaven'; dē forō, 'from the forum'; dē mājoribus audire, 'to hear from one's elders.' 2. Of Time; FROM, OUT OF, DURING, IN, AT, AFTER: dē prandio, 'from breakfast'; dē diē, 'by day'; 'in the course of the day'; dē tertiā vigiliā, 'during the third watch'; dē mediā nocte, 'at about midnight.' 3. In other relations; FROM, OF, FOR, ON, CONCERNING, ACCORDING TO: dē summō genere, 'of the highest rank'; factum dē marmore signum, 'a bust made of marble'; homō dē plebe, 'a man of plebeian rank'; 'a plebeian'; triumphus dē Galliā, 'a triumph over (concerning) Gaul'; gravi dē causā, 'for a grave reason'; dē mōre vetustō, 'according to ancient custom'; dē industriā, 'on purpose'; dē integrō, 'anew.' See also 415, III., note 2.

E, ex, OUT OF, FROM. 1. Of Place; OUT OF, FROM, IN, ON: ex urbe, 'from the city'; 'out of the city'; ex equō pugnāre, 'to fight on horseback'; ex vinculis, 'in chains' (lit., out of or from chains); ex itinere, 'on the march.' 2. Of Time; FROM, DIRECTLY AFTER, SINCE: ex eō tempore, 'from that time'; ex tempore dicere, 'to speak extemporaneously'; diem ex diē, 'from day to day.' 3. In other relations; FROM, OUT OF, OF, ACCORDING TO, ON ACCOUNT OF, THROUGH: ex vulneribus perire, 'to perish of (because of) wounds'; unus ā filiis, 'one of the sons'; ex commutātiōne, 'on account of the change'; ex consuetudine, 'according to custom'; ē vestigiō, 'on the spot'; ex parte magnā, 'in great part'; ex improvīsō, 'unexpectedly.'

² Compare Greek ἐν, σύν, with.

³ Compare Greek ἐξ, out of.

Præ, BEFORE, IN COMPARISON WITH, IN CONSEQUENCE OF, BECAUSE OF: præ manū esse, 'to be at hand'; præ manū habere, 'to have at hand'; præ se ferre, 'to show, display, exhibit'; præ nobis beatū, 'happy in comparison with us'; nōn præ lacrimis posse, 'not to be able because of tears.'

Pro, BEFORE; IN BEHALF OF, IN DEFENCE OF, FOR; INSTEAD OF, AS; IN RETURN FOR, FOR; ACCORDING TO, IN PROPORTION TO: pro castris, 'before the camp'; pro libertate, 'in defence of liberty'; pro patriā, 'for the country'; pro consule = proconsul, 'a proconsul' (one acting for a consul); pro certō habere, 'to regard as certain'; pro eō, quod, 'for the reason that,' 'because'; pro tuā prudentiā, 'in accordance with your prudence'; pro imperiō, 'imperially'; pro se quisque, 'each according to his ability.'

435. The ACCUSATIVE OR ABLATIVE is used with—

In, sub, subter, super:

In Asiam profūgit, he fled into Asia. Cic. Hannibal in Italiā fuit, Hannibal was in Italy. Nep. Sub montem, toward the mountain. Caes. Sub monte, at the foot of the mountain. Liv. Subter togam, under the toga. Liv. Subter testudinē, under a tortoise or shed. Verg. Super Numidiā, beyond Numidia. Sall. Hæc super rē scribam, I shall write on this subject. Cic.

NOTE 1.—In and sub take the Accusative after verbs implying motion, the Ablative after those implying rest; see examples.

NOTE 2.—Subter and super generally take the Accusative; but super, when it means concerning, of, on (of a subject of discourse), takes the Ablative; see examples.

I. The following uses of in, sub, subter, and super deserve notice:

In, with the Accusative, INTO, TO, TOWARD, TILL. 1. Of Place; INTO, TO, TOWARD, AGAINST, IN: ire in urbem, 'to go into the city'; in Persiā, 'into the country of the Persians'; in aram, 'to the altar'; unum in locum convenire, 'to meet in one place' (380, with note). 2. Of Time; INTO, TO, FOR, TILL: in noctem, 'into the night'; in multam noctem, 'until late at night'; in diem, 'into the day,' also 'for the day'; in diē, 'from day to day,' 'daily'; invitare in posterum diem, 'to invite for the following day.' 3. In other relations; INTO, AGAINST, TOWARD, ON, FOR, AS, IN: divisa in partes tres, 'divided into three parts'; in hostem, 'against the enemy'; in id certāmen, 'for this contest'; in memoriā patris, 'in memory of his father'; in spem paciē, 'in the hope of peace'; in rem esse, 'to be useful,' 'to be to the purpose.'

In, with the Ablative, IN, ON, AT. 1. Of Place; IN, AT, WITHIN, AMONG, UPON: in urbe, 'in the city'; in Persiā, 'among the Persians'; sapientissimus in septem, 'the wisest among or of the seven.' 2. Of Time; IN, AT, DURING, IN THE COURSE OF: in tālī tempore, 'at such a time'; in tempore, 'in time.' 3. In other relations; IN, ON, UPON, IN THE CASE OF: esse in armis, 'to be in arms'; in summō timore, 'in the greatest fear'; in hō hominē, 'in the case of this man.'

Sub, with the Accusative, UNDER, BENEATH, TOWARD, UP TO, ABOUT, DIRECT-

¹ This causal meaning is developed from the local. The noun in the Ablative is thought of as an obstacle or hindrance: nōn præ lacrimis posse, 'not to be able before, in the presence of, because of such a hindrance as tears.'

LY AFTER: sub jugum mittere, 'to send under the yoke'; sub nostram aciem, 'toward our line'; sub astra, 'up to the stars'; sub vespertum, 'toward evening'; sub eâs litteras, 'directly after that letter'; sub imperium redactus, 'brought under one's sway.'

Sub, with the Ablative, UNDER, AT, AT THE FOOT OF, IN, ABOUT: sub terrâ, 'under the earth'; sub pellibus, 'in tents'; ¹ sub brândâ, 'at the time of the winter solstice'; sub luce, 'at dawn'; sub hâc verbô, 'under this word'; sub iudicio, 'in the hands of the judge' (i. e., not yet decided).

NOTE.—Subter, a strengthened form ² of sub, meaning UNDER, generally takes the Accusative, though it admits the Ablative in poetry: subter mare, 'under the sea'; subter togam, 'under the toga'; subter densâ testudinē, 'under a compact testudo.'

Super, with the Accusative, OVER, UPON, ABOVE: sedens super arma, 'sitting upon the arms'; super Numidiâ, 'beyond Numidia'; super sexagintâ milia, 'upward of sixty thousand'; super naturam, 'supernatural'; super omnia, 'above all.'

Super, with the Ablative, UPON, AT, DURING, CONCERNING, OF, ON: stratô super ostrô, 'upon purple couches' (lit., upon the spread purple); noctis super mediâ, 'at midnight'; hâc super rē scribere, 'to write upon this subject'; multa super Priamô rogâtâ, 'asking many questions about Priam.'

NOTE.—The Ablative is rare with super, except when it means concerning, about, on (of the subject of discourse). It is then the regular construction.

436. Prepositions were originally adverbs (307, note 1), and many of the words generally classed as prepositions are often used as adverbs ³ in classical authors:

Ad milibus quattuor, about four thousand. Caes. Omnia contrâ circâque, all things opposite and around. Liv. Prope a Sicilia, not far from Sicily. Cic. Juxtâ positus, placed near by. Nep. Suprà, infrâ esse, to be above, below. Cic. Nec citrà nec ultrâ, neither on this side nor on that side. Ov.

437. Conversely, several words generally classed as adverbs are sometimes used as prepositions. Such are—

1. With the ACCUSATIVE, propius, præximâ, vidiâ, postridiâ, usque, de-super:

Propius periculum, nearer to danger. Liv. Pridiâ Idus, the day before the Ides. Cic. Usque pedes, even to the feet. Curt.

2. With the ABLATIVE, intus, palam, procul, simul (poetic):

Tâli intus templô, within such a temple. Verg. Palam populô, in the presence of the people. Liv. Procul castris, at a distance from the camp. Tac. Simul his, with these. Hor.

3. With the ACCUSATIVE or ABLATIVE, clam, insuper:

Clam patrem, without the father's knowledge. Plaut. Clam vobis, without your knowledge. Caes.

¹ That is, in camp (lit., under skins).

² Formed from sub, like in-ter from in; see 433, L, inter, foot-note.

³ They are, in fact, sometimes adverbs and sometimes prepositions.

CHAPTER III.

SYNTAX OF ADJECTIVES.

RULE XXXIV.—Agreement of Adjectives.

438. An adjective agrees with its noun in GENDER, NUMBER, and CASE:

Fortūna caeca est, fortune is blind. Cic. Vērae amicitiae, true friendships. Cic. Magister optimus, the best teacher. Cic. Quā in rē privātās injuriās ultus est, in which thing he avenged private wrongs. Caes. Sōl oriēns diem cōficit, the sun rising makes the day. Cic.

1. Adjective Pronouns and Participles are ADJECTIVES in construction, and accordingly conform to this rule, as in quā in rē, sōl oriēns.

2. When an adjective unites with the verb (generally sum) to form the predicate, as in caeca est, 'is blind,' it is called a PREDICATE ADJECTIVE (360, note 1); but when it simply qualifies a noun, as in vērae amicitiae, 'true friendships,' it is called an ATTRIBUTIVE ADJECTIVE.

3. AGREEMENT WITH CLAUSE, ETC.—An adjective may agree with any word or words used substantively, as a pronoun, clause, infinitive, etc.:

Quis clārior, who is more illustrious? Cic. Certum est liberōs amārī, it is certain that children are loved. Quint. See 42, note.

NOTE.—An adjective agreeing with a clause is sometimes plural, as in Greek:

Ut Aenēās factūtur nōta tibi, how Aeneas is tossed about is known to you. Verg.

4. A NEUTER ADJECTIVE used as a substantive sometimes supplies the place of a Predicate Adjective:¹

Mors est extrēmum, death is the last thing. Cic. Triste lupus stabulis, a wolf is a sad thing for the flocks. Verg.

5. A NEUTER ADJECTIVE WITH A GENITIVE is often used instead of an adjective with its noun, especially in the Nominative and Accusative:

*Multum operae, much service.*² Cic. *Id temporis, that time.*³ Cic. *Vāna rērum, vain things.*⁴ Hor. Opāca viārum, dark streets. Verg. Strāta viārum, paved streets. Verg. See also 397, 3, note 4.

6. SYNESIS.—Sometimes the adjective or participle conforms to the real meaning of its noun, without regard to grammatical gender or number:

Pars certāre parātī, a part (some), prepared to contend. Verg. Inspēranti nōbis, to us (me) not expecting it. Catul. Dēmōsthenēs cum ceteris erant expulsi, Demosthenes with the others had been banished. Nep.

² Multum operae = multa opera or multam operam; id temporis = id tempus; vāna rērum = vānas rēs or vānās rēs.

³ A construction according to sense; see 636, IV., 4.

⁴ Parātī is plural, to conform to the meaning of pars, 'part,' 'some,' plural in sense;

LY AFTER: sub jugum mittere, 'to send under the yoke'; 'toward our line'; sub astra, 'up to the stars'; sub respiciendo; sub eâs litteras, 'directly after that letter'; sub 'brought under one's sway.'

Sub, with the Ablative, UNDER, AT, AT THE FOOT OF, 'under the earth'; sub pellibus, 'in tents'; ¹ sub brumâ, 'winter solstice'; sub luce, 'at dawn'; sub hâc verbâ, 'under this word'; sub iudice, 'in the hands of the judge' (i. e., not yet decided).

NOTE.—Subter, a strengthened form ² of sub, meaning UNDER, ACCUSATIVE, though it admits the Ablative in poetry: subter m. togam, 'under the toga'; subter dênâ testudinē, 'under a Super, with the Accusative, OVER, UPON, ABOVE: sederunt upon the arms; super Numidiam, 'beyond Numidia'; super milia, 'upward of sixty thousand'; super nâturam, 'super omnia', 'above all.'

Super, with the Ablative, UPON, AT, DURING, CONCERN: super ostrâ, 'upon purple couches' (lit., upon the spread); mediâ, 'at midnight'; hâc super râ scribere, 'to write upon the scroll'; multa super Priamâ rogâtis, 'asking many questions about Priam.'

NOTE.—The Ablative is rare with super, except when it means CONCERN (of the subject of discourse). It is then the regular construction.

436. Prepositions were originally adverbs (307, note), the words generally classed as prepositions are often used by classical authors:

Ad milibus quattuor, about four thousand. Caes. Omnibus, all things opposite and around. Liv. Prope a Sicilia, near Sicily. Cic. Juxta positus, placed near by. Nep. Supra, infrâ, below. Cic. Nec citrà nec ultrâ, neither on this side nor on that.

437. Conversely, several words generally classed as adverbs are sometimes used as prepositions. Such are—

1. With the ACCUSATIVE, propius, proximâ, pridie, per, super:

Propius periculum, nearer to danger. Liv. Pridie Idibus, the Ides. Cic. Usque pedes, even to the feet. Curt.

2. With the ABLATIVE, intus, palam, procul, simul (poet.). Talli intus templi, within such a temple. Verg. Palam, in the presence of the people. Liv. Procul castris, at a distance from the camp. Simul his, with these. Hor.

3. With the ACCUSATIVE OR ABLATIVE, clam, insuper: Clam patrem, without the father's knowledge. Plaut. Insuper, without your knowledge. Caes.

¹ That is, in camp (lit., under skins).

² Formed from sub, like in-ter from in; see 433, I, inter.

³ They are, in fact, sometimes adverbs and sometimes prepositions.

reimorāta sunt, night and plunder detained the enemy.

ADJECTIVES in the singular may belong to a plural noun: legiōēs, the first and the twentieth legions. Tac.

Two or more *praenōmina*¹ in the singular may be combined in the plural:

legiōēs, Gnaeus and Publius Scipio. Cic. Publius et Servius Sullā. Sall.

USE OF ADJECTIVES.

The adjective in Latin corresponds in its general use to the English.

In English, an adjective may qualify the complex idea of another adjective:

legiōēs, two very powerful races. Liv. Māgnum aevū. Nāvēs longās trigintā veterēs, thirty old vessels

The connective is used when adjectives are combined, as in duos but if the first adjective is multi or plūrimī, the connective is not used: legiōēs, many great thoughts. Cic. Multi et praeclāra facta. Sall.

APPLICATION.—An adjective is sometimes applied to a noun of the action expressed by the verb:

naves, overwhelm and sink the ships (lit., overwhelm the ships). *Scūta latentia*² condunt, they conceal their hidden Adjectives often designate a PARTICULAR PART of an object: prima montis; mediā aestāte, in the middle of summer; summus mōns, the highest mountain.

Adjectives thus used are primus, mediū, ūltimus, extrēmus, postrēmus, imus, suprēmus, reliquus, cētera, etc.

In Livy, and in late prose writers, the neuter of these adjectives occurs:

inimici Libyae. Verg. Ad ūltimum inopiae (for ad ūltimam inopiam). Liv.

Adjectives are often combined with res: res adversae, adversity; res actūs, revolution; res pública, republic.

649.

aliter is not simply gentēs, but potentissimae gentēs; māgnum qualitatem, money belonging to another; veterēs qualifies nāvēs (long vessels), while trigintā qualifies the still more complex ceterēs.

obruere gives the result of the action denoted by obruere, and is not that action is performed; latentia likewise gives the result

NOTE.—In the Ablative Absolute (431) absente and praesente occur in early Latin with a plural noun or pronoun :¹

*Praesente*¹ libus (etc.),² in their presence (lit., they being present). Plaut. Praesente testibus, in the presence of witnesses. Plaut.

7. AGREEMENT WITH ONE NOUN FOR ANOTHER.—When a noun governs another in the Genitive, an adjective belonging in sense to one of the two nouns, sometimes agrees with the other :

Mājōra (for mājōrum) rerum initia, the beginnings of greater things. Liv. Cursus iūsti (iustus) amnis, the regular course of the river. Liv.

NOTE 1.—In the passive forms of verbs the participle sometimes agrees with a predicate noun or with an appositive; see 462.

NOTE 2.—An adjective or participle predicated of an Accusative is sometimes attracted into the Nominative to agree with the subject :

Ostendit se dextra (for dextram), she shows herself favorable. Verg.

439. An adjective or participle, belonging to TWO OR MORE NOUNS, may agree with them all conjunctly, or may agree with one and be understood with the others :

Castor et Pollux visi sunt, Castor and Pollux were seen. Cic. Dubitare visus est Sulpicius et Cotta, Sulpicius and Cotta seemed to doubt. Cic. Temeritās ignōratiōque vitiosa est, rashness and ignorance are bad. Cic.

1. The ATTRIBUTIVE ADJECTIVE generally agrees with the nearest noun :

Agri omnes et maria, all lands and seas. Cic. Cuncta maria terraeque, all seas and lands. Sall.

2. A plural adjective or participle, agreeing with two or more NOUNS OF DIFFERENT GENDERS, is generally masculine when the nouns denote persons or sentient beings, and in other cases generally neuter :

Pater et mater mortui sunt, father and mother are dead. Ter. Honōres, victoriāe fortuita sunt, honors and victories are accidental things. Cic. Labor voluptāsque inter se sunt juncta, labor and pleasure are joined together. Liv.

NOTE.—When nouns denoting sentient beings are combined with those denoting things, the plural adjective or participle in agreement with them sometimes takes the gender of the former and sometimes of the latter, and sometimes is neuter irrespective of the gender of the nouns :

Rēx rēgiaque clāssis profecti sunt, the king and the royal fleet set out. Liv. Rēgem rēgnumque sua futura scunt, they know that the king and the kingdom will be theirs. Liv. *Inimici*³ inter se sunt libera civitās et rēx, a free state and a king are hostile to each other. Liv.

3. With nouns denoting inanimate objects, the adjective or participle is often neuter, irrespective of the gender of the nouns :

Labor et dolor sunt finitima, labor and pain are kindred (things). Cic.

insperanti is singular, because nōbis is here applied to one person, the speaker (446, note 2); expulsi is plural, because Dēmōsthēnēs cum cōteris means Demosthenes and the others.

¹ In this construction absente and praesente appear to be treated as adverbs.

² See p. 73, foot-note 2.

³ Perhaps best explained substantively—things hostile; see 438, 4.

Nox atque praeda hostis remorata sunt, night and plunder detained the enemy. Sall.

4. TWO OR MORE ADJECTIVES in the singular may belong to a plural noun: Prima et vicésima legiōnēs, the first and the twentieth legions. Tac.

NOTE.—In the same way two or more *praenominia*¹ in the singular may be combined with a family name in the plural:

Gnaeus et Publius Scipionēs, Gnaeus and Publius Scipio. Cic. Publius et Servius Sullae, Publius and Servius Sula. Sall.

USE OF ADJECTIVES.

440. The adjective in Latin corresponds in its general use to the adjective in English.

1. In Latin, as in English, an adjective may qualify the complex idea formed by a noun and another adjective:

Duae potentissimae gentēs, two very powerful races. Liv. Magnum aes alienum, a large debt. Cic. Naves longas triginta veteres, thirty old vessels of war. Liv.²

NOTE.—In general no connective is used when adjectives are combined, as in duae potentissimae gentēs, etc.; but if the first adjective is multi or plurimi, the connective is usually inserted:

Multae et magnae cogitationēs, many great thoughts. Cic. Multa et praeciosa facinora, many illustrious deeds. Sall.

2. PROLEPSIS OR ANTICIPATION.—An adjective is sometimes applied to a noun to denote the result of the action expressed by the verb:

Submersas³ obrue puppēs, overwhelm and sink the ships (lit., overwhelm the sunken ships). Verg. Scuta latentia³ conduunt, they conceal their hidden shields. Verg.

NOTE 1.—Certain adjectives often designate a PARTICULAR PART of an object: prima nox, the first part of the night; mediū aestās, in the middle of summer; summus mons, the top (highest part) of the mountain.

NOTE 2.—The adjectives thus used are primus, medius, ultimus, extremus, postremus, intimus, summus, infimus, imus, supremus, reliquus, cetera, etc.

NOTE 3.—In the poets, in Livy, and in late prose writers, the neuter of these adjectives with a Genitive sometimes occurs:

Libyae extrema, the frontiers of Libya. Verg. Ad ultimum inopiae (for ad ultimam inopiam), to extreme destitution. Liv.

NOTE 4.—Adjectives are often combined with res: res adversae, adversity; res secundae, prosperity; res novae, revolution; res publica, republic.

² Here duae qualifies not simply gentēs, but potentissimae gentēs; magnum qualifies aes alienum, 'debt' (lit., money belonging to another); veteres qualifies naves longas, 'vessels of war' (lit., 'long vessels'), while triginta qualifies the still more complex expression, naves longas veteres.

³ Observe that submersas gives the result of the action denoted by obruere, and is not applicable to puppēs until that action is performed; latentia likewise gives the result of conduunt.

441. Adjectives and participles are often used SUBSTANTIVELY :¹

Bonī, the good; mortāles, mortals; dōctī, the learned; sapientēs, the wise; multi, many persons; multa, many things; praefectus, a prefect; ² nātus, a son.³

1. In the plural, masculine adjectives and participles often designate PERSONS, and neuter adjectives THINGS: fortēs, the brave; divitēs, the rich; pauperēs, the poor; multi, many; pauci, few; omnia, all; mei, my friends; discipulī, learners; spectantēs, spectators; futūra, future events; ūtīla, useful things; mea, nostra, my things, our things; omnia, all things; haec, illa, these things, those things.

2. In the singular, adjectives and participles are occasionally used SUBSTANTIVELY, especially in the Genitive, or in the Accusative or Ablative with a preposition: dōctus, a learned man; adulescēns, a young man; vērū, a true thing, the truth; falsū, a falsehood; nihil sinceri, nothing of sincerity, nothing sincere; nihil humani, nothing human; nihil reliquū, nothing left; ⁴ aliquid novū, something new; ā primū, from the beginning; ad extremū, to the end; ad summū, to the highest point; dū integrū, afresh; dū imprōvisū, unexpectedly; eo aequū, in like manner; in praesentī, at present; in futurū, for the future; prō certū, as certain.⁴

NOTE 1.—For the neuter participle with opus and usus, see 414, IV., note 3.

NOTE 2.—For the use of adjectives instead of nouns in the Genitive, see 395, note 2.

3. A few substantives are sometimes used as adjectives, especially verbal nouns in tor and tris: ⁵ victor exercitus, a victorious army; homō gladiatōr, a gladiator, a gladiatorial man; victorēs Athēnae, victorious (conquering) Athens; populus latē rē, a people of extensive sway.⁶

442. EQUIVALENT TO A CLAUSE.—Adjectives, like nouns in apposition, are sometimes equivalent to clauses :

Nēmō saltat sobrius, no one dances when he is sober, or when sober. Cic. Hortēnsium vivum amāvī, I loved Hortensius, while he was alive. Cic. Homō nunquam sobrius, a man who is never sober. Cic.

NOTE.—Prior, primus, ultimus, postrēmus, are often best rendered by a relative clause: Primus mōrem solvit, he was the first who broke the custom.⁷ Liv.

443. ADJECTIVES AND ADVERBS.—Adjectives are sometimes used where our idiom employs adverbs :

Sōcratēs venēnum laetus hausit, Socrates CHEERFULLY drank the poison. Sen. Senātus frequēs convēnit, the senate assembled IN GREAT NUMBERS. Cic. Rōscius erat Rōmae frequēs, Roscius was frequently at Rome. Cic.

¹ That is, words which were originally adjectives or participles sometimes become substantives; indeed, many substantives were originally adjectives; see 323, foot-note; 324, foot-note.

² Praefectus, from praefectō (lit., one appointed over); nātus, from nāscor (lit., one born).

³ See 397, 1. For nihil reliquū facere, see 401, note 4.

⁴ Numerous adverbial expressions are thus formed by combining the neuter of adjectives with prepositions.

⁵ That is, these words are generally substantives, but sometimes adjectives.

⁶ See Verg., Aen., I, 21.

⁷ With the adverb primū the thought would be, he first broke the custom (i. e., before doing anything else). Compare the corresponding distinction between the Greek adjective πρῶτος and the adverb πρῶτον.

NOTE 1.—The adjectives chiefly thus used are—(1) Those expressive of joy, knowledge, and their opposites: laetus, libens, iocundus, tristis, solens, incedens, prudens, imprudens, etc. (2) Nullus, solus, totus, unus; prior, primus, propior, priusimus, etc.

NOTE 2.—In the poets a few adjectives of time and place are used in the same manner: Domesticus otior, I idle about home. Hor. Vesperinus pete tectum, at evening seek your abode. Hor.

NOTE 3.—In rare instances adverbs seem to supply the place of adjectives: Omnia recte sunt, all things are right. Cic. Non ignari sumus ante malorum,¹ we are not ignorant of past misfortunes. Verg. Nunc hominum morés, the character of men of the present day. Plaut.

NOTE 4.—Numeral adverbs often occur with titles of office:²

Flaminius, consul iterum, Flaminius, when consul for the second time. Cic.

444. A COMPARISON between two objects requires the comparative degree; between more than two, the superlative:

Prior horum, the former of these (two). Nep. Gallorum fortissimi, the bravest of the Gauls. Caes.

1. The comparative sometimes has the force of TOO, UNUSUALLY, SOMEWHAT, and the superlative, the force of VERY: doctior, too learned, or somewhat learned; doctissimus, very learned.

NOTE.—Certain superlatives are common as titles of honor: clarissimus, nobilissimus, and summus—especially applicable to men of consular or senatorial rank; fortissimus, honestissimus, illustrissimus, and splendidissimus—especially applicable to those of the equestrian order.

2. COMPARATIVE AFTER QUAM.—When an object is said to possess one quality in a higher degree than another, the two adjectives thus used either may be connected by *magis quam*³ or may both be put in the comparative:⁴

Disertus magis quam sapiens, more fluent than wise.⁵ Cic. Praeclarum magis quam difficile, more noble than difficult, or noble rather than difficult. Cic. Ditiores quam fortiores, more wealthy than brave.⁶ Liv. Clarior quam gravior, more illustrious than pleasing. Liv.

NOTE 1.—In a similar manner two adverbs may be connected by magis quam, or may both be put in the comparative:

Magis audacter quam parate, with more audacity than preparation. Cic. Bellum fortius quam felicius gerere, to wage war with more valor than success. Liv.

NOTE 2.—The form with magis, both in adjectives and in adverbs, may sometimes be best rendered rather than:

Arts magis magna quam difficile, an art extensive rather than difficult. Cic. See also the second example under 2, above.

NOTE 3.—In the later Latin the positives sometimes follows quam, even when the regular comparatives precede, and sometimes two positives are used:

Vehementius quam cautè appetere, to seek more eagerly than cautiously. Tac. Claris quam vetustis, illustrious rather than ancient. Tac.

NOTE 4.—For the use of comparatives before quam pro, see 417, 1, note 5.

¹ Like the Greek τὸν πρὶν κακῶν and τὸν πρὶν ἀνθρώπων.

² The want of a present participle in the verb sum brings these adverbs into close connection with nouns.

³ As in English, more fluent than wise. This is the usual method in Cicero.

⁴ As in Greek, πλείους ἢ βελτίους, more numerous than good. This method, common in Livy, is rare in the earlier writers.

3. STRENGTHENING WORDS.—Comparatives and superlatives are often strengthened by a preposition with its case, as by ante, proe, proder, suprà (417, 1, note 3). Comparatives are also often strengthened by diam, even, still; multò, much; and superlatives by longè, multò, by far, much; vel, even; unus, unus omnium, alone, alone of all, without exception, far, by far; quam, quam or quantus with the verb possum, as possible; tam quam qui, ut qui, as possible (lit., as he who):

Majores etiam varietates, even greater varieties. Cic. Multò etiam gravior queritur, he complains even much more bitterly. Caes. Multò maxima pars, by far the largest part. Cic. Quam saepissimè, as often as possible. Cic. Unus omnium doctissimus, without exception the most learned of men. Cic. Res sine omnium difficillima, a thing by far the most difficult of all. Cic. Quam maximae copiae, forces as large as possible. Sall. Quantam maximam potest vastitatem ostendit, he exhibits the greatest possible desolation (lit., as great as the greatest he can). Liv.

CHAPTER IV.

SYNTAX OF PRONOUNS.

RULE XXXV.—Agreement of Pronouns.

445. A pronoun agrees with its antecedent in GENDER, NUMBER, and PERSON:

Animal quod sanguinem habet, an animal which has blood. Cic. Ego, qui tē cōfirmō, I who encourage you. Cic. Vis est in virtutibus, eds excitā, there is strength in virtues, arouse THEM. Cic.

NOTE.—The antecedent is the word or words to which the pronoun refers, and whose place it supplies. Thus, in the examples under the rule, animal is the antecedent of quod; ego, of qui; and virtutibus, of eds.

1. This rule applies to all pronouns when used as nouns. Pronouns used as adjectives conform to the rule for adjectives; see 438.

2. When the antecedent is a demonstrative in agreement with a personal pronoun, the relative agrees with the latter:

Tu es qui mē ornasti, you are the one who commended me. Cic.

3. When a relative, or other pronoun, refers to TWO OR MORE ANTECEDENTS, it generally agrees with them conjointly, but it sometimes agrees with the nearest:

Pietas, virtus, fides, quorum¹ Rōmae templa sunt, piety, virtue, and faith, whose temples are at Rome. Cic. Peccatum ac culpa, quae,¹ error and fault, WHICH. Cic.

¹ Quorum agrees with pietas, virtus, and fides conjointly, and is accordingly in the plural; but quae agrees simply with culpa.

NOTE 1.—With antecedents of different genders, the pronoun conforms in gender to the rule for adjectives (439, 2 and 3):

Pueri mulierisque qui,¹ boys and women who. Caes. Inconstantia et temeritas, quae¹ digna non sunt deo, inconstancy and rashness WHICH are not worthy of a god. Cic.

NOTE 2.—With antecedents of different persons, the pronoun prefers the first person to the second, and the second to the third, conforming to the rule for verbs (463, 1):

Ego ac tu inter nos² loquimur, you and I converse together. Tac. Et tu et collegae tui, qui³ sperastis, both you and your colleagues, who hoped. Cic.

4. By ATTRACTION, a pronoun sometimes agrees with a PREDICATE NOUN or an APPOSITIVE instead of the antecedent:

Animal quem (for quod) vocamus hominem, the animal WHICH we call man.³ Cic. Thebae, quod (quae) caput est, Thebes, WHICH is the capital. Liv. Ea (id) erat confessio, THAT (i. e., the action referred to) was a confession. Liv. Flumen Rhenus, qui, the river Rhine, WHICH. Caes.

5. By SYNESIS, the pronoun is sometimes construed according to the real meaning of the antecedent, without regard to grammatical form; and sometimes it refers to the class of objects to which the antecedent belongs:

Quia fessum militem habebat, his quietem dedit, as he had an exhausted soldiery, he gave THEM (THESE) a rest. Liv. Equitatus, qui viderunt, the cavalry who saw. Caes. De alia re, quod ad me attinet, in regard to another thing WHICH pertains to me. Plaut. Earum rerum utrumque, EACH of these things. Cic. Democritum omittamus; apud istos; let us omit Democritus; with SUCH (i. e., as he). Cic.

6. ANTECEDENT OMITTED.—The antecedent of the relative is often omitted when it is indefinite, is a demonstrative pronoun, or is implied in a possessive pronoun, or in an adjective:

Sunt qui censeant, there are some who think. Cic. Terra reddit quod accipit, the earth returns what it has received. Cic. Vestra, qui cum integritate vixistis, hoc interest, this interests you who have lived with integrity. Cic. Servilis tumultus quos, the revolt of the slaves whom. Caes.

7. CLAUSE AS ANTECEDENT.—When the antecedent is a sentence or clause, the pronoun, unless attracted (445, 4), is in the Neuter Singular, but the relative generally adds id as an appositive to such antecedent:

Nos, id quod debet, patria delectat, our country delights us, as it ought (lit., that which it owes). Cic. Regem, quod nunquam antea acciderat, necaverunt, they put their king to death, which had never before happened. Cic.

8. RELATIVE ATTRACTED.—The relative is sometimes attracted into the case of the antecedent, and sometimes agrees with the antecedent repeated:

Judice quo (for quem) nosti, the judge whom you know. Hor. Dies instat, ¹ Qui agrees with pueri and mulieres conjointly, and is in the masculine, according to 439, 2; but quae is in the neuter, according to 439, 3.

² Nos, referring to ego ac tu, is in the first person; while qui, referring to tu et collegae, is in the second person, as is shown by the verb sperastis.

³ In these examples, the pronouns quem, quod, and ea are attracted, to agree with their predicate nouns, hominem, caput, and confessio; but qui agrees with the appositive, Rhenus.

quô diē, the day is at hand, on which day. Caes. Cāmae, quam urbem tenēbant, Cumae, which city they held. Liv.

9. ANTECEDENT ATTRACTED.—In poetry, rarely in prose, the antecedent is sometimes attracted into the case of the relative; and sometimes incorporated in the relative clause with the relative in agreement with it:

Urbem, quam statuō, vestra est, the city which I am building is yours.

Verg.¹ Malūrum, quās amor cūrās habet, obliuisci (for malūrum cūrārūm quās), to forget the wretched cares which love has. Hor.¹ Quōs vōs implōrāre debētis, ut, quam urbem pulcherrimam esse voluerunt, hanc² dēfendant, these (lit., whom) you ought to implore to defend this city, which they wished to be most beautiful. Cic.

USE OF PRONOUNS.

446. PERSONAL PRONOUNS.—The Nominative of Personal Pronouns is used only for emphasis or contrast:*

Significāmus quid sentiāmus, we show what we think. Cic. Ego rēgēs ejēci, vōs tyrannōs intrōdūcitis, I have banished kings, you introduce tyrants. Cic.

NOTE 1.—With quidem the pronoun is usually expressed, but not with equidem:

Facis amīcō tū quidem, you act indeed in a friendly manner. Cic. Nōn dubitābam equidem, I did not doubt indeed. Cic.

NOTE 2.—A writer sometimes speaks of himself in the plural, using nōs for ego, nos for meus, and the plural verb for the singular:

Vidēs nōs (for mē) multa cōnāri, you see that we (for I) are attempting many things. Cic. Bernō explicābit nostram (for meam) sententiā, the conversation will unfold our (my) opinion. Cic. Diximus (for dixi) multa, I have said many things. Cic.⁴

NOTE 3.—Nostrī and vestrī are generally used in an objective sense; nostrū and vestrū in a partitive sense:

Habētis ducem memorem vestrī, you have a leader mindful of YOUR INTERESTS (OF YOU). Cic. Minus habeo virtū quam vestrū uteris, I have less strength than either of you. Cic. Quis nostrū, who of us? Cic.

NOTE 4.—With ab, ad, or apud, a personal pronoun may designate the residence or abode of a person:

A nōbis ēgreditur, he is coming FROM OUR HOUSE. Ter. Veni ad mē, I come to MY HOUSE. Cic. Eamus ad mē, let us go to my house. Ter. Apud tē est, he is at your house. Cic. Rūri apud sē est, he is at his residence in the country. Cic. See also 433, I., ad, apud, etc.

447. POSSESSIVE PRONOUNS, when not emphatic, are seldom expressed, if they can be supplied from the context:

Manūs lavā, wash your hands. Cic. Mihī mea vīta cāra est, *my life is dear to me.*⁵ Plaut.

¹ For other examples, see Verg., Aen., V., 23-30; Hor., Sat., I., 10, 16.

² Quam urbem, hanc = hanc urbem, quam.

³ The learner will remember that a pronominal subject is actually contained in the ending of the verb; see 368, 2, foot-note.

⁴ For other examples, see Hor., Sat., I., 9, 7, and Car., I., 32.

⁵ In this example mea is expressed for emphasis.

NOTE 1.—Possessive Pronouns sometimes mean favorable, propitious, as amēnus often means unfavorable:

Vādīmus haud nūmine nostrō, we advance under a divinity not propitious. Verg. Tempore tuō pugnasti, you fought at a favorable time. Liv. Ferunt sua flāmina clāssēm, favorable winds bear the fleet. Verg. Allēnō locō proelium committunt, they engage in battle in an unfavorable place. Caes.

NOTE 2.—For the Possessive Pronoun in combination with a Genitive, see 398, 3.

448. REFLEXIVE USE OF PRONOUNS.—Sui and suis have a reflexive sense;¹ sometimes also the other personal and possessive pronouns:

Miles sē ipsum interfecit, the soldier killed himself. Tac. Telō sē defendit, he defends himself with a weapon. Cic. Suā vī movētur, he is moved by his own power. Cic. Mē cōnsolōr, I console myself. Cic. Vōs vestra tēcta dēfendite, defend your houses. Cic.

NOTE.—Inter nōs, inter vōs, inter eōs, have a reciprocal force, each other, one another, together; but instead of inter eōs, the noun may be repeated in an oblique case:

Colloquimur inter nōs, we converse together. Cic. Amant inter sē, they love one another. Cic. Hominēs hominibus ūtilēs sunt, men are useful to men (i. e., to each other). Cic.

449. Sui and suis generally refer to the Subject of the clause in which they stand:

Sē diligit, he loves himself. Cic. Iustitia propter sēsē colenda est, justice should be cultivated for its own sake. Cic. Annulum suum dedit, he gave his ring. Nep. Per sē sibi quisque cārus est, every one is in his very nature (through or in himself) dear to himself. Cic.

1. In SUBORDINATE CLAUSES expressing the sentiment of the principal subject, sui and suis generally refer to that subject:

Sentit animus sē vī suā movēri, the mind perceives that it is moved by its own power. Cic. Ā mē petivit ut sēcum essem, he asked (from) me to be with him (that I would be). Cic. Pervestigat quid sui civēs cōgitent, he tries to ascertain what his fellow-citizens think. Cic.

1) As sui and suis thus refer to subjects, the demonstratives, is, ille, etc., generally refer either to other words, or to subjects which do not admit sui and suis:

Deum agnōscis ex ejus operibus, you recognise a god by (from) his works. Cic. Obligat civitātem nihil eōs mutātūrōs, he binds the state not to change anything (that they will). Just.

2) In some subordinate clauses the writer may at pleasure use either the reflexive or the demonstrative, according as he wishes to present the thought as that of the principal subject, or as his own:

Persuādēt Tullius ut cum illis² proficiantur, they persuade the Tullii to depart with them. Caes.

3) Sometimes reflexives and demonstratives are used without any apparent distinction:

¹ Sui, of himself; sibi, for himself; eī, himself.

² Here cum illis is the proper language for the writer without reference to the sentiment of the principal subject; sēcum, which would be equally proper, would present the thought as the sentiment of that subject.

Caesar Fabium cum legione sua¹ remittit, Caesar sends back Fabius and (with) his legion. Caes. Omittit Isocratem discipuloque ejus,¹ I omit Isocrates and his disciples. Cic.

2. SUUS, in the sense of HIS OWN, FITTING, etc., may refer to subject or object:

Iustitia suum cuique tribuit, justice gives to every man his due (his own). Cic.

3. SYNESIS.—When the subject of the verb is not the real agent of the action, sui and suae refer to the agent:

À Caesare invitor sibi ut sim legatus, I am invited by Caesar (real agent) to be his lieutenant. Cic.

4. THE PLURAL OF SUUS, meaning HIS FRIENDS, THEIR FRIENDS, THEIR POSSESSIONS, etc., is used with great freedom, often referring to oblique cases:

Fuit hoc luctuosum suis, *this was afflictive to his friends.*² Cic.

5. Sci and Suus sometimes refer to an omitted subject:

Disforme est de se praedicare, to boast of one's self is disgusting. Cic.

6. TWO REFLEXIVES.—Sometimes a clause has one reflexive referring to the principal subject, and another referring to the subordinate subject:

Respondit neminem secum sine sua perniciē contendisse, *he replied that no one had contended with him without (his) destruction.*³ Caes.

450. DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS.—Hic, iste, ille, are often called respectively demonstratives of the First, Second, and Third Persons, as Hic designates that which is near the speaker; iste, that which is near the person addressed; and ille, that which is remote from both:

Custos hujus urbis, the guardian of this city (i. e., of our city). Cic. Muta istam mentem, change that purpose of yours. Cic. Ista quae sunt à te dicta, those things which were spoken by you. Cic. Si illos, quos videre non possumus, negligis, if you disregard those (far away, yonder) whom we can not see. Cic.

1. Hic designates an object conceived as near, and ille as remote, whether in space, time, or thought:

Non antiquo illō more, sed hōe nostrō fuit eruditus, he was educated, not in that ancient, but in this our modern way. Cic. Hōe illud fuit, was it (that) this? Verg.

NOTE.—The idea of contempt often implied in clauses with iste is not strictly contained in the pronoun itself, but derived from the context:⁴

Animi est ista mollitās, non virtūs, that is an effeminate spirit, not valor. Caes.

¹ Observe that the reflexive is used in the first example, and the demonstrative in the second, though the cases are entirely alike.

² Here suis refers to an oblique case in the preceding sentence.

³ Here se refers to the subject of respondit, and sua to neminem, the subject of the subordinate clause.

⁴ The idea of contempt is readily explained by the fact that iste is often applied to the views of an opponent, to a defendant before a court of justice, and the like.

2. FORMER AND LATTER.—In reference to two objects previously mentioned, (1) hic generally follows ille and refers to the latter object, while ille refers to the former; but (2) hic may precede and may refer to the former, and ille refer to the latter:

Inimici, amici; illi, hi, enemies, friends; the former, the latter. Cic. Certa pax, sperata victoria; haec (pax) in tua, illa in deorum potestate est, sure peace, hoped-for victory; the former is in your power, the latter in the power of the gods. Liv.

NOTE.—Hic refers to the former object, when that object is conceived of as nearer in thought, either because of its importance, or because of its close connection with the subject under discussion.¹

3. Hic and ille are often used of what immediately follows in discourse:

His verbis epistulam misit, he sent a letter in these words (i. e., in the following words). Nep. Illud intellegi, omnium ora in me conversa esse, this I understand, that the eyes of all are turned upon me. Sall.

4. Ille is often used of what is WELL KNOWN, FAMOUS:

Medea illa, that well-known Medea. Cic. Ego, ille serox, tacui, I, that haughty one, was silent. Ovid.

NOTE 1.—Hic is sometimes equivalent to meus or noster, rarely to ego, and hic homo to ego:

Supra hanc memoriam, before our time (lit., before this memory). Cic. His meis litteris, with this letter of mine (from me). Cic. Hic homō omnium hominum, etc., of all men I am, etc. (lit., this man is). Plaut.

NOTE 2.—Hic, ille, and is are sometimes redundant, especially with quidem:

Scipio non multum ille dicebat, Scipio did not indeed say much. Cic. Graeci volunt illi quidem, the Greeks indeed desire it. Cic. Ista tranquillitas ea ipsa est beata vita, that tranquillity is itself a happy life.² Cic.

NOTE 3.—A demonstrative or relative is sometimes equivalent to a Genitive, or to a preposition with its case: hic amor = amor huius rei, 'the love of this'; haec cura = cura de hoc, 'care concerning this.'

NOTE 4.—Adverbs derived from demonstrative pronouns share the distinctive meanings of the pronouns themselves:

Hic plus mali est, quam illic boni, there is more of evil here, than of good there. Ter. See also 304; 305.

451. Is and idem refer to preceding nouns, or are the antecedents of relatives:

Dionysius aufugit, is est in provincia, Dionysius has fled, he is in the province. Cic. Is qui satis habet, he who has enough. Cic. Eadem audire malunt, they prefer to hear the same things. Liv.

1. The pronoun is, the weakest of the demonstratives, is often understood, especially before a relative or a Genitive:

Flebat pater de filii morte, de patris filius, the father wept over the death of the son, the son over (that) of the father. Cic. See also 445, 6.

¹ Thus, in the last example, haec refers to certa pax as the more prominent object in the mind of the speaker, as he is setting forth the advantages of a sure peace over a hoped-for victory.

² For other examples, see Verg., Aen., I., 8; III., 490; and XI., 809. For the use of personal pronouns with quidem, see 446, note 1.

2. Idem, with a conjunction, is often used for emphasis, like the English, and that too, and that indeed:

Cum rem explicabō, eamque maximam, one thing I will explain, and that too a most important one. Cic. Audire Cratippum, idque Athēna, to hear Cratippus, and that too at Athens.¹ Cic.

3. Idem is sometimes best rendered also, at the same time, at once, both, yet:

Nihil tūle, quod non idem honestum, nothing useful, which is not also honorable. Cic. Cum dicat, negat idem, though he asserts, he yet denies (the same denies). Cic. Rēx Antia, rēx idem hominum Phœbique sacerdos, King Antia, both king of men and priest of Apollo. Verg.

4. Idem—qui means he—who, such—as, such—that:

Il sumus, qui esse debemus, we are such as we ought to be. Cic. Ea est gēna quae nesciat, the race is such that it knows not. Liv.

5. Idem—qui means the same—who, the same—as; idem—de (atque, et, que), idem—ut, idem—cum with the Ablative, the same—as:

Eidem mōrē, qui, the same manners which or as. Cic. Est idem ac fuit, he is the same as he was. Ter. Eōdem mēcum patre genitus, the son of the same father as I (with me). Tac.

6. For the distinction between is and sui in subordinate clauses, see §49, 1, 3.

452. Ipsē adds emphasis, generally rendered self:

Ipsē Pater fulmina molitur, the Father himself (Jupiter) hurls the thunderbolts. Verg. Ipsē dixit, he himself said it. Cic. Ipsē Caesar, Caesar himself. Cic. Fac ut tē ipsū custodiās, see that you guard yourself. Cic.

1. Ipsē belongs to the emphatic word, whether subject or object, but with a preference for the subject:

Mē ipsē cōsolōr, I myself (not another) console myself. Cic. Ipsē sē quique diligit, every one (himself) loves himself. Cic. Sē ipsū interfecit, he killed himself. Tac.

NOTE.—Ipsē is sometimes accompanied by solum, 'with himself,' 'alone,' or by per se, 'by himself,' 'unaided,' 'in and of himself,' etc.:

Aliud genitor solum ipse volūtat, the father (Jupiter) himself alone ponders another plan. Verg. Quod est rectum *ipsū*que per sē laudābile, which is right, and in and of itself praiseworthy. Cic.

2. Ipsē is often best rendered by very:

Ipsē ille Gorgiās, that very Gorgias. Cic.

3. With numerals, ipse means just so many, just; so also in nunc ipse, 'just at this time'; tum ipse, 'just at that time':

Trigintā diēs ipsi, just thirty days. Cic. Nunc ipsū sine tē esse nōn possum, just at this time I cannot be without you. Cic.

4. Ipsē in the Genitive with possessives has the force of own, one's own:

Nostra ipsōrum amicitia, our own friendship. Cic. See 398, 8.

5. Ipsē in a subordinate clause sometimes refers to the principal subject, like an emphatic sui or suus:

Lēgātōs misit qui ipsi vitam peterent, he sent messengers to ask life for himself. Sall.

6. Et ipse and ipse quoque may often be rendered also, likewise, even he:²

Alius Achillēs nātus et ipse deā, another Achilles likewise (lit., himself also) born of a goddess. Verg.

¹ Idem, thus used, often refers to a clause, or to the general thought, as in this example.

² Applied to Pythagoras by his disciples. Ipsē is often thus used of a superior, as of a master, teacher, etc.

³ Compare the Greek καὶ αὐτός.

7. For the use of the Nominative ipse in connection with the Ablative Absolute, see 431, note 3.

453. RELATIVE PRONOUNS.—The relative is often used where the English idiom requires a demonstrative or personal pronoun; sometimes even at the beginning of a sentence:

Rēs loquitur ipsa, quae semper valet, the fact itself speaks, and this (which) ever has weight. Cic. Qui proelium committunt, they engage in battle. Caes. Quae cum ita sint, since these things are so. Cic.

1. RELATIVES and DEMONSTRATIVES are often correlatives to each other. Mo—qui, iste—qui, etc. These combinations generally retain the ordinary force of the separate words, but see is—qui, idem—qui, 451, 4 and 5.

NOTE.—The neuter quidquid,¹ accompanied by an adjective, a participle, or a Genitive, may be used of persons:

Mātrēs et quidquid tecum invalidum est dēlige, select the mothers and whatever feeble persons there are with you (lit., whatever there is with you feeble). Verg. Quidquid erat patrum, whatever fathers there were. Liv. See also 397, 8, note 5.

2. In TWO SUCCESSIVE CLAUSES, the relative may be—(1) expressed in both, (2) expressed in the first and omitted in the second, (3) expressed in the first and followed by a demonstrative in the second:

Nōs qui sermōni nōn interfuissemus et quibz Cotta sententiās tradidisset, we who had not been present at the conversation, and to whom Cotta had reported the opinions. Cic. Dumnorix qui principatū obtinēbat sē plūbi acceptus erat, Dumnorix, who held the chief authority, and who was acceptable to the common people. Caes. Quae nec habērēmus nec his ūterēmur, which we should neither have nor use. Cic.

NOTE 1.—Several relatives may appear in successive clauses:

Omnēs qui vēstitum, qui tēcta, qui cultum vitae, qui praesidia contrā ferās invēdunt, all who introduced (invented) clothing, houses, the refinements of life, protection against wild beasts. Cic.

NOTE 2.—A relative clause with is is often equivalent to a substantive: is qui audiunt = auditōrēs, 'hearers.'

3. TWO RELATIVES sometimes occur in the same clause:

Artēs quās qui tenent, artes, whose possessors (which who possess). Cic.

4. A RELATIVE CLAUSE is sometimes equivalent to the Ablative with prō:

Spērō, quae tua prūdētia est, tē valēre, I hope you are well, such is your prudence (which is, etc.). Cic.

NOTE.—Quae tua prūdētia est = quā es prūdētiā = prō tuā prūdētiā, means such is your prudence, or you are of such prudence, or in accordance with your prudence, etc.

5. RELATIVE WITH ADJECTIVE.—Adjectives belonging in sense to the antecedent, especially comparatives, superlatives, and numerals, sometimes stand in the relative clause in agreement with the relative:

Vāsa, quae pulcherrima viderat, the most beautiful vessels which he had seen (vessels, which the most beautiful he had seen). Cic. Dē serviis suis, quem habuit fidēlissimum, misit, he sent the most faithful of the slaves that he had. Nep.

6. The neuter, quod, used as an adverbial Accusative, often stands at the beginning of a sentence or clause, especially before et, ne, nisi, etiam, and sometimes before quia, quoniam, utinam, etc., to indicate a close connection with what precedes. In translating it is sometimes best omitted, and sometimes best rendered by now, in fact, but, and:

Quod si ceciderint, but if they should fall.¹ Cic. Quod si ego rescivissem id prius, now if I had learned this sooner.¹ Ter.

1. Qui dicitur, qui vocatur, or the corresponding active, quem dicunt, quem vocant, are often used in the sense of so-called, the so-called, what they or you call, etc.:

Vestra quae dicitur vita, mors est, your so-called life (lit., your, which is called life) is death. Cic. Lex ista quam vocas non est lex, that law, as you call it, is not a law. Cic.

454. INTERROGATIVE PRONOUNS.—The Interrogative quis is used substantively; quī, adjectively:

Quis ego sum, who am I? Cic. Quid faciet, what will he do? Cic. Qui vir fuit, what kind of a man was he? Cic.

1. Occasionally quis is used adjectively and quī substantively:

Quis rex unquam fuit, what king was there ever? Cic. Qui sis, cōsiderā, consider who you are. Cic.

NOTE.—The neuter, quid, is sometimes used of persons; see 397, 8, note 5.

2. Quid, why, how is it that, etc., is often used adverbially (378, 2), or stands apparently unconnected:² quid, 'why?' 'what?' quid enim, 'why then?' 'what then?' 'what indeed?' quid ita, 'why so?' quid quod, 'what of the fact that?' quid et, 'what if?':

Quid vēnistī, why have you come? Plaut. Quid enim? metusne conturbet, what then? would fear disturb us? Cic. Quid quod delectantur, what of the fact that they are delighted? Cic.

3. Two INTERROGATIVES sometimes occur in the same clause:

Quis quem fraudāvit, who defrauded, and whom did he defraud (lit., who defrauded whom?) Cic.

4. Tantus sometimes accompanies the interrogative pronoun:

Quae fuit unquam in illō homine tanta cōstantia, was there ever so great constancy in any man? Cic.

455. INDEFINITE PRONOUNS.³—Aliquis, quis, quī, and quispiam, are all indefinite—some one, any one:

Est aliquis, there is some one. Liv. Sēsus aliquis esse potest, there may be some sensation. Cic. Dixit quis, some one said. Cic. Si quis rex, if any king. Cic. Alia rēs quāepiam, any other thing. Cic.

1. Quis and quī are used chiefly after et, nisi, ne, and num. Aliquis and quis are generally used substantively, aliqui and qui adjectively. Aliquis and aliqui after et, nisi, etc., are emphatic:

Si est aliqui sēsus in morte, if there is any sensation whatever in death. Cic.

2. Nesciō quis and nesciō quī often supply the place of indefinite pronouns:

¹ Here quod refers to something that precedes, and means in reference to which, in reference to this, in this connection, etc. For other examples, see Caesar, B. G., I., 14, and VII., 88.

² In some instances quid is readily explained by the ellipsis of some form of dico or of sum.

³ For a full illustration of the use of indefinite pronouns, see Draeger, I., pp. 87-103.

Nesciō quis loquitur, some one speaks (lit., I know not who speaks, or one speaks, I know not who). Plant. Nesciō quid mihi animus praesāgit mali, my mind forebodes some evil (191, note). Ter.

456. Quidam, 'a certain one,' is less indefinite than aliquis:

Quidam rhētor antiquus, a certain ancient rhetorician. Cic. Accurrit quidam, a certain one runs up. Hor.

1. Quidam with an adjective is sometimes used to qualify or soften the statement: Iustitia mirifica quaedam videtur, justice seems somewhat wonderful. Cic.

2. Quidam with quasi, and sometimes without it, has the force of a certain, a kind of, as it were:

Quasi alumna quaedam, a certain foster-child, as it were. Cic.

457. Quisquam and ullus are used chiefly in negative and conditional sentences, and in interrogative sentences implying a negative:

Neque mē quisquam agnōvit, nor did any one recognize me. Cic. Si quisquam, if any one. Cic. Num cēnsēs ullum animal esse, do you think there is any animal? Cic.

1. Nēmō is the negative of quisquam, and like quisquam is generally used substantively, rarely adjectively:

Nēmīnem laesit, he harmed no one. Cic. Nēmō poēta, no poet. Cic.

2. Nūllus is the negative of ullus, and is generally used adjectively, but it sometimes supplies the Genitive and Ablative of nēmō, which generally wants those cases:

Nūllum animal, no animal. Cic. Nūllus aurēs, the ears of no one. Cic.

3. Nūllus and nihil are sometimes used for an emphatic nōn:

Nūllus vēnit, he did not come. Cic. Mortui nūlli sunt, the dead are not. Cic.

458. Quivis, quilibet, 'any one whatever,' and quisque, 'every one,' 'each one,' are general indefinites (190):

Quaelibet rēs, anything. Cic. Tuōrum quisque necessariōrum, each one of your friends. Cic.

1. Quisque with superlatives and ordinals is generally best rendered by all, or by ever, always; with primus by very, possible:

Epicūrēs doctissimus quisque contemnit, all the most learned despise the Epicureans, or the most learned ever despise, etc. Cic. Primō quōque diē, the earliest day possible, the very first. Cic.

2. Uī quisque—ita with the superlative in both clauses is often best rendered, the more—the more:

Ut quisque sibi plūrimū cōfidit, ita mēximē excellit, the more one confides in one's self, the more one excels. Cic.

459. Alius means 'another, other'; alter, 'the one,' 'the other' (of two), 'the second,' 'a second.' They are often repeated: alius—alius, one—another; aliū—aliū, some—others; alter—alter, the one—the other; alteri—alteri, the one party—the other:

Lēgātōs aliū ab aliō aggreditur, he tampers with the ambassadors one after another. Sall. Alii glōriā serviunt, alii pecūniā, some are slaves to glory, others to money. Cic. Quidquid negat alter, et alter, whatever one denies, &c.

ether denies. Hor. Alter erit Tiphys, there will be a second Tiphys. Verg. Tu nunc eris alter ab illō, you will now be next after him. Verg. Alteri dimicant, alteri timent, one party contends, the other fears. Cic.

1. Alius or alter repeated in different cases, or combined with alīdē or alīter, often involves an ellipsis:

Alius aliā viā civitatē auxerunt, they advanced the state, one in one way, another in another. Liv. Aliter alii vivunt, some live in one way, others in another. Cic.

2. After alius, alīter, and the like, atque, ac, and et often mean than:

Nōn alius essem atque sum, I would not be other than I am. Cic.

3. When alter—alter refer to objects previously mentioned, the first alter usually refers to the latter object, but may refer to either:

Inimicus, competitor, cum alterō—cum alterō, an enemy, a rival, with the latter—with the former. Cic.

4. Uterque means both, each of two. In the plural it generally means both, each of two parties, but sometimes both, each of two persons or things; regularly so with nouns which are plural in form but singular in sense:

Utrique victoriā crudēlīter exercebant, both parties made a cruel use of victory. Sall. Palmas utraq; tetendit, he extended both his hands. Verg.

CHAPTER V.

SYNTAX OF VERBS.

SECTION I.

AGREEMENT OF VERBS.—USE OF VOICES.

RULE XXXVI.—Agreement of Verb with Subject.

460. A finite verb agrees with its subject in NUMBER and PERSON:

Deus mundum aedificavit, God made (built) the world. Cic. Ego regēs ejeci, vōs tyrannōs intrōdūcitis, I have banished kings, you introduce tyrants. Cic.

1. PARTICIPLES IN COMPOUND TENSES agree with the subject according to 438. See also 301, 1 and 2:

Thēbāni accūsātī sunt, the Thebans were accused. Cic.

NOTE 1.—In the compound forms of the Infinitive, the participle in um sometimes occurs without any reference to the gender or number of the subject:

Diffidentia futurum quae imperavisset, from doubt that those things which he had commanded would take place. Sall.

NOTE 2.—A General or Indefinite subject is often denoted—

1) By the First or Third Person Plural, and in the Subjunctive by the Second Person

Singular: dicimus, 'we (people) say'; dicunt, 'they say'; disce, 'you (any one) may say':

Si beati esse volumus, if we wish to be happy. Cic. Agere quod agis consideratis decet, you (one) should do considerably whatever you do (one does). Cic.

2) By an Impersonal Passive:

Ad sanum concurrunt, they rush to the temple. Cic. Nisi cum virtute vivatur, unless they live (unless one lives) virtuously. Cic.

NOTE 3.—For the Pronominal Subject contained in the verb, see 368, 2.

NOTE 4.—For the OMISSION OF THE VERB, see 368, 3.

461. SYNESIS.—Sometimes the predicate is construed according to the real meaning of the subject without regard to grammatical gender or number. Thus—

1. With collective nouns, pars, multitudo, and the like:

Multitudo abeunt, the multitude depart. Liv. Pars per agros dilapsa, a part (some) dispersed through the fields. Liv.

NOTE 1.—Here multitudo and pars, though singular and feminine in form, are plural and masculine in sense; see also 438, 6. Conversely, the Imperative singular may be used in addressing a multitude individually:

Adde defectionem Sicillae, add (to this, soldiers) the revolt of Sicily. Liv.

NOTE 2.—Of two verbs with the same collective noun, the former is often singular, and the latter plural:

Juventus ruit certantque, the youth rush forth and contend. Verg.

2. With milia, often masculine in sense:

Caesi sunt tria milia, three thousand men were slain. Liv.

3. With quisque, uterque, alius—alium, alter—alterum, and the like:

Uterque educunt, they each lead out. Caes. Alter alterum videmus, we see each other. Cic.

4. With singular subjects accompanied by an Ablative with cum:

Dux cum principibus capiuntur, the leader with his chiefs is taken. Liv. Quid huc tantum hominum (= tot homines) incidunt, why are so many men coming hither? Plaut. See also 438, 6.

5. With partim—partim in the sense of pars—pars:

Bonorum partim necessaria, partim non necessaria sunt, of good things some are necessary, others are not necessary. Cic.

462. Sometimes the verb agrees, not with its subject, but with an APPOSITIVE or with a PREDICATE NOUN:

Volsinii, oppidum Tuscorum, concrematum est, Volsinii, a town of the Tuscans, was burned. Plin. Non omnis error stultitia est dicenda, not every error should be called folly. Cic. Pueri Trojanum dicitur agmen, the boys are called the Trojan band. Verg.

NOTE 1.—The verb regularly agrees with the appositive when that is urbs, oppidum, or ciuitas, in apposition with plural names of places, as in the first example.

NOTE 2.—The verb agrees with the predicate noun when that is nearer or more emphatic than the subject, as in the second example.

NOTE 8.—The verb sometimes agrees with a noun in a subordinate clause after quam, nisi, etc. :

Nihil aliud nisi pax quaesita est, nothing but peace was sought. Cic.

463. With TWO OR MORE SUBJECTS the verb agrees—

I. With one subject, and is understood with the others :

Aut mōrēs spectāri aut fortūna solet, either character or fortune is wont to be regarded. Cic. Hōmērus fuit et Hēsiodus ante Rōmān conditam, Homer and Hesiod lived (were) before the founding of Rome. Cic.

II. With all the subjects conjointly, and is accordingly in the plural number :

Lentulus, Scipiō perierunt, Lentulus and Scipio perished. Cic. Ego et Cicerō valēmus, Cicero and I are well. Cic. Tū et Tullia valētis, you and Tullia are well. Cic.

1. With SUBJECTS DIFFERING IN PERSON, the verb takes the first person rather than the second, and the second rather than the third ; see examples.

2. For PARTICIPLES IN COMPOUND TENSES, see 439.

3. Two SUBJECTS AS A UNIT.—Two singular subjects forming in sense a unit or whole, admit a singular verb :

Senātus populusque intellegit, the senate and people (i. e., the state as a unit) understand. Cic. Tempus necessitāsque postulat, time and necessity (i. e., the crisis) demand. Cic.

4. WITH AUT OR NEC.—When the subjects connected by aut, vel, nec, neque or seu, differ in person, the verb is usually in the plural ; but when they are of the same person, the verb usually agrees with the nearest subject :

Haec neque ego neque tū fecimus, neither you nor I have done these things. Ter. Aut Brūtus aut Cassius iudicāvit, either Brutus or Cassius judged. Cic.

464. VOICES.—With transitive verbs, a thought may at the pleasure of the writer be expressed either actively or passively. But—

I. That which in the active construction would be the object must be the subject in the passive ; and—

II. That which in the active would be the subject must be put in the Ablative with a or ab for persons, and in the Ablative alone for things (415, I. ; 420) :

Deus omnia cōstituit, God ordained all things. A Deō omnia cōstitutā sunt, all things were ordained by God. Cic. Dei prōvidentiā mundum administrat, the providence of God rules the world. Dei prōvidentiā mundus administrātur, the world is ruled by the providence of God. Cic.

465. The PASSIVE VOICE, like the Greek Middle,¹ is sometimes equivalent to the Active with a reflexive pronoun :

Lavantur in flūminibus, they bathe (wash themselves) in the rivers. Caes.

¹ Most Passive forms once had both a Middle and a Passive meaning, as in Greek ; but in Latin the Middle or Reflexive meaning has nearly disappeared, though retained to a certain extent in special verbs.

Nōn hīc victōria vertitur, not upon this point (here) does victory turn (turn itself). Verg.

1. INTRANSITIVE VERBS (193) have regularly only the active voice, but they are sometimes used impersonally in the passive:

Curritur ad praetorium, they run to the praetorium (it is run to). Cic.
Mihī cum iis vivendum est, I must live with them. Cic.

NOTE.—Verbs which are usually intransitives are occasionally used transitively, especially in poetry:

Ego cūr invidetur, why am I envied? Hor.

2. DEPONENT VERBS, though passive in form, are in signification transitive or intransitive:

Illud mirābar, I admired that. Cic. Ab urbe proficisci, to set out from the city. Caes.

NOTE 1.—Originally many deponent verbs seem to have had the force of the Greek Middle voice: glōrior, 'I boast myself,' 'I boast'; vescor, 'I feed myself.'

NOTE 2.—SEMI-DEPONENTS have some of the active forms and some of the passive, without change of meaning; see 268, 8.

SECTION II.

THE INDICATIVE AND ITS TENSES.

I. PRESENT INDICATIVE.

466. The Present Indicative represents the action of the verb as taking place at the present time:

Ego et Cicerō valēmus, Cicero and I are well. Cic. Hīc tē rogō, I ask you for this. Cic.

NOTE.—The Present of the Active Periphrastic Conjugation denotes an intended or future action; that of the Passive, a present necessity or duty:

*Bellum scriptūrus sum, I intend to write the history of the war.*¹ Sall. *Legendus est hīc orātor, this orator ought to be read.*¹ Cic.

467. Hence the Present Tense is used—

I. Of actions and events which are actually taking place at the present time, as in the above examples.

II. Of actions and events which, as belonging to all time, belong of course to the present, as general truths and customs:

Nihil est amābilius virtūte, nothing is more lovely than virtue. Cic.
Fortēs fortuna adjuvat, fortune helps the brave. Ter.

III. Of past actions and events which the writer wishes, for effect, to picture before the reader as present. The Present, when so used, is called the Historical Present:

¹ Scriptūrus sum may be variously rendered, I intend to write, am about to write, am to write, am destined to write, etc.; legendus est means he ought to be read, he serves to be read, must be read, etc.

Jugurtha vallē moenia circumdat, Jugurtha surrounded the city with a rampart. Sall.

1. The HISTORICAL PRESENT is used much more freely in Latin than in English. It is therefore generally best rendered by a past tense.

2. The Present is often used of a present action which has been going on for some time, especially after jamdiū, jamdudum, etc.:

Jamdiū Ignorō quid agās, I have not known for a long time what you have been doing. Cic.

3. The Present in Latin, as in English, may be used of authors whose works are extant:

Xenophōn facit Sōcratem disputantem, Xenophon represents Socrates discussing. Cic.

4. With dum, 'while,' the Present is generally used, whether the action is present, past, or future:

Dum ea parant,¹ Saguntum oppugnabatur, while they were (are) making these preparations, Saguntum was attacked. Liv. Dum haec geruntur, Caesaris nūntiatum est, while these things were taking place, it was announced to Caesar. Caes.

NOTE.—But with dum, meaning as long as, the Present can be used only of present time.

5. The Present is sometimes used of an action really future, especially in animated discourse and in conditions:

Quam prendimus arcem, what stronghold do we seize, or are we to seize? Verg. Si vineimus, omnia tūta erunt, if we conquer, all things will be safe. Sall.

6. The Present is sometimes used of an attempted or intended action:

Virtutem accendit, he tries to kindle their valor. Verg. Quid mē terrēs, why do you try to terrify me? Verg.

II. IMPERFECT INDICATIVE.

468. The Imperfect Indicative represents the action as taking place in past time:

Stabant nobilissimi juvenēs, there stood (were standing) most noble youths. Liv. Collēs oppidum cingebant, hills encompassed the town. Caes. Mōtūrus exercitum erat, he was intending to move his army. Liv.

NOTE.—For the Imperfect of the Periphrastic Conjugations in conditional sentences, see 511, 3

469. Hence the Imperfect is used especially—

I. In lively description, whether of scenes or events:

Ante oppidum planitiēs patēbat, before the town extended a plain. Caes. Fulgentēs gladiōs vidēbant, they saw (were seeing) the gleaming swords. Cic.

II. Of customary or repeated actions and events, often rendered was wont, etc.:

¹ Here the time denoted by parant is present relatively to oppugnabatur, and therefore really past.

Pausanias epulabatur more Persarum, Pausanias was wont to banquet in the Persian style. Nep.

1. The Imperfect is sometimes used of an attempted or intended action :¹
Sedabant tumultus, they attempted to quell the seditions. Liv.

2. The Imperfect is often used of a past action which had been going on for some time, especially with jamdiu, jamdudum, etc. :¹

Domicilium Romae multos jam annos habebat, he had already for many years had his residence at Rome. Cic.

3. The Latin sometimes uses the Imperfect where the English requires the Present :²

Pastum animantibus natura eum qui cuique aptus erat, comparavit, nature has prepared for animals that food which is adapted to each. Cic.

NOTE 1.—For the Imperfect in LETTERS, see 472, 1.

NOTE 2.—For the Descriptive Imperfect in NARRATION, see 471, 6.

NOTE 3.—For the Historical Tenses in expressions of DUTY, PROPRIETY, NECESSITY, etc., see 476, 4.

III. FUTURE INDICATIVE.

470. The Future Indicative represents the action as one which will take place in future time :

Scribam ad te, I shall write to you. Cic. Nunquam aberrabimus, we shall never go astray. Cic.

1. In Latin, as in English, the Future Indicative sometimes has the force of an Imperative :

Curabis et scribes, you will take care and write. Cic.

2. Actions which really belong to future time are almost invariably expressed by the Future tense, though sometimes put in the Present in English :

Naturam si sequemur, nunquam aberrabimus, if we follow nature, we shall never go astray. Cic.

IV. PERFECT INDICATIVE.

471. The Perfect Indicative has two distinct uses :

I. As the PRESENT PERFECT or PERFECT DEFINITE, it represents the action as at present completed, and is rendered by our Perfect with have :

De genere belli dixi, I have spoken of the character of the war. Cic.

II. As the HISTORICAL PERFECT or PERFECT INDEFINITE, it represents the action simply as an historical fact :

¹ Observe that the peculiarities of the Present reappear in the Imperfect. This arises from the fact that these two tenses are precisely alike in representing the action in its progress, and that they differ only in time. The one views the action in the present, the other transfers it to the past.

² This occurs occasionally in the statement of general truths and in the description of natural scenes, but in such cases the truth or the scene is viewed not from the present but from the past.

Miltiades est accusatus, Miltiades was accused. Nep. Quid facturi fuistis, what did you intend to do, or what would you have done? Cic.

NOTE.—For the Perfect of the Periphrastic Conjugations in conditional sentences, see 476, 1.

1. The Perfect is sometimes used—

1) Instead of the Present to denote the suddenness of the action:

Terra tremit, mortalia corda stravit pavor, the earth trembles, fear overwhelms (has overwhelmed) the hearts of mortals. Verg.

2) To contrast the past with the present, implying that what was true then is not true now:

Habuit, non habet, he had, but has not. Cic. Fuit Ilium, Ilium was. Verg.

2. The Perfect Indicative with paene, prope, may often be rendered by might, would, or by the Pluperfect Indicative:

Brutum non mirus amo, paene dixi, quam te, I love Brutus not less, I might almost say, or I had almost said, than I love you. Cic.

3. The Latin sometimes employs the Perfect and Pluperfect where the English uses the Present and Imperfect, especially in repeated actions, and in verbs which want the Present (§97):

Meminit praeteritorum, he remembers¹ the past. Cic. Cum ad villam veni, hoc me delectat, when I come (have come) to a villa, this pleases me. Cic. Memineram Paullum, I remembered Paullus. Cic.

4. Conjunctions meaning *as soon as*² are usually followed by the Perfect; sometimes by the Imperfect or Historical Present. But the Pluperfect is sometimes used, especially to denote the result of a completed action:

Postquam cecidit Ilium, after (as soon as) Ilium fell, or had fallen. Verg. His ubi natum prosequitur³ dictis, when he had addressed his son with these words. Verg. Posteaquam consul fuerat, after he had been consul.⁴ Cic. Anno tertio postquam profugerat, in the third year after he had fled. Nep.

5. In SUBORDINATE CLAUSES after cum (quum), si, etc., the Perfect is sometimes used of REPEATED ACTIONS, GENERAL TRUTHS, and CUSTOMS:⁵

Cum ad villam veni, hoc me delectat, whenever I come (have come) to a villa, this delights me. Cic.

NOTE.—In such cases the principal clause generally retains the Present, as in the example just given, but in poetry and in late prose it sometimes admits the Perfect:

Tulit punctum qui miscuit lile dulci, he wins (has won) favor who combines (has combined) the useful with the agreeable. Hor.

6. In ANIMATED NARRATIVE, the Perfect usually narrates the leading events, and the Imperfect describes the attendant circumstances:

Cultum mutavit, veste Medica utebatur, epulabatur more Persarum, he changed his mode of life, used the Median dress, feasted in the Persian style.

¹ Literally, has recalled, and so remembers, as the result of the act. The Latin presents the completed act, the English the result.

² As postquam, ubi, ubi primum, ut, ut primum, simul atque (ac), etc.

³ Historical present; lit., when he attends.

⁴ And so was then a man of consular rank.

⁵ This use of the Latin Perfect corresponds to the Gnomic Aorist in Greek.

Nep. Sē in oppida recēperunt mūrisque sē tenēbant, they betook themselves into their towns and kept themselves within their walls. Liv.

NOTE 1.—The Compound Tenses in the Passive often denote the result of the action. Thus, dōctus est may mean either he has been instructed, or he is a learned man (lit., an instructed man):

Fuit dōctus ex disciplinā Stōicōrum, he was instructed in (lit., out of) the learning of the Stoics. Cic. Nāvis parāta fuit, the vessel was ready (lit., was prepared). Liv.

NOTE 2.—For the Perfect in LETTERS, see 472, 1.

NOTE 3.—For the Historical Tenses in expressions of DUTY, PROPRIETY, NECESSITY, etc., see 476, 4.

V. PLUPERFECT INDICATIVE.

472. The Pluperfect Indicative represents the action as completed at some past time :

Pyrrhī temporibus jam Apollō versūs facere dēsierat, *in the times of Pyrrhus Apollo had already ceased to make verses.*¹ Cic. Cōpiās quās prō castris collocāverat, redūxit, he led back the forces which he had stationed before the camp. Caes. Cum esset Dēmōsthēnēs, multi orātōrēs clārī fuērunt et antea fuerant, when Demosthenes lived there were many illustrious orators, and there had been before. Cic.

1. In LETTERS, the writer often adapts the tense to the time of the reader, using the Imperfect or Perfect of present actions and events, and the Pluperfect of those which are past :²

Nihil habēbam quod scriberem ; ad tuās omnēs epistulās rescripseram pridie,³ I have (had) nothing to write ; I replied to all your letters yesterday. Cic. Pridiē Idūs haec scripsi ; eō diē⁴ apud Pompōnium eram cēnātūrus,⁵ I write this on the day before the Ides ; I am going to dine to-day with Pomponius. Cic.

2. The PLUPERFECT after cum, si, etc., is often used of REPEATED ACTIONS, GENERAL TRUTHS, and CUSTOMS :⁶

Si hostēs dētērrere nēquiverant circumveniēbant, if they were (had been) unable to deter the enemy, they surrounded them. Sall.

NOTE 1.—For the Pluperfect in the sense of the English Imperfect, see 471, 3.

NOTE 2.—For the Historical Tenses in expressions of DUTY, PROPRIETY, NECESSITY, etc., see 476, 4.

¹ Observe that dēsierat represents the action as already completed at the time designated.

² This change is by no means uniformly made, but is subject to the pleasure of the writer. It is most common near the beginning and the end of letters.

³ Observe that the adverbs and the adverbial expressions are also adapted to the time of the reader. Heri, 'yesterday,' becomes to the reader pridie, 'the day before'—i. e., the day before the writing of the letter. In the same way hodie, 'to-day,' 'this day,' becomes to the reader eō diē, 'that day.'

⁴ The Imperfect of the Periphrastic Conjugation is sometimes thus used of future events which are expected to happen before the receipt of the letter. Events which will be future to the reader as well as to the writer must be expressed by the Future.

⁵ See the similar use of the Perfect, 471, 5.

⁶ That is, whenever they were unable.

VI. FUTURE PERFECT INDICATIVE.

473. The Future Perfect Indicative represents the action as one which will be completed at some future time:

Romam cum venero, scribam ad tē, when I shall have reached Rome, I will write to you. Cic. Dum tū hæc legēs, ego illum fortasse convenero, when you read this, I shall perhaps have already met him. Cic.

1. The FUTURE PERFECT is sometimes used to denote the complete accomplishment of the work:

Ego meum officium præstitero, I shall discharge my duty. Cæs.

2. The FUTURE PERFECT is sometimes found in conditional clauses where we use the Present:

Si interpretārī potuerō, his verbis tītūr, if I can (shall have been able to) understand him, he uses these words. Cic.

VII. USE OF THE INDICATIVE.

RULE XXXVII.—Indicative.

474. The Indicative is used in treating of facts:

Deus mundum aedificāvit, God made (built) the world. Cic. Nōne expulsus est patriā, was he not banished from his country? Cic. Hōc fēci dum licuit, I did this as long as it was permitted. Cic.

475. The Indicative is thus used in treating of facts—

I. In Principal Clauses,¹ whether Declarative as in the first example or Interrogative as in the second.

II. In Subordinate Clauses. Thus—

1. In Relative Clauses:

Dixit id quod dignissimum rē publicā fuit, he stated that which was most worthy of the republic. Cic. Quicumque bonum est, quod nōn eum qui id possidet meliorem facit, is anything good which does not make him better who possesses it? Cic.

NOTE.—For the Subjunctive in Relative Clauses, see 497; 500; 503; 507, 2, etc.

2. In Conditional Clauses:

Si hæc civitas est, civis sum ego, if this is a state, I am a citizen. Cic.

NOTE 1.—For the special uses of the Indicative in Conditional Sentences, see 508.

NOTE 2.—For the Subjunctive in Conditional Sentences, see 509; 510.

3. In Concessive Clauses:

Quamquam intellegunt, tamen nūquam dicunt, although they understand, they never speak. Cic.

NOTE.—For the Subjunctive in Concessive Clauses, see 515.

¹ Including, of course, all simple sentences.

4. In Causal Clauses:

Quoniam supplicatio decreta est, since a thanksgiving has been decreed. Cic. Quia honore digni habentur, because they are deemed worthy of honor. Curt.

NOTE.—For the Subjunctive in Causal Clauses, see 516; 517.

5. In Temporal Clauses:

Cum quiescunt, probant, while they are silent they approve. Cic. Priusquam lucet, adsunt, they are present before it is light. Cic.

NOTE.—For the Subjunctive in Temporal Clauses, see 519; 520; 521.

476. SPECIAL USES.—The Indicative is sometimes used where our idiom would suggest the Subjunctive:

1. The Indicative of the Periphrastic Conjugations is often so used in the historical tenses, especially in conditional sentences (511, 2):

Haec condicio non accipienda fuit, this condition should not have been accepted. Cic.

2. The Historical Tenses of the Indicative, particularly the Pluperfect, are sometimes used for effect, to represent as an actual fact something which is shown by the context never to have become fully so:

Viceramus, nisi recepisset Antonium, we should have (lit., had) conquered, had he not received Antony. Cic. See 511, 1.

3. Pronouns and Relative Adverbs, made general by being doubled or by assuming the suffix cumque (187, 3), take the Indicative:

Quisquis est, is est sapiens, whoever he is, he is wise. Cic. Hoc ultimum, utcumque initum est, proelium fuit, this, however it was commenced, was the last battle. Liv. Quidquid oritur, quaecumque est, causam habet, whatever comes into being, of whatever character it may be (lit., is), it has a cause. Cic.

4. In expressions of Duty, Propriety, Necessity, Ability, and the like, the Latin often uses the Indicative, chiefly in the historical tenses, in a manner somewhat at variance with the English idiom:

Non suscipi bellum oportuit, *the war should not have been undertaken.*¹ Liv. Eum contumeliis onerasti, quem colere debebas, you have loaded with insults one whom you should have (ought to have) revered. Cic. Multos possum bonos viros nominare, I might name (lit., I am able to name) many good men. Cic. Hanc mecum poteris requiescere noctem, you might rest (might have rested) with me this night. Verg.

5. The Indicative of the verb sum is often used with longum, aequum, aequius, difficile, justum, melius, pär, utilius, etc., in such expressions as longum est, 'it would be tedious,' melius erat, 'it would have been better':

Longum est persequi utilitates, it would be tedious (is a long task) to recount the uses. Cic. Melius fuerat, promissum non esse servatum, it would have been better that the promise should not have been kept. Cic.

¹ Literally, it was fitting or proper that the war should not be undertaken.

SECTION III.

GENERAL VIEW OF THE SUBJUNCTIVE AND ITS TENSES.

477. The Latin Subjunctive¹ has two principal uses—

I. It may represent an action as WILLED or DESIRED :

Amemus patriam, let us love our country. Cic.

II. It may represent an action as PROBABLE or POSSIBLE :

Quaerat quispiam, some one may inquire. Cic.

478. TENSES IN THE SUBJUNCTIVE do not designate the time of the action so definitely as in the Indicative.

479. The PRESENT SUBJUNCTIVE in principal clauses² embraces in a vague and general manner both present and future time :³

Amemus patriam, let us love our country (now and ever). Cic. Quaerat quispiam, some one may (or will) inquire (at any time). Cic.

480. The IMPERFECT SUBJUNCTIVE in principal clauses relates sometimes to the past and sometimes to the present :

Crēderēs victōs, vanquished you would have thought them. Liv. Utinam possem, would that I were able (now). Cic.

481. The PERFECT SUBJUNCTIVE in principal clauses relates sometimes to the past, but more frequently to the present or future :

¹ The Latin Subjunctive, it will be remembered (p. 117, foot-note 4), contains the forms and the meaning of two kindred moods, the Subjunctive proper, and the Optative. In Latin, the forms characteristic of these two moods, used without any difference of meaning, are made to supplement each other. Thus, in the Present, the Optative forms are found in the First Conjugation, and the Subjunctive forms in the Second, Third, and Fourth. In their origin they are only special developments of certain forms of the Present Indicative, denoting continued and attempted action. From this idea of attempted action was readily developed on the one hand desire, will, as we attempt only what we desire, and on the other hand probability, possibility, as we shall very likely accomplish what we are already attempting. These two meanings, united in one word, lie at the basis of all Subjunctive constructions in Latin. On the origin, history, and use of the Subjunctive, see Delbrück, 'Conjunctiv und Optativ'; Curtius, 'Verbum,' II., pp. 85-95; Draeger, II., pp. 489-748; Roby, II., pp. 202-848; also a paper by the author on 'The Development of the Latin Subjunctive in Principal Clauses,' Transactions Am. Phil. Assoc., 1879.

² For the tenses of the Subjunctive in Subordinate clauses, see 490.

³ The Present Subjunctive in its origin is closely related both in form and in meaning to the Future Indicative. Thus, in the Third and Fourth Conjugations, no future forms for the Indicative have been developed, but Subjunctive and Optative forms supply their place, as regam, audiam (Subjunctive), and regēs, reget, etc., and audite, audiet, etc. (Optative).

Fuerit malus civis, he may have been (admit that he was) a bad citizen. Cic. Nē trānsieris Iβerum, do not cross the Ebro (now or at any time). Liv.

482. The PLUPERFECT SUBJUNCTIVE in principal clauses relates to the past:

Utinam potuissem, would that I had been able. Cic.

SECTION IV.

SUBJUNCTIVE IN PRINCIPAL CLAUSES.

RULE XXXVIII.—Subjunctive of Desire, Command.

483. The Subjunctive is used to represent the action NOT AS REAL, but AS DESIRED:

Valeant civēs, MAY the citizens BE WELL. Cic. Amemus patriam, LET US LOVE our country. Cic. Ā nobīs diligatur, LET HIM BE LOVED by us. Cic. Scribere nē pigrēre, do not NEGLECT to write. Cic.

1. The Subjunctives of Desire is often accompanied by utinam, and sometimes, especially in the poets, by ut, si, & si:

Utinam cōnāta efficere possim, may I be able to accomplish my endeavors. Cic. Ut illum dī perdant, would that the gods would destroy him. Ter.

2. FORCE OF TENSES.—The Present and Perfect imply that the wish may be fulfilled; the Imperfect and Pluperfect, that it can not be fulfilled:

Sint beātī, may they be happy. Cic. Nē trānsieris Iβerum, do not cross the Ebro. Liv. Utinam pōsem, utinam potuissem, would that I were able, would that I had been able. Cic.

NOTE.—The Imperfect and Pluperfect may often be best rendered should, should have, ought to have:

Hōc diceret, he should have said this. Cic. Mortem appetissēs, you should have met death. Cic.

3. NEGATIVES.—With the Subjunctives of Desire, the negative is nē, rarely nōn; with a connective, nēve, neu, rarely negue:

Nē audeant, let them not dare. Cic. Nōn recedāmus, let us not recede. Cic. Amēs dīot pater, neu sinās, etc., may you love to be called father, and may you not permit, etc. Hor. Nēve minor neu sit prōductior, let it be neither shorter nor longer. Hor.

NOTE.—Nēdum, 'not to say,' 'much less,' is used with the Subjunctive:

Vix in tēctis frigus vitātur, nēdum in mari sit facile abesse ab injuriā, the cold is avoided with difficulty in our houses, much less is it easy to escape (to be absent from) injury on the sea. Cic.

4. The first person of the Subjunctive is often found in earnest or solemn AFFIRMATIONS:

¹ Observe that the Perfect thus used does not at all differ in time from the Present, but that it calls attention to the completion of the action.

Moriar, si putô, may I die, if I think. Cic. Nô sim salvus, si scribô, may I not be safe, if I write. Cic. Sollicitat, ita vivam, as I live, it troubles me.¹ Cic.

5. The Subjunctives of Desire is sometimes used in RELATIVE CLAUSES:

Quod faustum sit, rēgem creatô, elect a king, and may it be an auspicious event (may which be auspicious). Liv. Senectûs, ad quam utinam perveniâtis, old age, to which may you attain. Cic.

NOTE.—For the Subjunctives of Desire in Subordinate Clauses, see 486, III., note, with foot-note.

6. Modo, modo nâ, may accompany the Subjunctive of Desire:

Modo Juppiter adsit, only let Jupiter be present. Verg. Modo nâ laudent, only let them not praise. Cic.

484. The Subjunctive of Desire may be in meaning—

I. OPTATIVE, as in prayers and wishes:

Sint beati, may they be happy. Cic. Di bene vertant, may the gods cause it to turn out well. Plaut.

II. HORTATIVE, as in exhortations and entreaties:

Consulâmus bonis, let us consult for the good. Cic.

III. CONCESSIVE, as in admissions and concessions:

Fuerint pertinacēs, grant (or admit) that they were obstinate. Cic.

IV. IMPERATIVE, as in mild commands, admonitions, warnings, etc., used chiefly in prohibitions:

Illud jocum nâ sis âspernâtus, do not despise that jest. Cic. Scribere nâ pigrêre, do not neglect to write. Cic.

NOTE 1.—In prohibitions, the Perfect tense is generally used:

Nô trânsieris Ibêrum, do not cross the Ebro. Liv.

NOTE 2.—Except in prohibitions, the Second Person Singular in the best prose is used almost exclusively of an indefinite you, meaning one, any one:

Istô bono utere, you should use (i. e., one should use) that advantage. Cic.

V. DELIBERATIVE, as in deliberative questions, to ask what should be:

Huc cédâmus, hujus condiciônēs audiâmus, shall we yield² to him, shall we listen to his terms? Cic. Quid facerem, *what was I to do?*³ Verg.

RULE XXXIX.—Potential Subjunctive.

485. The Subjunctive is used to represent the action NOT AS REAL, but AS POSSIBLE:

Hic quaerat quispiam, here some one MAY INQUIRE. Cic. Ita laudem inveniâs, thus you WILL (OR MAY) OBTAIN praise. Ter. Ita amicos parâs, thus you WILL MAKE friends. Ter. Vix dicere auiam, I SHOULD scarcely DARE to ¹ Here ita vivam means, may I so live (i. e., may I live only in case this is true).

² Or, ought we to yield, is it your wish that we should yield?

³ Or, what should I have done?

say. Liv. Crēderēs victōs, vanquished you would have thought them. Liv. Forsitan quærātis,¹ perhaps you may inquire. Cic. Hōc nēmō dixerit, no one would say this. Cic. Quis dubitet (= nēmō dubitat), who would doubt (or who doubts = no one doubts)? Cic. Hōc quis ferre possit, who would be able to endure this? Cic.

NOTE 1.—In the Potential Subjunctive, the Perfect often has nearly the same force as the Present, and the Imperfect is often used where we should expect the Pluperfect: dicerēs, 'you would have said'; crēderēs, putārēs, 'you would have thought'; vidērēs, cernērēs, 'you would have seen':

Tū Platōnem laudāveris, you would praise Plato. Cic. Maesti, crēderēs victōs, redeunt in castra, sad, vanquished you would have thought them, they returned to the camp. Liv.

NOTE 2.—On Tenses, see also 478–482.

NOTE 3.—The Second Person Singular, especially of the Imperfect, is often used of an indefinite you, meaning one, any one: crēderēs, 'you would have thought,' 'any one would have thought.'

486. In the Potential sense, the Subjunctive is used—

I. In Declarative Sentences, to express an affirmation modestly, doubtfully, or conditionally; see examples.

NOTE 1.—Thus, in the language of politeness and modesty, the Potential Subjunctive is often used in verbs of wishing and thinking: velim, 'I should wish,' for volō, 'I wish'; nolim, 'I should be unwilling'; mālim, 'I should prefer':

Ego cōseam, I should think, or I am inclined to think. Liv. Mibi dari velim, I should like to have it given to me. Cic.

NOTE 2.—The Potential Subjunctive is used in the conclusion of conditional sentences; see 507, 1, with foot-note.

II. In Interrogative Sentences, to ask not what is, but what is likely to be, what may be or would be, generally implying a negative answer, as in the last two examples under the rule.

NOTE.—The Subjunctive with ut, with or without the interrogative ne, occurs in questions expressive of impatience or surprise:²

Tē ut illa res frangat, how should anything subdue you? Cic. Egone ut mentiar, that I should speak falsely? Plant.

III. In Subordinate Clauses, whatever the connective, to represent the action as possible rather than real:

Quamquam epulis careat senectūs, though old age may be without its feasts. Cic. Quoniam nōn possent, since they would not be able. Caes. Ubī res posceret, whenever the case might demand. Liv.

NOTE.—From the Subjunctive of Desire and the Potential Subjunctive in principal clauses have been developed the various uses of the Subjunctive in subordinate clauses.³

¹ After forsitan = forte sit an, 'the chance may be whether,' 'perhaps,' the Subjunctive was originally in an indirect question (529), but it may be best treated as Potential. So also with forsan and fortasse.

² Some grammarians assume an ellipsis of a predicate, as crēdibile est, fieri potest, etc.

³ Thus, the Subjunctive of Desire is used in final, conditional, and concessive clauses; the Potential Subjunctive in clauses of result, and in various others denoting

SECTION V.

THE IMPERATIVE AND ITS TENSES.

RULE XL.—Imperative.

487. The Imperative is used in COMMANDS, EXHORTATIONS, and ENTREATIES :

Iustitiam cole, practice justice. Cic. Tū nē cēde malis, do not yield to misfortunes. Verg. Si quid in tē peccāvi, Ignōsce, if I have sinned against you, pardon me. Cic.

1. The PRESENT IMPERATIVE corresponds to the Imperative in English :

Iustitiam cole, practice justice. Cic. Perge, Catilina, go, Catiline. Cic.

2. The FUTURE IMPERATIVE corresponds to the imperative use of the English Future with shall, or to the Imperative let, and is used—

1) In COMMANDS involving future rather than present action :

Rem penditōte, you shall consider the subject. Cic. Crās petitō, dabitur, ask to-morrow, it shall be granted. Plaut.

2) In LAWS, ORDERS, PRECEPTS, etc., especially in PROHIBITIONS :

Cōsules nēmini pārentō, the consuls shall be subject to no one. Cic. Salūs populi suprema lēx estō, the safety of the people shall be the supreme law. Cic.

NOTE.—The general distinction between the Present Imperative and the Future is often disregarded, especially in poetry :¹

Ubi aciem videris, tum ordinē dissipā, when you shall see the line of battle, then scatter the ranks. Liv. Quoniam supplicatō dēcreta est, celebrātōte illōs diēs, since a thanksgiving has been decreed, celebrate those days. Cic.

3. An Imperative clause may be used instead of a Conditional clause :

Lacesse, jam vidēbis furentem, provoke him (i. e., if you provoke him), you will at once see him frantic. Cic.

4. The place of the Imperative may be supplied by the Subjunctive of Desire (483), or by the Future Indicative :

Nē audeant, let them not dare. Cic. Quod optimum vidēbitur, faciēs, you will do what shall seem best. Cic.

488. In prohibitions or negative commands, the negative nē, rarely nōn, accompanies the Imperative, and if a connective is required, nēve or neu is generally used, rarely neque :

Tū nē cēde malis, do not yield to misfortunes. Verg. Hominem mortuum in urbe nē sepelitō, nēve uritō, thou shalt not bury nor burn a dead body in the city. Cic.

what is likely to be. Moreover, from these two leading uses was developed the idea of a conceived or assumed action, which probably lies at the foundation of all the other uses of this mood, as in causal and temporal clauses, in indirect questions, and in the subordinate clauses of the indirect discourses.

¹ Thus the Future is especially common in certain verbs ; and, indeed, in some verbs, as scīō, mēmīni, etc., it is the only form in common use.

489. Instead of nē with the Present Imperative, the best prose writers generally use—

1) Nōlī and nōlīte with the Infinitive:

Nōlīte putāre, do not think (be unwilling to think). Cic.

2) Fac nē or cavē, with the Subjunctive:

Fac nē quid aliud cūrās hōc tempore, do not attend to anything else at this time. Cic. Cavē faciās, beware of doing it, or see that you do not do it. Cic.

3) Nē with the Perfect Subjunctive, rarely with the Present; see 484, IV., note 1.

SECTION VI.

MOODS IN SUBORDINATE CLAUSES.

I. TENSES OF THE SUBJUNCTIVE IN SUBORDINATE CLAUSES.

490. In subordinate clauses the tenses of the Subjunctive conform to the following rule:

RULE XII.—Sequence of Tenses.

491. Principal tenses depend upon principal tenses; historical upon historical:

*Nititur ut vincat, he strives to conquer.*¹ Cic. *Nēmō erit qui censeat, there will be no one who will think.*¹ Cic. Quaesierās nōne putārem, you had asked whether I did not think. Cic. Ut honōre dignus essem labōrāvī, I strove to be worthy of honor. Cic.

492. In accordance with this rule, the Subjunctive dependent upon a principal tense,² present, future, future perfect, is put—

1. In the PRESENT, to denote incomplete action:

Quaeritur cūr dissentiant, the question is asked why they disagree. Cic. Nēmō erit qui censeat, there will be no one who will think. Cic.

NOTE.—Observe that in these examples the action denoted by the Subjunctive belongs either to the present time or to the future.

2. In the PERFECT, to denote completed action:

Quaerāmus quae vitia fuerint, let us inquire what faults there were. Cic. Rogitābit mē ubī fuerim, he will ask me where I have been. Ter.

NOTE 1.—In the sequence of tenses, the Perfect is occasionally treated as a principal tense:³

Oblitus es quid dixerim, you have forgotten what I said. Cic.

NOTE 2.—For further illustrations of the sequence of tenses, see 493, 2, note 2.

¹ The Present Subjunctive generally denotes present time in relation to the principal verb. Accordingly, vincat depending upon the present, nititur, denotes present time, while censeat depending upon the future, erit, denotes future time.

² For the treatment of the Perfect in the sequence of tenses, see 495.

493. The Subjunctive dependent upon an historical tense, imperfect, historical perfect, pluperfect, is put—

1. In the IMPERFECT, to denote incomplete action :

Timēbam nē evenirent ea, I was fearing that those things would take place (i. e., at some future time). Cic. Quaesierās nōnne putārem, you had inquired whether I did not think (i. e., at that time). Cic.

NOTE.—Observe that in these examples the time of the action denoted by the Subjunctive is either the same as that of the principal verb or subsequent to it.

2. In the PLUPERFECT, to denote completed action :

Themistocles, cum Graeciam liberasset, expulsus est, Themistocles was banished, though he had liberated Greece. Cic.

NOTE 1.—The Pluperfect after an historical tense, like the Perfect after a principal tense, may represent the action as completed in future time; see 496, II.

NOTE 2.—The sequence of tenses may be further illustrated as follows :¹

Nescit quid facias,	He knows not what you are doing.
Nesciet quid facias,	He will not know what you will do.²
Nesciverit quid facias,	He will not have known what you will do.
Nescit quid feceris,	He knows not what you have done, or what you did.³
Nesciet quid feceris,	He will not know what you will have done.⁴
Nesciverit quid feceris,	He will not have known what you will have done.
Nesciebat quid facerēs,	He did not know what you were doing.⁵
Nescivit quid facerēs,	He did not know what you were doing.⁶
Nesciebat quid facerēs,	He had not known what you were doing.
Nesciebat quid fecissēs,	He did not know what you had done.
Nescivit quid fecissēs,	He did not know what you had done.
Nescieverat quid fecissēs,	He had not known what you had done.

494. The periphrastic forms in rus and du conform to the general rule for the sequence of tenses :

Incertum est quam longa vita futura sit, it is uncertain how long life will continue. Cic. Incertum erat quō missuri classem forent, it was uncertain whether they would send the fleet. Liv.

495. PECULIARITIES IN SEQUENCE.—The following peculiarities in the sequence of tenses deserve notice :

I. In the sequence of tenses the Latin Perfect is generally treated as an historical tense, even when rendered with have, and thus admits the Imperfect or Pluperfect :

Quoniam quae subsidia habēres exposui,⁷ nunc dicam, since I have shown ¹ It is not intended to give all the possible meanings of the Subjunctive clauses here used, but simply to illustrate the sequence of tenses.

² Or, he will not know what you are doing. Thus, quid facies may represent the direct question, quid facies, 'what shall you do?' or quid facis, 'what are you doing?'

³ Or, what you were doing.

⁴ Or, what you have done, or what you did.

⁵ Or, what you would do. Nesciebat may sometimes be rendered, he has not known.

⁶ Exposui, though best rendered by our Perfect Definite with have, is in the Latin what aids you have, I will now speak. Cic. Haec nōn ut vōs excitārem locūtus sum, I have not spoken this to arouse (that I might arouse) you. Cic.

NOTE.—For the Perfect as a principal tense, see 492, 2, note 1.

II. The Historical Present (467, III.) is generally treated as an historical tense, but sometimes as a principal tense:

Persuadet Casticō ut rēgnum occupāret, he persuaded Casticus to seize the government. Caes. Ubi orant ut sibi parcat, the Ubi implore him to spare them. Caes.

NOTE.—The Historical Present includes the Present used of authors (467, 8), the Present with dum (467, 4), the Historical Infinitive (536, 1), etc.:

Chrysippus disputat Aethera esse eum quem hominēs Jovem appellārent, Chrysippus contends that he whom men call Jupiter is Aether. Cic.

III. The Imperfect Subjunctive, even when it refers to present time, as in conditional sentences, is generally treated as an historical tense, though sometimes as a principal tense:

Nisi ineptum putārem, jurārem mē ea sentire quae dicerem, if I did not think it improper, I would take an oath that I believe those things which I say. Cic. Memorāre possem quibus in locis hostēs populus Rōmānus fūderit, I might state in what places the Roman people routed the enemy. Sall.

IV. The Perfect Infinitive is generally treated as an historical tense, but the Present and the Future Infinitive, the Present and the Future Participle, as also Gerunds and Supines, share the tense of the verb on which they depend, as they express only relative time (527, 550):

Satis videor docuisse, hominis nātūra quantō antelret animantēs, I think I have sufficiently shown how much the nature of man surpasses that of the other animals (lit., surpassed animals). Cic. Spērō fore¹ ut contingat, I hope it will happen. Cic. Nōn spērāverat fore ut ad sē deficerent, he had not hoped that they would revolt to him. Liv. Misērunt Delphos cōsultum quidnam facerent, they sent to Delphi to ask what they should do. Nep.

V. Clauses containing a general truth usually conform to the law for the sequence of tenses, at variance with the English idiom:

Quanta cōscientiae vīs esset, ostendit, he showed how great is the power of conscience. Cic.

VI. Clauses denoting consequence or result generally express absolute time, and are thus independent of the law of sequence.² They thus admit the Present or Perfect after historical tenses:

Epaminōndās fidē sic tūsus est, ut possit iudicārī, Epaminondas used such treated as the Historical Perfect. The thought is as follows: Since in the preceding topics I set forth the aids which you have, I will now speak, etc.

¹ Literally, I hope it will be that it may happen. Here fore shares the tense of spērō, and is accordingly followed by the Present, contingat; but below it shares the tense of spērāverat, and is accordingly followed by the Imperfect, deficerent.

² This peculiarity arises from the fact that the result of a past action may itself fidelity that it may be judged. Nep. Adeo excellēbat Aristidēs abstinētia, ut Justus sit appellātus, Aristides so excelled in self-control, that he has been called the Just. Nep.

VII. For the sequence of tenses in the indirect discourse, see 525.

496. FUTURE TIME IN THE SUBJUNCTIVE.—When the Future is used in the principal clause, the Future and Future Perfect tenses, wanting in the Latin Subjunctive, are supplied in the subordinate clauses as follows:

I. The Future is supplied—(1) after a principal tense by the PRESENT, and (2) after an historical tense by the IMPERFECT:

Omnia sic agentur ut bellum sedētur,¹ all things shall be so managed that the war will be brought to a close. Cic. Loquēbantur, etiam cum vellet¹ Caesar, sēsē nōn esse pugnātūrōs, they were saying that they would not fight even when Caesar should wish it. Caes.

II. The Future Perfect is supplied—(1) after a principal tense by the PERFECT, and (2) after an historical tense by the PLUPERFECT:

Respondet si id sit factum, sē nocitūrum nēmīni, he replies that if this should be done (shall have been done) he will harm no one. Caes. Appārebāt regnātūrum, qui vicisset, it was evident that he would be king who should conquer. Liv.

NOTE 1.—The Future and the Future Perfect tenses are often supplied in the same way, even when the Future does not occur in the principal clause, provided the idea of future time can be easily inferred from the context:

Vereor nō labōrem augēam, I fear that I shall increase the labor. Cic. Quid diēs erat incertum est, what a day will bring forth is uncertain. Cic. Quid hostēs cōsiliū caperent, expectābant, they waited to see what plan the enemy would adopt. Caes. Delitui, dum vēls dedissent, I hid myself until they should have set sail. Verg.

NOTE 2.—When the idea of future time must be especially emphasized in the subordinate clause, the periphrastic forms in rus are used:²

Incertum est quam longa vita futūra sit, it is uncertain how long life will continue. Cic. Incertum erat quō missūri clāssēm forent, it was uncertain whether they would send the fleet. Liv.

NOTE 3.—The Future Perfect is sometimes supplied in the Passive by futūrus sim and futūrus essem with the Perfect Participle:³

Nōn dubitō quia cōfecta jam rēs futūra sit, I do not doubt that the thing will have been already accomplished. Cic.

present, and may thus be expressed by a principal tense. When the result belongs to the present time, the Present is used: possit iudicārī, 'may be judged now'; when it is represented as completed, the Perfect is used: sit appellātus, 'has been called' (i. e., even to the present day); but when it is represented as simultaneous with the action on which it depends, the Imperfect is used in accordance with the general rule (491).

¹ Sedētur, referring to the same time as agentur, and vellet, referring to the same time as esse pugnātūrōs, both denote future time.

² Other traditional periphrastic forms, rarely used in either voice, are—for the FUTURE, futūrum sit ut with the Present Subjunctive, and futūrum esset ut with the Imperfect; and for the FUTURE PERFECT, futūrum sit ut with the Perfect, and futūrum esset ut with the Pluperfect.

II. SUBJUNCTIVE IN CLAUSES OF PURPOSE.

RULE XLII.—Purpose.

497. The Subjunctive is used to denote PURPOSE:¹

I. With the relative qui, and with relative adverbs, as ubi, unde, etc.:

Missi sunt qui (= ut ii) cōsulerent Apollinem, they were sent to CONSULT Apollo (who should, or that they should). Nep. Missi sunt selecti qui Thermopylās occuparent, picked men were sent to TAKE POSSESSION OF Thermopylae. Nep. Domum, ubi habitāret, lēgit, he selected a house where he might dwell (that he might dwell in it). Cic. Locum petit, unde (= ut inde) hostem invadat, he seeks a position from which he may (that from it he may) attack the enemy. Liv.

II. With ut, nē, quō, quōminus:

Entitur ut vincat, he strives that HE MAY CONQUER. Cic. Pūnit nē peccātur, he punishes that crime MAY NOT BE COMMITTED. Sen. Lēgum idcirco servi sumus, ut liberi esse possimus, we are servants of the law for this reason, that we may be free. Cic. Medicō dare quō sit studiōsior, to give to the physician, that (by this means) he may be more attentive. Cic. Nōn recūsāvit quōminus poenam subiret, he did not refuse to submit to punishment. Nep.

1. Ut or utī and nē are the usual conjunctions in clauses denoting purpose. A correlative, idē, idcirco, et, etc., sometimes precedes, as in the third example under II.

NOTE.—With a connective nē becomes nēve, neve, rarely neque; see 483, 8:

Lēgem tulit nē quis accūsārētur nēve multārētur, he proposed a law that no one should be accused or punished. Nep.

2. Quō, 'by which,' 'that,' is sometimes used in clauses denoting purpose, especially with comparatives, as in the fourth example under II. Quōminus, 'by which the less,' 'that thus the less,' 'that not,' is simply quō with the comparative minus. It is sometimes used after verbs of hindering, opposing, and the like, as in the last example under II.

NOTE.—Quō etiam also occurs in the sense of quōminus; see Cic. Inv., II., 43.

498. CLAUSES OF PURPOSE readily pass into Object Clauses,²

¹ The Subjunctive of Purpose is doubtless in origin a Subjunctive of Desire, expressing the desire or command implied in the action of the principal verb: Tē rogō ut eum juvēs, I ask you to aid him (I ask you, so aid him). Here the second clause, originally independent, contains the desire, wish, involved in rogō. Vereor nē labōrem augeam, I fear that I shall increase the labor (I fear, let me not increase the labor). Præstō erit pontifex, qui comitia habeat, the pontiff will be present to hold the comitia (the pontiff will be present, let him hold the comitia). Liv. See Delbrück, 'Conjunctiv und Optativ,' pp. 59–62.

² An Object Clause is one which has become virtually the object of a verb. Thus, in 'opto ut id audiat,' the clause ut id audiat has become the object of opto, 'I desire.'

but they still retain the Subjunctive. Thus the Subjunctive is used—

I. With verbs signifying DESIRE and its EXPRESSION; hence decision, decrees, etc.:¹

Opto ut id audiat, I desire (pray) that you may hear this. Cic. Ut mihi aedēs aliquās condūcās volō, I wish that you would hire a house for me. Plant. Senātus cēnserat, uti Aedūōs dēfenderet, the senate had decreed that he should defend the Aedui. Caes. Servis imperat ut filiam dēfendant, he commands his servants to defend his daughter. Cic. Tē hortor ut legās, I exhort you to read. Cic. Tē rogō ut eum juvēs, I ask you to aid him. Cic. À rēge petiverunt nē inimicissimum suum secum habēret, they asked from the king that he would not keep his worst enemy with him. Nep.

NOTE.—Verbs of DETERMINING, DECIDING—statuō, cōstituō, dēcernō, etc.—generally take the Subjunctive when a new subject is introduced, otherwise the Infinitive (533, I., 1):

Cōstituerat, ut tribūnus quererētur, he had arranged that the tribune should enter the complaint. Sall. Senātus dēcrevit, darent operam cōsulēs, the senate decreed that the consuls should attend to it. Sall. Manēre dēcrevit, he decided to remain. Nep.

II. With verbs and expressions denoting EFFORT (striving for a purpose, attaining a purpose) or INFLUENCE (urging to effort):²

Contendit ut vincat, he strives to conquer. Cic. Cūrāvī ut bene viverem, I took care to lead a good life. Sen. Effecit ut imperātor mitterētur, he caused a commander to be sent (attained his purpose). Nep. Movēmur ut boni simus, we are influenced to be good. Cic.

NOTE 1.—Some verbs of ENDEAVORING, STRIVING, as cōnor, contendō, nitor, studēō, and tentō, generally take the Infinitive when no new subject is introduced; see 533:

Locum oppugnāre contendit, he proceeds to storm the city. Caes. Tentābō dē hōc dicere, I will attempt to speak of this. Quint.

NOTE 2.—U with the Subjunctive sometimes forms with faciō or agō, rarely with est, a circumlocution for the Indicative: faciō ut dicam = dicō; faciō ut scribam = scribō:

Invitus faciō ut recorder, I unwillingly recall. Cic.

III. With verbs and expressions denoting FEAR, ANXIETY, DANGER:³

*Timeō, ut labōrēs sustineās, I fear that you will not endure the labors.*⁴ Cic. Timebam nē evenirent ea, I feared that those things would happen. Cic. *Vereor nē labōrem augeam, I fear that I shall increase the labor.*⁴ Cic. Periculum est nē ille tē verbis obruat, there is danger that he will overwhelm you with words. Cic.

NOTE 1.—By a difference of idiom, ut must here be rendered by that not, and nē by that or lest. The Latin treats the clause as a wish or purpose.⁴

¹ As optō, postulo; cōnseō, dēcernō, statuō, cōstituō, etc.; volō, mālō; admoneō, moneō, hortor; dūō, rogō; imperō, praeceptō, etc.

² As enitor, contendō, studēō; cūrō, id agō, operam dō, etc.; faciō, efficiō, impetrō, cōnsequor, etc.; cogō, impellō, moveō, etc.

³ As metuō, timeō, vereor; periculum est, cūra est, etc.

⁴ The Subjunctive of Desire is manifest if we make the subordinate clause inde-

NOTE 2.—After verbs of FEARING, nē nōn is sometimes used for ut—regularly so after negative clauses:

Vereor nē nōn possit, I fear that he will not be able. Cic.

NOTE 3.—Verbs of FEARING admit the Infinitive in the same sense as in English:

Vereor laudāre, *I fear (hesitate) to praise.*¹ Cic.

499. PECULIARITIES.—Expressions of Purpose present the following peculiarities:

1. Ut nē, rarely ut nōn, is sometimes used for nē:

Prædixit, ut nē legatōs dimitterent, he charged them not to (that they should not) release the delegates. Nep. Ut plūra nōn dicam, not to say more (i. e., that I may not). Cic.

2. Ut is sometimes omitted, especially after volō, nōlō, mālō, faciō, and after verbs of DIRECTING, URGING, etc. Nē is often omitted after cavē:

Tū velim sis, I desire that you may be. Cic. Fāc habeās, see (make) that you have. Cic. Senātus decrevit darent operam cōsulēs, the senate decreed that the consuls should see to it. Sall. Cavē faciās, beware of doing it, or see that you do not do it. Cic.

NOTE.—Clauses with ut or nē are sometimes inserted parenthetically in sentences: Amicōs, optimam vitæ, ut ita dicam,² suppellectilem, friends, the best treasure (furniture), so to speak, of life. Cic.

3. Clauses of Purpose sometimes pass into Substantive Clauses, which, like indeclinable nouns, are used in a variety of constructions:

Per eum stetit quōminus dimicārētur,³ it was owing to him (stood through him) that the battle was not fought. Caes. Volō ut mihi respondeās,⁴ I wish that you would answer me. Cic. Fecit pacem his condiciōnibus, nē qui adfererentur exsilio,⁵ he made peace on these terms, that none should be punished with exile. Nep.

NOTE 1.—For the Different Forms of Substantive Clauses, see 540.

NOTE 2.—Clauses with quōminus sometimes lose the original idea of Purpose and denote Result:⁶

Nōn dēterret sapientem mors quōminus rei publicæ cōsulat, death does not deter a wise man from deliberating for the republic. Cic.

pendent, as it was originally: I fear, so may you endure the labor, an affirmative wish; I fear, may I not increase the labor, a negative wish; hence nē.

¹ Compare vereor laudāre, 'I fear to praise,' with vereor nē laudem, 'I fear THAT I SHALL PRAISE.'

² The Subjunctive in this and similar clauses may be explained either as a Subjunctive of Purpose dependent upon a verb understood, or as a Subjunctive of Desire; see 483.

³ In the first example, the clause quōminus dimicārētur has become apparently the subject of stetit; in the second, ut mihi respondeās, the object of volō; and in the third, nē qui adfererentur exsilio, an appositive to condiciōnibus.

⁴ Such a transition from Purpose, denoting an Intended Result, to a Simple Result is easy and natural.

III. SUBJUNCTIVE IN CLAUSES OF RESULT.

RULE XLIII.—Result.

500. The Subjunctive is used to denote RESULT¹—

I. With the relative qui, and with relative adverbs, as ubi, unde, cūr, etc. :

Nōn is sum qui (= ut ego) his ūtar, I am not such a one as to use these things. Cic. Innocentia est affectiō talis animi, quae (= ut ea) noceat nēmīni, innocentia is such a state of mind as injures no one, or as to injure no one. Cic. Neque quisquam fuit ubi nostrum jūa obtinērēmus, nor was there any one with whom (where) we could obtain our right. Cic. Est vērō cūr quis Junōnem laedere nōlit, there is indeed a reason why (so that) one would be unwilling to offend Juno. Ovid.

II. With ut, ut nōn, quā :

Ita vixit ut Athēniēnsibus esset cārissimus, he so lived that he was very dear to the Athenians. Nep. Ita laudō, ut nōn partimiscam, I so praise as not to fear. Cic. Ego in publicis causis ita sum versātus ut dēfenderim multōs, I have been so occupied in public suits that I have defended many. Cic. Nihil est tam difficile quā (ut nōn) investigārī possit, nothing is so difficult that it may not be investigated. Ter.

NOTE 1.—Qui is often preceded by is, tālis, tantus, or some similar word; and ut, by ita, etc, tam, adeo, tantopere, or some similar particle; see examples.

NOTE 2.—In Plautus and Terence ut sometimes accompanies qui :

Ita ut qui neget, so that he refuses. Ter.

NOTE 3.—For the Subjunctives denoting a result after quāminus, see 499, 3, note 2.

501. CLAUSES OF RESULT readily pass into Substantive Clauses, but they still retain the Subjunctive. Thus the Subjunctive is used—

I. IN SUBJECT CLAUSES. Thus—

1. With impersonal verbs signifying it happens, remains, follows, is lawful, is allowed, is distant, is, etc. :²

Fit ut quisque delectātur, it happens that every one is delighted. Cic. Sequitur ut falsum sit, it follows that it is false. Cic. Restat ut doceam, it remains that I should show. Cic. Ex quō efficitur ut voluptās nō sit summum bonum, from which it follows that pleasure is not the highest good. Cic.

2. With predicate nouns and adjectives :

Mōs est ut nōlint, it is their custom not to be willing (that they are unwilling). Cic. Prōximū est, ut doceam, the next point is, that I show. Cic. Nōn est dubium quā beneficium sit, that it is a benefit, is not doubtful. Sen.

¹ The Subjunctive of Result is doubtless in origin a Potential Subjunctive : Nōn is sum qui his ūtar, 'I am not one who would use (or is likely to use) these things.' Hence this Subjunctive takes the negative nōn (ut nōn) like the Potential Subjunctive, while the Subjunctive of Purpose takes the negative nē like the Subjunctive of Desire.

² As accidit, contingit, evenit, fit, restat, sequitur, licet, adeo, est, etc.

NOTE.—For the Subjunctive with ut, with or without ne, in questions expressive of impatience or surprise, see 486, II., note.

II. In OBJECT CLAUSES. Thus—

1. In clauses introduced by ut after faciō, efficiō, of the action of irrational forces :

Sol efficit ut omnia floreant, the sun causes all things to bloom (i. e., produces that result). Cic. Splendor vester facit ut peccāre sine periculō nōn possitis, your conspicuous position causes this result, that you can not err without peril. Cic. See 498, II.

2. In clauses introduced by quā after verbs of Doubting :

Nōn dubitābis quā sint beātī, you will not doubt that they are happy. Cic.

III. In CLAUSES IN APPPOSITION with nouns or pronouns :

Habet hōc virtūs ut delectet, virtue has this advantage, that it delights. Cic. Est hōc vitium, ut invidia glōriæ comes sit, there is this fault, that envy is the companion of glory. Nep.

NOTE.—For the different forms of substantive clauses, see 540.

502. PECULIARITIES.—Expressions of Result present the following peculiarities :

1. Ut is sometimes omitted—regularly with oportet, generally with opus est and neceesse est :

Tē oportet virtūs trahat, it is necessary that virtus should attract you. Cic. Causam habeat neceesse est, it is necessary that it should have a cause. Cic.

2. The Subjunctive occurs with quā—with or without ut :

Liberalius quā ut possēt, too freely to be able (more freely than so as to be able). Nep. Impōnēbat amplius quā ferre possent, he imposed more than they were able to bear.

3. After tantum abest ut, denoting result, a second ut of result sometimes occurs :

Philosophia, tantum abest ut laudētur, ut etiam vituperētur, so far is it from the truth (so much is wanting) that philosophy is praised, that it is even censured. Cic.

503. In RELATIVE CLAUSES, the Subjunctive of RESULT shows the following SPECIAL CONSTRUCTIONS :

I. The Subjunctive is used in relative clauses to characterize an Indefinite or General Antecedent :¹

Quid est quod tē delectāre possit, what is there which can delight you ? Cic. Nunc dicis aliquid quod ad rem pertineat, now you state something which belongs to the subject. Cic. Sunt qui putent, there are some who think. Cic. Nēmō est qui nōn cupiat, there is no one who does not desire. Cic.

¹ Here tam, illis, or some such word, is often understood.

NOTE 1.—Restrictive clauses with quod, as quod sciam, 'as far as I know,' quod meminierim, 'as far as I remember,' etc., take the Subjunctive:

Nōn ego tū, quod sciam, unquam ante hunc diem vidi, AS FAR AS I KNOW, I have never seen you before this day. Plaut.

NOTE 2.—Quod, or a relative particle, ut, unde, quō, cūr, etc., with the Subjunctive, is used after est, 'there is reason'; nōn est, nihil est, 'there is no reason'; quid est, 'what reason is there?'; nōn habet, nihil habet, 'I have no reason':

Est quod gaudēis, there is reason why you should rejoice, or so that you may. Plaut. Nōn est quod crēdis, there is no reason why you should believe. Sen. Nihil habet, quod incusam senectutem, I have no reason why I should accuse old age. Cic. Quid est cūr virtūs ipas nōn efficiat beatōs, what reason is there why virtue itself should not make men happy? Cic.

NOTE 3.—The Indicative is freely used in relative clauses after indefinite antecedents:

1) In poetry¹ and late prose:

Sunt quōs iuvat, there are some whom it delights. Hor.

2) Even in the best prose, when the fact itself is to be made prominent:

Sunt qui nōn audent dicere, there are some who do not dare to speak. Cic. Multa sunt, quae dici possunt, there are many things which may be said. Cic.

II. The Subjunctive is used in relative clauses—

1. After ūnus, sōlus, and the like :

Sapientia est ūna, quae maestitiā pellat, wisdom is the only thing which dispels sadness (which would dispel). Cic. Soli centum erant qui creārī possent, there were only one hundred who could be appointed (such that they could be). Liv.

2. After dignus, indignus, idōneus, and aptus :

Fabulae dignae sunt, quae legantur, the fables are worthy to be read (that they should be read). Cic. Rufus Caesar idōneum iudicāverat quem mitteret, Caesar had judged Rufus a suitable person to send (whom he might send). Caes.

3. After comparatives with quam :

Damna mājōra sunt quam quae (= ut ea) aestimārī possint, the losses are too great to be estimated (greater than so that they can be). Liv.

504. Quin,² 'who not,' 'that not,' etc., is often used to introduce a result after negatives and interrogatives implying a negative.³ Thus—

¹ Especially in early poetry, as in Plautus and Terence.

² Quin is a compound of the relative qui and nē, and appears to be used both as an indeclinable relative pronoun, who not, and as a relative particle, by which not, how not, etc. Some clauses with quin may perhaps be best explained as indirect questions (529, I.). Quin, meaning why not? often used in independent clauses, is a compound of the interrogative quis or qui, and nē: Quin tū hoc facis, 'why do you not do it?' Liv.

³ As nēmō, nūllus, nihil, quis? nōn dubitō, nōn dubitum est; nōn multum abest, paulum abest, nihil abest, quid abest? nōn, rēo, aegrē abstinēs; mihī nōn temperō; nōn retineor; nōn, nihil praetermittō; facere nōn possum, ferri nōn potest; nūquam with a large class of verbs.

1. Quin is often used in the sense of quī nōn, quae nōn, etc., as after nēmō, nullus, nihil, quis?

Adest nēmō, quin videat, there is no one present who does not see. Cic. Nēmō est quin audierit, there is no one who has not heard. Cic. Quis est quin cernat, who is there who does not perceive? Cic. Nulla fuit civitas quin mitteret, there was no state which did not send. Caes. Nulla pictūra fuit quin (=quam nōn) inspexerit, there was no painting which he did not inspect. Cic. Nallum intermisit diem, quin (=quō nōn or ut eō nōn) aliquid darem, I allowed no day to pass without giving something (on which I would not give something). Cic.

NOTE.—Quin can often be best rendered by but or by without or from with a participial noun in -ing: see the last example under 1; also the last under 2.

2. Quin is often used in the ordinary sense of ut nōn:

Nēmō est tam fortis quin perturbetur, no one is so brave as not to be disturbed. Caes. Nihil est tam difficile quin investigari possit, nothing is so difficult that it may not be investigated. Ter. Retineri nōn poterant quin tela eicerent,¹ they could not be restrained from hurling their weapons. Caes.

NOTE.—Is or id is sometimes expressed after quin:

Nihil est quin id interest, there is nothing which does not perish. Cic.

3. Quin is used in the sense of ut nōn or of ut in subject and object clauses (501):

1) With facere nōn possum, fieri nōn potest, etc., in the sense of ut nōn:

Facere nōn possum quin litteras mittam, I can not but send a letter. Cic. Effici nōn potest quin eos oderim, it can not be (be effected) that I should not hate them. Cic.

2) With negative expressions implying doubt and uncertainty, in the sense of ut:

Agamemnōn nōn dubitat quin Troja sit peritura, Agamemnon does not doubt that Troy will fall (perish). Cic. Nōn dubitari debet quin fuerint poetae, it ought not to be doubted that there were poets. Cic. Quis ignorat quin tria genera sint, who is ignorant that there are three races? Cic.

4. Quin is sometimes used in the sense of quōminus:²

Quin loquar haec, nūquam mē potes detertere, you can never deter me from saying this. Plaut. Nōn deterret sapientem mors quōminus rei publicae consulat, death does not deter a wise man from deliberating for the republic. Cic. Nōn recusavit, quōminus poenam subiret, he did not refuse to submit to punishment. Nep. Neque recusare quin armis contendat, and that they do not refuse to contend in arms. Caes.

NOTE.—For nōn quin in Causal Clauses, see 516, 2.

² As after verbs of hindering, refusing, and the like. Observe that in the examples deterreo and recuso are used both with quin and with quōminus. They also admit the Subjunctive with nē or the Infinitive: see 505, II.

505. CONSTRUCTION OF SPECIAL VERBS.—Some verbs admit two or more different constructions. Thus—

I. Dubito admits—

1. Quin, with the SUBJUNCTIVE, if it stands in a negative sentence; see 504, 3, 2).

2. An INDIRECT QUESTION (529, I.):

Nō dubitō quid putēs, I do not doubt what you think. Cic. *Dubitō an pōnam, I doubt whether I should not place.*¹ Nep.

3. The ACCUSATIVE WITH THE INFINITIVE:

Quis dubitat patēre Eurōpam, who doubts that Europe is exposed? Curt.

4. The simple INFINITIVE, when it means to hesitate:

Nō dubitem dicere, I should not hesitate to say. Cic. Dubitāmus virtutem extendere factis, do we hesitate to extend our glory (valor) by our deeds? Verg.

II. Verbs of hindering, opposing, refusing, and the like, admit—

1. The SUBJUNCTIVE WITH nē, quin, or quōminus:²

Impedior nē plūra dicam, I am prevented from saying (that I may not say) more. Cic. Sententiam nē diceret recūsavit, he refused to give an opinion. Cic. Neque recūsare quin armis contendat, and that they do not refuse to contend in arms. Caes. Interclūdor dolore quōminus plūra scribam, I am prevented by sorrow from writing more. Cic.

2. The ACCUSATIVE WITH THE INFINITIVE, or the simple INFINITIVE:

Num ignobilitās sapientem beatum esse prohibebit, will obscurity prevent a wise man from being happy? Cic. Quae facere recūsem, which I should refuse to do. Hor.

IV. MOODS IN CONDITIONAL SENTENCES.

506. Every conditional sentence consists of two distinct parts, expressed or understood—the Condition and the Conclusion:

*Si negem, mentiar, if I should deny it, I should speak falsely.*³ Cic.

RULE XLIV.—Conditional Sentences with si, nisi, ni, sin.

507. Conditional sentences with si, nisi, ni, sin, take—

I. The INDICATIVE in both clauses to assume the supposed case:

¹ That is, I am inclined to think that I should place. Observe that dubitō means 'I doubt whether not'='I am inclined to think,' and dubitō num, 'I doubt whether': Dubitō num dēbeam, 'I doubt whether I ought.' Plin.

² For the use of quin, see 504. Nē and quōminus may follow either affirmatives or negatives.

³ Here si negem is the condition, and mentiar, the conclusion.

Si spiritum dūcit, vivit, if he breathes, he is alive. Cic. Si tot exempla virtūtis nōn movent, nihil unquam movēbit, if so many examples of valor do not move (you), nothing will ever move (you). Liv.

II. The PRESENT or PERFECT SUBJUNCTIVE in both clauses to represent the supposed case as possible :

Diēs dēficiat, si velim causam dēfendere, the day would fail me, if I should wish to defend the cause. Cic. Improbē fēcērīs, nisi monuerīs, you would do wrong, if you should not give warning. Cic.

III. The IMPERFECT or PLUPERFECT SUBJUNCTIVE in both clauses to represent the supposed case as contrary to fact :

Plūribus verbis ad tē scriberem, si rēs verba dēsiderāret, I should write to you more fully (with more words), if the case required words. Cic. Si vīlisset, dimicāset, if he had wished, he would have fought. Nep.

1. Two clauses without any conjunction sometimes have the force of a conditional sentence :

Negat quis, negō, does any one deny, I deny. Ter. Rogēs mē, nihil respondeam, ask me, I shall make no reply. Cic. Tū māgnam partem, sineret dolor, habērēs, *you would have had a large share, had grief permitted.*¹ Verg. Lacesse; jam vidēbis furentem, provoke him (i. e., if you provoke him), you will at once see him frantic. Cic.²

2. A condition is sometimes introduced by the relative qui, quae, etc. = et is, si quis, si qui, etc. :

Qui sēcum loqui poterit, sermōnem alterius nōn requirēt, if any one (lit., he who) shall be able to converse with himself, he will not need the conversation

² From these examples it is manifest that a conditional particle is not an essential part of a conditional sentence. Originally the two clauses, the condition and the conclusion, were independent, and the mood in each was determined by the ordinary principles which regulate the use of moods in principal clauses; see 483; 485. Hence the Indicative was used in treating of facts, and the Subjunctive or Imperative in all other cases. Si, probably the Locative case of a pronoun, meaning (1) at that time or in that manner, and (2) at any time or in any manner, has nothing whatever to do with the mood, but merely denotes that the conclusion is connected with the condition. Thus: negat, negō, 'he denies (i. e., assume that he denies), I deny'; si negat, negō, 'he denies at some time, then I deny'; diēs dēficiat, si velim, etc., 'let me wish (Subjunctive of Desire) at any time, etc., then the day would fail me.' The Subjunctive in conditions is a Subjunctive of Desire with nearly the force of the Imperative, which may indeed be used for it when si is omitted, as lacesse, 'provoke him (i. e., if you provoke him)'. In conclusions the Subjunctive is generally potential, as diēs dēficiat, 'the day would fail,' but sometimes it is the Subjunctive of Desire, for which the Imperative may be substituted; as, peream, si poterunt, 'may I perish if they shall be able'; si peccāvi, ignōsce, 'if I have erred, pardon me.' See Delbrück, 'Conjunctiv und Optativ,' pp. 70-74; 171-182.

of another. Cic. Errat longè, qui credat, etc., he greatly errs who supposes, etc. (i. e., if any one supposes, he greatly errs). Ter. Haec qui videat, nōne cogātur confitēri, etc., if any one should see these things, would he not be compelled to admit, etc.? Cic.

3. A condition is sometimes introduced by cum:

Ea cum dixissent, quid responderēs, if (when) they had said that, what should you reply? Cic.

NOTE 1.—The condition is sometimes ironical, especially with nisi vērō, nisi forte, with the Indicative, and with quasi, quasi vērō, with the Present or Perfect Subjunctive:

Nisi forte inānit, unless perhaps he is insane. Cic. Quasi vērō necesse sit, as if indeed it were necessary. Caes.

NOTE 2.—Ita—si, 'so—if,' means only—if. Si quidem, 'if indeed,' sometimes has nearly the force of since:

Hoc ita iustum est, si est voluntarium, this is just only if (on condition that) it is voluntary. Cic. Antiquissimum est genus poëtarum, si quidem Homerus fuit ante Rōmam conditam, the class of poets is very ancient, since Homer lived before the founding of Rome. Cic.

NOTE 3.—Nisi or si, 'if not,' is sometimes best rendered but or except: Nesciō, nisi hoc videō, I know not, but (except that) I observe this. Cic.

NOTE 4.—Nisi si means except if, unless perhaps, unless:

Nisi si qui scripsit, unless some one has written. Cic.

NOTE 5.—For si to be rendered to see if, to see whether, etc., see 529, 1, note 1.

NOTE 6.—For quod si, quod si, quod nisi, see 453, 6.

NOTE 7.—The condition may be variously supplied, as by a participle, by the ablative absolute, or by the oblique case of a noun:

Nōn potestis, voluptatē omnia dirigētēs (= si dirigētēs), retinere virtutem, you can not retain your manhood, if you arrange all things with reference to pleasure. Cic. Recte factū (= si recte factum erit), laus prōponitur, if it is (shall be) well done, praise is offered. Cic. Nēmō sine spē (= nisi epem habēret) se offerret ad mortem, no one without a hope (if he had not a hope) would expose himself to death. Cic.

NOTE 8.—For Conditional Sentences in the INDIRECT DISCOURSE, see 527.

503. FIRST FORM.—Conditional sentences with the Indicative in both clauses, assuming the supposed case as real, may base upon it any statement which would be admissible if the supposed case were a known fact:

Si haec olivās est, civis sum ego, if this is a state, I am a citizen. Cic. Si nōn licēbat, nōn necesse erat, if it was not lawful, it was not necessary. Cic. Si vis, dabo tibi testēs, if you wish, I will furnish you witnesses. Cic. Plura scribam, si plus otii habuerō, I will write more if I shall have (shall have had) more leisure. Cic. Dolorem si nōn poterō frangere, occultabō, if I shall not be able to overcome sorrow, I shall conceal it. Cic. Parvi sunt foris arma, nisi est cōsiliū domi, arms are of little value abroad, unless there is wisdom at home. Cic. Si domi sum, etc.; sin¹ foris sum, etc., if I am at home, etc.; but if I am abroad, etc. Plaut. Ni putō, if I do not think. Cic.

¹ Sin from si nē, 'if not,' 'if on the contrary,' 'but if,' properly introduces a condition in contrast with another condition expressed or implied. Thus, sin foris is in contrast with si domi, and means but if abroad.

1. The CONDITION is generally introduced, when affirmative, by si, with or without other particles, as quidem, modo, etc., and when negative, by si nōn, nisi, ni.

2. The TIME may be present, past, or future, but it need not be the same in both clauses. Thus the Present or the Future Perfect in the condition is often followed by the Future, as in the third and fourth examples.¹

3. Si nōn and nisi are often used without any perceptible difference of meaning; but strictly si nōn introduces the negative condition on which the conclusion depends, while nisi introduces a qualification or an exception. Thus, in the second example above, the meaning is, if it was not lawful, it follows that it was not necessary; while in the fourth the meaning is, arms are of little value abroad, except when there is wisdom at home.

4. The CONCLUSION irrespective of the condition may assume a considerable variety of form. Thus:

Redargue mē si mentior, refute me if I speak falsely. Cic. Moriar, ni putā, may I die, if I do not think. Cic. Quid timeam, si beātus futūrus sum, why should I fear if I am going to be happy? Cic. Si quid habēs certius, velim² scire, if you have any information (anything more certain), I should like to know it. Cic.

5. GENERAL TRUTHS may be expressed conditionally—

1) By the Indicative in both clauses, as in the sixth example under 508.

2) By the Second Person of the Subjunctive used of an indefinite you (= any one) in the condition, with the Indicative in the conclusion:

Memoria minuitur, nisi eam exercēas, the memory is impaired, if you do not (one does not) exercise it. Cic. Nūlla est excusatiō peccāti, si amici causā peccāveris, it is no excuse for a fault, that you have committed it for the sake of a friend. Cic.

509. SECOND FORM.—Conditional sentences with the Present or Perfect Subjunctive in both clauses represent the condition as possible:

Hæc si tecum patria loquatur, nōne impetrāre debeat, if your country should speak thus with you, ought she not to obtain her request? Cic. Improbē feceris, nisi monueris, you would do wrong, if you should not give warning. Cic. See also 507, II.

NOTE 1.—The TIME denoted by these tenses, the Present and the Perfect, is generally either present or future, and the difference between the two is that the former regards the action in its progress, the latter in its completion. Thus, loquatur, 'should speak' (now or at any future time); so of dēbeat; but feceris, though referring to the same time as loquatur, regards the action as completed.³

NOTE 2.—The Present Subjunctive is occasionally used in conditional sentences, even when the condition is in itself contrary to fact:

¹ A conditional sentence with the Future Perfect in the condition and the Future in the conclusion, as plūra scribam, si plūs otii habuerō, corresponds to the Greek with éav or ēv with the Aorist Subjunctive in the condition, and the Future Indicative in the conclusion; as, νός ἂν ποιήσῃ, γῆρας ἔχεις εὐχάλες, if you will labor while young, you will have a prosperous old age.

² Observe that in each of these examples the mood in the conclusion is entirely independent of the condition. Thus, redargue is a command; moriar, a prayer, Subjunctive of Desire; quid timeam, a deliberative question (484, V.); and velim, a Potential Subjunctive (486, note 1).

³ As the Present Subjunctive in point of time is very closely related to the Future Indicative in conditional sentences, so the Perfect Subjunctive is very closely related to the Future Perfect Indicative, though it may refer to past time.

Tu si hie sis, aliter sentias, (if you were I (if you were in my place), you would think differently. Ter.

NOTE 2.—When dependent upon an historical tense, the Present and Perfect are of course generally changed to the Imperfect and Pluperfect, by the law for Sequence of Tenses (490):

Metuit nō, si iret, retraheretur, he feared lest, if he should go, he would be brought back. Liv.

510. THIRD FORM.—Conditional sentences with the Imperfect or Pluperfect Subjunctive in both clauses represent the supposed case as contrary to fact, and simply state what would have been the result if the condition had been fulfilled:

Sapientia nō expeteretur, si nihil efficeret, wisdom would not be sought (as it is), if it accomplished nothing. Cic. Si optima tenere possēmus, haud saine cōsiliō egerēmus, if we were able to secure the highest good, we should not indeed need counsel. Cic. Si voluisset, dimicasset, if he had wished, he would have fought. Nep. Nūquam abiisset, nisi sibi viam mūnvisset, he would never have gone, if he had not prepared for himself a way. Cic. See also 507, III.

NOTE 1.—Here the Imperfect generally relates to *present*¹ time, as in the first and second examples; the Pluperfect to past time, as in the third and fourth examples.

NOTE 2.—The Imperfect sometimes relates to past time, especially when it expresses a continued action, or is accompanied by any word denoting past time:

Nec, si cuperēs, tibi id facere licuisset, nor would you have been permitted to do it, if you had desired. Cic. Num Opimium, si tum essēs, temerarium civem putārēs, would you have thought Opimius an audacious citizen if you had lived at that time? Cic.

511. A CONCLUSION of the FIRST FORM is sometimes combined with a CONDITION of the SECOND or THIRD FORM. Thus—

1. The Indicative is often thus used in the conclusion (1) to denote a general truth, and (2) to emphasize a fact, especially with a condition introduced by nisi or ni:²

Turpis excusatiō est, si quis fateatur, etc., it is a base excuse, if one admits, etc. Cic. Intrāre, si possim, castra hostium volō, I wish to enter the camp of the enemy, if I am able. Liv. Certāmen aderat, ni Fabius rem expedisset, a contest was at hand, but Fabius (lit., if Fabius had not) adjusted the affair.³ Liv. Nec vēni, nisi fāta locum dedissent, nor should I have come, had not the fates assigned the place.³ Verg.

² Here the condition merely introduces a qualification or an exception; see 508, 3.

³ The force of the Indicative can not be easily shown in a translation, but the Latin conception is, I have not come without the divine guidance (expressed in the condition).

NOTE 1.—The Future Indicative is sometimes used in the conclusion because of its near relationship in force to the Present Subjunctive :¹

Si mittat, quid respondēbia, if he should send, what answer shall you give? Lucr. Nec si cupiās, hosbit, nor, if you should desire it, will it be allowed. Cic.

NOTE 2.—In a negative conclusion with a negative condition, the verb possum is generally in the Indicative :²

Neque amicitiam tuēri possumus, nisi amicos diligāmus, nor should we be able to preserve friendship, if we should not love our friends. Cic.

NOTE 3.—The Historical Tenses of verbs denoting Duty, Propriety, Necessity, Ability, and the like, in the conclusion of conditional sentences, are generally in the Indicative :

Quem, si illa in te pietās esset, colere dōbēbās, whom you ought to have honored (and would have honored), if there were any filial affection in you. Cic. Vix castra, si oppugnāretur, tūtārī poterat, he was hardly able to defend the camp, if he should be attacked. Liv. Dēlārī exercitus potuit, si persecūtī victōrēs essent, the army might have been destroyed (and would have been), if the victors had pursued. Liv.

NOTE 4.—The Historical Tenses of the Indicative of still other verbs are sometimes similarly used when accompanied by pæne or prope :

Pōns iter pæne hostibus dedit, ni unus vir fuisset, the bridge almost furnished a passage to the enemy (and would have furnished it), had there not been one man. Liv.

2. The Periphrastic Forms in rus and dus in the conclusion of conditional sentences are generally in the Indicative :³

Quid si hostēs veniant, factūrī estis, what shall you do if the enemy should come? Liv. Si quaerātur, indicandum est, if inquiry should be made, information must be given. Cic. Relictūrī agrōs erant, nisi litterās mīsisset, they would have left⁴ their lands, had he not sent a letter. Cic. Quid futurum fuit, si plebs agitārī coepta esset, what would have been the result, if the plebeians had begun to be agitated? Liv. Si verum respondere vellēs, hæc erat dicenda, if you wished to answer truly, this should have been said. Cic. Si morātī essētis, moriendum omnibus fuit, if you had delayed, you must all have perished. Liv.

NOTE.—When the Perfect Indicative in the conclusion with the Subjunctive in the condition is brought into a construction which requires the Subjunctive, the tense remains unchanged, irrespective of the tense of the principal verb :

Adeū est inopiā coāctus ut, nisi timuisset, Galliam repetitūrus fuerit,⁵ he was so ¹ See 479, with foot-note 3. A conditional sentence with the Present Subjunctive in the condition, and the Future Indicative in the conclusion, corresponds to the Greek ἐάν with the Present Subjunctive in the condition, and the Future Indicative in the conclusion: τοῦτο ἐάν σκορίῃς, εὐρίσκει, if you examine this, you will find.

² Here, too, the use of the Indicative grows out of the relationship between the meaning of possum, denoting ability, and that of the Potential Subjunctive denoting possibility.

³ The Indicative is here explained by the close relationship between the ordinary meaning of the Subjunctive, and that of the forms in rus and dus denoting that something is about to be done or ought to be done.

⁴ Lit., were about to leave, and so would have left, had he not, etc.

⁵ Here repetitūrus fuerit is in the Subjunctive, not because it is in a conditional sentence, but because it is the Subjunctive of Result with ut; but it is in the Perfect, because, if it were not dependent, the Perfect Indicative would have been used.

pressed by want that, if he had not feared, he would have returned to Gaul. Liv. Haud dubium fuit, quin nisi firmata extremae agminis fuissent, ingens accipienda cladis fuerit, there was no doubt that, had not the rear of the line been made strong, a great disaster must have been sustained. Liv. Quaeris quid potuerit amplius assequi, si Scipionis fuisset filius, you ask what more he could have attained, if he had been the son of Scipio. Cic.

512. A CONCLUSION of the THIRD FORM (510) is sometimes combined with a CONDITION of the SECOND FORM (509):

Si tecum loquantur, quid responderis, if they should speak with you, what answer would you give? Cic.

RULE XLV.—Conditional Clauses with dum, modo, ac si, ut si, etc.

513. Conditional clauses take the Subjunctive—

I. With dum, modo, dummodo,¹ 'if only,' 'provided that'; dum nō, modo nō, dummodo nō, 'if only not,' 'provided that not':²

Manent ingenia, modo permaneat industria, mental powers remain, if only industry remains. Cic. Dum res maneat, verba fingant, let them make words, if only the facts remain. Cic. Dummodo repellat periculum, provided he may avert danger. Cic. Dum nō tibi videar, nō laboro, provided I do not seem so to you, I do not care. Cic.

II. With ac si, ut si, quam si, quasi, tanquam, tanquam si, velut, velut si, 'as if,' 'than if,' involving an ellipse of the real conclusion:

Perinde habebō, ac si scripsissēs, I shall regard it just as if (i. e., as I should if) you had written. Cic. Jacent, tanquam omnino sine animo sint, they lie as if (i. e., as they would lie if) they were entirely without mind. Cic. Quam si vixerit tecum, as if he had lived with you. Cic. Miserior es, quam si oculos nō habērēs, you are more unhappy than (you would be) if you had not eyes. Cic. Crūdēlītātē, velut si adesset, horrēbant, they shuddered at his cruelty as (they would) if he were present. Caes. Ut si in suam rem aliēna convertant, as if they should appropriate others' possessions to their own use. Cic. Tanquam audiant, as if they may hear. Sen.

NOTE 1.—In this form of conditional sentences, the *Present*³ or Imperfect is used of present time, and the *Perfect*³ or Pluperfect of past time; see examples above.

¹ When not used in conditions, these conjunctions often admit the Indicative: Dum lēges vigēbant, while the laws were in force. Cic.

² This Subjunctive is best explained as the Subjunctive of Desires, as indicated by the negative nō (493, 8). Thus, modo permaneat industria, 'only let industry remain'; dum nō tibi videar, 'let me not meanwhile seem so to you.' After dum and dummodo the Subjunctive may perhaps be explained as Potential, but the negative nō renders such an explanation very doubtful.

³ The English idiom would lead us to expect only the Imperfect and Pluperfect, as under 510; but the Latin often regards the condition as possible, and thus uses the Present and Perfect, as under 509.

NOTE 2.—Cum and sicuti are sometimes used like de si, ut si, etc. :
Cum bella forent, as if there were wars. Verg. Sicuti audiri possent, as if they could be heard. Sall.

V. MOODS IN CONCESSIVE CLAUSES.

514. A concessive clause is one which concedes or admits something, generally introduced in English by though or although :¹

Quamquam itinere fessi erant, tamen præcedunt, although they were weary with the journey, they still (yet) advanced. Sall.

NOTE.—The concessive particle is sometimes omitted :
Sed habet, tamen, etc., but grant that he has it, yet, etc. Cic.

RULE XLVI.—Moods in Concessive Clauses.

515. Concessive clauses take—

I. Generally the Indicative in the best prose, when introduced by quamquam :

Quamquam intellegunt, tamen nunquam dicunt, though they understand, they never speak. Cic. Quamquam festinās, nōn est mora longa, though you are in haste, the delay is not long. Hor.

II. The Indicative or Subjunctive, when introduced by etsi, etiamei, tametsi, or si, like conditional clauses with si.—Thus—

1. The Indicative is used to represent the supposed case as a fact :

Gaudeō, etsi nihil sciō quod gaudeam, I rejoice, though I know no reason why I should rejoice. Plaut.

2. The Present or Perfect Subjunctive, to represent the supposed case as possible :

Etsi nihil habeat in se glōria, tamen virtutem sequitur, though glory may not possess anything in itself, yet it follows virtue. Cic.

3. The Imperfect or Pluperfect Subjunctive, to represent the supposed case as contrary to fact :

Etiamsi mors oppetenda esset, domi māllem, even if death ought to be met, I should prefer to meet it at home. Cic.

III. The Subjunctive, when introduced by licet,² quamvis, ut, nē, cum, or the relative quā :

¹ Concessive clauses bear a close resemblance to conditional clauses both in form and in use. Si optimum est, 'if it is best,' is a condition; etsi optimum est, 'even if (or though) it is best,' is a concession; the one assumes a supposed case, the other admits it. The Subjunctive in concessive clauses is in general best explained in the same way as in conditional clauses; see 507, 1, foot-note 2.

² In origin licet is simply the impersonal verb of the same form, and the Subjunctive Licet irrideat, plūs tamen ratiō valēbit, though he may deride, reason will yet avail more. Cic. Nōn tū possis, quamvis excellās, you would not be able, although you excel. Cic. Ut dēsint virēs, tamen est laudanda voluntās, though the strength fails, still the will should be approved. Ovid. Nē sit summum malum dolor, malum certē est, though pain may not be the greatest evil, it is certainly an evil. Cic. Cum domī divitiāe adfluērent, fuēre tamen civēs, etc., though wealth abounded at home, there were yet citizens, etc. Sall. Absolvite Verrem, qui (cum is) sē fateātur pecūniās cēpisse, acquit Verres, though he confesses (who may confess) that he has accepted money. Cic.

NOTE 1.—Quamquam takes the Subjunctive—

1) When the thought, irrespective of the concessive character of the clause, requires that mood :

Quamquam epulis careat senectūs, though old age may be without its feasts. Cic.

2) Sometimes, even in the best prose, apparently without any special reason :

Quamquam nē id quidem suspiciōnem habuerit, though not even that gave rise to any suspicion. Cic.

3) In poetry and in late prose, the Subjunctive with quamquam is not uncommon. In Tacitus it is the prevailing construction :

Quamquam invicti essent, although they were invincible. Verg. Quamquam plerique ad senectam pervenirent, although very many reached old age. Tac.

NOTE 2.—Quamquam and etsi sometimes have the force of yet, but yet, and yet :

Quamquam quid loquor, and yet why do I speak? Cic. Etsi tibi assentior, and yet I assent to you. Cic.

NOTE 3.—Quamvis in the best prose takes the Subjunctive almost without exception, generally also in Livy and Nepos; but in poetry and in late prose it often admits the Indicative :

Erat dignitāte regiā, quamvis cārebat nōmine, he was of royal dignity, though he was without the name. Nep.

NOTE 4.—Qui and cum, used concessively, generally take the Indicative in Plautus and Terence, and sometimes even in classical prose :

Audēs praedicāre id, domi tē esse nunc qui hic ades, do you dare to assert this, that you are now at home, although you are here present? Plaut. Cum tabulās emunt, tamen nequeunt, though they purchase paintings, they are yet unable. Sall. Cum Sicilia vexata est, tamen, though Sicily was disturbed, yet. Cic.

NOTE 5.—Ut—etc. or ut—ita, 'though—yet' (lit. 'as—so'), involving comparison rather than concession, does not require the Subjunctive :

Ut ā proeliis quāstem habuerant, ita nōn cēsāverant ab opere, though (lit. as) they had had rest from battles, yet (lit. so) they had not ceased from work. Liv.

NOTE 6.—Quamvis and quantumvis, meaning 'as much as you please,' 'however much,' may accompany licet with the Subjunctive :

Nōn possis tū, quantumvis licet excellās, you would not be able, however much you may excel. Cic.

clause which follows, developed from Result (501, I.), is its subject. Thus, in licet irrideat (lit., 'that he may deride is allowed'), irrideat is according to the Latin conception the subject of licet. Quamvis, compounded of quam, 'as,' and vis, 'you wish,' means as you wish; thus, quamvis excellās means literally excel as you wish (i. e., as much as you please). The Subjunctive with quamvis, ut, nē, and qui, is the Subjunctive of Desire; that with cum was developed from the temporal clause; see 521.

VI. MOODS IN CAUSAL CLAUSES.

RULE XLVII.—Moods with quod, quia, quoniam, quandō.¹

516. Causal clauses with quod, quia, quoniam, quandō, generally take—

I. The INDICATIVE to assign a reason positively, on one's own authority:

Quoniam supplicatō dēcrēta est, celebrātōte illōs diēs, since a thanksgiving has been decreed, celebrate those days. Cic. Gaudē quod spectant tē, rejoice that (because) they behold you. Hor.

II. The SUBJUNCTIVE to assign a reason doubtfully, or on another's authority:²

Sōcratēs accūsātus est, quod corrumperet iuventūtem, Socrates was accused, because (on the alleged ground that) he corrupted the youth. Quint. Aristidēs nōnne expulsus est patriā, quod iustus esset, was not Aristides banished because (on the alleged ground that) he was just? Cic.

1. By a special construction, the verb introducing a reason on another's authority is sometimes put in the Infinitive, depending upon a verb of saying or thinking in the Subjunctive:

Quod sē bellum gestūrōs dicerent (= quod bellum gestūrī essent, ut dicēbant), because they were about, as they said, to wage war. Caes.

NOTE.—In the same way the Subjunctive of a verb of saying or thinking may be used in a relative clause to introduce the sentiment of another person:

Ementiendō quae sē audisse dicerent, by reporting falsely what they had heard (what they said they had heard). Sall.

2. Nōn Quō etc.—Nōn quō, nōn quod, nōn quā, rarely nōn quia, also quam quod, etc., are used with the Subjunctive to denote an alleged reason in distinction from the true reason:

Nōn quō habērem quod scriberem, not because (that) I had anything to write. Cic. Nōn quod doleant, not because they are pained. Cic. Quia ne-

¹ Quod and quia are in origin relative pronouns in the neuter. Thus: gaudē quod spectant tē, 'rejoice that (as to that) they behold you.' Quoniam = quom-jam, 'when now,' and quandō = quam-dō (dō = diē), 'on which day,' 'when.' Dō is probably from the same root as dum; see p. 145, foot-note 1.

² Observe that causal clauses with the Indicative state a fact, and at the same time present that fact as a reason or cause, as in the first example, but that causal clauses with the Subjunctive simply assign a reason without asserting any fact. Thus, in the examples under II., quod corrumperet iuventūtem does not state that Socrates corrupted the youth, but simply indicates the charge made against him; nor does quod iustus esset state that Aristides was just, but simply indicates the alleged ground of his banishment. For the development of the Subjunctive in causal clauses, see p. 267, foot-note 8.

quiverat quam quod Ignoraret, because he had been unable, rather than because he did not know. Liv.

NOTE.—Clauses with quod sometimes stand at the beginning of sentences to announce the subject of remark :

Quod me Agamemnonem aemulari putas, falleris, in thinking (as to the fact that you think) that I emulate Agamemnon, you are mistaken. Nep.

RULE XLVIII.—Causal Clauses with cum and qui.

517. Causal clauses with cum and qui generally take the Subjunctive, in writers of the best period :

Necesse est, cum sint dii, animantes esse, since there are gods, it is necessary that there should be living beings. Cic. Cum vita metus plena sit, since life is full of fear. Cic. Quae cum ita sint, perge, since these things are so, proceed. Cic. O vis veritatis, quae (cum ea) se defendat, O the force of truth, since it defends itself. Cic. O fortunata adullescens, qui (cum tu) tuae virtutis Homerum praecōnem inveneris, O fortunate youth, since you (lit., who) have obtained Homer as the herald of your valor. Cic.

1. In early Latin, especially in Plautus and Terence, the Indicative is the prevailing mood in causal clauses with cum and qui, though the Subjunctive is not uncommon with qui.¹

Quomodo facere officium scis tuum, since you know how to do your duty. Plaut. Quomodo hoc non possum, since I have not this power. Ter. Qui advenisti, since you have come. Plaut. Tuas qui virtutes sciam, since I know your virtues. Plaut. Qui neminem videam, since I see no one. Ter.

2. Clauses with either cum or qui admit the Indicative in all writers, when the statement is viewed as a fact :

Habeo senectutis gratiam, quae mihi sermonis aviditatem auxit, I cherish gratitude to old age, which has increased my love of conversation. Cic. Gratu-

¹ Clauses with cum, whether causal or temporal, illustrate the gradual extension of the use of the Subjunctive in subordinate clauses. Originally they took the Indicative, unless the thought irrespective of the causal or temporal character of the clause required the Subjunctive. Thus the Ciceronian sentence, Necesse est, cum sint dii, animantes esse, 'since there are gods, it is necessary that there should be living beings,' would in early Latin have been, Necesse est, cum sunt dii, animantes esse, and would have contained two distinct statements, viz., there are gods, and it is necessary that there should be living beings. But in time the causal clause lost so much of its original force as a separate statement, and became so entirely dependent upon the principal clause, as to be little more than an adverbial modifier of the latter, like the Ablative of Cause (413) in a simple sentence. The causal clause then took the Subjunctive, and the sentence as a whole made but one distinct statement, which may be approximately rendered, in view of (because of) the existence of the gods, it is necessary that there should be living beings. In the same way, temporal clauses with cum sometimes became little more than adverbial modifiers of the principal verb; see 521, II., 1, with foot-note, and 521, II., 2, with foot-note. For a special treatment of these clauses, see Hoffmann, 'Die Construction der lateinischen Zeitpartikeln,' and Lübbert, 'Die Syntax von Quom.'

² See 311, 1, with foot-note 4.

lor tibi, cum tantum valēs, I congratulate you that (in view of the fact that) you have so great influence. Cic.

8. When a conjunction accompanies the relative, the mood varies with the conjunction. Thus—

1) The Subjunctive is generally used with cum, quippe, ut, utpote :

Quae cum ita sint, since these things are so. Cic. Quippe qui blandiatur, since he flatters (as one who flatters). Cic. Ut qui coloni essent, since they were colonists. Cic.

NOTE.—But the Indicative is sometimes used to give prominence to the fact. In Sallust the Indicative is the regular construction after quippe :

Quippe qui regnum invaserat, as he had laid hold of the kingdom. Sall.

2) The Indicative is generally used with quia, quoniam :

Quae quia certa esse non possunt, since these things can not be sure. Cic. Qui quoniam intellegi nōluit, since he did not wish to be understood. Cic.

VII. MOODS IN TEMPORAL CLAUSES.¹

RULE XLIX.—Temporal Clauses with postquam, etc.

518. In temporal clauses with postquam, posteaquam,² ubi, ut, simul atque, etc., 'after,' 'when,' 'as soon as,' the Indicative is used :

Postquam vidit, etc., castra posuit, he pitched his camp, after he saw, etc. Caes. Ubi certiōrēs facti sunt, when they were informed. Caes. Id ut audiit, as he heard this. Nep. Postquam vident, *after they saw.*³ Sall. Postquam nox aderat, when night was at hand. Sall.

NOTE 1.—The tense in these clauses is generally the Perfect or the Historical Present, but sometimes the Descriptive Imperfect ;⁴ see examples above; also § 71, 4.

NOTE 2.—The Pluperfect Indicative is sometimes used—

1) Especially to denote the result of a completed action :

Posteaquam cōsul fuerat, *after he had been consul.*⁵ Cic. Annō tertio postquam profugerat, in the third year after he had fled. Nep.

2) To denote repeated action :⁶

Ut quisque venerat, solēbat, etc., as each one came (lit., had come), he was wont, etc. Cic.

NOTE 3.—Postridis quam is used like postquam :

Postridis quam tū es profectus, on the day after you started. Cic.

1. In Livy and the late historians, the Pluperfect or Imperfect Subjunctive is often used to denote repeated action :⁶

¹ On Temporal Clauses, see Hoffmann, 'Die Construction der lateinischen Zeitpartikeln,' and Lübbert, 'Die Syntax von Quom.'

² Or post quam and postea quam.

³ See § 67, III., with 1.

⁴ See § 69, I.

⁵ And was accordingly at the time a man of consular rank.

⁶ In this case the Imperfect Indicative is generally used in the principal clause, as in the example here given.

Id ubi dixisset, hastam mittēbat, whenever he had said that, he hurled (was wont to hurl) a spear. Liv.

NOTE.—As a rare exception, the Imperfect and Pluperfect Subjunctive occur after postquam or postequam:¹

Posteaquam edificasset ciuitates, after he had built cities. Cic.

2. When the verb is in the second person singular to denote an indefinite subject, you = any one, one, the Subjunctive is generally used in temporal clauses:

Nolunt ubi velis, ubi nolis cupiant, they are unwilling when you wish it (when one wishes it), when you are unwilling they desire it. Ter. Priusquam incipiās, consulto opus est, before you begin, there is need of deliberation. Sall.

RULE L.—Temporal Clauses with dum, etc.²

519. I. Temporal clauses with dum, dōnec, and quoad, in the sense of WHILE, AS LONG AS, take the Indicative:

Haec fēci, dum licuit, I did this while it was allowed. Cic. Quoad vixit, as long as he lived. Nep. Dum lēgēs vigēbant, as long as the laws were in force. Cic. Dōnec eris fēlix, as long as you shall be prosperous. Ov. Quamdū in prōvinciā fuērunt, as long as they were in the province. Cic.

II. Temporal clauses with dum, dōnec, and quoad, in the sense of UNTIL, take—

1. The Indicative, when the action is viewed as an ACTUAL FACT:

Dēliberā hōc, dum ego redeō, consider this until I return. Ter. Dōnec rediit, until he returned. Liv. Quoad renūtiātum est, until it was (actually) announced. Nep.

2. The Subjunctive, when the action is viewed as something DESIRED, PROPOSED, OR CONCEIVED:

Differant, dum dēfervēscat ira, let them defer it till their anger cools (i. e., that it may cool). Cic. Expectās dum dicat, you are waiting till he speaks (i. e., that he may speak). Cic. Ea continēbis quoad tē videam, you will keep them till I see you. Cic.

NOTE 1.—In the poets and the historians, dum is sometimes used with the Imperfect Subjunctive, and dōnec with the Imperfect and Pluperfect, like cum in narration:³

Dum ea gererentur, bellum concitatur, while these things were in progress (were done), a war was commenced. Liv. Nihil trepidābant dōnec ponte agerentur, they did not fear at all while they were driven on the bridge. Liv. Dōnec missi essent, until they had been sent. Liv.

NOTE 2.—Dōnec, in Tacitus, generally takes the Subjunctive:

² See p. 291, foot-note 1.

³ See p. 295, foot-note 1.

Rhenus servat violentiam cursûs, donec Oceanô miscetûr, the Rhine preserves the rapidity of its current till it mingles with the ocean. Tac.

RULE LL.—Temporal Clauses with antequam and priusquam.

520. In temporal clauses with antequam and *priusquam*¹—

I. Any tense except the Imperfect and the Pluperfect is put—

1. In the Indicative, when the action is viewed as an ACTUAL FACT :

Priusquam lûcet, adsunt, they are present before it is light. Cic. Antequam in Siciliam vēit, before I came into Sicily. Cic. Antequam cōgnōverō,² before I shall have ascertained. Cic. Nec prius respōxi quam vēimus, nor did I look back until we arrived. Verg.

2. In the Subjunctive,³ when the action is viewed as SOMETHING DESIRED, PROPOSED, OR CONCEIVED :

Antequam dē rē publicā dicam, expōnam cōnsilium, I will set forth my plan before I (can) speak of the republic (i. e., preparatory to speaking of the republic).⁴ Cic. Nōn prius ducēs dimittunt, quam¹ sit concēssum, they did not dismiss the leaders till it was granted. Caes. Priusquam incipiās, cōsultō opus est, before you begin there is need of deliberation (i. e., as preparatory to beginning).⁵ Sall. Tempestās minātūr, antequam surgat, the tempest threatens, before it rises. Sen. Collem, priusquam sentiātūr, commūnit, *he fortified the hill before it was (could be) perceived.*⁶ Caes.

II. The Imperfect and the Pluperfect are put in the Subjunctive :⁷

¹ Often written ante quam and prius quam, sometimes with intervening words between ante or prius and quam. See also p. 291, foot-note 1.

² The Future is used only in early Latin, as in Plautus and Cato.

³ Remember that the Future is supplied in the Subjunctive by the Present; see 496.

⁴ Here the temporal clause involves purpose as well as time. Antequam dicam is nearly equivalent to ut postea dicam: 'I will set forth my views, that I may afterward speak of the republic.'

⁵ Remember also that in temporal clauses the second person singular with an indefinite subject, you = any one, one, is generally in the Subjunctive; see 512, 2.

⁶ Potential Subjunctive; see 486, III.

⁷ The Subjunctive in the Imperfect and Pluperfect tenses is not always to be referred to the same principle. Sometimes, like the Subjunctive after cum, it is best explained as the Subjunctive of Purpose, as in the first example, and sometimes like Subjunctive of the historical tenses after cum; see p. 295, foot-note 1.

Nōn prius ēgressus est quam rēx eum in fidem reciperet, he did not withdraw until the king took him under his protection. Nep. Priusquam peteret cōsulātum, insānit, he was insane before he sought the consulship. Liv. Prius visus est Caesar, quam fama perferrētur, Caesar appeared before any tidings were brought. Caes. Antequam urbem caperent, before they took the city. Liv. Priusquam dē meō adventū audire potuissent, in Macedoniam perrexi, before they were able to hear of my approach, I went into Macedonia. Cic. Paucis ante diēbus, quam Syracūsae caperentur, a few days before Syracuse was taken. Liv.

NOTE 1.—When the principal clause is negative and contains an historical tense, the temporal clause generally takes the Perfect Indicative, as in the last example under I., 1; but it sometimes takes the Subjunctive, as in the first example under II.

NOTE 2.—Pridē quam takes the same moods as priusquam :

Pridē quam scripsi, the day before I wrote. Cic. Pridē quam periret, somniavit, he had a dream on the day before he died. Suet.

NOTE 3.—For the Subjunctive of the second person with an indefinite subject, see §18, 2.

RULE LII.—Temporal Clauses with cum.

521. In temporal clauses with cum '—

I. Any tense except the Imperfect and the Pluperfect is put in the Indicative :

Cum verba faciunt, mājores suos extollunt, when they speak, they extol their ancestors. Sall. Cum quiescunt, probant, while they are silent they approve. Cic. Librōs, cum est otium, legere solē, when there is leisure, I am wont to read books. Cic. Ad tē scribam, cum plūs otii nactus erō, I shall write to you when I shall have obtained more leisure. Cic. Omnia sunt incerta cum a jūre discēssum est, all things are uncertain when one has departed from the right.¹ Cic.

II. The Imperfect and the Pluperfect are put—

1. In the Indicative, when the temporal clause ASSERTS AN HISTORICAL FACT :

Pāruit cum necesse erat, he obeyed when it was necessary.² Cic. Nōndum profectus erat, cum haec gerēbantur, he had not yet started when these things took place. Liv. Tum cum res mājnas permulti amiserant, Rōmae fidēs concidit, then, when many had lost great fortunes, credit fell at Rome. Cic. Cum quaequam cohors impetum fēcerat, hostēs refugiēbant, whenever any cohort made (had made) an attack, the enemy retreated. Caes.

¹ See p. 290, foot-note 1, with the works of Hoffmann and Lübbert there mentioned.

² Discēssum est is an Impersonal Passive, a departure has been made; see §301, 1.

³ Here the temporal clause not only defines the time of pāruit, but also makes a distinct and separate statement, viz., it was necessary; see p. 295, foot-note 1; also, p. 290, foot-note 1.

2. In the Subjunctive, when the temporal clause simply DEFINES THE TIME of the principal action :¹

Cum epistolam complicārem, tabellārī vērunt, while I was folding the letter (i. e., during the act), the postmen came.¹ Cic. Cum ex Aegyptō reverteretur, decēssit, he died while he was returning (during his return) from Egypt. Nep. Cum dimicāret, occisus est, when he engaged in battle, he was slain. Nep. Zēnōnem, cum Athēnīs essem, audiēbam frequenter, I often heard Zeno when I was at Athens. Cic. Cum tridui viam perfēcisset, nūtiātum est, etc., when he had accomplished a journey of three days, it was announced, etc. Caes. Caesarī cum id nūtiātum esset, matūrāt ab urbe proficisci, when this was (had been) announced to Caesar, he hastened to set out from the city. Caes.

1) Cum with the force of a relative after tempus, adās, and the like, takes—

(1) Sometimes the Indicative, to state a fact :

Fuit tempus, cum hominēs vagābantur, there was a time when men led a wandering life. Cic.

NOTE.—Cum is sometimes thus used without tempus, etc. :

Fuit cum hōc dici poterat, there was a time when this could be said. Liv.

(2) Generally the Subjunctive, to characterize the period :²

Id saeculum cum plēna Graecia poētārum esset, that age when (such that) Greece was full of poets. Cic. Erit tempus, cum dēsiderēs, the time will come, when you will desire. Cic.

NOTE 1.—Cum is sometimes thus used without tempus, etc. :

Fuit cum arbitrarer, there was a time when I thought. Cic.

NOTE 2.—Memini cum, 'I remember when,' generally takes the Indicative, but audīo cum, vidēo cum, and animadvertō cum, generally the Subjunctive :

Memini cum mihi dācipere vidēbare, I remember when you seemed to me to be unwise. Cic. Audīvi cum diceret, I heard him say (lit., when he said). Cic.

2) Cum, meaning from the time when, since, takes the Indicative :

Centum annī sunt, cum dictātor fuit, it is one hundred years since he was dictator. Cic.

NOTE 1.—Cum . . . tum, in the sense of 'not only . . . but also,' 'both . . . and,' generally takes the Indicative in both clauses, but in the sense of 'though . . . yet,' the Subjunctive in the first clause and the Indicative in the second :

Cum antea distinēbar, tum hōc tempore distineor, not only was I occupied before,

¹ In the Imperfect and Pluperfect tenses the choice of mood often depends not so much upon the nature of the thought, as upon the intention and feeling of the writer at the moment. If he wishes to assert that the action of the temporal clause is an historical fact, he uses the Indicative; but if he introduces it for the sole purpose of defining the time of the principal action, he uses the Subjunctive. Thus, cum epistolam complicārem does not assert that I folded the letter, but, assuming that as admitted, it makes use of it in defining the time of vērunt. See also foot-note under 1 above; also p. 290, foot-note 1.

² Like the Subjunctive in relative clauses after indefinite antecedents; see 503, * but I am also occupied now. Cic. Quae cum sint gravis, tum illud acerbissimum est, though these things are severe, that is the most grievous. Cic.

NOTE 2.—For cum in Causal clauses, see 517.

NOTE 3.—For cum in Concessive clauses, see 515, III.

VIII. INDIRECT DISCOURSE—Ōrātiō Obliqua.

Moods and Tenses in Indirect Discourse.

522. When a writer or speaker expresses thoughts, whether his own or those of another, in any other form than in the original words of the author, he is said to use the Indirect Discourse—Ōrātiō Obliqua:¹

Platōnem ferunt in Italiam vēnisse, they say that Plato came into Italy. Cic. Respondēt tē dolōrem ferre moderatē, I reply that you bear the affliction with moderation. Cic. Ūtilem arbitror esse scientiam, I think that knowledge is useful. Cic.

1. In distinction from the INDIRECT DISCOURSE—Ōrātiō Obliqua, the original words of the author are said to be in the DIRECT DISCOURSE—Ōrātiō Recta.

2. Words quoted without change belong to the DIRECT DISCOURSE:

Rēx 'duumvīrōs' inquit 'secundum lēgem faciō,' the king said, 'I appoint duumvirs according to law.' Liv.

RULE LIII.—Moods in Principal Clauses.

523. The principal clauses of the DIRECT DISCOURSE on becoming INDIRECT take the Infinitive or Subjunctive as follows:

I. When DECLARATIVE, they take the Infinitive with a Subject Accusative.

Dicēbat animōs esse divīnōs, he was wont to say that souls are divine. Cic. Platōnem Tarentum vēnisse reperīō, I find that Plato came to Tarentum. Cic. Catō mirārī sē aīēbat, Cato was wont to say that he wondered. Cic. Hippīas glōriātus est, annulum sē suā manū cōnfēcisse,² Hippias boasted that he had made the ring with his own hand. Cic.

NOTE.—The verb on which the Infinitive depends is often omitted, or only implied in some preceding verb or expression; especially after the Subjunctive of Purpose:

¹ Thus, in the first example, Platōnem in Italiam vēnisse is in the indirect discourse; in the direct, i. e., in the original words of those who made the statement, it would be: Platō in Italiam vēnit.

² In the direct discourse these examples would read—(1) animi sunt divini, (2) Platō Tarentum vēnit, (3) miror, and (4) annulum meā manū cōnfēcī. Observe that the pronominal subjects implied in miror and cōnfēcī are expressed with the Infinitive, as mirārī sē, sē cōnfēcīssē. But the subject is sometimes omitted when it can be readily supplied; see second example under II, 2, below.

Pythia praecepit ut Miltiadem imperatorem sumerent; incepta praepera futura, Pythia commanded that they should take Miltiades as their commander, (telling them) that their efforts would be successful. Nep.

II. When INTERROGATIVE, they take—

1. Generally the Subjunctive:

Ad postulata Caesaris respondit, quid sibi vellet, cur venisset,¹ to the demands of Caesar he replied, what did he wish, why did he come? Caes.

NOTE.—Deliberative questions retain the Subjunctive from the direct discourse:

In spem venerat se posse, etc.; cur fortunam periclitaretur,¹ he hoped (had come into hope) that he was able, etc.; why should he try fortune? Caes.

2. Sometimes the Infinitive with a Subject Accusative, as in rhetorical questions:²

Docēbant rem esse testimoniū, etc.; quid esse levius, etc., they showed that the fact was a proof (for a proof), etc.; what was more inconsiderate, etc.? Caes. Respondit, num memoriam depōnere posse,³ he replied, could he lay aside the recollection? Caes.

III. When IMPERATIVE,⁴ they take the Subjunctive:

Scībit Labiēnō cum legiōne veniat, he writes to Labienus to come (that he should come) with a legion. Caes. Redditur responsum, castris se tenerent, the reply was returned that they should keep themselves in camp. Liv. Milites certiores facit, se reficerent, he directed the soldiers to refresh themselves. Caes. Orabant ut sibi auxilium ferret, they prayed that he would bring them help. Caes. Nuntius venit, ne dubitaret, a message came that he should not hesitate. Nep. Cohortatus est, ne perturbarentur,⁵ he exhorted them not to be alarmed. Caes.

NOTE.—An affirmative command takes the Subjunctive without ut, except after verbs of wishing and asking, but a negative command takes the Subjunctive with ne; see examples.

¹ In the direct discourse these examples would read—(1) quid tibi vis? cur venis? and (2) cur periclitor?

² A question used for rhetorical effect in place of an assertion is called a Rhetorical Question, as num potest, 'can he?' = non potest, 'he can not'; quid est turpius, 'what is baser?' = nihil est turpius, 'nothing is baser.' Here belong many questions which in the direct form have the verb in the first or in the third person. As such questions are equivalent to declarative sentences, they take the same construction, the Infinitive with its subject.

³ Direct discourse—(1) quid est levius = nihil est levius, and (2) num memoriam depōnere possum = memoriam depōnere non possum.

⁴ Imperative sentences include those sentences which take the Subjunctives of Desire; see 484.

⁵ In the direct discourse these examples would read—(1) cum legiōne veni, (2) castris vos tenete, (3) vos reficite, (4) vobis auxilium fer, (5) non dubitare, and (6) ne perturbati sitis.

RULE LIV.—Moods in Subordinate Clauses.

524. The subordinate clauses of the DIRECT DISCOURSE on becoming INDIRECT take the Subjunctive:

Respondit sē id quod in Nervii fecisset facturū,¹ he replied that he would do what he had done in the case of the Nervii. Caes. Iippias gloriatus est, annulum quem haberet sē suā manū cōfēcisse,² Hippias boasted that he had made with his own hand the ring which he wore. Cic.

1. The Infinitive with Subject Accusative is sometimes used. Thus—

1) In clauses introduced by the relative pronoun, or by relative adverbs, ubi, unde, quā, etc., when they have the force of principal clauses (453):

Ad eum dēfertur, esse civem Rōmānū qui quereretur, quem (= et eum) aservātum esse, it was reported to him that there was a Roman citizen who made a complaint, and that he had been placed under guard. Cic. Tē suspicor eisdem, quibus mē ipsum, commoveri, I suspect that you are moved by the same things as I. Cic.

2) In clauses introduced by cum, quam, quamquam, quia, and some other conjunctions, especially in Livy and Tacitus:

Num putātis, dixisse Antōnium minācius quam facturū fuisse, do you think Antony spoke more threateningly than he would have acted? Cic. Dicit, sē moenibus inclūsos tenere eos, quia per agrōs vagari, he says that he keeps them shut up within the walls, because (otherwise) they would wander through the fields. Liv. See also 535, I., 5 and 6.

2. The Indicative is used—

1) In parenthetical and explanatory clauses introduced into the Indirect Discourse without strictly forming a part of it:

Referunt silvam esse, quae appellatur Bacēnia,³ they report that there is a forest which is called Bacenia. Caes. Audiō Gellium philosophos qui tunc erant convocasse, I hear that Gellius called together the philosophers of that day (lit., who then were). Cic.

2) Sometimes in clauses not parenthetical, to give prominence to the fact stated, especially in relative and temporal clauses:

Certior factus est ex eā parte vicī, quam Gallis concesserat, omnēs discessisse, he was informed that all had withdrawn from that part of the village which he had assigned to the Gauls. Caes. Dicunt illum diem clarissimum fuisse cum domum redūctus est a patribus, they say that the day when he was conducted home by the fathers was the most illustrious. Cic.

525. TENSES in the INDIRECT DISCOURSE generally conform to the ordinary rules for the use of tenses in the Subjunctive and Infinitive;⁴ but notice the following special points:

² Direct, annulum quem habeo meā manū cōfēcī.

³ These clauses, quae appellatur Bacēnia and qui tunc erant, are not strictly parts of the general report, but explanations added by the narrator.

⁴ See 490-496 and 537.

1. The Present and Perfect may be used even after an historical tense, to impart a more lively effect to the narrative :

Caesar respondit, si obsidēs sibi dentur, sese pacem esse facturum, Caesar replied, that if hostages should be given him, he would make peace. Caes. Exitus fuit orationis, neque ullōs vacāre agrōs, qui dari possint, the close of the oration was, that there were (are) not any lands unoccupied which could (can) be given. Caes.

2. The Future Perfect in a subordinate clause of the direct discourse is changed in the indirect into the Perfect Subjunctive after a principal tense, and into the Pluperfect Subjunctive after an historical tense :

Agunt ut dimicent ; ibi imperium fore, unde victōria fuerit, they arrange that they shall fight ; that the sovereignty shall be on the side which shall win the victory (whence the victory may have been). Liv. Appārebāt regnātūrum qui vicisset, it was evident that he would be king who should conquer. Liv.

NOTE.—For Tenses in Conditional Sentences in Indirect Discourse, see 527.

Pronouns and Persons in Indirect Discourse.

526. In passing from the DIRECT DISCOURSE to the INDIRECT, pronouns of the first and second persons are generally changed to pronouns of the third person,¹ and the first and second persons of verbs are generally changed to the third person :

Glōriatus est, annulum se suā manū cōfēcisse, he boasted that he had made the ring with his own hand. Cic. Redditur responsum, castris se tenerent, the reply was returned that they should keep themselves in camp. Liv. Respondit, si obsidēs ab his sibi dentur, sese cum his pacem esse facturum, he replied that if hostages should be given to him by them, he would make peace with them. Caes.

Conditional Sentences in Indirect Discourse.

527. Conditional sentences, in passing from the DIRECT DISCOURSE to the INDIRECT, undergo the following changes :

¹ In the direct discourse—(1) ibi imperium erit, unde victōria fuerit, and (2) regnabit qui vicierit.

² Thus—(1) ego is changed to eui, sibi, etc., or to ipse; meus and noster to eius; (2) tū to is or ille, sometimes to eui, etc.; tuis and vestris to eius or to the Genitive of is; and (3) hic and iste to ille. But the pronoun of the first person may of course be used in the indirect discourse in reference to the reporter or author, and the pronoun of the second person in reference to the person addressed: Adfirmavi quidvis mihi perpassurum. I asserted that I would endure anything. Cic. Respondes tū dolorem ferre moderatē, I reply that you bear the affliction with moderation. Cic.

³ Direct, annulum ego meā manū cōfecit. Ego becomes ei, and meā, eui.

⁴ Direct, castris vos tenite. Vos becomes ei, and tenite, tenerent.

⁵ Direct, si obsidēs a vobis mihi dabuntur, vobiscum pacem faciam. A vobis becomes ab his; mihi becomes sibi; vobiscum, cum his; and the implied subject of faciam becomes sese, the subject of esse facturum.

I. In the FIRST FORM, the Indicative is changed to the Subjunctive in the condition and to the Infinitive in the conclusion :

Respondit, si quid Caesar se velit, illum ad se venire oportere,¹ he replied, if Caesar wished anything of him, he ought to come to him. Caes.

NOTE.—In all forms of conditional sentences the conclusion, when imperative, and generally when interrogative, takes the Subjunctive according to 523 :

Respondērunt, si nōn aequum existimāret, etc., cūr postulāret,² etc., they replied, if he did not think it fair, etc., why did he demand, etc. Caes. Eum certiorē fecērunt, si suās rēs manēre vellet, Alcibiadem persequeretur,³ they informed him that if he wished his institutions to be permanent, he should take measures against Alcibiades. Nep. Dic quidnam facturus fueris, si cēnsor fuissēs,⁴ say what you would have done, if you had been censor. Liv.

II. In the SECOND FORM, the Present or Perfect Subjunctive in the condition remains unchanged after a principal tense, but may be changed⁵ to the Imperfect or Pluperfect after an historical tense, and in the conclusion it is changed to the Future Infinitive :

Respondit, si stipendium remittatur, libenter sese recusaturum populi Rōmāni amicitiam,⁶ he replied that if the tribute should be remitted, he would gladly renounce the friendship of the Roman people. Caes.

NOTE.—See note under I.

III. In the THIRD FORM, the Imperfect or Pluperfect Subjunctive remains unchanged in the condition, regardless of the tense of the principal verb, but in the conclusion it is changed to the Periphrastic Infinitive in -rus fuisse, rarely to that in -rus esse :

Respondit, si quid ipsi a Caesare opus esset, sese ad eum venturum fuisse,⁷ he replied that if he wanted anything of Caesar, he would have come to him. Caes. Clamitabat, si ille adesset, venturos esse,⁸ he cried out that they would come if he were present. Caes.

NOTE 1.—In the conclusion, the periphrastic form futurum fuisse ut with the Subjunctive is used in the Passive voice, and sometimes in the Active :

Nisi nūntii essent allati, existimābant futurum fuisse ut oppidum amitteretur,⁹ they thought that the town would have been lost, if tidings had not been brought. Caes.

NOTE 2.—In conditional sentences with the Imperfect or Pluperfect Subjunctive in the condition, and with an historical tense of the Indicative in the conclusion—

¹ Direct, si quid Caesar me vult, illum ad me venire oportet. For change of pronouns see 526, and for the tense of velit see 525, 1.

² Direct, si nōn aequum existimās, cūr postulas?

³ Direct, si tuās rēs manēre vis, Alcibiadem persequere. Notice change in the pronoun and in the person of the verb; see 526.

⁴ Direct, quidnam fecissēs (or facturus fuissēs), si cēnsor fuissēs.

⁵ But is often retained unchanged according to 525, 1.

⁶ Direct, si stipendium remittatur, libenter recusem populi Rōmāni amicitiam, or si stipendium remittitur, libenter recusabo populi Rōmāni amicitiam. Observe that these two forms become identical in the indirect discourse.

⁷ Direct—(1) si quid mihi a Caesare opus esset, ad eum venissem; (2) si ille adesset, venirent; and (3) nisi nūntii essent allati, oppidum amissum esset.

1) The Indicative is generally changed to the Perfect Infinitive :

*Memento istam dignitatem tū nōn potuisse cōsequi, nisi meis cōsiliis pāruissēs,*¹ remember that you would not have been able to attain that dignity, if you had not followed my counsels. Cic.

2) The Indicative is changed to the Perfect Subjunctive if the context requires that mood :

*Quis dubitat quin si Saguntinis tulissēmus operam, āversūri bellum fuerīmus,*¹ who doubts that we should have averted the war, if we had carried aid to the Saguntines? Liv. *Scimus quid, si vixisset, factūrus fuerit,*¹ we know what he would have done, if he had lived. Liv.

Indirect Clauses.

528. The indirect discourse in its widest application includes—

1. Subordinate clauses containing statements made on the authority of any other person than the writer ; see 516 :

Omnēs librōs quōs frāter suus reliquisset mihi dōnāvit, *he gave to me all the books which his brother had left.*² Cic.

2. Indirect questions ; see 529, I.

Norm.—A clause which involves a question without directly asking it is called an Indirect or Dependent Question :

Quaesivit salvusne esset clipeus, *he asked whether his shield was safe.*³ Cic.

3. Many subordinate clauses dependent upon an Infinitive or upon a Subjunctive ; see 529, II.

RULE LV.—Moods in Indirect Clauses.

529. The Subjunctive is used—

I. In indirect questions :

Quaeritur, cūr dōctissimī hominēs dissentiant, it is a question, why the most learned men disagree. Cic. Quaesierās, nōne putārem, you had asked whether I did not think. Cic. Quālis sit animus, animus nescit, the soul knows not what the soul is. Cic. Quid diēs ferat incertum est, what a day will bring forth is uncertain. Cic. Quaeritur quid futurum sit, what will be, is the question. Cic. Quaerit quānam ēventus, si foret bellātum, futurus fuerit, he asks what would have been the result if war had been waged. Liv. Dubitō num dēbeam, I doubt whether I ought. Plin. Incerta feror si Jūpiter velit, I am rendered uncertain whether Jupiter wishes. Verg. Ut tē oblectēs scire cupiō, I wish to know how you amuse yourself. Cic. Difficile

² That is, which he said his brother had left.

³ Here no question is directly asked. We have simply the statement, 'he asked whether his shield was safe,' but this statement involves the question, salvusne est clipeus, 'is my shield safe?'

dictū est utrum timuerint an dillexerint, it is difficult to say whether they feared or loved. Cic.

II. Often in clauses dependent upon an Infinitive or upon another Subjunctive:

Nihil indignius est quam eum qui culpā careat supplicio nōn carere, nothing is more shameful than that he who is FREE from fault should not be exempt from punishment. Cic. Utrum difficilius esset negare tibi an efficere id quod rogāre diū dubitavi, whether it would be more difficult to refuse your request or to do that which YOU ASK, I have long doubted. Cic. Recordatione nostrae amicitiae sic fruor ut beatē vixisse videar quia cum Scipione vixerim, I so enjoy the recollection of our friendship that I seem to have lived happily because I HAVE LIVED with Scipio. Cic. Naevium rogat ut cūret quod dixisset, he asked Naevius to attend to that which HE HAD MENTIONED. Cic. Vereor nē, dum minuere velim labōrem, augeam, I fear that, while I WISH to diminish the labor, I shall increase it. Cic.

NOTE 1.—In clauses dependent upon an Infinitive or upon a Subjunctive, observe—

1) That the Subjunctive is used when the clauses are essential to the general thought of the sentence, as in the examples just given.

2) That the Indicative is used when the clauses are in a measure parenthetical, and when they give special prominence to the fact stated:

Militēs misit, ut eos qui fugerant persequerentur, he sent soldiers to pursue those who had fled (i. e., the fugitives). Caes. Tanta vis probitatis est, ut eam, vel in his quos nunquam vidimus, diligamus, such is the force of integrity that we love it even in those whom we have never seen. Cic.

NOTE 2.—In clauses introduced by dum, the Indicative is very common, especially in the poets and historians:

Fuere qui, dum dubitat Scaevinus, hortarentur Pisonem, there were those who exhorted Piso, while Scaevinus hesitated. Tac. See also 467, 4.

1. Indirect or dependent questions, like those not dependent (351, 1), are introduced by interrogative pronouns or other interrogative words, as quis, qui, quid, etc.; quid, cūr, nē, nōne, num; rarely by si, 'whether,' and ut, 'how'; see examples above.

NOTE 1.—Si is sometimes best rendered to see whether, to see if, to try if, etc.

Tē adeunt, si quid vells, they come to you to see whether you wish anything. Cic.

NOTE 2.—In the poets si is sometimes similarly used with the Indicative:

Inspece si possum donāta repōnere, examine me to see whether I am able to restore your gifts. Hor.

NOTE 3.—In indirect questions num does not necessarily imply negation.

NOTE 4.—An indirect question may readily be changed to a direct or independent question.¹

2. An Accusative, referring to the same person or thing as the subject of the question, is sometimes, especially in poetry, inserted after the principal verb:

¹ Thus the direct question involved in the first example is, cūr doctissimi hominēs dissentiunt, 'why do the most learned men disagree?' In the second, nōne pulle, 'do you not think?'

Ego illum nesciō qui fuerit, I do not know (him) who he was. Ter. Dic hominem qui sit, tell who the man is. Plaut.

3. Indirect double questions are generally introduced by the same interrogative particles as those which are direct (353). Thus—

1) They generally take utrum or -ne in the first member and an in the second :

Quaeritur virtūs suamne propter dignitatem an propter fructūs aliquōs expetatur, it is asked whether virtue is sought for its own worth, or for certain advantages. Cic.

2) But they sometimes omit the particle in the first member, and take in the second an or -ne in the sense of or, and neque or an nōn in the sense of or not :

Quaeritur naturā an doctrinā possit effici virtūs, it is asked whether virtue can be secured by nature, or by education. Cic. Sapientia beatōs efficiat necne quaestio est, whether or not wisdom makes men happy is a question. Cic.

NOTE 1.—Other forms, as -ne . . . -ne, an . . . an, are rare or poetic :

Qui teneant, hominēsne ferae, quaerere, to ascertain who inhabit them, whether men or beasts. Verg.

NOTE 2.—An, in the sense of whether not, implying an affirmative, is used after verbs and expressions of doubt and uncertainty : dubitō an, nesciō an, haud sciō an, 'I doubt whether not'; 'I know not whether not' = 'I am inclined to think'; dubium est an, incertum est an, 'it is uncertain whether not' = 'it is probable' :

Dubitō an Thrasýbulum primum omnium pōnam, I doubt whether I should not place Thrasýbulus first of all (i. e., I am inclined to think I should). Nep.

NOTE 3.—An sometimes seems to have the force of aut :

Cum Simōnides, an quis aliús,¹ polliceretur, when Simonides or some other one promised. Cic.

4. The Subjunctive is put in the periphrastic form in the indirect question (1) when it represents a periphrastic form in the direct question, and (2) generally, not always, when it represents a Future Indicative; see the fifth and sixth examples under 529, I.

5. INDIRECT QUESTIONS must be carefully distinguished—

1) From clauses introduced by relative pronouns or relative adverbs. These always have an antecedent or correlative expressed or understood, and are never, as a whole, the subject or object of a verb, while indirect questions are generally so used :

Dicam quod sentiō (relative clause), *I will tell that which (id quod) I think.*² Cic. Dicam quid intellegam (indirect question), I will tell what I know. Cic. Quaeramus ubi malefícium est, let us seek there (ibi) where the crime is. Cic.

2) From direct questions and exclamations :

¹ Some critics treat an quis aliús as a direct question inserted parenthetically : or was it some other one ?

² In the first and third examples, quod sentiō and ubi . . . est are not questions, but relative clauses; id is understood as the antecedent of quod, and ibi as the antecedent or correlative of ubi; but in the second example, quid intellegam is an indirect question and the object of dicam : I will tell (what?) what I know (i. e., will answer that question).

Quid agendum est? nesciō, *what is to be done? I know not.*¹ Cic. Vidē! quam conversa res est, see! how changed is the case. Cic.

8) From clauses introduced by nesciō quis = quidam,² 'some one,' nesciō quomodo = quidammodo, 'in some way,' mirum quantum, 'wonderfully much,' 'wonderfully,' etc. These take the Indicative:

Nesciō quid animus praesāgit, the mind forebodes, I know not what. Ter. Id mirum quantum profuit, this profited, it is wonderful how much (i. e., it wonderfully profited). Liv.

6. PERSONAL CONSTRUCTION.—Instead of an impersonal verb with an indirect question as subject, the personal construction is sometimes used, as follows:

Perspicuntur quam sint levēs, it is seen how inconstant they are! Cic.

7. The INDICATIVE IN INDIRECT QUESTIONS is sometimes used in early Latin and in the poets, especially in Plautus and Terence:

Si memorāre velim, quam fidēli animō fui, possum, if I should wish to mention how much fidelity I showed, I am able. Ter.

530. The directions already given for converting the DIRECT DISCOURSE, Oratiō Recta, into the INDIRECT, Oratiō Obliqua, are further illustrated in the following passage from Caesar:

DIRECT DISCOURSE.

Caesarem obsecrāre coepit: 'Nē quid gravior in frātre statueris; sciō illa esse vērā, nec quiequam ex eo plūs quam ego doloris capit, propterea quod cum ipse grātiā plurimum domi atque in reliquā Galliā, ille minimum propter adulescentiam poterat, per mē crevit; quibus opibus ac nervis nō solum ad minuendam grātiā, sed paene ad perniciem meam utitur; ego tamen et amorē fraternō et existimātiōne vulgi commoveor. Quod si quid ēi & is gravior acciderit, cum ipse hunc locum amicitiae apud is teneam, nēmō existimābit, nō meā voluntāte factum; quā ex rē tōtius Galliae animi & mē avertentur.'

INDIRECT DISCOURSE.

Caesarem obsecrāre coepit, nē quid gravior in frātre statueret; scire se illa esse vērā, nec quemquam ex eo plūs quam se doloris capere, propterea quod cum ipse grātiā plurimum domi atque in reliquā Galliā, ille minimum propter adulescentiam posset, per se crevisset; quibus opibus ac nervis nō solum ad minuendam grātiā, sed paene ad perniciem eam uteretur; se tamen et amorē fraternō et existimātiōne vulgi commoveret. Quod si quid ēi & Caesare gravior accidisset, cum ipse eum locum amicitiae apud eum tenderet, nēmīnem existimāturum, nō eā voluntāte factum; quā ex rē futurum uti tōtius Galliae animi & se avertentur. Caes., B. G., I., 20.

¹ Quid agendum est nesciō, 'I know not what is to be done,' would be an indirect question.

² See 191, note.

³ Praesāgit does not depend upon nesciō, but is entirely independent. Nesciō quid animus praesāgit would be an indirect question, and would mean, I know not what the mind forebodes.

⁴ Lit., they are seen. Observe that this personal construction corresponds to the Active, perspicuntur eōs quam sint levēs, 'they perceive (them) how inconstant they are.' See also ego illum nesciō quī fuerit, 529, 2.

NOTE.—In this illustration observe the following points:

1) That the Indicatives in the principal clauses of the direct discourse is changed to the corresponding tense of the Infinitives in the indirect,¹ and that the Subjunctive, statueris, denoting incomplete action, is changed to the Imperfect Subjunctive after the historical tense, cepit.

2) That in the subordinate clauses the verbs denoting incomplete action are changed to the Imperfect Subjunctive, while those denoting completed action are changed to the Pluperfect Subjunctive.²

3) That scitō becomes scire sē (i. e., that the subject of the Infinitive is generally expressed).

4) That the pronouns of the first person are changed to reflexives; and that those of the second person are changed to te.³

531. The process by which the INDIRECT DISCOURSE, Oratio Obliqua, is changed to the DIRECT, Oratio Recta, is illustrated in the following passages from Caesar:

INDIRECT DISCOURSE.

Respondit, trānsisse Rhēnum esse nōn suā sponte, sed rogātum et arcessitum a Gallis. Sē prius in Galliam venisse quam populum Rōmānum. Quid sibi vellet? Cūr in eius possessionēs veniret? Caes., B. G., I., 44.

Ita respondit, eō sibi minus dubitationis dari quod eās rēs quās légati Helvétii commemorāssent memoriā teneret. Quod si veteris contumēliae oblivisci vellet, num etiam recentium injuriarum memoriā dēponere pōset? Cum ea ita sint, tamen, si obsides ab eis sibi dentur, esse cum eis pācem esse factūrum. Caes., B. G., I., 14.

DIRECT DISCOURSE.

Respondit: 'Trānsi Rhēnum nōn meā sponte, sed rogātus et arcessitus a Gallis. Ego prius in Galliam veni quam populus Rōmānus. Quid tibi vis? Cūr in meās possessionēs venis?'

Ita respondit: 'Eō mihi minus dubitationis datur quod eās rēs quās vidē, légati Helvétii, commemorāvissetis, memoriā tenetis. Quod si veteris contumēliae oblivisci volō, num etiam recentium injuriarum memoriā dēponere possum? Cum haec ita sint, tamen, si obsides a vobis mihi dabuntur, vobiscum pācem faciam.'

NOTE.—In these illustrations observe the following points:

1) That in the principal clauses (1) the Infinitives with sē or esse, expressed or understood, are changed to the first person of the Indicatives; ⁴ (2) other Infinitives are also changed to the Indicatives, but the person is determined by the context; ⁵ and (3)

² Thus poterat becomes pōset; utitur, utitur; teneam, teneret; but orōit becomes crēderet; acciderit, accidisset.

³ Thus (1) ego is changed to sē; mē to sē; meam to suam; meū to suū; and (2) tū to eum; hunc to eum.

⁴ Thus trānsisse esse is changed to trānsi; sē venisse to ego veni; esse esse factūrum to faciam; pōset, with sē understood, possum.

⁵ Thus minus dari becomes minus datur; but if the subject of the Infinitive is of the second person, the Indicative will also be of that person. Respondet tē dolorem ferre moderātē thus becomes respondet, 'dolorem moderātē fere;' see p. 299, footnote 2.

Subjunctives are changed to the Indicatives after interrogative words,¹ and to the Imperatives in other situations.²

2) That in the subordinate clauses the Subjunctives, unless required by the thought irrespective of the indirect discourse, is changed to the Indicatives.³

3) That the reflexive pronouns se, sibi, etc., and suis are changed (1) generally to pronouns of the first person, but (2) sometimes to those of the second person.⁴

4) That te and ille are (1) generally changed to tū or ille, but (2) sometimes retained.⁵

5) That a noun referring to the person or persons addressed may be put in the Vocative preceded by tū or o.⁶

SECTION VII.

INFINITIVE.—SUBSTANTIVE CLAUSES.

I. INFINITIVE.

532. The Infinitive is a verbal noun with special characteristics. Like verbs, it has voice and tense, takes adverbial modifiers, and governs oblique cases.⁷

RULE LVI.—Infinitive.

533. Many verbs admit an Infinitive to complete or qualify their meaning:

Audeō dicere, I dare say (I venture to say). Cic. Haec vitāre cupimus, we desire to avoid these things. Cic. Cōstituit nōn prōgredi, he decided

¹ Thus quid vellet is changed to quid vis? our ventres to our venis? Vellet and ventres are in the Imperfect simply because dependent upon an historical tense, and are therefore changed to the Present in the direct discourse. In deliberative questions (484, V.) the Subjunctive is retained in the direct discourse.

² Thus cum legiōne veniat, under 523, III., becomes cum legiōne veni. The Subjunctive may of course be retained in the direct discourse whenever the thought requires that mood.

³ Thus commemorāssent, pluperfect after an historical tense, is changed to commemorāverūt; tenēret to tenet; vellet to volō; dentur to dabuntur. Sint is retained unchanged because required in a causal clause with cum; see 517.

⁴ Thus (1) trānsisse eās is changed to trānsi, with subject implied in the ending; eud to meū; eī cānissē to ego vēnī, with emphatic subject; eude to meū; sibi to mīhi; eās esse factūrum to faciām; (2) sibi to tibi, in quid sibi vellet. As the subject of an Infinitive (536), eī or eās often corresponds to the pronominal subject implied in the ending of a finite verb; see p. 187, foot-note 5.

⁵ Thus (1) ab iis is changed to ā vobis; cum iis to vōbiscum; ea ita sint to haec ita sint; (2) eīs res is retained.

⁶ Thus legātī Helvētī, the subject of commemorāssent, is changed to o, legātī Helvētī.

⁷ Originally the Latin Infinitive appears to have been the Dative case of an abstract verbal noun, and to have been used to denote the purpose or end (384, 1, 3) for which anything is or is done. Being thus only loosely connected with the verb of the sentence, it readily lost its special force as a case and soon began to be employed with considerable freedom in a variety of constructions. In this respect the history of the Infinitive resemnot to advance. Caes. Crēduli esse coepērunt, they began to be credulous. Cic. Vincere scis, you know how to conquer (you know to conquer). Liv. Victōriā ūti nescis, you do not know how to use victory. Liv. Latīnē loqui didicerat, he had learned to speak Latin. Sall. Dēbēs hōc rescribere, you ought to write this in reply. Hor. Nēmō mortem effugere potest, no one is able to escape death. Cic. Solent cōgitāre, they are accustomed to think. Cic.

I. The Infinitive is thus used—

1. With TRANSITIVE VERBS meaning to dare, desire, determine; to begin, continue, end; to know, learn; to owe, etc.; see examples above.

NOTE 1.—For the Subjunctive with some of these verbs, see 498, I., note.

NOTE 2.—See also 498, II., note 1.

2. With INTRANSITIVE VERBS meaning to be able; to be wont, be accustomed, etc.; see examples above.

II. In special constructions the Infinitive has nearly the force of a DATIVE OF PURPOSE OR END—¹

1. With INTRANSITIVE VERBS:

Nōn populāre penātēs vēnimus, we have not come to lay waste your homes. Verg. Conjurāvere patriam incendere, they conspired to destroy their country with fire. Sall.

2. With TRANSITIVE VERBS in connection with the Accusative:

Pecus ēgit altōs visere montēs, he drove his herd to visit the lofty mountains. Hor. Quid habēs dicere, what have you to say? Cic. Dederat comam diffundere ventis, she had given her hair to the winds to scatter. Verg.²

3. With ADJECTIVES:

Est parātus audire, he is prepared to hear (for hearing). Cic. Avidi committere pūgnam, eager to engage (for engaging) in battle. Ovid. Fōns rivō dare nōmen idōneus, a fountain fit to give a name to the river. Hor.

NOTE 1.—This use of the Infinitive is mostly poetical.

NOTE 2.—With adjectives and with participles used as adjectives the Infinitive is rare in prose, but is freely used in poetry in a variety of constructions:

Cantāre peritus, skilled in singing. Verg. Pēlīdēs cedere nescius, Pelides not knowing how to yield. Hor. Certa mori, determined to die. Verg. Dignus describi, worthy to be described. Hor. Vitulus niveus vidēri,³ a calf snow-white to view. Hor.

bles that of adverbs from the oblique cases of nouns. As such adverbs are often used with greater freedom than the cases which they represent, so the Latin Infinitive often appears in connections where, as a Dative, it would not have been at all admissible. Upon the Origin and History of the Indo-European Infinitive, see Jolly, 'Geschichte des Infinitivs.'

¹ In these constructions the Infinitive retains its original force and use; see 532, foot-note.

² In these examples with transitive verbs observe that the Accusative and Infinitive correspond to the Accusative and Dative under 384, II., and that the Accusative, Dative, and Infinitive correspond to the Accusative and two Datives under 390, II.

³ Niveus vidēri, like the Greek λευκὸς ἰδεῖσθαι.

Figer scribendi ferre laborem, reluctant to bear the labor of writing. Hor. Suum of scium facere immemor est, he forgets (is forgetful) to do his duty. Plant.

NOTE 3.—The Infinitive also occurs, especially in poetry, with verbal nouns and with such expressions as tempus est, cōpia est, etc.:

Cupidō Stygiōs innāre lacūs, a desire to sail upon the Stygian lakes. Verg. Quibus molliter vivere cōpia erat, who had the means for living at ease. Sall. Tempus est dicere, it is time to speak. Cic.

NOTE 4.—The Infinitive is sometimes used with prepositions:

Multum interest inter dare et accipere, there is a great difference between giving and receiving. Sen.

RULE LVII.—Accusative and Infinitive.

534. Many transitive verbs admit both an Accusative and an Infinitive:

Tē sapere docet, he teaches you to be wise. Cic. Eōs suum adventum expectāre jūssit, he ordered them to await his approach. Caes. Pontem jubet rescindi, he orders the bridge to be broken down. Caes. Tē tuā frui virtūte cupimus, we wish you to enjoy your virtue. Cic. Sentimus calēre ignem, we perceive that fire is hot (we perceive fire to be hot). Cic. *Rēgem trādunt sē abdidisse, they relate that the king concealed himself.*¹ Liv.

NOTE.—In the compound forms of the Infinitive, esse is often omitted:

Audivī solitum Fabricium, I have heard that Fabricius was wont. Cic. Spērāmus vōbis profutūrū, we hope to benefit you. Cic.

1. The corresponding PASSIVE is sometimes personal and sometimes impersonal:²

PERSONAL.—Aristidēs jūstissimus fuisse trāditur, Aristides is said (is reported by tradition) to have been most just. Cic. Solem ē mundō tollere videntur, they seem to remove the sun from the world. Cic. Platōnem audisse dicitur, he is said to have heard Plato. Cic. Dii beātī esse intelleguntur, the gods are understood to be happy. Cic.

IMPERSONAL.—Traditum est Homērum caecum fuisse, it has been reported

¹ Observe that in the first three examples the Accusatives tē, eōs, and pontem, are the direct objects of the finite verbs, while in the other examples the Accusatives tē, ignem, and rēgem, may be explained either as the direct objects of the finite verbs, or as the subjects of the Infinitives. The former was doubtless the original construction, but in time the object of the principal verb came to be regarded in many cases as the subject of the Infinitive depending upon it. Thus was developed the Subject Accusative of the Infinitive.

² These two constructions correspond to the two interpretations of the Active mentioned in foot-note 1 above. Thus, in the sentence, Aristidēm jūstissimum fuisse trādunt, if Aristidēm is regarded as the object of trādunt, according to the original conception, the corresponding Passive will be personal: Aristidēs jūstissimus fuisse trāditur; but if Aristidēm is regarded as the subject of fuisse, and the clause Aristidēm jūstissimum fuisse as the object of trādunt, then the same clause will become the subject of the Passive, and the construction will be impersonal: Aristidēm jūstissimum fuisse trāditur, 'it is reported by tradition that Aristides was most just.'

by tradition that Homer was blind. Cic. Ūnam partem Gallōs obtinēre dictum est, it has been stated that the Gauls occupy one part. Caes. Nūntiātūr esse nāvēs in portū, it is announced that the vessels are in port. Cic.

NOTE 1.—The Personal Construction is used—(1) regularly in jubeo, vetor, and videor; (2) generally in the simple tenses¹ of most verbs of SAYING, THINKING, and the like, as dicor, trādor, feror, nūntior, crēdor, existimor, putor, perhībēor, etc.; (3) sometimes in other verbs; see examples above.

NOTE 2.—The Impersonal Construction is especially common in the compound tenses,¹ though also used in the simple tenses; see examples above.

535. The ACCUSATIVE AND AN INFINITIVE are used with a great variety of verbs. Thus—

I. With verbs of PERCEIVING and DECLARING:

Sentimus calēre ignem, we perceive that fire is hot. Cic. Mihī nārrāvit tū sollicitum esse, he told me that you were troubled. Cic. Scripsērunt Themistoclem in Asiā trānāisse, they wrote that Themistocles had gone over to Asia. Nep.

1. VERBS OF PERCEIVING include those which involve (1) the exercise of the senses: audiō, videō, sentio, etc., and (2) the exercise of the mind—THINKING, BELIEVING, KNOWING: cogitō, putō, existimō, crēdō, spērō—intellegō, sciō, etc.

2. VERBS OF DECLARING are such as state or communicate facts or thoughts: dicō, nārrō, nūntiō, docēō, ostendō, prōmittō, etc.

3. Expressions equivalent to verbs of perceiving and of declaring, as fāma fert, 'report says,' testis sum, 'I am a witness' = 'I testify,' consciū mihī sum, 'I am conscious,' 'I know,' also admit an Accusative with an Infinitive:

Nāllam mihī relātām esse grātiam, tū es testis, you are a witness (can testify) that no grateful return has been made to me. Cic.

4. PARTICIPLE FOR INFINITIVE.—Verbs of perceiving take the Accusative with the present participle, when the object is to be represented as actually seen, heard, etc., while engaged in a given action:

Catōnem vidī in bibliothecā sedentem, I saw Cato sitting in the library. Cic.

5. SUBJECTS COMPARED.—When two subjects with the same predicate are compared, and the Accusative with the Infinitive is used in the first clause, the Infinitive may be understood in the second:

Platōnem fērunt idem sēnsisse quod Pythagoram, they say that Plato held the same opinion as Pythagoras. Cic.

6. PREDICATES COMPARED.—When two predicates with the same subject are compared, and the Accusative with the Infinitive is used in the first clause, the Accusative may be understood in the second:

Num putātis, dixisse Antōnium minācius quam factūrum fuisse, do you think Antony spoke more threateningly than he would have acted? Cic.

NOTE.—But the second clause may take the Subjunctive, with or without ut:

¹ The learner will remember that the simple tenses are formed simply by inflexional endings, as dicitur, dicebatur, but that the compound tenses are formed by the union of the perfect participle with the verb sum, as dictum est, dictum erat, etc.

Audeō dicere ipsos potius cultōres agrōrum fore quam ut coll prohibeant, I dare say that they will themselves become tillers of the fields rather than prevent them from being tilled. Liv.

II. With verbs of WISHING, DESIRING, COMMANDING, and their opposites:¹

Tē tuā frui virtūte cupimus, we desire that you should enjoy your virtue. Cic. Pontem jubet rescindi, he orders the bridge to be broken down (that the bridge should be broken down). Caes. Lex eum necārī vetuit, the law forbade that he should be put to death. Liv.

NOTE.—Several verbs involving a wish or command admit the Subjunctive, generally with ut or nē; see 498, 1:

Optō ut id audiātis, I desire that you may hear this. Cic. Volo ut respondeās, I wish you would reply. Cic. Mālō tē hostis metuat, I prefer that the enemy should fear you. Cic. Concedō ut haec apta sint, I admit that these things are suitable. Cic.

III. With verbs of EMOTION and FEELING:²

Gaudeō tē mihi suādere, I rejoice that you advise me. Cic. Mirāmur tē laetārī, we wonder that you rejoice. Cic.

NORM.—Verbs of emotion and feeling often take clauses with quod (540, IV.) to give prominence to the fact stated, or to emphasize the ground or reason for the feeling:

Gaudeō quod tē interpellāvī, I rejoice that (or because) I have interrupted you. Cic. Dolēbam quod socium amiseram, I was grieving because I had lost a companion. Cic.

IV. Sometimes, especially in POETRY and in LATE PROSE, with verbs which usually take the Subjunctive:³

Gentem hortor amāre focos, I exhort the race to love their homes. Verg. Cuncti suaserunt Italian petere, all advised to seek Italy. Verg. Soror monet succedere Lauso Turnum, the sister warns Turnus to take the place of Lausus. Verg.

RULE LVIII.—Subject of Infinitive.

536. The Infinitive sometimes takes an Accusative as its subject:⁴

Sentimus calēre ignem, we perceive that fire is hot. Cic. Platōnem Tarentum vēnisse reperiō, I find that Plato came to Tarentum. Cic.

¹ As cupio, opto, volo, nolo, malo, etc.; patior, sino; impero, jubeo; prohibeo, vetō, etc.

² As gaudeo, doleo, miror, queror, etc.; also aegrē ferō, graviter ferō, etc.

⁴ Remember that the Infinitive, as a verbal noun, originally had no subject, but that subsequently in special constructions a subject Accusative was developed out of the object of the principal verb; see 534, foot-note 1. In classical Latin many Infinitives have no subjects, either expressed or understood.

1. HISTORICAL INFINITIVE.—In lively descriptions the Present Infinitive is sometimes used for the Imperfect or the Perfect Indicative. It is then called the Historical Infinitive, and, like a finite verb, has its subject in the Nominative:

Catilina in primâ acie versâri, omnia providere, multum ipse pugnare, saepe hostem ferire, *Catiline was busy in the front line; he attended to everything, fought much in person, and often smote down the enemy.*¹ Sall.

NOTE.—The Historical Infinitive sometimes denotes customary or repeated action:

Omnia in pœjus ruere ac retrô referri, all things change rapidly for the worse and are borne backward. Verg.

2. A PREDICATE NOUN OR A PREDICATE ADJECTIVE after an Infinitive agrees with the noun or pronoun of which it is predicated, according to the general rule (362). It is thus—

1) In the Nominative, when predicated of the principal subject:

Nolo esse laudator, I am unwilling to be a eulogist. Cic. Beatus esse sine virtute nemô potest, no one can be happy without virtue. Cic. Patens dici potest, he can be called a parent. Cic.

NOTE.—Participles in the compound tenses agree like predicate adjectives:

Pollicitus esse dicitur, he is said to have promised. Cic.

2) In the Accusative, when predicated of a noun or pronoun in the Accusative:

Ego mē Phidiam esse māllem, I should prefer to be Phidias. Cic. Traditum est, Homērum caecum fuisse,² it has been handed down by tradition that Homer was blind. Cic.

3) In the Dative, when predicated of a noun or pronoun in the Dative:

Patrio tribunô plebis fieri nōn licebat, it was not lawful for a patrician to be made tribune of the people. Cic. Mihī negligentī esse nōn licuit,³ it was not permitted me to be negligent. Cic.

NOTE.—A noun or adjective predicated of a noun or pronoun in the Dative is sometimes put in the Accusative:

Et cōsulem fieri licet, it is lawful for him to be made consul. Caes.

537. THE TENSES OF THE INFINITIVE—Present, Perfect, and Future—denote only relative time. They accordingly represent the time respectively as present, past, or future, relatively to that of the principal verb:

PRESENT.—Cupio mē esse clēmentem, I desire to be mild. Cic. Māluit sē diligī quam metui, he preferred to be loved rather than feared. Nep.

PERFECT.—Platōnem ferunt in Italiam vēnisse, they say that Plato came into Italy. Cic. Cōsciū mihī eram, nihil ā mē commissū esse, I was conscious to myself that no offence had been committed by me. Cic.

FUTURE.—Brūtum visum iri ā mē putō, I think Brutus will be seen by me.

¹ Historical Infinitives are generally used in groups, seldom singly.

² Here Phidiam is predicated of mē (lit., me to be Phidias), and caecum of Homērum.

³ Tribunô is predicated of patrio, and neglentī of mihī.

Cic. Ōrāculum datum erat victoriōs Athēnās fore, an oracle had been given, that Athens would be victorious. Cic.

NOTE.—In general, the Present Infinitive represents the action as taking place at the time denoted by the principal verb, the Perfect as then completed or past, and the Future as then about to take place; but tense is so imperfectly developed in the Infinitive that even relative time is not marked with much exactness. Hence—

1) The Present is sometimes used of future actions, and sometimes with little or no reference to time:

Crās argentum dare dixit, he said that he would give the silver to-morrow. Ter.

2) The Perfect is sometimes used of present actions, though chiefly in the poets:
Tetigisse timent poetā, they fear to touch (to have touched) the poet. Hor.

1. After the past tenses of dēbet, oportet, possum, and the like, the PRESENT INFINITIVE is used where our idiom would lead us to expect the Perfect; sometimes also after memini, and the like; regularly in recalling what we have ourselves experienced:

Dēbuit officiōsior esse, he ought to have been more attentive. Cic. Id potuit facere, he might have done this. Cic. Mē Athēnis audire memini, I remember to have heard (hearing) in Athens. Cic.

2. The Perfect Passive Infinitive sometimes denotes the result of the action. Thus, doctus esse may mean either to have been instructed or to be a learned man (lit., an instructed man). If the result thus denoted belongs to past time, fuissē must take the place of esse:

Populum alloquitur, cōpitum fuissē regem iotū, she addresses the people, saying that the king was stunned by the blow. Liv. See also 471, 6, note 1.

3. Instead of the regular Future Infinitive, the PERIPHRASTIC FORM, futūrum esse ut, or fore ut, with the Subjunctive, Present or Imperfect, is frequently used:

Spērō fore ut contingat id nobis, I hope this will fall to our lot (I hope it will come to pass that this may happen to us). Cic. Nōn spērāverat Hannibal, fore ut ad sē dēficerent, Hannibal had not hoped that they would revolt to him. Liv.

NOTE 1.—This circumlocution is common in the Passive, and is moreover necessary in both voices in all verbs which want the Supine and the participle in rus.

NOTE 2.—Sometimes fore ut with the Subjunctive, Perfect or Pluperfect, is used with the force of a Future Perfect; and in passive and deponent verbs, fore with the perfect participle may be used with the same force:

Dicō mē satis adeptum fore, I say that I shall have obtained enough. Cic.

538. The Infinitive, with or without a subject, is often used as the subject of a verb:¹

WITH SUBJECT.—Caesari nūntiatum est equitēs accēdere, it was announced to Caesar that the cavalry was approaching. Caes. Facinus est vincīri civem Rōmānum, that a Roman citizen should be bound is a crime. Cic. Certum

¹ This use of the Infinitive as subject was readily developed out of its use as object; see 534, 1, foot-note. Thus the Infinitive, with or without a subject, finally came to be regarded as an indeclinable noun, and was accordingly used not only as subject and object, but also as predicate and appositive (539, I. and II.), and sometimes even in the Ablative Absolute (539, IV.), and in dependence upon prepositions (533, 3, note 4).

est liberōs amārī, it is certain that children are loved. Quint. Lēgem brevem esse oportet, it is necessary that a law be brief. Sen.

WITHOUT SUBJECT.—Dēcrētum est nōn dare signum, it was decided not to give the signal. Liv. Ars est difficilis rem publicam regere, to rule a state is a difficult art. Cic. Cārum esse jucundum est, it is pleasant to be held dear. Cic. Haec scire juvat, to know these things affords pleasure. Sen. Peccāre licet nēmini, to sin is lawful for no one. Cic.

1. When the subject is an Infinitive, the predicate is either (1) a noun or adjective with sum, or (2) a verb used impersonally; see the examples above.

2. The Infinitive, with or without a subject, may be the subject of another Infinitive:

Intellegi necesse est esse deōs,¹ it must be understood that there are gods. Cic.

3. The Infinitive sometimes takes a demonstrative as an attributive in agreement with it:

Quibusdam hōc displicet philosophārī, this philosophizing (this to philosophize) displeases some persons. Cic. Vivere ipsum turpe est nobīs, to live is itself ignoble for us. Cic.

539. SPECIAL CONSTRUCTIONS.—The Infinitive with a subject² is sometimes used—

I. AS A PREDICATE; see 362:

Exitus fuit orationis sibi nullam cum his amicitiam esse,³ the close of his oration was that he had no friendship with these. Caes.

NOTE.—An Infinitive without a subject may be used as a Predicate Nominative: Vivere est cogitare, to live is to think. Cic.

II. AS AN APPOSITIVE; see 363:

Ōrāculum datum erat victricēs Athēnās fore, an oracle had been given, that Athens would be victorious. Cic. Illud soleō mirārī, nōn mē accipere tuās litterās,⁴ I am accustomed to wonder at this, that I do not receive your letter. Cic.

III. IN EXCLAMATIONS; see 381:

Tē sic vexārī, that you should be thus troubled! Cic. Mēne inceptō dēstistere victam, *that I, vanquished, should abandon my undertaking!*⁴ Verg.

IV. IN THE ABLATIVE ABSOLUTE; see 431, note 1:

Auditō Darium mōvisse pergit, having heard that Darius had withdrawn (that Darius had withdrawn having been heard), he advanced. Curt.

¹ Esse deōs is the subject of intellegi, and intellegi esse deōs of est.

² Including the modifiers of each. Thus in the example the whole clause, sibi nullam cum his amicitiam esse, is used as a Predicate Nominative in agreement with the subject exitus; see 362.

³ In the examples, the clause victricēs Athēnās fore is in apposition with ōrāculum, and the clause nōn mē accipere tuās litterās, in apposition with illud.

⁴ This use of the Infinitive conforms, it will be observed, to the use of the Accusative and Nominative in exclamations (381, with note 8).

II. SUBSTANTIVE CLAUSES.

540. In Latin, clauses which are used as substantives take one of four forms. They may be—

I. INDIRECT QUESTIONS:

Quaeritur, our dissentiant, it is asked why they disagree. Cic. Quid agendum sit, nesciō, I do not know what ought to be done. Cic.

NOTE.—For the use of Indirect Questions, see 529, I.

II. INFINITIVE CLAUSES:

Antecellere contigit, it was his good fortune to excel (to excel happened). Cic. Magna negotia voluit agere, he wished to achieve great undertakings. Cic.

NOTE.—For the use of Infinitive Clauses, see 534; 535.

III. SUBJUNCTIVE CLAUSES, generally introduced by ut, nō, etc.:

Contigit ut patriam vindicāret, it was his good fortune to save his country. Nep. Volō ut mihi respondeās, I wish you would answer me. Cic.

NOTE.—For the use of such Subjunctive Clauses, see 498; 499, 8; 501.

IV. CLAUSES INTRODUCED BY quod:

Beneficium est quod necesse est mori, it is a blessing that it is necessary to die. Sen. Gaudeō quod tē interpellāvi, I rejoice that (because) I have interrupted you. Cic.

NOTE.—Quod-clauses, used substantively, either give prominence to the fact stated, or present it as a ground or reason. They are used as the subject of impersonal verbs, and as the object of many transitive verbs, especially of such as denote emotion or feeling.¹

Hūc accēdēbat quod exercitum luxuriōsē habuerat, to this was added the fact that he had kept the army in luxury. Sall. Adde quod ingenuās didicisse artēs emollit mōrēs, add the fact that to learn liberal arts refines manners. Ovid. Bene facis quod mē adjuvās, you do well that you assist me. Cic. Dolēbam quod socium amiseram, I was grieving because I had lost a companion. Cic. See also 535, III., note.

SECTION VIII.

GERUNDS, GERUNDIVES,² SUPINES, AND PARTICIPLES.

I. GERUNDS.

541. The GERUND is a verbal noun which shares so largely the character of a verb that it governs oblique cases, and takes adverbial modifiers:

¹ Quod-clauses occur—(1) as the subject of accidit, accidit, apparet, evenit, fit, nocet, obest, occurrit, prōdest, etc.; also of est with a noun or adjective, as causa est, vitium est, etc., grātum est, indignum est, mirum est, etc.; and (2) as dependent upon accūsō, addō, adicō (p. 20, foot-note 1), admiror, animadvertō, angor, bene faciō, delector, doleō, excūsō, faciō, gaudeō, glōrior, laetor, miror, mittō, omittō, praeterō, queror, etc. They are sometimes used like the Accusatives of Specification. See 516, 2, note.

² The Gerund and the Gerundive were originally identical. The former is the neu-Jūs vocandi¹ senātum, the right of summoning the senate. Liv. Beatē vivendi¹ cupiditās, the desire of living happily. Cic.

NOTE.—In a few instances the Gerund has apparently a passive meaning:

Neque habent propriam percipiendi notam, nor have they any proper mark of distinction (i. e., to distinguish them). Cic.

542. The GERUND has four cases—the Genitive, Dative, Accusative, and Ablative—used in general like the same cases of nouns. Thus—

I. The GENITIVE OF THE GERUND is used with nouns and adjectives:²

Ars vivendi, the art of living. Cic. Studiosus erat audiendi, he was desirous of hearing. Nep. Cupidus tē audiendi, desirous of hearing you. Cic. Artem vērā ac falsā dījudicandi, the art of distinguishing true things from false. Cic.

NOTE 1.—The Gerund usually governs the same case as the verb, but sometimes, by virtue of its substantive nature, it governs the Genitive, especially the Genitive of personal pronouns—mei, nostri, tui, vestri, sui:

Cōpia placendi tui (of a woman), an opportunity of appeasing you. Ov. Sui cōservandi causā, for the purpose of preserving themselves. Cic. Vestri adhortandi causā, for the purpose of exhorting you. Liv. Reiciendi³ jūdicum potestās, the power of challenging (of) the judges. Cic. Lūcis tuendi cōpia, the privilege of beholding the light. Plaut.

NOTE 2.—The Genitive of the Gerund is sometimes used to denote purpose or tendency:

Legēs pellendi clārōs virōs, laws for (lit., of) driving away illustrious men. Tac.

II. The DATIVE OF THE GERUND⁴ is used with a few verbs and adjectives regularly govern the Dative:

solvendō nōn essent, since they were not able to pay. Cic. Aqua bibendō, water is useful for drinking. Plin.

—The Dative of the Gerund is rare;⁵ with an object it occurs only in Plautus.

III. The ACCUSATIVE OF THE GERUND is used after a few prepositions:⁶

Ad discendum prōpēnsi sumus, we are inclined to learn (to learning). Cic. Inter ludendum, in or during play. Quint.

ter of a participle used substantively, while the latter is that same participle used adjectively. Moreover, from this participle the Gerund developed an active meaning and the Gerundive a passive. On the Origin and Use of Gerunds and Gerundives, see Jolly, 'Geschichte des Infinitivs,' pp. 198–200; Draeger, II., pp. 789–828.

¹ Vocandi as a Genitive is governed by jūs, and yet it governs the Accusative senātum; vivendi is governed by cupiditās, and yet it takes the adverbial modifier beatē.

² The adjectives which take the Genitive of the Gerund are chiefly those denoting DESIRE, KNOWLEDGE, SKILL, RECOLLECTION, and their opposites: avidus, cupidus, studiosus, cōnectus, gndrus, igndrus; peritus, imperitus, insuetus, etc.

³ Pronounced as if written reiciendi; see p. 20, foot-note 1.

⁴ According to Jolly, 'Geschichte des Infinitivs,' p. 200, the Gerund originally had only one case, the Dative, and was virtually an Infinitive.

⁵ Most frequently after ad; sometimes after inter and ob; very rarely after ante and in.

NOTE 1.—The Accusative of the Gerund with a direct object is rare:

Ad placandum deos pertinet, it tends to appease the gods. Cic.

NOTE 2.—The Gerund with ad often denotes purpose:

Ad imitandum mihi propositum est exemplar illud, that model has been set before me for imitation. Cic.

IV. The ABLATIVE OF THE GERUND is used (1) as Ablative of Means, and (2) with prepositions:¹

Mens discendo alitur, the mind is nourished by learning. Cic. Salutem hominibus dando, by giving safety to men. Cic. Virtutes cernuntur in agendo, virtues are seen in action. Cic. Deterrere a scribendo, to deter from writing. Cic.

NOTE 1.—After prepositions, the Ablative of the Gerund with a direct object is exceedingly rare:

In tribuendo suum cuique, in giving every one his own. Cic.

NOTE 2.—Without a preposition, the Ablative of the Gerund denotes in a few instances some other relation than that of means, as time, separation, etc.:

Inciplendo refugit, I drew back in the very beginning. Cic.

II. GERUNDIVES.

543. The GERUNDIVE, like other participles, agrees with nouns and pronouns:

Inita sunt consilia urbis delendae, plans have been formed for destroying the city (of the city to be destroyed). Cic. Numa sacerdotibus creandis animum adiecit, Numa gave his attention to the appointment of priests. Liv.

NOTE.—A noun (or pronoun) and a Gerundive in agreement with it form the Gerundive Construction.

544. The GERUNDIVE CONSTRUCTION may be used—

1. In place of a Gerund with a direct object. It then takes the case of the Gerund whose place it supplies:

Libido ejus videndi (= libido eum videndi), the desire of seeing him (lit., of him to be seen). Cic. Platonis audiendi (= Platonem audiendi) studiosus, fond of hearing Plato. Cic. Legendis oratoribus (= legendo oratores), by reading the orators. Cic.

NOTE.—The Gerundive Construction should not be used for the Gerund with a neuter pronoun or adjective as object, as it could not distinguish the gender:

Artem vera ac falsa dijudicandi, the art of distinguishing true things from false. Cic.

2. In the Dative and in the Ablative with a preposition:

Locum oppido condendo cepērunt, they selected a place for founding a city. Liv. Tempora demetendis fructibus accommodata, seasons suitable for gathering fruits. Cic. Brutus in liberanda patria est interfectus, Brutus was slain in liberating his country. Cic.

¹ The Ablative of the Gerund is used most frequently after a (ab), de, ex (e), in; rarely after cum, pro, and super.

NOTE 1.—The learner will remember that in the Datives (542, II., note) and in the Ablative with a preposition (542, IV., note 1) the Gerund with a direct object is exceedingly rare. The Gerundive Construction supplies its place.

NOTE 2.—The Gerundive Construction sometimes denotes purpose or tendency, especially in the Accusative after verbs of giving, permitting, taking, etc.:

Attribuit Italiam vastandam (for ad vastandum) Catilinae, he assigned Italy to Catiline to ravage (to be ravaged). Cic. Firmandae valetudini in Campaniam concessit, he withdrew into Campania to confirm his health. Tac. Haec tradendae Hannibali victorae sunt, these things are for the purpose of giving victory to Hannibal. Liv. Proficiscitur cognoscendae antiquitatis, he sets out for the purpose of studying antiquity. Tac.

NOTE 3.—The Gerundive Construction in the Dative occurs after certain official names, as decemviri, triumviri, comitia:¹

Decemviris legibus scribendis creavimus, we have appointed a committee of ten to prepare laws. Liv.

NOTE 4.—The Gerundive Construction in the Ablative occurs after comparatives:

Nullum officium referendae gratiae magis necessarium est, no duty is more necessary than that of returning a favor. Cic.

NOTE 5.—The Gerundive Construction is in general admissible only in transitive verbs, but it occurs in utor, fruor, fungor, potior, etc., originally transitive:

Ad munus fungendum, for discharging the duty. Cic. Spes potiundorum castrorum, the hope of getting possession of the camp. Caes.

III. SUPINES.

545. The SUPINE, like the Gerund, is a verbal noun. It has a form in um and a form in i.

NOTE 1.—The Supine in um is an Accusative; that in i is generally an Ablative, though sometimes perhaps a Dative.²

NOTE 2.—The Supine in um governs the same case as the verb:

Legatos mittunt rogatum auxilium, they send ambassadors to ask aid. Caes.

RULE LIX.—Supine in Um.

546. The Supine in um is used with verbs of motion to express PURPOSE:

Legati venerunt res repetitum, deputies came to demand restitution. Liv. Ad Caesarem congratulatum conveniunt, they came to Caesar to congratulate him. Caes.

1. The Supine in um occurs in a few instances after verbs which do not directly express motion:

Filiam Agrippae nuptum dedit, he gave his daughter in marriage to Agrippa. Suet.

2. The Supine in um with the verb eo is equivalent to the forms of the first Periphrastic Conjugation, and may often be rendered literally:

Bonae omnes perditum sunt, they are going to destroy all the good. Sall.

¹ But in most instances the Dative may be explained as dependent either upon the verb or upon the predicate as a whole; see 384, 4.

² See Hübschmann, p. 223; Draeger, II., p. 838; Jolly, p. 201.

NOTE.—But in subordinate clauses the Supine in um with the verb esse is often used for the simple verb:

Ultum ire (= ultisci) injuriis festinat, he hastens to avenge the injuries. Sall.

3. The Supine in um with iri, the Infinitive Passive of esse, forms, it will be remembered (222, III., 1), the Future Passive Infinitive:

Brutum visum iri a me putā, I think Brutus will be seen by me. Cic.

4. The Supine in um is not very common;¹ but purposes may be denoted by other constructions:

1) By ut or quā with the Subjunctive; see 497.

2) By Gerunds or Gerundives; see 542, I., note 2, and III., note 2; 544, 2, note 2.

3) By Participles; see 549, 2.

RULE LX.—Supine in ū.

547. The Supine in ū is generally used as an Ablative of Specification (424):

Quid est tam jucundum auditū, what is so agreeable to hear (in hearing)? Cic. Difficile dictū est, it is difficult to tell. Cic. De genere mortis difficile dictū est, it is difficult to speak of the kind of death. Cic. Civitas incredibile memoratū est quantum creverit, it is incredible to relate how much the state increased. Sall.

NOTE.—The Supine in ū never governs an oblique case, but it may take an Ablative with a preposition, as in the third example above.

1. The Supine in ū is used chiefly with jucundus, optimus; facilis, proposita, difficilis; incredibilis, memorabilis; honestus, turpis; dignus, indignus; sās, nefās, opus, and scelus.

2. The Supine in ū is very rare. The most common examples are auditū, dictū, factū, nātū, vitū; less common, *cognitū, intellectū, inventū, memoratū, relatū, scitū, tractatū, victū.*²

IV. PARTICIPLES.

548. The PARTICIPLE is a verbal adjective which governs the same cases as the verb:

Animus se non videns alia cernit, the mind, though it does not see itself (lit., not seeing itself), discerns other things. Cic.

NOTE 1.—For Participles used substantively, see 441.

NOTE 2.—Participles used substantively sometimes retain the adverbial modifiers which belonged to them as participles, and sometimes take adjective modifiers:

Non tam praemia sequi rectū factorum quam ipsa rectū facta, not to seek the rewards of good deeds (things rightly done) so much as good deeds themselves. Cic. Praecellens atque divinum factum, an excellent and divine deed. Cic.

549. PARTICIPLES are often used—

1. To denote TIME, CAUSE, MANNER, MEANS:

¹ According to Draeger, II., p. 829, the Supine in um is found in only two hundred and thirty-six verbs, mostly of the First and Third Conjugations.

² According to Draeger, II., p. 833, the Supine in ū is found in one hundred and nine verbs.

Platō scribēns mortuus est, Plato died while writing. Cic. Itūrī in proelium canunt, they sing when about to go into battle. Tac. Sol oriens diem cōnficit, the sun by its rising causes the day. Cic. Milites renūntiant, sē perfidiam veritōs revertisse, the soldiers report that they returned because they feared perfidy (having feared). Caes.

2. To denote CONDITION or CONCESSION :

Mendāci hominī nē vērū quidem dicenti crēdere nōn solēmus, we are not wont to believe a liar, even if he speaks the truth. Cic. Reluctante naturā, irritus labor est, if nature opposes, effort is vain. Sen. Scripta tua jam diū expectāns, nōn audeō tamen flagitāre, though I have been long expecting your work, yet I do not dare to ask for it. Cic.

3. To denote PURPOSE :

Perseus rediit, bellī cāsū tentātūrus, Perseus returned to try (about to try) the fortune of war. Liv. Attribuit nōs trucidandōs Cethegō, he assigned us to Cethegus to slaughter. Cic.

4. To supply the place of RELATIVE CLAUSES :

Omnēs aliud agentēs, aliud simulantēs, improbi sunt, all who do one thing and pretend another are dishonest. Cic.

5. To supply the place of PRINCIPAL CLAUSES :

Classem devictam cēpit, he conquered and took the fleet (took the fleet conquered). Nep. Rē cōsistentēs, vocābulis differēbant, they agreed in fact, but differed in words. Cic.

NOTE 1.—A participle with a negative is often best rendered by a participial noun and the preposition without :

Miserum est, nihil prōficiētem angī, it is sad to be troubled without accomplishing anything. Cic. Nōn erubescēns, without blushing. Cic.

NOTE 2.—The perfect participle is often best rendered by a participial or verbal noun with of :

Homērus fuit ante Rōmā conditam, Homer lived (was) before the founding of Rome (before Rome founded). Cic.

550. The TENSES OF THE PARTICIPLE—Present, Perfect, and Future—denote only relative time. They accordingly represent the time respectively as present, past, and future relatively to that of the principal verb :

Oculus sē nōn vidēns alia cernit, the eye, though it does not see itself (not seeing itself), discerns other things. Cic. Platō scribēns mortuus est, Plato died while writing. Cic. Ūva mātūrāta dulcescit, the grape, when it has ripened (having ripened), becomes sweet. Cic. Sapiēns bona semper placitūra laudat, the wise man praises blessings which will always please (being about to please). Sen.

NOTE 1.—The perfect participle, both in deponent and in passive verbs, is sometimes used of present time, and sometimes in passive verbs it loses in a great degree its force as a tense, and is best rendered by a verbal noun :

Eisdem duobus ūsus Numidās mittit, employing the same persons as guides, he sent the Numidianæ. Caes. Incoñsās perfert nāvēs, he reports the burning of the ships (the ships set on fire). Verg. See also 544.

NOTE 2.—In the compound tenses the perfect participle often becomes virtually a predicate adjective expressing the result of the action :

Causæ sunt cōgnitæ, the causes are known. Caes. See also 471, 6, note 1.

NOTE 3.—For the Perfect Participle with habeō, see 388, 1, note.

NOTE 4.—The want of a perfect active participle is sometimes supplied by a temporal clause, and sometimes by a perfect passive participle in the Ablative Absolute :

Caesar, postquam vēnit, Rhēnum trānsire cōstituit, Caesar, having arrived, decided to cross the Rhine. Caes. Equitātū præmissō subsequēbātur, having sent forward his cavalry, he followed. Caes. See also 431; 519.

NOTE 5.—The want of a present passive participle is generally supplied by a temporal clause :

Cum ā Catōne laudābar, reprehendī mē ā cōteris patiebā, being praised by Cato, I allowed myself to be censured by the others. Cic.

CHAPTER VI.

SYNTAX OF PARTICLES.

RULE LXI.—Use of Adverbs.

551. Adverbs qualify VERBS, ADJECTIVES, and other ADVERBS :

Sapientēs fēliciter vivunt, the wise live happily. Cic. Facile dōctissimus, unquestionably the most learned. Cic. Haud aliter, not otherwise. Verg.

NOTE 1.—For predicate adverbs with sum, see 360, note 2; for adverbs with nouns used adjectively, see 441, 3; for adverbs in place of adjectives, see 443, notes 3 and 4; for adverbs with participles used substantively, see 548, note 2.

NOTE 2.—Sic and ita mean 'so,' 'thus.' Ita has also a limiting sense, 'in so far,' as in ita-si (507, 3, note 2). Adēō means 'to such a degree or result'; tam, tantopere, 'so much'—tam used mostly with adjectives and adverbs, and tantopere with verbs.

552. The common negative particles are nōn, nē, haud.

1. Nōn is the usual negative; nē is used in prohibitions, wishes, and purposes (483, 3; 488; 497), and haud, in haud scōd an, and with adjectives and adverbs: haud mirābile, not wonderful; haud aliter, not otherwise. Ni for nē is rare. Nē nōn after vidē is often best rendered whether.

2. In nōn modo nōn and in nōn scōdum nōn the second nōn is generally omitted before scōd or scōdum, followed by nē—quidem or vis (rarely etiam), when the verb of the second clause belongs also to the first:

Assentatiō nōn modo amico, sed nē libērō quidem digna est, flattery is not only not worthy of a friend, but not even of a free man. Cic.

3. Mīnus often has nearly the force of nōn; si minus = si nōn. Sin aliter has nearly the same force as si minus. Mīnimē often means 'not at all,' 'by no means.'

553. Two NEGATIVES are generally equivalent to an affirmative, as in English :

Nihil nōn arroget, let him claim everything. Hor. Neque hōc Zēnō nōn vidit, nor did Zeno overlook this. Cic.

1. Nōn before a general negative gives it the force of an indefinite affirmative, but after such negative the force of a general affirmative :

Nōnnēmō, some one; nōnnihīl, something; nōnnūquam, sometimes;
Nēmō nōn, every one; nihīl nōn, everything; nūquam nōn, always.

2. After a general negative, nō—quidē gives emphasis to the negation, and neque—neque, nēve—nēve, and the like, repeat the negation distributively :

Nōn prætereundum est nō id quidē, we must not pass by even this. Cic. Nēmō unquam neque poëta neque orātor fuit, no one was ever either a poet or an orator. Cic.

NOTE.—For the Use of Prepositions, see 432–435.

554. COÖRDINATE CONJUNCTIONS unite similar constructions (309, 1). They comprise five classes.

I. COPULATIVE CONJUNCTIONS denote UNION :

Castor et Pollux, Castor and Pollux. Cic. Senātus populusque, the senate and people. Cic. Nec erat difficile, nor was it difficult. Liv.

1. For list, see 310, 1.

2. Et simply connects; que implies a more intimate relationship; atque and ac generally give prominence to what follows. Neque and nec have the force of et nōn. Et and etiam sometimes mean even.

NOTE.—Atque and ac generally mean as, than, after adjectives and adverbs of likeness and unlikeness: illīs ac, 'such as'; aeque ac, 'equally as'; aliter atque, 'otherwise than.' See also 451, 5.

3. Que is an enclitic, and ac in the best prose is used only before consonants.

4. Etiam, quoque, adē, and the like, are sometimes associated with et, atque, ac, and que, and sometimes even supply their place. Quoque follows the word which it connects: is quoque, 'he also.' Etiam, 'also,' 'further,' 'even,' often adds a new circumstance.

5. Sometimes two copulatives are used: et—et, que—que,¹ et—que, que—et, que—atque,¹ tum—tum, cum—cum, 'both—and'; but cum—tum gives prominence to the second word or clause; nōn adūm (nōn modo, or nōn tantum)—sed etiam (vērū etiam), 'not only—but also'; neque (nec)—neque (nec), 'neither—nor'; neque (nec)—et (que), 'not—but (and)'; et—neque (nec), 'and not.'

6. Between two words connected copulatively the conjunction is generally expressed, though sometimes omitted, especially between the names of two colleagues. Between several words it is in the best prose generally repeated or omitted altogether, though que may be used with the last even when the conjunction is omitted between the others: pax et tranquillitās et concordia, or pax, tranquillitās, concordia, or pax, tranquillitās, concordiaque.

NOTE 1.—Et is often omitted between conditional clauses, except before nōn.

NOTE 2.—A series may begin with primum or primū, may be continued by deinde followed by tum, postē, prætērē, or some similar word, and may close with denique

¹ Que—que is rare, except in poetry; que—atque, rare even in poetry; see Verg., Aen., I, 18; Geor., I, 182.

or postrēmō.¹ Deinde may be repeated several times between primum and dēnique or postrēmō.²

II. DISJUNCTIVE CONJUNCTIONS denote SEPARATION :

Aut vestra aut sua culpa, either your fault or his own. Liv. Duābus tri-busve hōris, in two or three hours. Cic.

1. For list, see 310, 2.

2. Aut denotes a stronger antithesis than vel, and must be used if the one supposition excludes the other: aut verum aut falsum, 'either true or false.' Vel implies a difference in the expression rather than in the thing. It is generally corrective, and is often followed by potius, etiam, or dicam: laudatur, vel etiam amatur, 'he is praised, or even (rather) loved.' It sometimes means even, and sometimes for example. Velut often means for example. Ve for vel is appended as an enclitic.

NOTE.—In negative clauses aut and ve often continue the negation: nōn honor aut virtus, 'neither (not) honor nor virtue.'

3. Sive (si—ve) does not imply any real difference or opposition; it often connects different names of the same object: Pallas sive Minerva, 'Pallas or Minerva' (another name of the same goddess).

NOTE.—Disjunctive conjunctions are often combined as correlatives: aut—aut, vel—vel, etc., 'either—or.'

III. ADVERSATIVE CONJUNCTIONS denote OPPOSITION OR CONTRAST :

Cupio mē esse clementem, sed mē inertiae condemnō, I wish to be mild, but I condemn myself for inaction. Cic. Magnēs ferrum ad sē trahit, ratiō-nem autem adferre nōn possumus; the magnet attracts iron, but we can not assign a reason. Cic.

1. For list, see 310, 3.

2. Sed and verum mark a direct opposition; autem and verō only a transition; at emphasizes the opposition; atque often introduces an objection; ceterum means 'but still,' 'as to the rest'; tamen, 'yet.'

NOTE.—Sed and verum are sometimes resumptive; see IV., 3, below :

Sed age, respondā, but come, reply. Plaut.

3. Atamen, sedtamen, veruntamen, 'but yet,' are compounds of tamen.

4. Autem and verō are postpositivae, i. e., they are placed after one or more words in their clauses.

IV. ILLATIVE CONJUNCTIONS denote INFERENCE :

In umbrā igitur pugnābimus, we shall therefore fight in the shade. Cic.

1. For list, see 310, 4.

2. Certain other words, sometimes classed with adverbs and sometimes with conjunctions, are also illatives, as ed, idē, idcirco, propterea, quāobrem, quāpropter, quārē, quōcirco.

3. Igitur generally follows the word which it connects: hic igitur, 'this one therefore.' After a digression, igitur, sed, sed tamen, verum, verum tamen, etc., are often used to resume an interrupted thought or construction. They may often be rendered 'I say': Sed et quē, 'if any one, I say.'

¹ For examples, see Cic., Fam., XV., 14; Div., II., 56.

² Cicero, Inv., II., 49, has a series of ten members in which primum introduces the first member, postrēmō the last, and dēinde each of the other eight.

V. CAUSAL CONJUNCTIONS denote CAUSE:

Difficile est cōsiliū, sum enim sōlus, counsel is difficult, for I am alone.

Cic. Etenim jū amant, for they love the right. Cic.

1. For list, see 310, 5.

2. Etenim and namque denote a closer connection than enim and nam.

3. Enim is postpositive; see 554, III., 4.

555. SUBORDINATE CONJUNCTIONS connect subordinate with principal constructions (309, 2). They comprise eight classes.

I. TEMPORAL CONJUNCTIONS denote TIME:

Paruit cum necesse erat, he obeyed when it was necessary. Cic. Dum ego in Sicilia sum, while I am in Sicily. Cic. See also 311, 1; 512-521.

1. Dum added to a negative means yet; nōdum, 'not yet'; vixdum, 'scarcely yet.'

II. COMPARATIVE CONJUNCTIONS denote COMPARISON:

Ut optāsti, ita est, it is as you desired. Cic. Velut si adesset, as if he were present. Caes. See also 311, 2; 513, II.

1. CORRELATIVES are often used: Tam—quam, 'as,' 'so—as,' 'as much—as'; tam—quam quod mātīmā, 'as much as possible'; nōn minus—quam, 'not less than'; nōn magis—quam, 'not more than.'

Tam—quam and ut—ita with a superlative are sometimes best rendered by the with the comparative: ut mātīmā—ita mātīmā, 'the more—the more.'

III. CONDITIONAL CONJUNCTIONS denote CONDITION:

Si peccāvi, ignōsce, if I have erred, pardon me. Cic. Nisi est cōsiliū domi, unless there is wisdom at home. Cic. See also 311, 3; 506-513.

1. Nisi, 'if not,' in negative sentences often means 'except'; and nisi quod, 'except that,' may be used even in affirmative sentences. Nisi may mean 'than.' Nihil aliud nisi = 'nothing further' (more, except); nihil aliud quam = 'nothing else' (other than).

IV. CONCESSIVE CONJUNCTIONS denote CONCESSION:

Quamquam intellegunt, though they understand. Cic. Etai nihil habeat, although he has nothing. Cic. See also 311, 4; 514; 515.

V. FINAL CONJUNCTIONS denote PURPOSE:

Esse oportet, ut vivās, it is necessary to eat, that you may live. Cic. See also 311, 5; 497-499.

VI. CONSECUTIVE CONJUNCTIONS denote CONSEQUENCE OR RESULT:

Atticus ita vixit, ut Athēniēnsibus esset carissimus, Atticus so lived that he was very dear to the Athenians. Nep. See also 311, 6; 500-504.

VII. CAUSAL CONJUNCTIONS denote CAUSE:

Quae cum ita sint, since these things are so. Cic. See also 311, 7; 516; 517.

VIII. INTERROGATIVE CONJUNCTIONS or Particles denote INQUIRY or QUESTION:

Quaesierās, nōne putārem, you had asked whether I did not think. Cic. See also 311, 8; 351-353; 529.

556. INTERJECTIONS are sometimes used entirely alone, as āhou, 'alas!' and sometimes with certain cases of nouns; see 381, with note 8.

557. Various parts of speech, and even oaths and imprecations, sometimes have the force of interjections:

Pax (peace), be still! miserum, miserābile, sad, lamentable! orō, pray! age, agite, come, well! meheroulās, by Hercules! per deū fidem, in the name of the gods! sodēs = si audēs (for audies), if you will hear!

CHAPTER VII.

RULES OF SYNTAX.

558. For convenience of reference, the principal Rules of Syntax are here introduced in a body.

AGREEMENT OF NOUNS.

I. A noun predicated of another noun denoting the same person or thing agrees with it in CASE (362):

Brūtus custōs libertātis fuit, Brutus was the guardian of liberty.

II. An Appositive agrees in CASE with the noun or pronoun which it qualifies (363):

Clullius rēx moritur, Clullius the king dies.

NOMINATIVE.—VOCATIVE.

III. The Subject of a Finite verb is put in the Nominative (368):
Servius regnāvit, Servius reigned.

IV. The Name of the person or thing addressed is put in the Vocative (369):

Perge, Laeli, proceed, Laelius.

ACCUSATIVE.

V. The DIRECT OBJECT of an action is put in the Accusative (371):

Deus mundum aedificavit, God made (built) the world.

VI. Verbs of MAKING, CHOOSING, CALLING, REGARDING, SHOWING, and the like, admit two Accusatives of the same person or thing (373):

Hamilcarem imperatōrem fecerunt, they made Hamilcar commander.

VII. Some verbs of ASKING, DEMANDING, TEACHING, and CONCEALING admit two Accusatives—one of the person and the other of the thing (374):

Mē sententiam rogāvit, he asked me my opinion.

VIII. A verb or an adjective may take an Accusative to define its application (378):

Capita velāmur, we have our heads veiled.

IX. DURATION OF TIME and EXTENT OF SPACE are expressed by the Accusative (379):

Septem et trigintā regnāvit annōs, he reigned thirty-seven years. Quinque millia passuum ambulare, to walk five miles.

X. The PLACE TO WHICH is designated by the Accusative (380):

I. Generally with a preposition—ad or in:

Legiōnes ad urbem adducit, he is leading the legions to or toward the city.

II. In names of towns without a preposition:

Nuntius Rōmam redit, the messenger returns to Rome.

XI. The Accusative, either with or without an interjection, may be used in Exclamations (381):

Heu mē miserum, ah me unhappy!

DATIVE.

XII. The INDIRECT OBJECT of an action is put in the Dative. It is used (384)—

I. With INTRANSITIVE and PASSIVE verbs:

Tibi servio, I am devoted to you.

II. With TRANSITIVE verbs, in connection with the DIRECT OBJECT:

Agros plebi dedit, he gave lands to the common people.

XIII. Two Datives—the OBJECT TO WHICH and the OBJECT OR END FOR WHICH—OCCUR with a few verbs (390):

I. With INTRANSITIVE and PASSIVE verbs:

Malo est hominibus avaritia, avarice is an evil to men.

II. With TRANSITIVE verbs in connection with the ACCUSATIVE:

Quinque cohortes castris praesidio relinquit, he left five cohorts for the defence of the camp.

XIV. With adjectives, the OBJECT TO WHICH the quality is directed is put in the Dative (391):

Omnibus carum est, it is dear to all.

XV. The Dative is used with a few special nouns and adverbs (392):

I. With a few nouns from verbs which take the Dative:

Justitia est obtemperatio legibus, justice is obedience to laws.

II. With a few adverbs from adjectives which take the Dative:

Congruenter naturae vivere, to live in accordance with nature.

GENITIVE.

XVI. Any noun, not an Appositive, qualifying the meaning of another noun, is put in the Genitive (395):

Catonis orationes, Cato's orations.

XVII. Many adjectives take a Genitive to complete their meaning (399):

Avidus laudis, desirous of praise.

XVIII. A noun predicated of another noun denoting a different person or thing is put in the Genitive (401):

Omnia hostium erant, all things belonged to the enemy.

XIX. The Genitive is used (406)—

I. With miserere and miserescere:

Miserere laborum, pity the labors.

II. With recordor, memini, reminiscor, and obliscor:

Meminit praeteritorum, he remembers the past.

III. With refert and interest:

Interest omnium, it is the interest of all.

XX. The ACCUSATIVE of the PERSON and the GENITIVE of the THING are used with a few transitive verbs (409):

I. With verbs of reminding, admonishing:

Te amicitiae commonefacit, he reminds you of friendship.

II. With verbs of accusing, convicting, acquitting:

Virum sceleris arguit, you accuse men of crime.

III. With miseret, paenitet, pudet, taedet, and piget:

Eorum nos miseret, we pity them.

ABLATIVE PROPER.

XXI. The PLACE FROM WHICH is denoted by the Ablative (412):

I. Generally with a preposition—ā, ab, dē, or ex:

Ab urbe proficiscitur, he sets out from the city.

II. In NAMES OF TOWNS without a preposition :

Platōnem Athēnis arcessivit, he summoned Plato from Athens.

XXII. Separation, Source, and Cause are denoted by the Ablative with or without a preposition (413) :

Caedem a vobis depellō, I ward off slaughter from you. Hōc audivi de parente meo, I heard this from my father. Ars utilitate laudatur, an art is praised because of its usefulness.

XXIII. Comparatives without QUAM are followed by the Ablative (417) :

Nihil est amabilius virtute, nothing is more lovely than virtue.

INSTRUMENTAL ABLATIVE.

XXIV. The Ablative is used (419)—

I. To denote ACCOMPANIMENT. It then takes the preposition cum :

Vivit cum Balbō, he lives with Balbus.

II. To denote CHARACTERISTIC OR QUALITY. It is then modified by an Adjective or by a Genitive :

Summā virtute adulescens, a youth of the highest virtue.

III. To denote MANNER. It then takes the preposition cum, or is modified by an Adjective or by a Genitive :

Cum virtute vixit, he lived virtuously.

XXV. INSTRUMENT AND MEANS are denoted by the Ablative (420) :

Cornibus tauri se tūtantur, bulls defend themselves with their horns.

XXVI. The Ablative is used (421)—

I. With utor, fruor, fungor, potior, vescor, and their compounds :

Plurimis rebus fruimur et utimur, we enjoy and use very many things.

II. With VERBS and ADJECTIVES OF PLENTY :

Villa abundat lacte, caseo, melle, the villa abounds in milk, cheese, and honey.

III. With dignus, indignus, and contentus :

Digni sunt amicitia, they are worthy of friendship.

XXVII. PRICE is generally denoted by the Ablative (422) :

Vendidit auro patriam, he sold his country for gold.

XXVIII. THE MEASURE OF DIFFERENCE is denoted by the Ablative (423) :

Uno die longiorem mensem faciunt, they make the month one day longer.

XXIX. A noun, adjective, or verb may take an Ablative to define its application (424) :

Nomine, non potestate, fuit rex, he was king in name, not in power.

LOCATIVE ABLATIVE.

XXX. The PLACE IN WHICH is denoted (425)—

I. Generally by the Locative Ablative with the preposition in :

Hannibal in Italia fuit, Hannibal was in Italy.

II. In NAMES OF TOWNS by the Locative, if such a form exists, otherwise by the Locative Ablative :

Romae fuit, he was at Rome.

XXXI. The TIME of an action is denoted by the Ablative (429):

Octogésimo anno est mortuus, he died in his eightieth year.

XXXII. A noun and a participle may be put in the Ablative to add to the predicate an attendant circumstance (431):

Serviò régnante viguerunt, they flourished in the reign of Servius.

CASES WITH PREPOSITIONS.

XXXIII. The Accusative and Ablative may be used with prepositions (432):

Ad amicum, to a friend. In Italia, in Italy.

AGREEMENT OF ADJECTIVES, PRONOUNS, AND VERBS.

XXXIV. An adjective agrees with its noun in GENDER, NUMBER, and CASE (438):

Fortuna caeca est, fortune is blind.

XXXV. A pronoun agrees with its antecedent in GENDER, NUMBER, and PERSON (445):

Animal, quod sanguinem habet, an animal which has blood.

XXXVI. A finite verb agrees with its subject in NUMBER and PERSON (460):

Ego régès ejeci, I have banished kings.

USE OF THE INDICATIVE.

XXXVII. The Indicative is used in treating of facts (474):

Deus mundum aedificavit, God made (built) the world.

MOODS AND TENSES IN PRINCIPAL CLAUSES.

XXXVIII. The Subjunctive is used to represent the action NOT AS REAL, but AS DESIRED (483):

Valeant cives, may the citizens be well.

XXXIX. The Subjunctive is used to represent the action NOT AS REAL, but AS POSSIBLE (485):

Hic quaerat quispiam, here some one may inquire.

XL. The Imperative is used in COMMANDS, EXHORTATIONS, and ENTREATIES (487):

Iustitiam cole, practice justice.

MOODS AND TENSES IN SUBORDINATE CLAUSES.

XLI. Principal tenses depend upon principal tenses; historical upon historical (491):

Entitur ut vincat, he strives to conquer.

XLII. The Subjunctive is used to denote PURPOSE (497)—

I. With the relative qui, and with relative adverbs, as ubi, unde, etc.:

Missi sunt qui (= ut it) cōsulerent Apollinem, they were sent to consult Apollo.

II. With ut, nē, quō, quōminus:

Entitur ut vincat, he strives that he may conquer.

XLIII. The Subjunctive is used to denote RESULT (500)—

I. With the relative qui, and with relative adverbs, as ubi, unde, cū, etc.:

Nōn is sum qui (= ut ego) his ūtar, I am not such a one as to use these things.

II. With ut, ut nōn, quān:

Ita vixit ut Athēniēnsibus esset cārissimus, he so lived that he was very dear to the Athenians.

XLIV. Conditional sentences with si, nisi, nī, sin, take (507)—

I. The INDICATIVE in both clauses to assume the supposed case:

Si spiritum dūcit, vivit, if he breathes, he is alive.

II. The PRESENT or PERFECT SUBJUNCTIVE in both clauses to represent the supposed case as possible:

Dies deficiat, si velim causam defendere, the day would fail me, if I should wish to defend the cause.

III. The IMPERFECT or PLUPERFECT SUBJUNCTIVE in both clauses to represent the supposed case as contrary to fact:

Plūribus verbis ad tē scriberem, si res verba dēsiderāret, I should write to you more fully (with more words), if the case required words.

XLV. Conditional clauses take the Subjunctive (513)—

I. With dum, modo, dummodo, 'if only,' 'provided that'; dum nō, modo nō, dummodo nō, 'if only not,' 'provided that not':

Manent ingenia, modo permaneat industria, mental powers remain, if only industry remains.

II. With āc sī, ut sī, quam sī, quasi, tanquam, tanquam sī, velut, velut sī, 'as if,' 'than if,' involving an ellipsis of the real conclusion:

Perinde habēbō, āc sī scripissēs, I shall regard it just as if (i. e., as I should if) you had written.

XLVI. Concessive clauses take (515)—

I. Generally the INDICATIVE in the best prose, when introduced by quamquam:

Quamquam intellegunt, though they understand.

II. The INDICATIVE or SUBJUNCTIVE when introduced by etsi, etiamsi, tamen, or sī, like conditional clauses with sī:

Etsi nihil sciō quod gaudeam, though I know no reason why I should rejoice.

III. The SUBJUNCTIVE when introduced by licet, quamvis, ut, nō, cum, or the relative qui.

Licet irideat, though he may deride.

XLVII. Causal clauses with quod, quia, quoniam, quandō, generally take (516)—

I. The INDICATIVE to assign a reason positively on one's own authority:

Quoniam supplicatio decreta est, since a thanksgiving has been decreed.

II. The SUBJUNCTIVE to assign a reason doubtfully, or on another's authority:

Socrates accusatus est, quod corrumpere juvenutem, Socrates was accused, because he corrupted the youth.

XLVIII. Causal clauses with cum and qui generally take the Subjunctive in writers of the best period (517):

Cum vita metus plena sit, since life is full of fear.

XLIX. In temporal clauses with postquam, posteaquam, ubi, ut, simul atque, etc., 'after,' 'when,' 'as soon as,' the Indicative is used (518):

Postquam vidit, etc., castra posuit, he pitched his camp, after he saw, etc.

L. I. Temporal clauses with dum, dōnec, and quoad, in the sense of WHILE, AS LONG AS, take the INDICATIVE (519):

Haec fecit, dum licuit, I did this while it was allowed.

II. Temporal clauses with dum, dōnec, and quoad, in the sense of UNTIL, take—

1. The INDICATIVE, when the action is viewed as an ACTUAL FACT:

Deliberā hōc, dum ego redeō, consider this until I return.

2. The SUBJUNCTIVE, when the action is viewed as something DESIRED, PROPOSED, or CONCEIVED:

Differant, dum dēservēscat ira, let them defer it till their anger cools.

LI. In temporal clauses with antequam and priusquam (520)—

- I. Any tense except the Imperfect and Pluperfect is put—

1. In the INDICATIVE, when the action is viewed as an ACTUAL FACT:

Priusquam lūcet, adsunt, they are present before it is light.

2. In the SUBJUNCTIVE, when the action is viewed as something DESIRED, PROPOSED, or CONCEIVED:

Antequam dē rē publicā dicam, before I (can) speak of the republic.

II. The Imperfect and Pluperfect are put in the SUBJUNCTIVE:

Antequam urbem caperent, before they took the city.

LII. In temporal clauses with cum (521)—

- I. Any tense except the Imperfect and the Pluperfect is put in the INDICATIVE:

Cum quiescunt, probant, while they are silent, they approve.

II. The Imperfect and Pluperfect are put—

1. In the INDICATIVE, when the temporal clause ASSERTS AN HISTORICAL FACT:

Páruit cum necesse erat, he obeyed when it was necessary.

2. In the SUBJUNCTIVE, when the temporal clause simply DEFINES THE TIME of the principal action:

Cum epistolam complicārem, while I was folding the letter.

LIII. The principal clauses of the DIRECT DISCOURSE on becoming INDIRECT take the INFINITIVE or SUBJUNCTIVE as follows (522):

- I. When DECLARATIVE, they take the Infinitive with a Subject Accusative:

Dicēbat animōs esse divinōs, he was wont to say that souls are divine.

II. When INTERROGATIVE, they take—

1. Generally the Subjunctive:

Ad postulāta Caesaris respondit, quid sibi vellet, cūr veniret, to the demands of Caesar he replied, what did he wish, why did he come?

2. Sometimes the Infinitive with a Subject Accusative, as in rhetorical questions:

Docēbant rem esse testimoniō, etc.; quid esse levius, they showed the fact was a proof, etc.; what was more inconsiderate?

III. When IMPERATIVE, they take the Subjunctive:

Scribit Labiënō cum legiōne veniat, he writes to Labienus to come (that he should come) with a legion.

LIV. The subordinate clauses of the DIRECT DISCOURSE, on becoming INDIRECT, take the Subjunctive (524):

Respondit se id quod in Nervii fecisset facturum, he replied that he would do what he had done in the case of the Nervii.

LV. The Subjunctive is used (529)—

I. In indirect questions:

Queritur, cur doctissimi homines dissentiant, it is a question, why the most learned men disagree.

II. Often in clauses dependent upon an Infinitive or upon another Subjunctive:

Nihil indignius est quam eum qui culpā careat supplicio nōn carere, nothing is more shameful than that he who is free from fault should not be exempt from punishment.

INFINITIVE.

LVI. Many verbs admit an Infinitive to complete or qualify their meaning (533):

Hæc vitare cupimus, we desire to avoid these things.

LVII. Many transitive verbs admit both an Accusative and an Infinitive (534):

Tē sapere docet, he teaches you to be wise.

LVIII. The Infinitive sometimes takes an Accusative as its subject (536):

Platōnem Tarentum venisse reperio, I find that Plato came to Tarentum.

SUPINE.

LIX. The Supine in um is used with verbs of motion to express PURPOSE (546):

Lēgati vēnērunt res repetitum, deputies came to demand restitution.

LX. The Supine in ū is generally used as an Ablative of Specification (547):

Quid est tam jucundum auditū, what is so agreeable to hear (in hearing)?

ADVERBS.

LXI. Adverbs qualify VERBS, ADJECTIVES, and other ADVERBS (551):

Sapientes feliciter vivunt, the wise live happily.

CHAPTER VIII.

ARRANGEMENT OF WORDS AND CLAUSES.

559. The Latin admits of great variety in the arrangement of the different parts of the sentence, thus affording peculiar facilities both for securing proper emphasis, and for imparting to its periods that harmonious flow which characterizes the Latin classics. But with all this freedom and variety, there are certain general laws of arrangement which it will be useful to notice.

I. ARRANGEMENT OF WORDS.

General Rules.

560. The Subject followed by its modifiers occupies the first place in the sentence, and the Predicate preceded by its modifiers the last place :

Sol oriens diem cōficit, the sun rising makes the day. Cic. Animus seger semper errat, a diseased mind always errs. Cic. Miltiades Athēnas liberāvit, Miltiades liberated Athens. Nep.

561. EMPHASIS and EUPHONY affect the arrangement of words.

I. Any word, except the subject, may be made emphatic by being placed at the BEGINNING of the sentence :

Silent lēgēs inter arma, laws ARE SILENT in war. Cic. Numitori Remus deditur, Remus is delivered to NUMITOR. Liv.

II. Any word, except the predicate, may be made emphatic by being placed at the END of the sentence :

Nōbis nōn satisfacit ipse Demosthenēs, even DEMOSTHENES does not satisfy us. Cic. Cōsulātum petivit nūquam, he NEVER sought the consulship. Cic.

III. Two words naturally connected, as a noun and its adjective, or a noun and its Genitive, are sometimes made emphatic by SEPARATION :

Obiurgātiōnēs nōnnūquam incidunt necessariæ, sometimes necessary REPROOFS occur. Cic. Iustitiæ fungatur officiis, let him discharge the duties of justice. Cic.

NOTE.—A word may be made emphatic by being placed between the parts of a compound tense :

Magna adhibita cūra est, great care has been taken. Cic.

562. CHIASMUS.¹—When two groups of words are contrasted, the order of the first is often reversed in the second :

¹ So called from the Greek letter X.

Fragile corpus animus sempiternus movet, the imperishable soul moves the perishable body. Cic.

563. KINDRED WORDS.—Different forms of the same word, or different words of the same derivation, are generally placed near each other:

Ad senem senex de senectute scripsi, I, an old man, wrote to an old man on the subject of old age. Cic. Inter se alius alii præsunt, they benefit each other. Cic.

564. A word which has a COMMON RELATION to two other words connected by conjunctions, is placed—

I. Generally before or after both:

Pacis et artes et gloria, both the arts and the glory of peace. Liv. Bellicaeque artes, the arts of war and of peace. Liv.

NOTE.—A Genitive or an adjective following two nouns may qualify both, but it more frequently qualifies only the latter:

Haec percunctatio ac denuntiatio belli, this inquiry and this declaration of war. Liv.

II. Sometimes directly after the first before the conjunction:

Honoris certamen et gloriae, a struggle for honor and glory. Cic. Agri omnes et maria, all lands and seas. Cic.

Special Rules.

565. The MODIFIERS OF A NOUN generally follow it. They may be either adjectives or nouns:

Populus Romanus decrevit, the Roman people decreed. Cic. Herodotus, pater historiae, Herodotus, the father of history. Cic. Liber de officiis, the book on duties. Cic.

1. Modifiers, when emphatic, are placed before their nouns:

Tuscan ager Romanò adjacet, the Tuscan territory borders on the Roman. Liv.

2. When a noun is modified both by an Adjective and by a Genitive, the usual order is, Adjective—Genitive—noun:

Magna civium penuria, a great scarcity of citizens. Cic.

3. An adjective is often separated from its noun by a monosyllable preposition:

Magnò cum periculò esse, to be attended with great peril. Cic.

4. In the poets an adjective is often separated from its noun by the modifier of another noun:

Insuperata tuae veniet pluma superbiae, the unexpected down shall come upon your pride. Hor.

566. The MODIFIERS OF AN ADJECTIVE generally precede it, but, if not adverbs, they may follow it:

Facile doctissimus, unquestionably the most learned. Cic. Omni aetati communis, common to every age. Cic. Avidus laudis, desirous of praise. Cic.

567. The MODIFIERS OF A VERB generally precede it:

Glória virtutem sequitur, glory follows virtue. Cic. Mundus deo paret, the world is subject to God. Cic. Vehementer dixit, he spoke vehemently. Cic.

1. When the verb is placed at the beginning of the sentence, the modifiers, of course, follow; see the first example under 561, I.

2. An emphatic modifier may of course stand at the beginning or at the end of the sentence (561):

Facillimè cõgnoscuntur adulescentès, most easily are the young men recognised. Cic.

3. Of two or more modifiers belonging to the same verb, that which in thought is most intimately connected with the verb stands next to it, while the others are arranged as emphasis and euphony may require:

Mors propter brevitatẽ vitæ nũquam longè abest, death is never far distant, in consequence of the shortness of life. Cic.

568. The MODIFIERS OF AN ADVERB generally precede it, but a Dative often follows it:

Valdè vehementer dixit, he spoke very vehemently. Cic. Congruenter naturæ vivit, he lives agreeably to nature. Cic.

569. SPECIAL WORDS.—Some words have a favorite place in the sentence, which they seldom leave. Thus—

I. The Demonstrative generally precedes its noun:

Custòs hujus urbis, the guardian of this city. Cic.

1. Ille in the sense of well-known (450, 4) generally follows its noun, if not accompanied by an adjective:

Médæa illa, that well-known Medea. Cic.

2. Pronouns are often brought together, especially quisque with suus or eius:

Jústitia eum cuique tribuit, justice gives to every man his due (his own). Cic. Qui sés student præstáro, etc., who are eager to excel, etc. Sall.

II. Prepositions generally stand directly before their cases, but tenuis and versus follow their cases:

In Asiam profúgit, he fled into Asia. Cic. Collò tenuis, up to the neck. Ov.

1. The preposition frequently follows the relative, sometimes other pronouns, and sometimes even nouns, especially in poetry:

Rês quæ de agitur, the subject of which we are treating. Cic. Italiam contrá, over against Italy. Verg. Corpus in Aescidae, into the body of Aescides. Verg.

2. For cum appended to an Ablative, see 184, 6; 187, 2.

3. Genitives, adverbs, and a few other words sometimes stand between the preposition and its case. In adjurations per is usually separated from its case by the Accusative of the object adjured, or by some other word; and sometimes the verb oro is omitted:

Post Alexandri magni mortem, after the death of Alexander the Great. Cic. Ad bene vivendum, for living well. Cic. Per ego hãs lacrimãs tẽ oro, I implore you by these tears. Verg. Per ego vós deòs (= per deòs ego vós oro), I pray you in the name of the gods. Curt.

III. Conjunctions and Relatives, when they introduce clauses, generally stand at the beginning of such clauses; but autem, enim, quidem, quoque, vêrò, and generally igitur, follow some other word:

Si peccávi, ignosce, if I have erred, pardon me. Cic. II qui superiores sunt, those who are superior. Cic. Ipsæ autem omnia vidēbat, but he himself saw all things. Cic.

1. A conjunction may follow a relative or an emphatic word, and a relative may follow an emphatic word :

Id ut audivit, as he heard this. Nep. Quæ cum ita sint, since these things are so. Cic. Trōjæ qui primus ab oris vēnit, who came first from the shores of Troy. Verg.

NOTE.—Certain conjunctions, as et, neq, sed, and even aut and vel, are more frequently removed from the beginning of the clause in poetry than in prose :

Compressus et omnis impetus, and all violence was checked. Verg.

2. Nō—quidem takes the emphatic word or words between the two parts :

Nō in oppidis quidem, not even in the towns. Cic.

3. Quidem often follows pronouns, superlatives, and ordinals :

Ex mē quidem nihil audiet, from me indeed he will hear nothing. Cic.

4. Quæ, et, ne, introducing a clause or phrase, are generally appended to the first word ; but if that word is a preposition, they are often appended to the next word :

In forōque, and in the forum. Cic. Inter nōque, and among us. Cic.

IV. Nōn, when it qualifies some single word, stands directly before that word ; but when it is particularly emphatic, or qualifies the entire clause, it sometimes stands at the beginning of the clause, and sometimes before the finite verb or before the auxiliary of a compound tense :

Hæc villâ carere nōn possunt, they are not able to do without this villa. Cic. Nōn fuit Juppiter metuendus, Jupiter was not to be feared. Cic. Fās nōn putant, they do not think it right. Cic. Pecūnia solūta nōn est, the money has not been paid. Cic.

1. In general, in negative clauses the negative word, whether particle, verb, or noun, is made prominent :

Negat quemquam pōsse, he denies that any one is able. Cic. Nihil est melius, nothing is better. Cic.

V. Inquam, sometimes aiō, introducing a quotation, follows one or more of the words quoted. The subject, if expressed, generally follows its verb :

Nihil, inquit Brūtus, quod dicam, nothing which I shall state, said Brutus. Cic.

VI. The Vocative rarely stands at the beginning of a sentence. It usually follows an emphatic word :

Perge, Laeli, proceed, Laelius. Cic.

II. ARRANGEMENT OF CLAUSES.

570. Clauses connected by coördinate conjunctions (554) follow each other in the natural order of the thought, as in English :

Sol ruit et montes umbrantur, the sun hastens to its setting, and the mountains are shaded. Verg. Gygæ a nullo vidēbatur, ipse autem omnia vidēbat, Gyges was seen by no one, but he himself saw all things. Cic.

571. A clause used as the SUBJECT of a complex sentence (348) generally stands at the beginning of the sentence, and a clause used as the PREDICATE at the end :

Quid diēs ferat incertum est, what a day may bring forth is uncertain. Cic. Exitus fuit orationis, sibi nullam cum his amicitiam esse, the close of the oration was, that he had no friendship with these men. Caes.

1. This arrangement is the same as that of the simple sentence; see 560.

2. Emphasis and euphony often have the same effect upon the arrangement of clauses as upon the arrangement of words; see 561.

572. Clauses used as the SUBORDINATE ELEMENTS of complex sentences admit three different arrangements:

I. They are generally inserted within the principal clause, like the subordinate elements of a simple sentence:

Hostēs, ubi primum nostrōs equitēs cōspēxērunt, celeriter nostrōs perurbāverunt, the enemy, as soon as they saw our cavalry, quickly put our men to rout. Caes. Sententia, quae tūtissima videbatur, vicit, the opinion which seemed the safest prevailed. Liv.

II. They are often placed before the principal clause:

Cum quiescunt, probant, while they are quiet, they approve. Cic. Quālis sit animus, animus nescit, the soul knows not what the soul is. Cic.

NOTE.—This arrangement is generally used when the subordinate clause either refers back to the preceding sentence, or is preparatory to the thought of the principal clause. Hence temporal, conditional, and concessive clauses often precede the principal clause. Hence also, in sentences composed of correlative clauses with is—quī, tālis—quālis, tantus—quantus, tum—cum, ita—ut, etc., the relative member, i. e., the clause with quī, quālis, quantus, cum, ut, etc., generally precedes.

III. They sometimes follow the principal clause:

Entititur ut vincat, he strives that he may conquer. Cic. Sol efficit ut omnia flōreant, the sun causes all things to bloom. Cic.

NOTE.—This arrangement is generally used when the subordinate clause is either intimately connected in thought with the following sentence, or explanatory of the principal clause. Hence, clauses of Purpose and Result generally follow the principal clause, as in the examples.

573. LATIN PERIODS.—A complex sentence in which two or more subordinate clauses are inserted within the principal clause is called a PERIOD in the strict sense of the term.

NOTE 1.—The examples given under 572, I., are short and simple examples of Latin Periods.

NOTE 2.—Many Latin periods consist of several carefully constructed clauses so united as to form one complete harmonious whole. For examples, see Cicero's Third Oration against Catiline, XII., 'Sed quoniam . . . prōvidēre'; also Livy, I., 6, 'Numitor, inter primum . . . ostendit.'

NOTE 3.—In a freer sense the term Period is sometimes applied to all complex sentences which end with principal clauses. In this sense the examples given under 572, II., are Periods. Many carefully elaborated Latin sentences are constructed in this way; see Cicero's Oration for the Poet Archias, I., 'Quod si haec . . . dēbēmus'; also the First Oration against Catiline, XIII., 'Ut saepe hominēs . . . ingravescet.'

PART FOURTH.

P R O S O D Y .

574. Prosody treats of Quantity and Versification.

CHAPTER I.

QUANTITY.

575. The time occupied in pronouncing a syllable in poetry is called its quantity.¹ Syllables are accordingly characterized as *long, short, or common.*²

I. GENERAL RULES OF QUANTITY.

576. A syllable is LONG IN QUANTITY—

I. If it contains a DIPHTHONG, or is the result of CONTRACTION :

haec, foedus, aura ; oïgō (for coigō), occeidō (for occaēdō), nīl (for nihīl).
1. Præ in composition is usually short before a vowel : præacūtus.

II. If its vowel is followed by J, X, or Z, or any TWO CONSONANTS except a mute and a liquid :³

mājor, dux, servus, sunt, regunt, rēgnum, agmen.

1. But one or both of the consonants must belong to the same word as the vowel : ab ⁴ ēde, per ⁵ axa.

NOTE 1.—H has no tendency in combination with any consonant to lengthen a preceding syllable. Hence in such words as Achæus, Athēnae, the first syllable is short.

NOTE 2.—In the early poets a short final syllable ending in s remained short before a word beginning with a consonant ; sometimes also short final syllables ending in other consonants : imāginis formam, enim vērō, erat dictū.⁶

¹ In many cases the quantity of syllables may be best learned from the Dictionary, but in others the student may be greatly aided by certain general statements or rules.

² That is, sometimes long and sometimes short.

³ Here the syllable is long by nature if the vowel is long, but long only by position if the vowel is short. For the quantity of vowels before two consonants or a double consonant, see §51.

⁴ Here ab becomes long before s in ēde, and per before s in axa.

⁵ Here the syllables ēa, im, and at remain short.

NOTE 3.—In the early poets many syllables long by position in the Augustan poets are sometimes short, as the first syllable of ecce, ergo, illa, inter, omnia, unde, uxor.

NOTE 4.—A final syllable ending in a vowel is occasionally, though rarely, lengthened by consonants at the beginning of the following word.

NOTE 5.—In Greek words a syllable with a vowel before a mute and a nasal is sometimes short: cynus, Tecmessa.

2. In the compounds of jugum, the syllable before j is short: bijugus.

577. A syllable is SHORT IN QUANTITY if its vowel is followed in the same word by another VOWEL, by a DIPHTHONG, or by the aspirate H :

diēs, doceō, viae, nihil.

1. The following vowels, with the syllables which contain them, are long by EXCEPTION :

1. A—(1) in the Genitive ending ai of Dec. I: aulai; (2) in proper names in aius: Gaius (Gājus); (3) before ia, ie, io, iu, in the verb aiō.

2. E—(1) in the ending ei of Dec. V. when preceded by a vowel: diēi; and sometimes when preceded by a consonant: fidēi, rēi; often in the Dative Singular of the pronoun is: ēi; (2) in proper names in aius: Pompaius; (3) in ēheu, and in Rhēa.¹

3. I—(1) in the verb fiō, when not followed by er: fiām, fiēbam, but fiēri; ² (2) in dius, a, um (for divus, a, um); (3) generally in the Genitive ending iūs: aliūs, illius; (4) sometimes in Diana.

4. O—sometimes in dhē.

5. In Greek words vowels are often long before a vowel, because long in the original: āēr, Aenēas, Briseis, Menelaus, Trōes.

NOTE.—This often occurs in proper names in ea, ia, ēus, iūs, āōn, iōn, āis, ōis, dius: Mēdēa, Alexandria, Pēnēus, Dārius, Orion.

578. A syllable is COMMON IN QUANTITY if its vowel, naturally short, is followed by a mute and a liquid :

ager, agri; pater, patris; duplex, triplex.

NOTE 1.—A syllable ending in a mute in the first part of a compound before a liquid at the beginning of the second part is long: ab-rumpō, ob-rogo.

NOTE 2.—In Plautus and Terence a syllable with a short vowel before a mute and a liquid is short.

II. QUANTITY OF FINAL SYLLABLES.

579. Monosyllables are long :

ā, dā, tā, sē, dā, si, qui, dō, prō, tū, dōs, pēs, sis, bōs, sūs, pār, sōl.

¹ The name of the daughter of Numitor, and of a priestess in Vergil. In Elēā, another name for Oybēlā, the e is short.

² Sometimes fiēri in Plautus and Terence.

I. The following are short by EXCEPTION :

1. Enclitics : que, ve, ne, ce, te, pe, ple.
2. Monosyllables in b, d, l, m, t : ab, ad, fel, sum, et ; except sal, sol.
3. An, bis, cis, cor, es, fac, fer, in, is, nec, os (ossis), per, ter, qua (indefinite), quia, vir, vas (vadis), and sometimes hic and hæc in the Nominative and Accusative.

580. In words of more than one syllable—

I. The final vowels i, o, and u are long; a, e, and y, short :¹

marī, audī, servō, omnīnō, fructū, cornū ; via, marīa, mare, miy.

II. Final syllables in o are long ; in d, l, m, n, r, t, short :
alac, illac ; illud, cōsul, amem, carmen, amor, caput.

NOTE 1.—Dēno and lūn are exceptions.

NOTE 2.—Final syllables in s and r are long in many Greek words which end long in the original: as Titōn, Anachōrēn, Hymēn, Delphōn, dēr, aethēr, ordēr.

III. The final syllables as, es, and os are long ; is, us, ys, short :

amās, mēnsās, monēs, nūbēs, servōs ; avis, urbis, bonus, chlamys.

NOTE 1.—The learner will remember that short final syllables like te, us, etc., may be lengthened by being placed before a word beginning with a consonant; see 576, II.

NOTE 2.—Plautus retains the original quantity of many final syllables usually short in the Augustan age. Thus the endings ā, ē, ōl, ōr, ōr, ōs, ōs, ōs, ōs, ōs, often stand in place of the later endings a, e, al, ar, or, ōs, ōs, ōs, ōs (§1). Some of these early forms are retained by Terence, and some of them occasionally occur in the Augustan poets.

NOTE 3.—Plautus and Terence, in consequence of the colloquial character of comedy, often shorten unaccented final syllables after an accented short syllable : ama, abī, dedī, domī, domo, viro, pedes.

NOTE 4.—In Plautus and Terence the doubling of a letter does not usually affect the quantity of the syllable : ū in illū, mm in immō, pp in opportūnū.

581. Numerous exceptions to the general rule for the quantity of final syllables occur even in classical Latin :

I. I final, usually LONG, is sometimes SHORT or COMMON—

1. SHORT in niſi, quāsi, cui (when a dissyllable), and in the Greek ending ſi of the Dative and Ablative Plural.

2. COMMON in mīhī, tūhī, nīhī, vīhī, ūhī, and in the Dative and Vocative Singular of some Greek words.

II. O final, usually LONG, is SHORT—

1. In duo, ego, octo, ego, in the adverbs cito, ilico, modo, and its compounds, quomodo, quomodo, etc., in cedo, and in the old form endo.

¹ U is short in indu and nēnu. Contracted syllables are long, according to 576, I.

2. Sometimes (1) in nouns of Dec. III. and (2) in verbs, though very rarely in the best poets.

III. A final, usually SHORT, is LONG—

1. In the Ablative: mēnsā, bonā, illā.
2. In the Vocative of Greek nouns in ās: *Aenā, Pallā.*¹
3. In Verbs and Particles: amā, cūrā; circā, juxtiā, antiā, frustrā. Except ita, quia, ēja, hēja, and puta used adverbially.

IV. E final, usually SHORT, is LONG—

1. In Dec. I. and V.,² and in Greek plurals of Dec. III.: epitomā; rē, diē; tempē, melē.
2. Generally in the Dative ending ē of Dec. III.: aerē = aeri.
3. In the Singular Imperative Active of Conj. II.: monē, docē. But e is sometimes short in *cavē, vidē, etc.*³
4. In ferē, fermē, dhē, and in adverbs from adjectives of Dec. II.: dōctē, rēctē. Except bene, male, inferne, interne, superna.

V. As final, usually LONG, is SHORT—

1. In anas and in a few Greek nouns in as: Arcas, lampas.
2. In Greek Accusatives of Dec. III.: Arcadas, hērōas.

VI. Eis final, usually LONG, is SHORT—

1. In Nominatives Singular of Dec. III. with short increment (582) in the Genitive: miles (itis), obses (idis), interpres (etis). Except abies, aries, paries, Ceres, and compounds of pēs, as bipēs, tripēs, etc.
2. In penes and the compounds of es, as ades, potes.
3. In Greek words—(1) in the plural of those which increase in the Genitive: Arcades, Trōades; (2) in a few neuters in es: Hippomenes; (3) in a few Vocatives Singular: Demosthenes.

VII. Os final, usually LONG, is SHORT—

1. In compos, impos, exos.
2. In Greek words with the ending short in the Greek: Delos, melos.

VIII. Is final, usually SHORT, is LONG—

1. In plural cases: mēnsis, servis, vōbis. Hence foris, grātis, ingrātis.
2. In Nominatives of Dec. III. increasing long in the Genitive: Quiris (tis), Salamis (inis).
3. In the Singular Present Indic. Act. of Conj. IV.: audis.

NOTE.—Mūvis, quivis, utervis, follow the quantity of vis.

4. In the Singular Present Subj. Act.: possis, velis, nōlis, mālīs.

² Hence, in the compounds, hōdēs, pridēs, postridēs, quādrēs.

³ In the comic poets many dissyllabic Imperatives with a short penult shorten the ultimate: as habe, fuge, mane, move, tace, tene, etc.

5. Sometimes in the Singular of the Future Perfect and of the Perfect Subjunctive: amāveris, docueris.

IX. Us final, usually SHORT, is LONG—

1. In Nominatives of Dec. III. increasing long in the Genitive: virtūs (ūtis), tellūs (ūris).

NOTE.—But palus (a short) occurs in Horace, Ars Poetica, 65.

2. In Dec. IV., in the Genitive Singular, and in the Nominative, Accusative, and Vocative Plural: fructūs.

3. In Greek words ending long in the original: Panthūs, Szpphūs, tripūs.

NOTE.—But we have Oedipus and polyppus.

III. QUANTITY IN INCREMENTS.

582. A word is said to increase in declension, when it has in any case more syllables than in the Nominative Singular, and to have as many increments of declension as it has additional syllables: sermō, sermōnis, sermōnibus.¹

583. A verb is said to increase in conjugation, when it has in any part more syllables than in the second person singular of the Present Indicative Active, and to have as many increments of conjugation as it has additional syllables: amās, amātis, amābātis.²

584. If there is but one increment, it is uniformly the penult; if there are more than one, they are the penult with the requisite number of syllables before it. The increment nearest the beginning of the word is called the first increment, and those following this are called successively the second, third, and fourth increments.³

Increments of Declension.

585. In the Increments of Declension, a and o are long; e, i, u, and y, short:⁴

aetās, aetātis, aetātibus; sermō, sermōnis; puer, pueri, puerōrum; fulgur, fulguris; chlamys, chlamydis; bonus, bonarum, bonōrum; ille, illarum, illōrum; miser, miseri; supplex, supplicis; satur, saturi.

I. A, usually LONG in the increments of declension, is SHORT in the first increment—⁵

¹ Sermōnis, having one syllable more than sermō, has one increment, while sermōnibus has two increments.

² Amātis has one increment, amābātis two.

³ In ser-mōn-i-bus, the first increment is mōn, the second i; and in mon-u-erā-mus, the first is u, the second e, the third rā.

⁴ Y occurs only in Greek words, and is long in the increments of nouns in yn and of a few others.

⁵ Observe that the exceptions belong to the first increment.

1. Of masculines in al and ar: Hannibal, Hannibalis; Caesar, Caesaris.
2. Of nouns in s preceded by a consonant: daps, dapis; Arabs, Arabis; hiems, hiemis.
3. Of Greek nouns in a and as: pœma, pœmatis; Pallas, Palladis.
4. Of (1) baccar, hæpar, jubar, ūr, nectar, pār, and its compounds; (2) anas, mās, vas (vadis); (3) sāl, fax, and a few rare Greek words in ax.

II. O, usually LONG in the increments of declension, is SHORT in the first increment—¹

1. Of Neuters in Declension III.: asquor, asquoris; tempus, temporis. Except ōs (ōris), ador (adōris), and comparatives.
2. Of words in s preceded by a consonant: inops, inopis. Except Cyclōps and hydrōps.
3. Of arbor, bōs, lepus; compos, impos, memor, immemor; Allobrox, Cap-padox, praecox.
4. Of most Patrials: Macedō, Macedonis.
5. Of many Greek nouns—(1) those in ōr: rhetōr, Hector; (2) many in ō and ōn increasing short in Greek: ædōn, ædonis; (3) in Greek compounds in pūs or pus: tripūs (odis), Oedipus.

III. E, usually SHORT in the increments of declension, is LONG in the first increment—

1. Of Declension V.: diēs, diērum, diēbus, rēbus. But in the Genitive and Dative Singular sometimes short after a consonant: fidēs, spēs.
2. Of nouns in en, mostly Greek: liēn, liēnis; Sirēn, Sirēnis. So Aniō, Aniōnis.
3. Of Celliber, Iber, vēr, hērēs, locuplēs, merces, quies, inquis, requies, plēbs, lāx, rēx, dīcō, dīcō, vērēx.
4. Of a few Greek words in ēs and ēr: lobēs, lobētis; crētēr, crētēris. Except dēr and aether.

IV. I, usually SHORT in the increments of declension, is LONG in the first increment—

1. Of most words in ix: rādix, radicis; felix, felicitis.²
2. Of dū, glis, lis, vis, Quiris, Samnis.
3. Of delphin, and a few rare Greek words.

NOTE.—For quantity of i in the ending iūs, see 577, 2.

V. U, usually SHORT in the increments of declension, is LONG in the first increment—

1. Of nouns in us with the Genitive in oris, utis, udis: jūs, jūris; salūs, salutis; palūs, palūdis.³
2. Of fūr, frūx, lūx, plūs, Pollux.

² But short in appendix, calix, Ollia, ūlia, fornix, nix, pia, calix, strix, and a few others, chiefly proper names.

³ But short in intercus, Ligus, pecus.

Increments of Conjugation.

586. In the Increments of Conjugation (583), a, e, and o are long ; i and u short :

amāmus, amēmus, amātōte ; regimus, sumus.

NOTE 1.—In ascertaining the increments of the irregular verbs, ferō, volō, and their compounds, the full form of the second person, feris, volis, etc., must be used. Thus in ferēbam and volēbam, the increments are rē and lē.

NOTE 2.—In ascertaining the increments of reduplicated forms (255, L), the reduplication is not counted. Thus dedimus has but one increment, dē.

I. A, usually LONG in the increments of conjugation, is SHORT in the first increment of dō : dare, dabam, circumdabam.

II. E, usually LONG in the increments of conjugation, is SHORT before r—

1. In the tenses in ram, rim, rō : amāveram, amāverim, amāvero ; rēxerat, rēxerit.

2. In the first increment of the Present and Imperfect of Conjugation III. : regerē, regeris, regerem, regeret.

3. In the Future ending beris, bere : amāberis or -ere, monāberis.

4. Rarely in the Perfect ending erunt : ediderunt for edētrunt ; see 236, note ; also Systole, 608, VI.

III. I, usually SHORT in the increments of conjugation, is LONG, except before a vowel—

1. In the first increment of Conjugation IV., except imus of the Perfect : audire, audivī, auditum ; sentire, sentimus ; cōsueimus (Perfect).

2. In Conjugation III., in the first increment of Perfects and Supines in ivī and itum (278), and of the parts derived from them (except imus of the Perfect : trivimus) : cupivī, cupiverat, cupitus ; petivī, petitus ; capessivī, capessitūrus. Gāvius from gaudeō follows the same analogy.

3. In the endings imus and itis of the Present Subjunctive : simus, sitis ; velimus, velitis (240, 8).

4. In nōlīte, nōlītō, nōlītōte, and in the different persons of ibam, ibō, from eo (295).

5. Sometimes in the endings rimus and ritis of the Future Perfect and Perfect Subjunctive : amāverimus, amāveritis.

IV. U, usually SHORT in the increments of conjugation, is LONG in the Supine and the parts formed from it : volūtum, volūtūrus, amātūrus.

IV. QUANTITY OF DERIVATIVE ENDINGS.

587. The most important derivative endings may be classified according to quantity as follows :

I. Derivative endings with a LONG PENULT :

1. ābrum, ācorum, ātrum :

fiābrum, simulācrum, arātrum.

2. ēdō, idō, ūdō; āgō, Igō, ūgō:

dulcedō, cupidō, sōlitūdō; vorāgō, orīgō, aerūgō.

3. *āis, ēis, ōis, ōtis, inō, ōnō—in patronymics:*¹

Ptolemāis, Chrýsēis, Minōis, Icariōtis, Nērīnē, Acrisiōnē.

4. ēla, ile; ālis, ēlis, ūlis:

querēla, ovile; mortālis, fidēlis, curālis.

5. ānus, ēnus, ōnus, ūnus; āna, ēna, ōna, ūna:

urbānus, egēnus, patrōnus, tribūnus; membrāna, habēna, annōna, lacūna.

6. āris, ārus; ōrus, ōus; āvus, ivus:

salūtāris, avārus; canōrus, animōsus; octāvus, aestivus.

7. *ātus, ētus, itus, ōtus, ūtus; ātim, itim, ūtim; ētum, ēta:*² ālātus, facētus, turritus, aegrōtus, cornūtus; singulātim, virtūtim, tribūtūtim; quercētum, monēta.

8. ēnī, inī, ōnī—in distributives:

septēnī, quīnī, octōnī.

II. Derivative endings with a SHORT PENULT—

1. *adēs, iadēs, idēs—in patronymics:*³

Aenēadēs, Lāertiadēs, Tantalidēs.

2. *iacus, icus, idus:*⁴

Corinthiacus, modicus, cupidus.

3. olus, ola, olum; ulus, ula, ulum; oulus, oola, oulum—in diminutives:

filiolus, filiola, atriolum; hortulus, virgula, oppidulum; flosculus, particula, mūnusculum.

4. etās, itās—in nouns; iter, itus—in adverbs:

pietās, vērītās; fortiter, divinitus.

5. *ātilis, ilis, bilis—in verbals; inus—in adjectives denoting material or time:*⁵ versātilis, docilis, amābilis; adamantinus, cedrinus, crāstinus, diūtinus.

NOTE 1.—ilis in adjectives from nouns usually has the penult long: ciēilis, hostilis, puerilis, virilis.

NOTE 2.—Inus denoting characteristic (330) usually has the penult long: caninus, equinus, marinus.

² Except (1) anhēlitus, fortūlitus, grātūlitus, hālitus, hospitus, epiritus; (2) adfatim, statim, and adverbs in itus, as divinitus; and (3) participles provided for by 586.

³ Except (1) those in idēs from nouns in eus and ēs: as, Pēlidēs (Pēleus), Neoclidēs (Neoclēs); and (2) Amphiarūdidēs, Amīclidēs, Bēlidēs, Corōnidēs, Lycōrgidēs.

⁴ Except amicus, anticus, aprius, mendicus, posticus, pudicus.

III. Derivative endings with a LONG ANTEPENULT:

1. āceus, fūceus, āneus, ārius, ārium, ōrius:
rosāceus, pannūceus, subitāneus, cibārius, columbārium, cēnsōrius.
2. ābundus, ācundus; ābilis, ātilis, āticus:
mirābundus, irācundus; amābilis, versātilis, aquāticus.
3. āgintā, īginti, ōsimus—in numerals:
nōnāgintā, vīginti, centēsīmus.
4. imōnia, imōnium; tōrius, sōrius; tōria, tōrium:
querimōnia, alimōnium; amātōrius, cēnsōrius; victōria, auditōrium.

IV. Derivative endings with a SHORT ANTEPENULT:

1. ibilis, itūdō, olentus, ulentus:
crēdibilis, sōlitūdō, vinolentus, opulentus.
2. uriō—in desideratives:
ēsuriō, ēempturiō, parturiō.

V. QUANTITY OF STEM-SYLLABLES.

588. All simple verbs in iō of the Third Conjugation (§17) have the stem-syllable ¹ short:

capīō, cupīō, faciō, fodiō, fugiō.

589. Most verbs which form the Perfect in ui have the stem-syllable short:

domō, secō, habeo, moneo, alō, colō.

NOTE.—Pōnō, dēdō, sōrō, pōrō, and several inceptive verbs, are exceptions.

590. Dissyllabic Perfects and Supines have the first syllable long, unless short by position:

juvō, jūvi, jūtum; foveō, fōvi, fōtum.

1. Eight Perfects and ten Supines have the first syllable short:

bibi, dedi, fidi, liqui,² cecidi, steti, stiti, tuli; *citum, datum, itum, litum, quitum, ratum, rutum, satum, situm, statum.*³

591. Trisyllabic Reduplicated Perfects have the first two syllables short:

cadō, cecidi; canō, cecini; disco, didici.

NOTE 1.—Caedō has cecidi in distinction from cecidi from cadō.

NOTE 2.—The second syllable may be made long by position: occurri, momordi.

592. In general, inflected forms retain the quantity of stem-syllables unchanged: ³

¹ That is, the syllable preceding the characteristic.

² Liqui from liquo; linguo has liqui. Statum from steto; stō has statum.

³ But see Dissyllabic Perfects and Supines, 590.

avis, avem; nūbēs, nūbium; levis, levior, levissimus; moneō, monēbam, monui.

NOTE 1.—Position may, however, affect the quantity: ager, agri; possum, potui; solvō, solūtum; volvō, volūtum.¹

NOTE 2.—Gignō gives genūi, genitum, and pōnō, posuī, positum.

593. Derivatives generally retain the quantity of the stem-syllables of their primitives:

bonus, bonitās; timeō, timor; animus, animōsus; civis, civicus; cūra, cūrō.

1. Words formed from the same root sometimes show a variation in the quantity of stem-syllables:

dicō,	dicō,	personō,	persōna,
dux, ducis,	dūcō,	regō,	rēx, rēgis, rēgula,
fidēs,	fidō,	secus,	sēcus,
homō,	hūmānus,	sedeō,	sēdēs, sēdulus,
lateō,	lāterna,	serō,	sēmen,
legō,	lēx, lēgis,	sopor,	sōpiō,
macer,	mācerō,	auspicior,	auspiciō,
moveō,	mōbilis,	tegō,	tēgula,
nota,	nōtum,	vadum,	vādō,
odium,	ōdi,	vocō,	vōx, vōcis.

NOTE 1.—This change of quantity in some instances is the result of contraction, as movibilis, moibilis, mōbilis, and in others it serves to distinguish words of the same orthography, as the verbs legis, legēs, regis, regēs, sedēs, from the nouns lēgis, lēgēs, rēgis, rēgēs, sēdēs, or the verbs dūcō, dūcēs, fidēs, from the nouns ducis, ducēs, fides.

NOTE 2.—A few derivatives shorten the long vowel of the primitive: acer, acerbus; lucēō, lucerna; mōlēs, molestus.

594. Compounds generally retain the quantity of their elements: ante-ferō, dē-ferō, dē-dūcō, in-aequālis, prō-dūcō.

1. The change of a vowel or diphthong does not affect the quantity:

dē-ligō (legō), oc-cidō (cadō), oc-cidō (casō).

2. The Inseparable Prepositions dē, cō, vē are long, re short; ne sometimes long and sometimes short:

didūcō, sēdūcō, vēcors, redūcō; nēdum, nefās:

NOTE 1.—Dē is short in dirtmō and disertus.

NOTE 2.—Nē is long in nēdum, nēmō, nēquam, nēquāquam, nēquiquam, nēquitta, and nēve. In other words it is short.

NOTE 3.—Re is sometimes lengthened in a few words: rēligō, rēliquias, rēpori, rēpuli, rēvultū, etc.

3. In a few words the quantity of the second element is changed. Thus—Jarō gives -jarō; nōtus, -nitus; nūbō, -nuba: dē-jerō, cōg-nitus, prō-nuba.

4. Præ in composition is usually short before a vowel: præacūtus, præstus.

5. Prō is short in the following words:

¹ Here the first syllable is short in ager, but common in agri (578); long in possum, solvō, volvō (576, II.), but short in potui, solūtum, and volūtum.

mūgeō	ōtium	pūber	sēdō	tōtus
mūniō	pāgus	pūniō	serēnus	trūdō
mūnus	pālor	pūrus	sērus	ūber

CHAPTER II.

VERSIFICATION.

SECTION I.

GENERAL VIEW OF THE SUBJECT.

596. Latin Versification is based upon QUANTITY. Syllables are combined into certain metrical groups called Feet, and feet, singly or in pairs, are combined into Verses.¹

1. In quantity or time the unit of measure is the short syllable, indicated either by a curve $\smile$ or by an eighth note in music, ♪ . A long syllable

¹ Modern versification is based upon ACCENT. An English verse is a regular combination of accented and unaccented syllables, but a Latin verse is a similar combination of long and short syllables. The rhythmic accent or ictus (599) in Latin depends entirely upon quantity. Compare the following lines:

Tell' me	not', in	mourn'-ful	num'-bers,
Life' is	but' an	emp'-ty	dream'.
Trū'-di-	tur' di-	ēs' di-	ē'.
At' ſi-	dēs' et	in'-ge-	nī'.

Observe that in the English lines the accent or ictus falls upon the same syllables as in prose, while in the Latin it falls uniformly upon long syllables. On Latin Versification, see Ramsay's 'Latin Prosody'; Schmidt's 'Rhythmik und Metrik,' translated by Professor White; Christ's 'Metrik.'

has in general twice the value of a short syllable,¹ and is indicated either by the sign —, or by a quarter note in music, . This unit of measure is also called a time or mora.

NOTE 1.—A long syllable is sometimes prolonged so as to have the value (1) of three short syllables, indicated by the sign —, or ; or (2) of four short syllables, indicated by —, or .

NOTE 2.—A long syllable is sometimes shortened so as to have the value of a short syllable, indicated by the sign >, or . A syllable thus used is said to have irrational time.

597. The feet of most frequent occurrence in the best Latin poets are—

I. FEET OF FOUR TIMES OR FOUR MORAE.

Dactyl,	one long and two short,	— ◡ ◡		carmina.
Spondee,	two long syllables,	— —		lægēs.

II. FEET OF THREE TIMES OR THREE MORAE.

Trochee, ²	one long and one short,	— ◡		lægis.
Iambus,	one short and one long,	◡ —		parēs.
Tribrach,	three short syllables,	◡ ◡ ◡		dominus.

NOTE 1.—To these may be added the following :

Pyrrhic,	◡ ◡	pater.	Ditrochee,	— ◡ — ◡	civitatē.
Anapaest,	◡ ◡ —	bonitās.	Dispondee,	— — — —	præceptōrēs.
Bacchius,	◡ — —	dolōrēs.	Greater Ionic,	— — — ◡	sententiā.
Cretic,	— ◡ —	milliās.	Lesser Ionic,	◡ — — —	adolēscētia.
Ditambus,	◡ — ◡ —	amoenitās.	Choriambus,	— ◡ ◡ —	impatētia. ³

NOTE 2.—A Dipody is a group of two feet; a *Tripod*y, of three; a Tetrapody, of four, etc. A Trihemimeris is a group of three half feet, i. e., a foot and a half; a Penthemimeris, of two and a half; a Hepthemimeris, of three and a half, etc.

598. METRICAL EQUIVALENTS.—A long syllable may be resolved into two short syllables, as equivalent to it in quantity, or two short syllables may be contracted into a long syllable. The forms thus produced are metrical equivalents of the original feet.

NOTE.—Thus the Dactyl becomes a Spondee by contracting the two short syllables into one long syllable; the Spondee becomes a Dactyl by resolving the second syllable, or an Anapaest by resolving the first. Accordingly, the Dactyl, the Spondee, and the Anapaest are metrical equivalents. In like manner the Iambus, the Trochee, and the Tribrach are metrical equivalents.

³ The feet here mentioned as having four syllables are only compounds of dissyllabic feet. Thus the Ditambus is a double Iambus; the Ditrochee, a double Trochee; the Dispondee, a double Spondee; the Greater Ionic, a Spondee and a Pyrrhic; the Lesser Ionic, a Pyrrhic and a Spondee; the Choriambus, a Trochee (Choree) and an Iambus.

1. In certain kinds of verse admitting irrational time (596, 1, note 2), Spondees, Dactyls, and Anapaests are shortened to the time of a Trochee or of an Iambus, and thus become metrical equivalents of each of these feet.

1) A Spondee used for a Trochee is called an IRRATIONAL TROCHEE, and is marked — >.

2) A Spondee used for an Iambus is called an IRRATIONAL IAMBUS, and is marked > —.

3) A Dactyl used for a Trochee is called a CYCLIC DACTYL, and is marked — ∪ ∪.

4) An Anapaest used for an Iambus is called a CYCLIC ANAPAEST, and is marked ∪ ∪ —.

599. ICTUS OR RHYTHMIC ACCENT.—As in the pronunciation of a word one or more syllables receive a special stress of voice called accent, so in the pronunciation of a metrical foot one or more syllables receive a special stress of voice called Rhythmic Accent or Ictus.

1. Feet consisting of both long and short syllables have the ictus uniformly on the long syllables, unless used as equivalents for other feet.

NORM.—Thus the Dactyl and the Trochee have the ictus on the first syllable; the Anapaest and the Iambus on the last.

2. EQUIVALENTS take the ictus of the feet for which they are used.

NORM 1.—Thus the Spondee, when used for the Dactyl, takes the ictus of the Dactyl—i. e., on the first syllable; but when used for the Anapaest, it takes the ictus of the Anapaest—i. e., on the last syllable.

NORM 2.—Feet consisting entirely of long or entirely of short syllables are generally used as equivalents, and are accented accordingly.

NORM 3.—When two short syllables of an equivalent take the place of an accented long syllable of the original foot, the ictus properly belongs to both of these syllables, but is marked upon the first. Thus a Tribrach used for an Iambus is marked ∪ ∪ ∪.

600. ARSIS AND THESIS.—The accented part of each foot is called the Arsis (raising), and the unaccented part, the Thesis (lowering).¹

601. VERSES.—A verse is a line of poetry (596). It has one characteristic or fundamental foot, which determines the ictus for the whole verse.

NORM 1.—Thus every dactylic verse has the ictus on the first syllable of each foot, because the Dactyl has the ictus on that syllable.

¹ Greek writers on versification originally used the terms ἀρσις and θεσις of raising and putting down the foot in marching or in beating time. Thus the Thesis was the accented part of the foot, and the Arsis the unaccented part. The Romans, however, applied the terms to raising and lowering the voice in reading. Thus Arsis came to mean the accented part of the foot, and Thesis the unaccented part. The terms have now been so long and so generally used in this sense that it is not deemed advisable to attempt to restore them to their original signification.

NOTE 2.—Two verses sometimes unite and form a compound verse; see 628, X.

NOTE 3.—Metre means measura, and is variously used, sometimes designating the measure or quantity of syllables, and sometimes the foot or *measure*¹ of a verse.

602. CAESURA OR CAESURAL PAUSE.—Most Latin verses are divided metrically into two nearly equal parts, each of which forms a rhythmic series. The pause, however slight, which naturally separates these parts is called—

1. A Caesura,² or a Caesural Pause, when it occurs within a foot; see §11.

2. A Diaeresis, when it occurs at the end of a foot; see §11, 2 and 8.

NOTE.—Some verses consist of three parts thus separated by caesura or diaeresis, while some consist of a single rhythmic series.³

603. The full metrical name of a verse consists of three parts. The first designates the characteristic foot, the second gives the number of feet or measures, and the third shows whether the verse is complete or incomplete. Thus—

1. A Dactylic Hexameter Acatalectic is a dactylic verse of six feet (Hexameter), all of which are complete (Acatalectic).

2. A Trochaic Dimeter Catalectic is a trochaic verse of two measures (Dimeter), the last of which is incomplete (Catalectic).

NOTE 1.—A verse with a Dactyl as its characteristic foot is called Dactylic; with a Trochee, Trochaic; with an Iambus, Iambic, etc.

NOTE 2.—A verse consisting of one measure is called Monometer; of two, Dimeter; of three, Trimeter; of four, Tetrameter; of five, Pentameter; of six, Hexameter.

NOTE 3.—A verse which closes with a complete measure is called Acatalectic; ⁴ with an incomplete measure, Catalectic; ⁴ with an excess of syllables, Hypermetrical.⁴

NOTE 4.—The term Acatalectic is often omitted, as a verse may be assumed to be complete unless the opposite is stated.

NOTE 5.—A Catalectic verse is said to be catalectic in syllabam, in dissyllabum, or in trissyllabum, according as the incomplete foot has one, two, or three syllables.

NOTE 6.—Verses are sometimes briefly designated by the number of feet or measures which they contain. Thus Hexameter (six measures) sometimes designates the Dactylic Hexameter Acatalectic, and Senarius (six feet), the Iambic Trimeter Acatalectic.

604. Verses are often designated by names derived from celebrated poets.

NOTE 1.—Thus Alcæic is derived from Alcæus; Archilochian, from Archilochus; Sapphic, from Sapphō; Glyconic, from Glycōn, etc.

¹ In dactylic verses a measure is a single foot, but in trochaic and iambic verses it is a dipody or a pair of feet.

² Caesura (from caedō, to cut) means a cutting; it cuts or divides the foot and the verse into parts.

³ A verse consisting of a single series is called Monocolon; of two, Dicolon; of three, Tricolon.

⁴ From the Greek ἀκατάληκτος, καταληκτικός, and ὑπέρμετρος.

NOTE 2.—Verses sometimes receive a name from the kind of subjects to which they were applied: as Heroic, applied to heroic subjects; Paroemias, to proverbs, etc.

605. The FINAL SYLLABLE of a verse may generally be either long or short at the pleasure of the poet.

606. A STANZA is a combination of two or more verses of different metres into one metrical whole; see 631.

NOTE.—A stanza of two lines or verses is called a Distich; of three, a Tristich; of four, a Tetrastich.

607. RHYTHMICAL READING.—In reading Latin verse care must be taken to preserve the words unbroken, to show the quantity of the syllables, and to mark the poetical ictus.

NOTE.—Scanning consists in separating a poem or verse into the feet of which it is composed.¹

608. FIGURES OF PROSODY.—The ancient poets sometimes allowed themselves, in the use of letters and syllables, certain liberties generally termed Figures of Prosody.

I. ELISION.—A final vowel, a final diphthong, or a final m with the preceding vowel, is generally elided² before a word beginning with a vowel or with h:

Mönstrum horrendum informē ingēns, for Mönstrum horrendum informe ingēns. Verg.

NOTE 1.—For Exceptions, see Hiatus, II., below.

NOTE 2.—Final e in the interrogative ne is sometimes dropped before a consonant: Pyrrhin' connūbia servās? for Pyrrhine connūbia servās? Verg.

NOTE 3.—In the early poets final e is often dropped before consonants:

Ex omnibu' rēbus, for ex omnibus rēbus. Lucr.

NOTE 4.—The elision of a final m with the preceding vowel is sometimes called Ecclipsis.³

NOTE 5.—The elision of a final vowel or diphthong, or of a final m with the preceding vowel, is sometimes called Synaloepha,³ or, if at the end of a line, Synapheta.³

II. HIATUS.—A final vowel or diphthong is sometimes retained before a word beginning with a vowel. Thus—

1. The interjections ō, heu, and prō are not elided; see Verg., Aen., X., 18; Geor., II., 436.

2. Long vowels and diphthongs are sometimes retained, especially in the arsis of a foot; see Verg., Ec., III., 6; VIL., 52.

¹ In school this is sometimes done in a purely mechanical way, sacrificing words to feet; but even this mechanical process is often useful to the beginner, as it makes him familiar with the poetical ictus.

² That is, partially suppressed. In reading, it should be lightly and indistinctly sounded, and blended with the following syllable, as in English poetry:

“The eternal years of God are hers.”

³ From the Greek ἐκκλιψις, συναλοιφή, and συνάφεια.

NOTE 1.—This is most common in proper names.

NOTE 2.—Vergil employs this form of hiatus more freely than the other Latin poets, and yet the entire Aeneid furnishes only a short list of examples.

NOTE 3.—In the thesis a final long vowel or diphthong is sometimes shortened before a short vowel instead of being elided; see Verg., Aen., III., 311; VI., 507.

NOTE 4.—Hiatus with a short final vowel is rare, but occurs even in Vergil; see Aen., I., 406; Ec., II., 58.

III. SYNÆRESIS.—Two syllables are sometimes contracted into one:

aurā, dēinde, dēinceps, idem, fladem, sādēm, prohibeat (pronounced proibeat).

NOTE 1.—In the different parts of dēum, se is generally pronounced as one syllable: dēse, dēsē, dēsēt, dēsēt, etc.; so et in the verb antecō: antēre, antērem, antēs, antēi.

NOTE 2.—I and u before vowels are sometimes used as consonants with the sound of y and w. Thus abyss and ariete become abyssē and aryetē; genus and tenue become genuss and tenuss.

NOTE 3.—In Plautus and Terence, Synæresis is used with great freedom.

NOTE 4.—The contraction of two syllables into one is sometimes called Synæresis.

IV. DIAERESIS.—In poetry, two syllables usually contracted into one are sometimes retained distinct:

aurā for aurae, Orphēus for Orphēūs, soluendus for solvendus, silua for silva.

NOTE.—Diaeresis properly means the resolution of one syllable into two, but the Latin poets seldom, if ever, actually make two syllables out of one. The examples generally explained by diaeresis are only ancient forms, used for effect or convenience.

V. DIASTOLE.—A syllable usually short is sometimes long, especially in the arsis of a foot:

Prīamidēs for Prīamidēa.

NOTE 1.—This poetic license occurs chiefly in proper names and in final syllables.

NOTE 2.—Vergil uses this license quite freely. He lengthens que in sixteen instances.

VI. SYSTOLE.—A syllable usually long is sometimes short:

tulerunt for tulērunt, steterunt for stetērunt (236, note), vidēn for vidēne.

NOTE.—This poetic license occurs most frequently in final vowels and diphthongs.

VII. SYNCOPE.—An entire foot is sometimes occupied by a single long syllable; see §14.

SECTION II

VARIETIES OF VERSE.

I. DACTYLIC HEXAMETER.

609. All Dactylic Verses consist of Dactyls and their metrical equivalents, Spondees. The ictus is on the first syllable of every foot.

610. The Dactylic Hexameter¹ consists of six feet. The first four are either Dactyls or Spondees, the fifth a Dactyl, and the sixth a Spondee (605).² The scale is,³

— — | — — | — — | — — | — — | — —⁴

Quadrupes | dante pu- | trem soni- | tū quatit | ungula | campum. Verg.

Arma vi- | rumque ca- | nō Trō- | jae qui | primus ab | ōris. Verg.

Infan- | dum rē- | gina ju- | bēs reno- | vāre do- | lōrem. Verg.

Illi⁵ in- | ter sē- | sē māg- | nā vī | braccia | tollunt. *Verg.*⁶

1. The scale of dactylic hexameters admits sixteen varieties, produced by varying the relative number and arrangement of Dactyls and Spondees. Thus a verse may contain—

- 1) Five Dactyls and one Spondee, as in the first example above.
- 2) Four Dactyls and two Spondees, admitting four different arrangements.
- 3) Three Dactyls and three Spondees, admitting six different arrangements.
- 4) Two Dactyls and four Spondees, admitting four different arrangements.
- 5) One Dactyl and five Spondees, as in the fourth example.

2. EFFECT OF DACTYLS.—Dactyls produce a rapid movement, and are adapted to lively subjects. Spondees produce a slow movement, and are adapted to grave subjects. But generally the best effect is produced in successive lines by variety in the number and arrangement of Dactyls and Spondees.

3. SPONDAIC LINE.—The Hexameter sometimes takes a Spondee in the ¹ This is at once the most important and the most ancient of all the Greek and Roman metres. In Greece it attained its perfection in the poems of Homer. It was introduced into Italy in a somewhat imperfect form by the poet Ennius about the middle of the second century before Christ; but it was improved by Lucretius, Catullus, and others, until it attained great excellence in the works of the Augustan poets. The most beautiful and finished Latin Hexameters are found in the works of Ovid and Vergil.

² The Dactylic Hexameter in Latin is here treated as Acatalectic, as the Latin poets seem to have regarded the last foot as a genuine Spondee, thus making the measure complete. See Christ, 'Metrik der Griechen und Römer,' pp. 110, 164.

³ In this scale the sign ' marks the ictus (599), and — — denotes that the original Dactyl, marked — — —, may become by contraction a Spondee, marked — —, i. e., that a Spondee may be used for a Dactyl (598).

⁴ Expressed in musical characters, this scale is as follows:

The notation means that, instead of the original measure , the equivalent may be used.

⁵ The final i of illi is elided; see 608, I.

⁶ With these lines of Vergil compare the following Hexameters from the Evangelist of Longfellow:

"This is the forest primeval; but where are the hearts that beneath it Leaped like the roe, when he hears in the woodland the voice of the huntsman?"

fifth place. It is then called Spondaic, and generally has a Dactyl as its fourth foot:

Cara de- | ūm sobo- | lēs māg- | num Jovis | incrē- | mentum. Verg.

NOTE.—In Vergil, spondaic lines are used much more sparingly than in the earlier poets,¹ and generally end in words of three or four syllables, as in incrementum above.²

611. CAESURA, OR CAESURAL PAUSE.—The favorite caesural pause of the Hexameter is after the arsis, or in the thesis, of the third foot :³

Armā- | tī ten- | dunt ; || it | clāmōr et | agmine | factō. Verg.

Infan- | dum, rē- | gīna, || ju- | bēs reno- | vāre do- | lōrem. Verg.

NOTE.—In the first line, the caesural pause, marked ||, is after tendunt, after the arsis of the third foot; and in the second line after regina, in the thesis (na ju) of the third foot. The former is called the Masculine Caesura, the latter the Feminine Caesura.⁴

1. The CAESURAL PAUSE is sometimes in the fourth foot, and then an additional pause is often introduced in the second:

Crēdide- | rim ; || vēr | illud e- | rat, || vēr | māgnus a- | gēbat. Verg.

2. BUOLIO DIAERESIS.—A pause called the Buolio Diaeresis,⁵ because originally used in the pastoral poetry of the Greeks, sometimes occurs at the end of the fourth foot:

Ingen- | tem cae- | lō soni- | tum dedit ; || inde se- | cūtus. Verg.

NOTE.—The Buolio Diaeresis was avoided by the best Latin poets, even in treating pastoral subjects. Vergil, even in his Bucolica, uses it very sparingly.

3. A DIAERESIS at the end of the third foot without any proper caesural pause is regarded as a blemish in the verse:

Pulveru- | lentus e- | quis furit ; || omnēs | arma re- | quīrunt. Verg.

¹ A single poem of Catullus, about half as long as a book of the Aeneid, contains more spondaic lines than all the works of Vergil.

² But Vergil has two spondaic lines ending et magnis dis; see Aen. III., 12, and VIII., 679.

³ That is, the first rhythmic series ends at this point. This pause is always at the end of a word, and may be so very slight as in most cases not to interfere with the sense, even if no mark of punctuation is required; but the best verses are so constructed that the caesural pause coincides with a pause in the sense; see Christ, 'Metrik,' p. 184. According to some writers, the Dactylic Hexameter had its origin in the union of two earlier dactylic verses, and the caesural pause now marks the point of union; see Christ, p. 173.

⁵ Also called the Buolico Caesura, as the term caesura is often made to include diaeresis.

4. The ending of a word within a foot always produces a caesura. A line may therefore have several caesuras, but generally only one of these is marked by any perceptible pause :

Arma vi- | rumque ca- | nō, || Trō- | jae qui | primus ab | ōris. Verg.

NOTE.—Here there is a caesura in every foot except the last, but only one of these, that after canō, in the third foot, has the caesural pause.¹

5. The caesura, with or without the pause, is an important feature in every hexameter. A line without it is prosaic in the extreme :

Rōmae | moenia | terruit | impiger | Hannibal | armis. Enn.

NOTE 1.—The *Penthemimeral*² caesura has great power to impart melody to the verse, but the best effect is produced when it is aided by other caesuras, as above.

NOTE 2.—A happy effect is often produced—

1) By combining the feminine caesura in the third foot with the hephthemimeral and the trithemimeral :

Dōnec e- | ris fō- | līx, || mul- | tōs nume- | rābis a- | micōs. Verg.

2) By combining the hephthemimeral with the trithemimeral :

Inde to- | rō pater | Aenē- | ās sic | orsus ab | altō. Verg.

NOTE 3.—The union of the feminine caesura with the trithemimeral, common in Greek, is somewhat rare in Latin, but it sometimes produces an harmonious verse :

Præcipi- | tat, sus- | dentque ca- | dentia | sidera | somnōs. Verg.

NOTE 4.—In the last two feet of the verse there should in general be no caesura whatever, unless it falls in the thesis of the fifth foot; but when that foot contains two entire words, a caesura is admissible after the arsis.

612. The ictus often falls upon unaccented syllables. Thus—

1. In the first, second, and fourth feet of the verse it falls sometimes upon accented and sometimes upon unaccented syllables ; see examples under 610.

2. In the third foot it generally falls upon an unaccented syllable ; see examples under 610.

3. In the fifth and sixth feet it generally falls upon accented syllables ; see examples under 610.

613. THE LAST WORD OF THE HEXAMETER is generally either a dissyllable or a trisyllable ; see examples under 610 and 611.³

¹ The caesura with the pause is variously called the chief caesura, the caesura of the verse, the caesura of the rhythm, etc. In distinction from this any other caesura may be called a caesura, a caesura of the foot, or a minor caesura.

² See p. 356, foot-note 4.

³ The learner should be informed that the niceties of structure which belong to finished Latin hexameters must be sought only in the poems of Vergil and Ovid. The happiest disposition of caesuras, the best adjustment of the poetical ictus to the prose accent, and the most approved structure in the closing measures of the verse, can not be expected in the rude numbers of Ennius, in the scientific discussions of Lucretius, or even in the familiar Satires of Horace. Those interested in the peculiarities of Latin hexameters in different writers will find a discussion of the subject in Lucian Müller's work, 'De re metrica poetarum Latinorum præter Plautum et Terentium libri septem.'

Norm 1.—Spondaie lines are exceptions; see 610, 2, note.

Norm 2.—Two monosyllables at the end of a line are not particularly objectionable, and sometimes even produce a happy effect:

Præcipi- | tant cū- | rae, || tur- | bātque | fūnere | mēns est. Verg.

Norm 3.—Est, even when not preceded by another monosyllable, may stand at the end of a line.

Norm 4.—A single monosyllable, except est, is not often used at the end of the line, except for the purpose of emphasis or humor:

Parturi- | unt mon- | tēs, || nū- | cūtur | ridicu- | lus mūs. Hor.

Norm 5.—In Vergil, twenty-one lines, apparently hypermetrical (603, note 3), are supposed to elide a final vowel or a final ae or us before the initial vowel of the next line; see Aen., I, 523; Geor., I, 295. See also 603, I, note 5.

II. OTHER DACTYLIC VERSES.

614. DACTYLIC PENTAMETER.¹—The Dactylic Pentameter consists of two parts separated by a diaeresis. Each part consists of two Dactyls and a long syllable. The Spondee may take the place of the Dactyl in the first part, but not in the second:

⏏ | ⏏ | ⏏ | ⏏ || ⏏ | ⏏ | ⏏ | ⏏, or

⏏ | ⏏ | ⏏ || ⏏ | ⏏ | ⏏ | ⏏²

Admoni- | tū coe- | pi || fortior | esse tu- | o. Ovid.

615. ELEGIAC DISTICH.—The Elegiac Distich consists of the Hexameter followed by the Pentameter:

Sēmiae | pulta vi- | rūm || cur- | via feri- | untur a- | rātris

Ossa, ru- | inō- | sās || oculit | herba do- | mūs. Ovid.

Norm 1.—In reading the Elegiac Distich, the Pentameter, including pauses, should of course occupy the same time as the Hexameter.

Norm 2.—Elegiac composition should be characterized by grace and elegance. Both members of the distich should be constructed in accordance with the most rigid rules of metre. The sense should be complete at the end of the couplet. Ovid furnishes us the best specimens of this style of composition.

616. The DACTYLIC TETRAMETER is identical with the last four feet of the Hexameter:

Ibimus | o soci- | 1, comi- | tēsque. Hor.

¹ The name Pentameter is founded on the ancient division of the line into five feet; the first and second being Dactyls or Spondees, the third a Spondee, the fourth and fifth Anapaests.

² In musical characters:

Thus, in reading Pentameters, a pause may be introduced after the long syllable in the third foot, or that foot may be lengthened so as to fill the measure:

NOTE.—In compound verses, as in the Greater Archilochian, the tetrameter in composition with other metres has a Dactyl in the fourth place; see 628, X.

617. The DACTYLIC TRIMETER CATALECTIC is identical with the second half of the Dactylic Pentameter :

Arbori- | busque co- | ma. Hor.

NOTE.—The Dactylic Trimeter Catalectic is also known as the Lesser Archilochian.

III. TROCHAIC VERSE.

618. The TROCHAIC DIPODY, the measure in Trochaic verse,¹ consists of two Trochees, the second of which is sometimes irrational (598, 1, 1)—i. e., it has the form of a Spondee with the time of a Trochee :

♩ ♩ or ♩ ♩ ♩

NOTE 1.—By the ordinary law of equivalents (598), a Tribrach ♩ ♩ ♩ may take the place of the Trochee ♩ ♩, and an apparent Anapaest ♩ ♩ > the place of the Irrational Trochee ♩ >.² In proper names a cyclic Dactyl ♩ ♩ (598, 1, 3) may occur in either foot.

NOTE 2.—In the Trochaic Dipody, the first foot has a heavier ictus than the second.

NOTE 3.—A syllable is sometimes prefixed to a Trochaic verse. A syllable thus used is called Anacrusis (upward beat), and is separated from the following measure by the mark :

619. The TROCHAIC DIMETER CATALECTIC consists of two Trochaic Dipodies with the last foot incomplete. In Horace it admits no equivalents, and has the following scale :

♩ — ♩ | ♩ —

Aula divi- | tem manet. Hor.

NOTE.—A Trochaic Tripody occurs in the Greater Archilochian; see 628, X.

1. The Alcaic Enneasyllabic verse which forms the third line in the Alcaic stanza is a Trochaic Dimeter with Anacrusis :

♩ : ♩ — ♩ | ♩ — ♩

Pu- : er quis ex au- | lā capillīs. Hor.

620. The TROCHAIC TETRAMETER CATALECTIC consists of four Trochaic Dipodies with the last foot incomplete. There is a diacresis (602, 2) at the end of the fourth foot, and the incomplete dipody admits no equivalents :

♩ — ♩ | ♩ — ♩ || ♩ — ♩ | ♩ — ^.³

² Thus in the second foot of a Trochaic Dipody the poet may use a Trochee, a Tribrach, a Spondee, or an Anapaest; but the Spondee and the Anapaest are pronounced in the same time as the Trochee or the Tribrach—i. e., they have irrational time.

³ Only the leading ictus of each dipody is here marked.

NOTE 1.—This is simply the union of two Trochaic Dimeters, the first acatalectic and the second catalectic, separated by diacresis.¹

NOTE 2.—In Latin this verse is used chiefly in comedy, and accordingly admits great licence in the use of feet. The Irrational Trochee (598, 1, 1) and its equivalents may occur in any foot except in the last dipody.

NOTE 3.—The Trochaic Tetrameter Acatalectic also occurs in the earlier poets :

Ipeo summis | saxis fixus || asperis ð- | visceratus. Æn.

IV. IAMBIC VERSE.

621. The IAMBIC DIPODY, the measure of Iambic verse, consists of two Iambi, the first of which is sometimes irrational (598, 1, 2)) —i. e., it has the form of a Spondee with the time of an Iambus :

⏏ ⏏ or ♩ ♩

NOTE 1.—The Tribrach for the Iambus, and the Dactyl² or Anapaest³ for the Irrational Iambus, are rare, except in comedy.

NOTE 2.—In the Ionic Dipody, the first foot has a heavier ictus than the second.

622. The IAMBIC TRIMETER, also called Senarius, consists of three Iambic Dipodies. The Caesura is usually in the third foot, but may be in the fourth :

⏏ ⏏ — | ⏏ ⏏ — | ⏏ ⏏ ⏏ :

Quid obserā- | tis || auribus | fundis precēs? Hor.

Neptūnus al- | to || tundit hi- | bernus salo. Hor.

Hās inter epu- | lās || ut juvat | pāsās ovēs. Hor.⁴

1. In PROPER NAMES, a Cyclic Anapaest is admissible in any foot except the last, but must be in a single word.

2. In HOMER the only feet freely admitted are the Iambus and the Spondee; their equivalents, the Tribrach, the Dactyl, and the Anapaest, are used very sparingly. The Tribrach never occurs in the fifth foot and only once in the first. The Anapaest occurs only twice in all.

3. In COMEDY great liberty is taken, and the Spondee and its equivalents are freely admitted in any foot except the last.

¹ Compare the corresponding English measure, in which the two parts appear as separate lines:

"Lives' of great men | all' remind us
We' can make our | lives' sublime,
And', departing, | leave' behind us
Foot'prints on the | sands' of time."

² The Dactyl thus used has the time of an Iambus and is marked > ⏏; the Anapaest is cyclic (598, 1, 4), marked ⏏ ⏏.

³ This same scale, divided thus, ⏏ : ⏏ — ⏏ | ⏏ — ⏏ | ⏏ — ⏏, represents Trochaic Trimeter Catalectic with Anacrusis. Thus all Iambic verses may be treated as Trochaic verses with Anacrusis.

⁴ Compare the English Alexandrine, the last line of the Spenserian stanza :

When Phœ'bus lifts | his head' out of | the win'ter's wave.

4. The CHOLIAMBUS is a variety of Iambic Trimeter with a Trochee in the sixth foot:¹

Miser Catul- | le dēsinās | ineptire. Catul.

623. The IAMBIC TRIMETER CATALECTIC occurs in Horace with the following scale :

⏏ ⏏ ⏏ - | ⏏ ⏏ ⏏ - | ⏏ ⏏ ⏏

Vocātus at- | que nōn vocā- | tus audit. Hor.

NOTE.—The Dactyl and the Anapaest are not admissible; the Tribrach occurs only in the second foot.

624. The IAMBIC DIMETER consists of two Iambic Dipodies :

⏏ ⏏ ⏏ - | ⏏ ⏏ ⏏ x

Queruntur in | silvis avēs. Hor.

Imbrēs nivēs- | que comparat. Hor.

Ast ego vicis- | sim riserō. Hor.

NOTE 1.—Horace admits the Dactyl only in the first foot, the Tribrach only in the second, the Anapaest not at all.

NOTE 2.—Iambic Dimeter is sometimes catalectic.

625. The IAMBIC TETRAMETER consists of four Iambic Dipodies. It belongs chiefly to comedy :

Quantum intellēx- | i modo senis || sententiam | dē nūptiis. Ter.

NOTE.—Iambic Tetrameter is sometimes catalectic :

Quot commodās | rēs attulit? || quot autem adē | mi cārās. Ter.

V. IONIC VERSE.

626. The Ionic Verse in Horace consists entirely of Lesser Ionics. It may be either Trimeter or Dimeter :

⏏ ⏏ ⏏ - | ⏏ ⏏ ⏏ - | ⏏ ⏏ ⏏ -
⏏ ⏏ ⏏ - | ⏏ ⏏ ⏏ -

Neque pūgnō | neque sēgni | pede victus ;

Catus idem | per apertum. Hor.

NOTE 1.—In this verse the last syllable is not common, but is often long only by position (p. 883, foot-note 3). Thus us in victus is long before o in catus.

NOTE 2.—The Ionic Tetrameter Catalectic, also called Sotadean Verse, occurs chiefly in comedy. It consists in general of Greater Ionics, but in Martial it has a Ditrochee as the third foot :

⏏ - ⏏ ⏏ | ⏏ - ⏏ ⏏ | ⏏ x ⏏ ⏏ | ⏏ x ⏏

Hās cum gemi- | nā compe- | dēcat ca- | tēnās. Mart.

¹ Choliambus, or Seazon, means lame or limping Iambus, and is so called from its limping movement. It is explained as a Trochaic Trimeter Acatalectic with Anacrusis, and with syncope (608, VII.) in the fifth foot. The example here given may be represented thus : ⏏ : ⏏ ⏏ - ⏏ | ⏏ ⏏ - ⏏ | ⏏ - ⏏

V. The GREATER ASCLEPIADEAN consists of three catalectic verses, a Second Pherecratic, an Adonic, and a First Pherecratic:

└ > | └ └ | └ || └ └ | └ | └ └ | └ └ | ✕ ∧

Seu plū- | rēs hie- | mēs, || seu tribu- | it' || Jūppiter | ūlti- | mam. Hor.

VI. The LESSER SAPPHIC consists of a Trochaic Dipody and a First Pherecratic:

└ └ | └ > | └ └ | └ └ | └ └

Namque | mē sil- | vā lupus | in Sa- | binā. Hor.

VII. The GREATER SAPPHIC consists of two Catalectic Glyconics, a Third and a First with Syncope:

└ └ | └ > | └ └ | └ || └ └ | └ └ | └ └ | └ └ | ✕ ∧

Inter | aequā- | lēs equi- | tat, || Gallica | nec lu- | pā- | tīa. Hor.

VIII. The LESSER ALCAIC consists of two Cyclic Dactyls and two Trochees:

└ └ | └ └ | └ └ | └ └

Purple- | ō vari- | us co- | lore. Hor.

IX. The GREATER ALCAIC consists of a Trochaic Dipody with Anacrusis and a Catalectic First Pherecratic:

└ : └ └ | └ └ | └ └ | └ └ | ✕ ∧

Vi- : dēs ut | altā | stet nive | candi- | dum. Hor.

X. The GREATER ARCHILOCHIAN¹ consists of a Dactylic Tetrameter (616) followed by a Trochaic Tripody. The first three feet are either Dactyls or Spondees; the fourth, a Dactyl; and the last three, Trochees:

└ ∞ | └ ∞ | └ ∞ | └ └ || └ └ | └ └ | └ └

Vitae | summa bre- | vis spem | nōs vetat, || incho- | āre | longam. Hor.

NOTE.—This verse may be explained either as Logaoedic or as Compound. With the first explanation, the Dactyls are cyclic and the Spondees have irrational time; with the second explanation, the first member of the verse has the Dactyl as its characteristic foot and the second member the Trochee; see 601, note 2.

629. The following Logaoedic verses not used in Horace deserve mention:

I. The PHALAECIAN is a Logaoedic Pentapody:²

✕ └ | └ └ | └ └ | └ └ | └ └

² This verse differs from the Lesser Sapphic in having the Dactyl in the second foot, while the latter has the Dactyl in the third.

II. The SECOND PRIAPEAN consists of two Catalectic Second Glyconics with Syncope:

♫ ˘ | ˘ ˘ | ˘ ˘ | ˘ || ˘ ˘ | ˘ ˘ | ˘ | ♫ ˘

Quercus | árida | rústi- | cá || cónfor- | máta se | cú- | rí. Catul.

SECTION III.

THE VERSIFICATION OF THE PRINCIPAL LATIN POETS.

630. Vergil and Juvenal use the Dactylic Hexameter; Ovid, the Hexameter in his Metamorphoses and the Elegiac Distich in his Epistles and other works; Horace, the Hexameter in his Epistles and Satires, and a variety of metres in his Odes and Epodes.

LYRIC METRES OF HORACE.

1. }
 2. } - > | ~ ~ | L || ~ ~ | - > | x ^
 3. }
 4. }

In three Odes: I., 1; III., 30; IV., 8.

VIII. GREATER ASCLEPIADÆAN STANZA.—Four Greater Asclepiadæans (628, V.):

1. }
 2. } - > | ~ ~ | L || ~ ~ | L | ~ ~ | - > | x ^
 3. }
 4. }

In three Odes: I., 11, 18; IV., 10.

IX. DOUBLE ALCMANIAN STANZA.—First and third lines, Dactylic Hexameters (610); second and fourth, Dactylic Tetrameters (616):

- $$\begin{array}{l} 1. \} - \infty | - \infty | - \infty | - \infty | - \cup \cup | - \times \\ 3. \} \\ 2. \} - \infty | - \infty | - \cup \cup | - \times \\ 4. \} \end{array}$$

In two Odes: I, 7, 28.

NOTE.—This stanza is formed by the union of two Alcmanian stanzas; see XIX. below.

X. TROCHAIC STANZA.—First and third lines, Trochaic Dimeter Catalectic (619); second and fourth, Iambic Trimeter Catalectic (623):

- $$\begin{array}{l} 1. \} - \cup - \cup | - \cup \times \\ 3. \} \\ 2. \} \simeq - \cup - | \simeq - \cup - | \cup - \cup \\ 4. \} \end{array}$$

In Ode II., 18.

XI. DACTYLIC ARCHILOCHIAN STANZA.—First and third lines, Dactylic Hexameters; second and fourth, Catalectic Dactylic Trimeters (617, note):

- $$\begin{array}{l} 1. \} - \infty | - \infty | - \infty | - \infty | - \cup \cup | - \times \\ 3. \} \\ 2. \} - \cup \cup | - \cup \cup | \times \\ 4. \} \end{array}$$

In Ode IV., 7.

XII. GREATER ARCHILOCHIAN STANZA.—First and third lines, Greater Archilochians (628, X.); second and fourth, Iambic Trimeter Catalectic (623):

- $$\begin{array}{l} 1. \} - \infty | - \infty | - \infty | - \cup \cup || - \cup | - \cup | - \cup \\ 3. \} \\ 2. \} \simeq - \cup - | \simeq - \cup - | \cup - \cup \\ 4. \} \end{array}$$

In Ode I., 4.

NOTE.—The second and fourth lines are sometimes read with syncope, as follows:

$$\simeq : - \cup - \simeq | - \cup - \cup | \cup | \times \wedge$$

XIII. IONIC STANZA.—First and second lines, Ionic Dimeters (626); third and fourth, Ionic Trimeters (626):

- $$\begin{array}{l} 1. \} \cup \cup - - | \cup \cup - - \\ 3. \} \\ 2. \} \cup \cup - - | \cup \cup - - | \cup \cup - - \\ 4. \} \end{array}$$

In Ode III., 12.

NOTE.—This ode is variously arranged in different editions, sometimes in stanzas of three lines and sometimes of four.

633. The metres of the following poets must be briefly mentioned:

I. CATULLUS uses chiefly (1) the Elegiac Distich (615); (2) Phalæcian.

verse (629, I.); (3) Choliambus or Scazon (622, 4); (4) Iambic Trimeter (622); (5) Priapean (629, II.).

II. MARTIAL uses largely the Choliambus or Scazon and the Phalæcian verse.

NOTE 1.—Martial also uses Iambic and Dactylic measures.

NOTE 2.—Seneca in his choral odes imitates the lyric metres of Horace. He uses Sapphics very freely, and often combines them into systems closing with the Adonic.

NOTE 3.—Seneca also uses Anapaestic¹ verse with Spondees and Dactyls as equivalents. This consists of one or more dipodies:

Venient annis | sæcula sãris.

III. Plautus and Terence use chiefly various Iambic and Trochaic metres, but they also use—

1. BACCHIAC¹ METRES, generally Tetrameter or Dimeter:

Multàs' rês | siml'tû in | meò' cor- | de vor'sò. Plaut.

At ta'men ubi | fidês' ? si | rogês', nil | pendent' hic. Ter.

NOTE.—The Molossus, — — —, may take the place of the Bacchius, as in multàs rês, and the long syllables may be resolved, as in at tamen ubi.

2. CRETIC¹ METRES, generally Tetrameter or Dimeter:

Nam' doli | nòn' doli | sunt', nisi as- | tû' colàs. Plaut.

Ut' malis | gau'deant | at'que ex in- | com'modis. Ter.

NOTE 1.—Plautus also uses Anapaestic metres, especially Dimeters:

Quod agò' subit, ad- | secus' sequitur. Plaut.

This measure admits Dactyls and Spondees, rarely Proceleusmatics, ◡ ◡ ◡ ◡

NOTE 2.—For Trochaic and Iambic Metres in Comedy, see 620, note 2; 622, 3.

NOTE 3.—For Special Peculiarities in the prosody of Plautus and Terence, see 576, notes 2 and 3; 578, note 2; 580, notes 2, 3, and 4.²

NOTE 4.—On the free use of Synærests in Comedy, see 608, III., note 8.

² For a full account of the metres of Plautus and Terence, see editions of those poets; as the edition of Plautus by Ritschl, of a part of Plautus by Harrington, the edition of Terence by Wagner, and the edition by Crowell; also Spengel, 'Plautus: Kritik, Prosodie, Metrik.'

APPENDIX.

I. FIGURES OF SPEECH.

634. A Figure is a deviation from the ordinary form, construction, or signification of words.

NOTE.—Deviations from the ordinary forms are called Figures of Etymology; from the ordinary constructions, Figures of Syntax; and from the ordinary significations, Figures of Rhetoric.

635. The principal FIGURES OF ETYMOLOGY are—

1. APHÆRESIS, the taking of one or more letters from the beginning of a word: 'est for est.
2. SYNCOPE, the taking of one or more letters from the middle of a word: dices for diaces.
3. APOCOPE, the taking of one or more letters from the end of a word: tūn' for tūna.
4. EPIENTHESIS, the insertion of one or more letters in a word: Alcumēna for Alcmena, Alitum for Alitum.
5. METATHESIS, the transposition of letters: piatris for pristia.
6. See also FIGURES OF PROSODY, 608.

636. The principal FIGURES OF SYNTAX are—

I. ELLIPSIS, the omission of one or more words of a sentence:

Habitabat ad Jovis (sc. templum), he dwelt near the temple of Jupiter. Liv.
Hic illius arma (fuerunt), hic currus fuit, here were her arms, here her chariot. Verg.

1. ASYNDETON is an ellipsis of a conjunction: ¹

Veni, vidi, vici, I came, I saw, I conquered. Suet. See also 554, I., & with note 1.

2. For the ELLIPSIS of factū, dictū, orō, see 368, & note 1; 523, I., note; 569, II., &

3. For APPOSITION or RETICENTIA, see 637, XI., 3.

II. BRACHYLOGY, a concise and abridged form of expression:

Nostri Græcæ nesciunt nec Græci Latine, our people do not know Greek and the Greeks (do) not (know) Latin. Cic. Natura hominis beluis antecedit, the nature of man surpasses (that of) the brutes. Cic.

1. Zeugma employs a word in two or more connections, though strictly applicable only in one:

Pacem an bellum gerens, whether at peace or waging war. Sall. Duces pictasque exure carinas, slay the leaders and burn the painted ships. Verg.

¹ Asyndeton is sometimes distinguished according to its use, as Adlocutive, Enumerative, etc.; see Nägelsbach, 'Stilistik,' § 200.

² Here nesciunt suggests scitunt, and beluis in the second example is equivalent to beludrum naturæ.

³ Gerens, applicable only to bellum, is here used also of pacem.

2. Syllepsis is the use of an adjective with two or more nouns, or of a verb with two or more subjects:

Pater et mater mortui sunt, father and mother are dead (439). Ter. Tu et Tullia valetis, you and Tullia are well. Cic.

III. PLEONASM is a full, redundant, or emphatic form of expression:¹

Erant itinera duo, quibus itineribus exire possent, there were two ways by which ways they might depart. Cass. Eurusque Notusque ruunt, both Eurus and Notus rush forth. Verg.

1. POLYSYNDETON is a pleonasm in the use of conjunctions, as in the last example.

2. HENDIADYS is the use of two nouns with a conjunction, instead of a noun with an adjective or genitive:

Armis virisque for viris armatis, with armed men. Tac.

3. ANAPHORA is the repetition of a word at the beginning of successive clauses:

Mé cuncta Italia, mé universa civitas cónsulem déclaravit, me all Italy, me the whole state declared consul. Cic.

4. EPIPHORA is the repetition of a word at the end of successive clauses:

Laellus návus erat, dóctus erat, Laellus was diligent, was learned. Cic.

5. EPIZEUXIS is the emphatic repetition of a word:

Fuit, fuit quondam in hac ré pública virtus, there was, there was formerly virtue in this republic. Cic.

6. Monosyllabic prepositions are often repeated before successive nouns, regularly so with et—et:

Et in bellicis et in civilibus officiis, both in military and in civil offices. Cic.

NOTE.—Other prepositions are sometimes repeated.

7. A demonstrative pronoun or adverb—id, hæc, illud, etc, ita—is often used somewhat redundantly to represent a subsequent clause. So also quid, in quid cónsuls with a clause:

Illud té dró ut diligens sis, I ask you (that thing) to be (that you be) diligent. Cic.

8. Pronouns are often redundant with quidem; see 450, 4, note 2.

9. Pleonasm often occurs with licet:

Ut licet permittitur = licet, it is lawful (is permitted that it is, etc.). Cic.

10. Circumlocutions with res, genus, modus, and ratio are common.

IV. ENALLAGE is the substitution of one part of speech for another, or of one grammatical form for another:

Populus latè rēx (for rēgnāns), a people of extensive sway (ruling extensively). Verg. Sērus (sēvō) in caelum redeās, may you return late to heaven. Hor. Vina cadis (vinis cadis) onerāre, to fill the flasks with wine. Verg. Cursus iustī (iustus) amnis, the regular course of the river. Liv.

1. ANTIMETRIA is the use of one part of speech for another, as in the first two examples.

2. HYPALLAGE is the use of one case for another, as in the last two examples.

3. PROLEPSIS or ANTICIPATION is the application of an epithet in anticipation of the action of the verb:

Scūta latentia condunt, they conceal their hidden shields. Verg. See also 440, 2.

4. SYNESIS is a construction according to sense, without regard to grammatical forms. For examples, see 438, 6; 445, 5; 461.

¹ Pleonasm, a full or emphatic expression, differs widely from Tautology, which is a needless repetition of the same meaning in different words.

5. ATTRACTION unites in construction words not united in sense:

Animal quem (for quod) vocamus hominem, the animal which we call man. Cic.
See also 445, 4, 8, and 9.

6. ANACOLUTHON is a want of harmony in the construction of the different parts of a sentence:

Et, ut dicunt, omnes Græcōs esse (Græci sunt), if, as they say, all are Greeks. Cic.

V. HYPERBATON is a transposition of words or clauses:

Præter arma nihil erat super (supererat), nothing remained, except their arms. Nep. Valet atque vivit (vivit atque valet), he is alive and well. Ter. Subeunt lûcō, fluviumque relinquunt, they enter the grove and leave the river. Verg.

1. ANASTROPHON is the transposition of words only, as in the first example.

2. HYSTERON PROTERON is a transposition of clauses, as in the last example.

3. THESIS is the separation of the parts of a compound word:

Nec prius respexi quam vênimus, nor did I look back before (sooner than) we arrived. Verg.

4. CHIASMUS is an inverted arrangement of words in contrasted groups; see 562.

637. FIGURES OF RHETORIC comprise several varieties. The following are the most important: ¹

I. A SIMILE is a direct comparison:

Manus effugit imāgē pār levibus ventis voluerique simillima somnō, the image, like the swift winds, and very like a fleeting dream, escaped my hands. Verg.

II. METAPHOR is an implied comparison, and assigns to one object the appropriate name, epithet, or action of another:

Rēi publicæ vulnus (for damnum), the wound of the republic. Cic. Naufragium fortunæ, the wreck of fortune. Cic. Aurēs vērītātī clausæ sunt, his ears are closed against the truth. Cic.

1. Allegory is an extended metaphor, or a series of metaphors. For an example, see Horace, L., Ode 14: Ō nāvis . . . occupā portum, etc.²

III. METONYMY is the use of one name for another naturally suggested by it:

Aequō Mārte (for proelio) pugnātum est, they fought in an equal contest. Liv. Furit Vulcanus (ignis), the fire rages. Verg. Proximus ardet Ūcalegōn (domus Ūcalegontis), Ucalegon burns next. Verg.

NOTE.—By this figure the cause is often put for the effect, and the effect for the cause; the property for the possessor, the place or age for the people, the sign for the thing signified, the material for the manufactured article, etc.: Mars for bellum, Vulcanus for ignis, Bacchus for vinum, nōbilitās for nōbilitas, Gracōia for Gracōi, laurea for eternitas, argentum for idea argentea, etc.

¹ On Figurative Language, see the eighth and ninth books of Quintilian, 'De Institutione Oratorii,' and the fourth book of 'Auctor ad Herennium' in Cicero's works.

² In this beautiful allegory the poet represents the vessel of state as having been well-nigh wrecked in the storms of the civil war, but as now approaching the haven of peace.

1. Autonomasia designates a person by some title or office, as versor Karthāginis for Scipio, Rōmānae eloquentiae princeps for Cicero.

IV. SYNECDOCHE is the use of a part for the whole, or of the whole for a part; of the special for the general, or of the general for the special:

Statiō male fida carinis (nāvibus), a station unsafe for ships. Verg.

V. IRONY is the use of a word for its opposite:

Lēgātōs bonus (for malus) imperātor vester nōn admisit, your good commander did not admit the ambassadors. Liv. See also 507, 3, note 1.

NOTE.—Metaphor, metonymy, synecdoche, and irony are often called Tropes.

VI. CLIMAX (ladder) is a steady ascent or advance in interest:

Africānō industria virtūtem, virtūs glōriam, glōria aemulās comparāvit, industry procured virtue for Africanus, virtue glory, glory rivals. Cic.

VII. HYPERBOLE is an exaggeration:

Ventis et fulminis ōcior aliis, swifter than the winds and the wings of the lightning. Verg.

VIII. LITOTES denies something instead of affirming the opposite:

Nōn opus est = perniciosum est, it is not necessary. Cic.

IX. PERSONIFICATION or PROSOPOPEIA represents inanimate objects as living beings:

Cūjus latus ille mūrō petēbat? whose side did that weapon seek? Cic.¹

X. APOSTROPHE is an address to inanimate objects or to absent persons:

Vos, Albāni tumuli, vos implorō, I implore you, ye Alban hills. Cic.

XI. The following figures deserve brief mention:

1. ALLITERATION, a repetition of the same letter at the beginning of successive words:

Vi victa vis est, force was conquered by force. Cic. Fortissimi viri virtūs, the virtue of a most brave man. Cic.

2. APOPHASIS or PARALEIPSIS, a pretended omission:²

Nōn dicō tē pecūniās accēpisse; rapinās tuās omnēs omitto, I do not state that you accepted money; I omit all your acts of rapine. Cic.

3. APOSIOPESIS or RETICENTIA, an ellipsis which for rhetorical effect leaves the sentence unfinished:

Quōs ego—sed mōtōs praestat compōnere fluctūs, whom I—but it is better to calm the troubled waves. Verg.

4. EUPHEMISM, the use of mild or agreeable language on unpleasant subjects:

Si quid mihi hūmānitus accidisset, if anything common to the lot of man should befall me—i. e., if I should die. Cic.

¹ See also First Oration against Catiline, VII: Quae tecum . . . tacita loquitur, etc.

² Sometimes called occupatio.

5. ONOMATOPOEIA, the use of a word in imitation of a special sound:

Bovēs mūgiunt, the cattle low. Liv. Murmurat unda, the wave murmurs. Verg.

6. OXYMORON, an apparent contradiction:

Absentēs adsunt et egentēs abundant, the absent are present and the needy have an abundance. Cic.

7. PARONOMASIA or AGNOMINATION, a play upon words:

Hunc avium dulcēdō dūcit ad avium,¹ the attraction of birds leads him to the pathless wood. Cic.

II. LATIN LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE.

638. The Latin derives its name from the Latini or Latins, the ancient inhabitants of Latium in Italy. It belongs to the Indo-European or Aryan family, which embraces seven groups of tongues known as the Indian or Sanskrit, the Persian or Zend, the Greek, the Italian, the Celtic, the Slavonic, and the Teutonic or Germanic. The Latin is the leading member of the Italian group, which also embraces the Umbrian and the Oscan. All these languages have one common system of inflection, and in various respects strikingly resemble each other. They are the descendants of one common speech spoken by a single race of men untold centuries before the dawn of history.

NOTE 1.—In illustration of the relationship between the Sanskrit, Greek, Latin, and English, compare the following paradigms of declension: ²

SINGULAR.
	SANSKRIT.	GREEK.	LATIN.	ENGLISH.

Abl.	padbhyas,		pedibus,	from feet.
Ins.	padbhīs,			with feet.
Loc.	patan,			in feet.

¹ The pun, lost in English, is in the use of avium, a remote or pathless place, with avium, of birds.

² See also p. 71, foot-note 2; p. 83, foot-note 3.

³ The Ablatives, the Instrumental, and the Locatives are lost in Greek, but their places are supplied by the Genitive and the Datives.

⁴ The final consonant, probably t, of the original Ablative ending is changed to e in pedas and dropped in pede. The Instrumental and the Locatives are lost in Latin, but their places are supplied by the Ablatives.

NOTE 2.—In these paradigms observe that the initial p in pad, woð, peð, becomes f in foot, and that the final d becomes t. This change is in accordance with Grimm's Law of the Rotation of Mutes in the Germanic languages. This law is as follows:

The Primitive Mutes, which generally remain unchanged in Sanskrit, Greek, and Latin, are changed in passing into the Germanic languages, to which the English belongs. Thus the SONANTS, d, g, in passing into English, become SURDS, t, k; the SURDS, c, z, p, t, become ASPIRATES, h, wh, f (for ph), th; the ASPIRATES, dh,¹ dā,¹ gh,¹ become SONANTS, ð, d, g.²

NOTE 3.—The relationship between the Sanskrit, Greek, Latin, and English may be abundantly illustrated by comparing the forms of familiar words in these different languages.³

639. The earliest specimens of Latin whose date can be determined are found in ancient inscriptions, and belong to the latter part of the fourth century before Christ or to the beginning of the third. Fragments, however, of laws, hymns, and sacred formulas, doubtless of an earlier though uncertain date, have been preserved in Cato, Livy, Cicero, and other Latin writers.⁴

¹ Bh generally is represented in Latin by b or f; dā by d or f, and gh by g, h, or f; see Schleicher, pp. 244–251.

² For an account of Grimm's Law, with its applications, see Max Müller, 'Science of Language,' Second Series, Lecture V.; Papillon, pp. 85–91.

³ Compare the following:

SANSKRIT.	GREEK.	LATIN.	ENGLISH.
dvau,	δύο,	duo,	two.
trayas,	τρεις,	trēs,	three.
ṣat,	ἕξ,	sex,	six.
sapta,	ἑπτὰ,	septem,	seven.
dasa,	δέκα,	decem,	ten.
dvīs,	δύο,	bis,	twice.
tris,	τρεις,	ter,	thrice.
mātā,	μήτηρ,	māter,	mother.
pitā,	πάτηρ,	pater,	father.
naus,	ναῦς,	nāvis,	navy.
vāk,	ὥς,	vōx,	voice.

⁴ Such are the ancient forms of prayer found in Cato and other writers, the fragments of Sallian hymns, of the formulas of the Fœtal priests, and of ancient laws, especially of the laws of the Twelve Tables. The following inscription on the tomb of the Scipios shows some of the peculiarities of early Latin:

HONO OINO . FLOREVM . CONSENTIONT . R
 DVONORO . OPTVMO . FVISE . VIRO
 LVCIOM . SCIPIONEM . FILIOS . BARBATI
 CONSOL . CENSOR . AIDILIS . HIC . FVET . A HEO . CEPIT . CORSEICA . ALERIAQVE . VRBE
 DEDIT . TEMPESTATIBVS . AIDE . MERETO

In ordinary Latin:

Hunc unum plurimi cōsentiunt Rōmā bonōrum optimū fuisse virum cīvīrūm, Lucium Scipionem. Filius Barbatī
 cōsul, cōsor, aedilis hīc fuit apud vōs.
 Hīc cepit Corsicam Aleriamque urbem pugnandō;
 dedit tempestatibus aedem meritō vōtam.

See Wordsworth, 'Early Latin,' Part II.; F. D. Allen, 'Early Latin'; Roby, I., p. 418.

640. The history of Roman literature begins with Livius Andronicus, a writer of plays, and the earliest Roman author known to us. It embraces about eight centuries, from 250 B. C. to 550 A. D., and has been divided by Dr. Freund into three principal periods. These periods, with their principal authors, are as follows:

I. The ANTE-CLASSICAL PERIOD, from 250 to 81 B. C.:

Ennius,	Plautus,	Terence,	Lucretius.
---------	----------	----------	------------

II. The CLASSICAL PERIOD, embracing—

1. The Golden Age, from 81 B. C. to 14 A. D.:

Cicero,	Nepos,	Horace,	Tibullus,
Caesar,	Livy,	Ovid,	Propertius.
Sallust,	Vergil,	Catullus,

2. The Silver Age, from 14 to 180 A. D.:

Phaedrus,	The Plinies,	Quintilian,	Persius,
Velleius,	Tacitus,	Suetonius,	Lucan,
The Senecas,	Curtius,	Juvenal,	Martial.

III. The POST-CLASSICAL PERIOD, embracing—

1. The Brasen Age, from 180 to 476 A. D.:

Justin,	Eutropius,	Lactantius,	Claudian,
Victor,	Macrobius,	Ausonius,	Terentian.

2. The Iron Age, from 476 to 550 A. D.:

Boëthius,	Cassiodorus,	Justinian,	Priscian.

III. THE ROMAN CALENDAR.

641. The Julian Calendar of the Romans is the basis of our own, and is identical with it in the number of months in the year and in the number of days in the months.

642. PECULIARITIES.—The Roman calendar has the following peculiarities:

I. The days were not numbered from the beginning of the month, as with us, but from three different points in the month:

1. The Calends, the first of each month.

2. The Nones, the fifth—but the seventh in March, May, July, and October.

3. The Ides, the thirteenth—but the fifteenth in March, May, July, and October.

II. From these three points the days were numbered, not forward, but backward.

NOTE.—Hence, after the Ides of each month, the days were numbered from the Calends of the following month.

III. In numbering backward from each of these points, the day before each was denoted by pridie Kalendæ, Nōnæ, etc.; the second before each by die tertio (not secundo) ante Kalendæ, etc.; the third, by die quarto, etc.; and so on through the month.

1. This peculiarity in the use of the numerals, designating the second day before the Calends, etc., as the third, and the third as the fourth, etc., arises from the fact that the Calends, etc., were themselves counted as the first. Thus pridie Kalendæ becomes the second before the Calends, die tertio ante Kalendæ, the third, etc.

2. In dates the name of the month is added in the form of an adjective in agreement with Kalendæ, Nōnæ, etc., as, die quarto ante Nōnæ Januariæ, often shortened to quarto ante Nōnæ Jān., or IV. ante Nōnæ Jān., or without ante, as, IV. Nōnæ Jān., the second of January.

3. Ante diem is common, instead of die—ante, as, ante diem quartum Nōnæ Jān. for die quarto ante Nōnæ Jān.

4. The expressions ante diem Kal., etc., pridie Kal., etc., are often used as indeclinable nouns with a preposition, as, ex ante diem V. Idus Oct., from the 11th of Oct. Liv. Ad pridie Nōnæ Māiæ, till the 6th of May. Cic.

¹ To the Calends, Nones, etc., the name of the month must of course be added. Before Nōnæ, Idus, etc., ante is sometimes used and sometimes omitted (642, III., 2).

² The Calends of the following month are of course meant; the 16th of March, for instance, is XVII. Kalendæ Aprilis.

³ The inclosed forms apply to leap-year.

644. ENGLISH AND LATIN DATES.—The table (643) will furnish the learner with the English expression for any Latin date, or the Latin expression for any English date; but it may be convenient also to have the following rule:

I. If the day is numbered from the Nones or Ides, subtract the number diminished by one from the number of the day on which the Nones or Ides fall:

VIII. ante Idūs Jan. = $18 - (8 - 1) = 18 - 7 = 6$ th of January.

II. If the day is numbered from the Calends of the following month, subtract the number diminished by two from the number of days in the current month:

XVIII. ante Kal. Feb. = $31 - (18 - 2) = 31 - 16 = 15$ th of January.

NOTE.—In leap-year the 24th and the 25th February are both called the sixth before the Calends of March, VI. Kal. Mart. The days before the 24th are numbered as if the month contained only 28 days, but the days after the 25th are numbered regularly for a month of 29 days: V., IV., III. Kal. Mart., and pridie Kal. Mart.

645. The Roman day, from sunrise to sunset, and the night, from sunset to sunrise, were each divided at all seasons of the year into twelve hours.

1. The night was also divided into four watches of three Roman hours each.

2. The hour, being uniformly $\frac{1}{12}$ of the day or of the night, of course varied in length with the length of the day or night at different seasons of the year.

IV. ROMAN MONEY, WEIGHTS, AND MEASURES.

646. The principal Roman coins were the as, of copper; the sestertius, quinarius, dénarius, of silver; and the aureus, of gold. Their value in the classical period may be approximately given as follows:

As.....	1 to 2 cents.
Sestertius.....	5 "
Quinarius.....	10 "
Dénarius.....	20 "
Aureus = 25 dénarii.....	$5.00

1. The as, the unit of the Roman currency, contained originally a pound of copper, but it was diminished from time to time till at last it contained only $\frac{1}{24}$ of a pound.

NOTE.—An as, whatever its weight, was divided into twelve uncia.

2. The sestertius contained originally $2\frac{1}{2}$ asses, the quinarius 5, and the dénarius 10; but as the as depreciated in value, the number of asses in these coins was increased.

3. The as is also used as a general unit of measure. Thus—

1) In Weight, the as is a pound, and the uncia an ounce.

2) In Measure, the as is a foot or a jügerum (648, IV. and V.), and the uncia is $\frac{1}{12}$ of a foot or of a jügerum.

3) In Interest, the as is the unit of interest—i. e., 1 per cent. a month, or 12 per cent. a year; the uncia is $\frac{1}{12}$ per cent. a month, or 1 per cent. a year; and the denis is $\frac{1}{12}$ per cent. a month, or 6 per cent. a year, etc.

4) In Inheritance, the as is the whole estate, and the uncia $\frac{1}{12}$ of it: heres ex asse, heir of the whole estate; heres ex dodrante, heir of $\frac{1}{12}$.

647. COMPUTATION OF MONEY.—In all sums of money the common unit of computation was the sestertius, also called nummus; but four special points deserve notice:

I. In all sums of money, the units, tens, and hundreds are denoted by sestertii with the proper cardinals:

Quinque sestertii, 5 sesterces; viginti sestertii, 20 sesterces; ducenti sestertii, 200 sesterces.

II. One thousand sesterces are denoted by mille sestertii, or mille sestertium.

III. In sums less than 1,000,000 sesterces, the thousands are denoted either (1) by milìa sestertium (gen. plur.), or (2) by sestertia:

Duo milia sestertium, or duo sestertia, 2,000 sesterces; quinque milia sestertium, or quinque sestertia, 5,000 sesterces.

NOTE.—With sestertia the distributives are generally used, as, duo sestertia.

IV. In sums containing one or more millions of sesterces, sestertium with the value of 100,000 sesterces is used with the proper numeral adverb, decies, vicies, etc. Thus—

Decies sestertium, 1,000,000 ($10 \times 100,000$) sesterces; vicies sestertium, 2,000,000 ($20 \times 100,000$) sesterces.

1. SESTERTIUM.—In the examples under IV., sestertium is treated as a neuter noun in the singular, though originally it was probably the genitive plural of sestertia, and the full expression for 1,000,000 sesterces was Decies centena milia sestertium. Centena milia was afterward generally omitted, and finally sestertium lost its force as a genitive plural, and became a neuter noun in the singular, capable of declension.

2. Sometimes sestertium is omitted, leaving only the numeral adverb: as, decies, 1,000,000 sesterces.

3. The sign HS is often used for sestertii, and sometimes for sestertia, or sestertium:

Decem HS = 10 sesterces (HS = sestertii). Dena HS = 10,000 sesterces (HS = sestertia). Decies HS = 1,000,000 sesterces (HS = sestertium).

648. WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.—The following weights and measures deserve mention:

I. The Libra, also called As or Pondo, equal to about $11\frac{1}{4}$ ounces avoirdupois, is the basis of Roman weights.

1. The Libra, like the as in money, is divided into 12 parts.

II. The Modius, equal to about a peck, is the basis of dry measure.

III. The Amphora, containing a Roman cubic foot, equivalent to about seven gallons, is a convenient basis of liquid measure.

IV. The Roman Pis or Foot, equivalent to about 11.6 inches, is the basis of long measure.

NOTE.—Cubit is equivalent to $1\frac{1}{2}$ Roman feet, passus to 5, and stadium to 625.

V. The Jagerum, containing 28,800 Roman square feet, equivalent to about six tenths of an acre, is the basis of square measure.

V. ROMAN NAMES.

649. A Roman citizen usually had three names. The first, or prænomen, designated the individual; the second, or nomen, the gens or tribe; and the third, or cognomen, the family. Thus, Pūblius Cornēlius Scipiō was Pūblius of the Scipiō family of the Cornelian gens, and Gāius Jūlius Cæsar was Gāius of the Cæsar family of the Julian gens.

1. The prænomen was often abbreviated:

A. = Aulus.	M. = Mārcus.	S. (Sex.) = Sextus.
Ap. = Appius.	M'. = Mānius.	Ser. = Servius.
C. = Gāius.	Mam. = Māmercus.	Sp. = Spurius.
Cn. = Gnaeus.	N. = Numerius.	T. = Titus.
D. = Decimus.	P. = Pūblius.	Ti. (Tib.) = Tiberius.
L. = Lūcius.	Q. (Qu.) = Quintus.

2. Sometimes an agnomen or surname was added. Thus Scipiō received the surname Africānus from his victories in Africa: Pūblius Cornēlius Scipiō Africānus.

3. An adopted son took (1) the full name of his adoptive father, and (2) an agnomen in anus formed from the name of his own gens. Thus Octāvius when adopted by Cæsar became Gāius Jūlius Cæsar Octāviānus. Afterward the title of Augustus was conferred upon him, making his full name Gāius Jūlius Cæsar Octāviānus Augustus.

4. Women were generally known by the name of their gens. Thus the daughter of Jūlius Cæsar was simply Jūlia; of Tullius Cicero, Tullia; of Cornēlius Scipiō, Cornelia. Three daughters in any family of the Cornelian gens would be known as Cornelia, Cornelia Secunda or Minor, and Cornelia Tertia.

650. Various abbreviations occur in classical authors:

A. D. = ante diem.	F. C. = faciendum cū-	Praef. = praefectus.
Aed. = aedilia.	ravit.	Proc. = prōcōsul.

VI. VOWELS BEFORE TWO CONSONANTS OR A DOUBLE CONSONANT.

651. On the natural quantity¹ of vowels before two consonants, a double consonant, or the letter j, observe—

I. That vowels are long before ns and nf; generally also before gn and j:

cōnsciūs, cōnsēnsūs, cōnstāns, cōnstruō, cōnsul, insānūs, inscribō, insequor, instāns, insula, amāns, monēns, regēns, audiēns; cōnferō, cōnficiō, cōnfluō, infāmia, infēlix, infēnsus, inferō, infrequēns; abiēgnus, benignus, māg-nus, malignus, rēgnum, signum, stāgnum; cūjus, ejus, hūjus, mājor, pejor.

II. That all vowels which represent diphthongs, or are the result of contraction, are long:

existimō, amāsse, audissem, intrōrsū, intrōrsus, prōrsus, quōrsū, rūrsum, sūrsum, malle, malle, nolle, nolle, nullus, ūlus, Mārs, Mārtis.

III. That the long vowels of Primitives are retained in Derivatives—

1. In āscō, ēscō, and iscō in Inceptives from verbs of the first, second, or fourth conjugation:

gelāscō, labāscō, acēscō, ārēscō, florēscō, latēscō, patēscō, silēscō, virtēscō, ēdormiscō, obdormiscō, sciscō, cōnsciscō.

2. In large classes of words of which the following are examples:

crās-tinus, dūc-tilis, fās-tus, ne-fās-tus, flos-culus, jūs-tus, in-jūs-tus, jūstissimus, jūs-titia, matr-imōnium, os-culum, os-culor, os-tium, palūs-ter, rās-trum, rōs-trum, rūs-ticus, salic-tum.

IV. That vowels are long in the ending of the Nominative Singular of nouns and adjectives with long increments in the Genitive:

frux, lēx, lūx, pāx, plēbs, rēx, thōrax, vōx.

V. That in the second person of the Perfect Active i is long in the penult:

amāvisti, amāvistis, monuisti, monuistis, rēxisti, rēxistis, audivisti, audivisti.

¹ It is often difficult, and sometimes absolutely impossible, to determine the natural quantity of vowels before two consonants, but the subject has of late been somewhat carefully investigated by Ritschl, Schmitz, and others. An attempt has been made in this article to collect the most important results of these labors. The chief sources of information upon this subject are (1) ancient inscriptions, (2) Greek transcriptions of Latin words, (3) the testimony of ancient grammarians, (4) the comic poets, and (5) etymology. See Schmitz, 'Beiträge'; Ritschl, 'Rheinisches Museum,' vol. xxxi., pp. 481—492; Schöll, 'Acta Societatis Philologae Lipsiensis,' vol. vi., pp. 71—215; Müller, 'Orthographiae et Prosodiae Latinae Summārium'; Foerster, 'Rheinisches Museum,' xxxiii., pp. 291—299.

² Intrōrsū from intrōversū; ūlus from ūnulus; Mārs from Mavors.

NOTE.—According to Priscian,¹ e is long before et, etesi, etc., in the Perfect Active: rexi, rexi, tixerunt, illucimus.

VI. That long vowels occur in the following words and in their derivatives:

actiō	māximus	rēctus
actitō	mille	Salustius
actor	narrō	sēscenti
actus	Nōrba	Sēstius
axilla	nūntius	strūctor
classeis	ordō	strūctūra
erispus	ornāmentum	strūctus
dāmma	ornō	tāxillus
emptus	pāstor	tōssillae
festus	pāxillus	tristis
Festus	Polliō	ūctiō
Jūppiter	Popillius	ūctitō
lēctitō	priscus	ūctor
lēctor	propinquus	ūctūra
lēctus	prōximus	ūctus
lictor	querēlla	Vēstinus
littera	quinque	vēstis
lnella	quintus	vēxillum
Mārcus	rēctiō	villa
māxilla	rēctor	Vipsānius

VII. That vowels are probably short before nt and nd:²

amant, amantis, monent, monentis, prūdentis, prūdentia, amandus, monendus, regendus.

VIII. That the short vowels of Primitives are retained in Derivatives:

inter-nus, juven-tus, liber-tās, mūnus-culum, patr-imōnium, pauper-culus, super-bus, vir-tūs.

IX. That vowels are generally short in the ending of the Nominative Singular of nouns and adjectives with short increments in the Genitive:

adeps, calix, dux, grex, hiems, jūdex, nex, nux.

NOTE.—Vowels before final ne are of course excepted.

X. That the first vowel in the following endings is short:

1. ernus, ernius, erninus; urnus, urnius, urninus:

māternus, paternus, Līternius, Līterninus, taciturnus, Sāturnius, Sāturninus.

2. ustus, estus, ester, estis, esticus, estinus, estris:

robustus, venustus, vetustus, honestus, modestus, campester, silvester, agrestis, caelestis, domesticus, clandestinus, terrestris.

XI. That all vowels are to be treated as short unless there are good reasons for believing them to be long.

² See p. 27, foot-note 2; p. 61, foot-note 2.

INDEX OF VERBS.

THIS Index contains an alphabetical list, not only of all the simple verbs in common use which involve any important irregularities, but also of such compounds as seem to require special mention. In regard to compounds of prepositions (344) observe—

1. That the elements—preposition and verb—often appear in the compound in a changed form; see 344, 4-6.

2. That the stem-vowel is often changed in the Perfect and Supine; see 221.

INDEX OF SUBJECTS.

NOTE.—The numbers refer to articles, not to pages. Acc. or accus. = accusative; adjs. = adjectives; comp. = composition; compds. = compounds; conj. = conjugation; conjunc. = conjunctions; constr. = construction; f. = and the following; gen. or genit. = genitive; gend. = gender; ger. = gerund; loc. or locat. = locative; preps. = prepositions; w. = with.

It has not been thought advisable to overload this index with such separate words as may be readily referred to classes, or to general rules, or even with such exceptions as may be readily found under their respective heads. Accordingly, the numerous exceptions in Dec. III. are not inserted, as they may be best found under the respective endings, 69–115.

THE END.

PROFESSOR HARKNESS'S LATIN TEXT-BOOKS.

A Complete Latin Course for the First Year contains a series of simple exercises progressively arranged, together with numerous exercises and passages intended for practice in sight-reading and composition exercise; also a Grammatical Outline, in the exact form and language in which they occur in Harkness's Standard Latin Grammar. It is designed to serve as a complete introductory book in Latin, no other grammar being required.

Progressive Exercises in Reading and Writing Latin, with Frequent Practice in Reading at Sight, intended as a companion-book to Harkness's Standard Latin Grammar.

This and the preceding contain numerous notes and suggestions, and an adequate Latin-English and English-Latin Dictionary.

An Introductory Latin Book. Intended as an Elementary Drill-Book on the Inflections and Principles of the Language. 12mo.

This work gives a distinct outline of the whole grammar, with exercises in translation from each language into the other, suggestions to the learner, notes, and vocabularies, and prepares the way to both the reading and the writing of easy classic Latin.

A Latin Grammar. For Schools and Colleges. Edition of 1874. 12mo.

A Latin Grammar. For Schools and Colleges. Standard edition of 1881. 12mo.

This is a complete, philosophical, and attractive work. It presents a systematic arrangement of the great facts and laws of the language, exhibiting not only the grammatical forms and constructions, but also those vital principles which underlie, control, and explain them.

The Elements of Latin Grammar. For Schools. 12mo.

A New Latin Reader. With Exercises in Latin Composition, intended as a Companion to the Author's Latin Grammar. With References, Suggestions, Notes, and Vocabularies. 12mo.

The "New Reader" differs from the "Reader" in two respects. The first parts of the two books are wholly different. The New has in this part alternating exercises in translation both ways from one language into the other, with numbered references to the "Grammar" at every step. The second part is substantially the same in both books, except that nine of the Latin sections in the Old are removed, and their places in the New filled with English to be translated into Latin.

PROF. HARKNESS'S LATIN TEXT-BOOKS.—(Continued.)

A Latin Reader. With References, Suggestions, Notes, and Vocabulary. 12mo.

A Latin Reader. With Exercises in Latin Composition. 12mo.

This is the "Latin Reader" complete, with which is bound in, Part First—forty-nine pages, notes appended—of the "Practical Introduction to Latin Composition."

A Practical Introduction to Latin Composition. For Schools and Colleges. Part I. Elementary Exercises, intended as a Companion to the Reader. Part II. Latin Syntax. Part III. Elements of Latin Style, with Special Reference to Idioms and Synonyms. 12mo.

Cæsar's Commentaries on the Gallic War. With Notes, Dictionary, Life of Cæsar, Map of Gaul, Plans of Battles, etc. 12mo.

This work is prepared with great care, having full explanatory notes on matters of grammar and style, a complete dictionary, Map of Gaul, plans of battles, and a life of Cæsar. The references to the "Grammar" enable the student to understand constructions not already perfectly familiar to him.

Cicero's Select Orations. 12mo.

Cicero's Select Orations. With Explanatory Notes and a Special Dictionary. 12mo.

The orations are the four "In Catilinam," the "Pro Archia Poëta," "De Imperio Pompeii," "Pro Marcello," "Pro Ligario," "Pro Rege Deiotaro," and the first Philippic "In Antonium."

Sallust's Catiline. With Explanatory Notes and a Special Vocabulary. 12mo.

This work follows the "Cæsar," and is edited with the same care, giving notes, illustrations, special dictionary, and references to the author's "Grammar."

Preparatory Course of Latin Prose Authors. Large 12mo.

This work presents, in a single volume, a course of reading in the prose authors sufficiently extended to meet the requirements for admission to any American college. It contains four books of Cæsar's "Commentaries," the "Catiline" of Sallust, and eight of Cicero's orations—the four "In Catilinam," the "Pro Archia Poëta," "De Imperio Pompeii," "Pro Marcello," and "Pro Ligario." The editorial aids consist of notes, illustrations, special dictionary, analysis, and a map of Gaul.
